TARDIEU HAS CONFIDENCE IN THE FUTURE OF FRANCE

In the Government's Political Keynote Speech the Premier Declared That France Is Strong and Intends to Remain Mistress of Her Own Desitny—Leaders From All Branches of Life Cheered As the Premier Asserted That "France Today Is In a Position Which Frees Her Both From the Need to Fear Or to Boast"—The Audience Interpreted the Declaration As An Allusion to Mussolini.

DE[illegible], June 1.—(AP)—In the [illegible] government's political keynote speech, Premier Andre Tardieu [illegible] leaders from all branches of [illegible] France is strong, and intends [illegible] mistress of her own destiny, seeking neither to fear nor to boast.

The premier's address was awaited by all France and by many other countries because it follows closely speeches by Premier Mussolini of [illegible] which have been characterized in the French press as "bellicose" and as directed mainly against France.

Mr. Tardieu made no specific mention of Italy nor of Mussolini but confined himself to a declaration of calm confidence in French democratic institutions and French national strength both physical and moral. He recalled Foreign Minister Briand's long efforts to achieve peace. He added however, that although "the government is passionately interested in this work, it has neglected nothing which would enable France to participate actively by vigilantly safeguarding its security."

"The international organization of peace is effective only if it associates strong peoples capable of contributing as much to the common defense as formerly they could to their own," the premier continued. "At the London conference France followed a policy of firmness joining in all measures of general interest which were not of a nature to reduce tonnage necessary for her needs nor to increase the arbitrary and injustice of rules of limitation adopted at Washington in 1922."

M. Tardieu recalled how opposition groups in France predicted that sacrifices would be made at London and at The Hague conference, that the reparations loan would not be commercialized and that the Rhineland would be prematurely evacuated.

"It is the contrary that has happened," he asserted. "France today is in a position which frees her both from the need to fear or to boast."

The audience, apparently interpreting this as an allusion to Mussolini applauded long and loudly. M. Tardieu then commented on Bismarck's policy and that of his successors, "out of which excesses came the German defeat of 1918."

Outlining France's policy for national defense, he said it included an appropriation of three and one-half billions of francs for organization of the frontiers, and complete re-stocking of supplies left depleted after the Riff war in Africa.

"As before the World war, we wish peace through stability and organization, with the will to remain in all situations masters of our destiny if there should arise unexpected difficulties."

"We are a young government, presided over by new men," the premier continued, and added that in modern times a government must not only be strong, but must act quickly, seeking to prevent evils rather than cure them.

The premier reviewed the government's work, and said conditions in France were sound. He proclaimed his policy as that of strong activity in all affairs, taking as his cabinet's motto; "Will achieve."

"Firmness caused the disintegration of the communist party, which is no longer able, as three years ago, to disturb peace and order in the streets. Its activities, which seem to have been transferred to the colonies, will encounter there no less firm resistance."

"And if the second International extend its imitation of third international from words to acts, it will find itself facing a government animated by the same determination to maintain social peace and public order," he concluded.

TORNADO INJURIES WERE FATAL TO CHARLES GEIST

BARON MOUND, N. M., June 1.—(AP)—Charles Geist of Paterson, N. J., died today from injuries suffered in a tornado which struck this town late yesterday, bringing total deaths to two. He was crushed in the wreckage of a garage in which Alfred Holbrook was killed instantly.

Mrs. D. M. Brewer of Los Angeles, a tourist, who was among the 14 injured, was in a serious condition today, and hospital attendants reported that she might not survive. Other injured persons were recovering.

Geist was traveling to the Pacific coast with Joe Lowenthal, also of Paterson, and they were detained at Wagon Mound for two days as a result of an automobile break-down.

Lowenthal said Geist had a dream of death Friday night and told he was so much concerned over the premonition that he wrote a letter to his wife at Paterson about it Saturday morning. Lowenthal was not injured.

15 LIVES WERE LOST WHEN SWEDISH STEAMER SANK

NEW HAVEN, England, June 1.—(AP)—Fifteen lives were believed lost early today when the Swedish steamer Inger sank after collision with the Italian motorship Literno in the English channel near Beachy Head. Three men were rescued out of a personnel of 18.

Two members of the Inger's crew were picked up by the Literno. A lifeboat rescued another sailor from an overturned boat, and another lifeboat picked up a sailor's body.

The collision occurred in a dense fog shortly after midnight. The Inger was bound from Swansea to Sweden with a cargo of coal. The Literno, a tanker outward bound from Copenhagen, was damaged in the bows, but proceeded to Dover without assistance. Several steamers' lifeboats remained on the spot to hunt for the missing men.

RESIGNED AS PHYSICIAN AT WETHERSFIELD PRISON

HARTFORD, June 1.—(AP)—Dr. Allen H. Cranz today resigned as physician at the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield, and coincident with his it was learned that one guard has been dismissed for playing checkers while on duty and another quit rather than face a 15 days' suspension for failure to salute Warden Charles S. Reed.

These developments came as a sequel to the dismissal Saturday of Guard Dennis F. Horgan for being asleep on duty. Michael Brady, who has been on the force four years, was discharged for playing checkers. The other guard, John Sullivan, neglected to salute the warden. He has been at the prison three years.

Dr. William B. Smith, flight physician on the 43rd division, Aviation, C. N. G., has been appointed temporary physician.

FIVE-DAY CONVENTION OF RADIO MANUFACTURERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 1.—(AP)—The radio industry enters another season here tomorrow with its annual dress rehearsal at which it parades its new wares and tackles problems born in the year just past.

Gathering tonight on the eve of the five-day convention of the Radio Manufacturers' association and trade show, delegates began discussion of the questions facing the trade, of which continued public interest in broadcasting was declared as important as any—and harder to solve.

Two hundred or more radio manufacturers will have exhibits at the trade show, which is expected to have an attendance close to 30,000.

NEW DEFENSE OFFERED BY BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR.

WASHINGTON, June 1. — (AP) — Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Methodist Episcopal church, south, in a statement today defended his failure to report the 1928 campaign expenditures of the Virginia anti-Smith democrats and questioned the propriety of the senate lobby committee's inquiry into those expenditures.

Cannon quoted from the record of the committee hearings a statement by Chairman Caraway to Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, that the lobby committee was "not empowered to inquire into political expenditures; it is only those expenditures and activities that have to do with the influencing of legislation or executive action, that we are inquiring into, and not political."

"In view of this correct definition of the limitations of the lobbying committee," said Bishop Cannon, "by the chairman himself, I was surprised when I learned that Senator Caraway was making inquiries concerning the treasurer of the Virginia anti-Smith democrats in the 'political' (not lobbying) campaign of 1928."

SAYS MAHATMA GANDHI HAS WRETTEN LETTER OF REGRET

LONDON, June 1.—(AP)—A dispatch to the Daily Herald from Simla says that Mahatma Gandhi has written a letter from his prison to the viceroy, expressing regret at the violnce incidents which have followed the civil disobedience campaign but disavowing all responsibility for them and reaffirming that his followers were determined to maintain the principle of non-resistance.

The dispatch, written by the Herald's special correspondent, adds that beyond a formal acknowldgment, no reply will be given, the authorities apparently being firmly resolved to have neither correspondence nor conversation with the leaders, until the disobedience movement is ended.

300TH ANNIVERSARY OF WINDSOR CHURCH

WINDSOR, June 1.—(AP)—Three services were held by the First Congregational church as part of its 300th anniversary observance which began yesterday.

Greetings were received by the church from the Second Congregational church of Dorchester, Mass., the Midway, Ga., and the First Congregational church of Hartford.

Rev. Roscoe Nelson, pastor of the church, gave the historical sermon at the morning services. The Rev. Dr. William W. Leete of New Haven, son of Rev. Theodore Leete, who was pastor of the church from 1846 to 1859, took part.

POLICE RAIDED COCKING MAIN AT HOPKINTON, R. I.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, June 2.—Ten out of a total of 32 attendants at a cocking main held in Hopkinton on Sunday were arraigned before Judge Oliver H. Williams in a special session of the third district court Monday morning at 11 a. m. The main was raided by Hopkinton Chief of Police Frank H. Brown, with the assistance of Sergt. Harvey and Trooper Kingsley of the Hope Valley barracks of the state police.

The main was reported to have started at 10 a. m., but it was 5 p. m. when almost without warning two shots were heard and the officers were by the outside where there were two birds fighting and some 200 spectators. There was a wild scramble in all directions and many of the spectators took to the woods, leaving some 50 parked automobiles in a nearby ploughed field.

Other troopers from the barracks were summoned, who patrolled the roads and picked up stragglers as they emerged onto the state highway. One trooper met a party of three men, who gave their residence as Norwich, New London and Westerly. They were taken back to the field and the $2 transported to Westerly in a truck of the state board of public roads, their names taken and summoned to appear in court Monday at 2 p. m.

The early morning arraignment was to accommodate attendants who resided at distant points. They were charged with attending a public exhibition of fighting against a Rhode Island statute, charging cruelty to animals. Solicitor John G. Ferguson explained that this charge was brought in preference to one against public policy. On the latter complaint the maximum penalty is a $20 fine and three months imprisonment, the prison sentence being mandatory.

The following men were arraigned and pleaded guilty, being fined $10 and costs: John T. Malley, Voluntown; Oscar E. Taylor, North Stonington; Alfred Jeffrey, West Warwick, R. I.; Adolph Schiller, Lower Pawcatuck; Cheney B. Storey, Cambridge, Mass.; Carl L. Patterson, Arlington, Mass.; Lester Brennan, Shelton, Conn.; Chas. W. Taylor, Stonington; Everette E. Murphy, Stonington, and Robert E. Taylor, North Stonington.

Of the 32 birds held at the Hope Valley barracks of the state police, Solicitor Ferguson, at the request of Chief Brown, moved that they be forfeited to the state and it was so ordered by Judge Williams.

PREVENTED THE ESCAPE OF TWO ALIENS IN AIRPLANE

DETROIT, June 1.—(AP)—Stanley Zerambo, senior inspector of the United States immigration patrol at Detroit, today drove an automobile into the whirling propeller of an airplane to prevent the escape of the ship and the two aliens aboard.

The propeller was broken and a wing of the plane damaged and the automobile radiator and windshield were broken. Zerambo was cut and bruised but escaped serious injury.

The pilot of the plane jumped out and escaped on foot, but his passengers, Ayrlazo Toleo, a Greek, and Zwa Cheveson, Rumanian, were captured and will be deported.

The ship was the seventh alien smuggling plane seized here by Inspector Zerambo.

CHASE TO BECOME LARGEST BANK IN THE WORLD TODAY

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—The largest bank in the world, with resources of $2,840,000,000 has set tomorrow for opening its doors for business.

Created by consolidation of the Chase National bank, the Equitable Trust company, all of New York, the institution is larger than either the Midland bank of London—formerly the largest in the world, or the National City bank of New York, which had been the greatest in the United States for 53 years. The merger was approved by the stockholders at special meetings held April 24, and formally took effect at the close of business yesterday.

BYRD'S SHIPS STARTED THROUGH PANAMA CANAL

PANAMA, June 1.—(AP)—The ships of Rear Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expedition started through the Panama canal today on the last lap of the homeward voyage.

The steamer Eleanor Bolling entered the canal shortly before 10 a. m., and the bark City of New York at 10 o'clock. Their schedule called for a stop at Cristobal for fuel, with sailing from that port set for Tuesday morning.

OBITUARY

Clark T. Durant

HARTFORD, June 1.—(AP)—Clark T. Durant, vice-president of the trust department of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, and Yale class of 1899, died here Saturday, aged 61.

Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin

HARTFORD, Conn., June 1.—(AP)—Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of the superior court of Connecticut, died at his home in West Hartford early today after a long illness. He was 59 years old.

Judge Marvin was one of two democrats on the superior court bench in this state. He had served since 1923 and before that had been judge of probate in Hartford since 1907.

Judge Loren P. Waldo Marvin had been in public life throughout his adult life. He was best known in Hartford as judge of probate in which office he served from 1907 until he was appointed to the superior court bench by Gov. Everett J. Lake in 1921 for a term from May of that year until 1929, and he was re-appointed by Governor Trumbull. His term would have expired in 1937.

Judge Marvin was born in Hartford, the son of E. E. Marvin, long a clerk of the U. S. district. His birthday was Oct. 19, 1870.

Seven Motorcycles Piled Into An Auto

New Britain Man, Leading the Fleet of Cycles, Was Instantly Killed.

DURHAM, Conn., June 1.—(AP)—Seven motorcycles headed for a hill climb piled into an automobile on the Middletown-New Haven highway tonight and caused the death of one person and injuries to seven others.

Hilmar Kvistorm, 20, of 31 Henry street, New Britain, who was leading the fleet of cycles, was instantly killed.

The injured: Kenneth Rund, 19, fractured leg; John Kavalauski, 19, fractured leg; William Windisch, 17, abrasions of the leg; and Joseph Norment, 18, abrasions, all of New Britain; Mrs. Edith Hall, 38, Wallingford, two fractured ribs and cuts about the face, and Elwood Smith, 21, and his brother, Thomas, both of North Attleboro, Mass., leg injuries and cuts, respectively.

All of the injured, excepting Thomas Smith, were admitted to Middlesex hospital, Middletown. Their condition, however, was not considered serious. Thomas Smith was treated at the hospital and discharged.

George A. Stevens, 63, of Wallingford, driver of the automobile, escaped injury. He was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Stevens, who was accompanied by Mrs. Hall, was driving north on the highway. He started to turn west into the Middlefield highway, when the fleet of cycles, traveling south on the Middletown-New Haven highway toward a hill climb here, piled into his automobile.

Frank Maguda, 19, of Kensington, told Coroner L. A. Smith that there were nine cycles in the fleet, traveling at about 60 miles an hour. Eight of the vehicles were proceeding in double file behind Kvistorm's cycle.

Maguda and his brother, John, were mounted on the last two motorcycles in the fleet and succeeded in avoiding the wreckage. Frank Maguda was held in $1,000 bonds by Coroner Smith as a material witness.

The automobile was turned completely around when the cycles piled into it and then landed in a shallow ditch badly damaged. Before landing in the ditch, it is believed to have passed over Kvistorm, who had been thrown off his vehicle.

Traffic on the highway was held up for over an hour.

ITALIAN FLIER MADE NEW WORLD ENDURANCE RECORD

MONTECELLO, Italy, June 1.—(AP)—Major Maddalena tonight broke the world endurance record officially recognized for planes not refueling in the air, that of Johann Rieticz and Hans Zimmerman, German fliers who stayed up 65 hours and 26 minutes in 1928.

Accompanied by Captain Cecconi, the Italian flier took off from the government field here at 4 a. m. Friday for Ostia and return, and by 10:25 o'clock tonight had flown 66 hours and 25 minutes. At midnight he was still flying and it was believed he would exceed distance records also. For his record to be recognized, however, he must land at the point of departure.

Major Maddalena, who participated in the rescue of General Umberto Nobile's crew of the dirigible Italia in the Arctic in 1928, is planning a flight to New York by way of the Azores.

SEA CAPTAIN HELD ON CHARGE OF HOMICIDE

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—A weather beaten old mariner, six feet, three inches tall, was held in $1,000 bail in Morrisania court today on a technical charge of homicide growing out of his first fatal accident in 50 years at sea.

The man, Captain Johnson Pittis, 70, of Amherst, Nova Scotia, is master of the schooner M. J. Taylor, which ran down the launch Hanna yesterday off City Island, causing the death of its owner, Emil Jessen, 36, of New York, and throwing its eight other occupants into the water.

Captain Pittis protested his innocence. He declared under maritime law his vessel had the right of way over the power driven launch, which he said was in mid-channel. He will be given a hearing next Tuesday.

TO DEBATE MARRIAGE, DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

CINCINNATI, June 1.—(AP)—The 142nd general assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., will have its first opportunity for debate tomorrow when the commission on marriage, divorce and re-marriage submits its report, a document which the Philadelphia Presbytery has protested as being too frank a discussion of personal problems.

The commission has gone freely into the subject and has voiced its findings under a number of headings which deal, among other things, with sex problems.

One of its suggestions is that the church has been too silent about conditions surrounding marriage, divorce and the home.

LEAPED TO HER DEATH FROM ROOF OF HOTEL

BOSTON, June 1.—(AP)—Three months after her fellow teacher had committed suicide, Miss Elizabeth Grant, 38, instructor in Boston public schools for the past 40 years, leaped to her death from the roof of a Roxbury hotel today. Miss Mariete S. Murch, 68, who taught at the same school with Miss Grant, hurled herself from the window of another hotel in March.

Miss Grant, whose friends said she was in ill health, was pronounced a suicide by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

SENATE TO DEBATE TARIFF BILL REPORTS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—On the eve of a week of senate debate on the tariff bill conference reports, four house and senate republican leaders issued statements today lauding the new flexible provision, while a senate democrat denounced as "vicious propaganda." A recent tariff commission analysis showing agriculture to be the prime beneficiary of the measure.

The national committees of the republican and democratic parties were the outlets for the statements, which came as both sides of the long and weary contest continued to make claims of victory in the impending last ditch fight.

Graf Is To Start For Home At 9 P.M. Today

The German Dirigible Has Been Refuelled and Repaired At Lakehurst.

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 1.—(AP)—A crowd estimated by naval air station officials at 25,000 passed through the big hangar of the station today to see the Graf Zeppelin, which arrived here yesterday from South America.

Berthed on the south side of the dome-shaped building used to house the navy's Los Angeles and other airships, the Graf was being refuelled and repaired in preparation for her start on another transatlantic hop to her home port, Friedrichshafen, Germany, at 9 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow.

Commander Rosendahl of the Lakehurst station said the broken struts on the after motor gondola, which were repaired today, were in the same place as those broken in Japan on the Graf's round-the-world flight.

"It is nothing serious," he said. "This is the point of greatest strain, and those struts snapped before something bigger and more important could give way."

Tonight, 320,000 cubic feet of fuel gas had been blown into the gas cells of the Graf. Tomorrow morning, 300,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, the lifting element, is to be taken aboard.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the Graf, went to New York to spend the night after having luncheon with a group of officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation, of Akron, Ohio.

SPANISH WAR VETS CALL FOR OVERRIDING OF VETO

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The United Spanish War Veterans called on the senate today to pass the Spanish-American war pension bill over the veto of President Hoover and administration leaders conceded they expected a close vote on the proposal.

A motion by Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, to override the veto is to be voted upon tomorrow afternoon. After a check of the membership today Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, indicated he believed the vote would be close, and that a possibility existed the motion would be approved. Tomorrow's test will be the first vote on a veto by President Hoover. It is his second disapproval of a measure.

The veterans' organization sent to each senator a letter taking issue, point by point, with the president's veto message and expressing resentment at the "demand that there shall now be a requirement of proof of poverty, if not of pauperism, before a veteran of the Spanish-American war may receive a pension."

FOURTH FIRE OF YEAR AT HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE

CENTRAL ISLIP, N. Y., June 1.—(AP)—Fire broke out today for the fourth time this year at the state hospital for the insane and raged for two hours before firemen from 12 neighboring towns brought it under control. Their efforts succeeded in confining the flames to a three-story attendants' dormitory, which was virtually destroyed.

The entire south wall of the burning building housing 100 men and women nurses, collapsed during the fire, slightly injuring seven volunteer firemen, including the chief and the assistant chief of the Bay Shore Fire department.

A statement issued tonight by Dr. H. G. Gibson, first assistant physician at the hospital, said none of the residents of the dormitory was missing or hurt and that no disorder occurred in a nearby building, housing several hundred violently insane patients. Officials said all of the institutions' 6,400 inmates were kept well in hand.

The blaze started in the attic of the dormitory.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS HEARD TRIBUTE BY GEN. PERSHING

BRUSSELS, June 1.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing today paid tribute, in the presence of 13 gold star mothers, to 365 heroes of the 27th and 30th division of the A. E. F., who lie buried at Waereghem in the midst of Flanders battlefields.

The mothers delayed their departure for Paris and Cherbourg by General Pershing's request. The ceremony was attended by American Ambassador Hugh Gibson, who journey to the cemetery from Brussels. Others at the ceremony were Major Edwin M. Watson, military attache at the American embassy and the whole personnel of the American embassy.

General Pershing, who arrived from Paris an hour before the ceremony, was introduced to the mothers with each of whom he shook hands, and chatted for several minutes.

176TH COMMENCEMENT AT COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Columbia university's 176th commencement began today with the baccalaureate sermon, preached by the Rev. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of the university. The exercises end Tuesday night when President Nicholas Murray Butler will confer the degrees.

"We cannot but be aware that we live at the beginning of a new age in history, at a time when an old dream is dying and a new one is coming to birth," the chaplain said.

"All standards, practices, customs, issues are now critically examined and tested fresh—a sure evidence of an awakened spirit."

FASCISTI CLASHED WITH A GROUP OF SOCIALISTS

DUNKELSTEIN, Austria, June 1.—(AP)—Fascist Heimwehr of this district clashed with a group of socialists today and shots were fired which caused numerous casualties.

Members of the heimwehr said that in response to stone throwing and remarks from socialists they dismounted from a motor truck and charged their provokers.

Those most severely wounded by bullets were taken to the hospital.

A STUDENT FLIER WAS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

WINDSOR, Ont., June 1.—(AP)—Nicholas J. Shafer, 19, of Detroit, a student flier, was killed tonight in a crash of a plane in which he was making a solo flight. The plane went out of control and fell 2,000 feet to the ground with the throttle wide open.

TWO POLICEMEN KILLED IN BATTLE WITH RUM RUNNERS

The Policemen Were Shot Dead At Grosse Pointe, a Suburb of Detroit—The Officers Were Investigating An Automobile Accident When They Were Shot Dead—Renewal of Rum Warfare In Chicago Resulted In the Slaying of Three Men and the Wounding of Four Men and a Woman.

DETROIT, June 1—(AP)—Two police officers of Grosse Pointe Park, Detroit suburb, were killed in a gun battle with rum runners early today. The dead patrolmen are Edward Mayers, 28, and Claude Lanstra, 24.

Mayers and Lanstra had been sent out to look for a car which struck and seriously injured an unidentified woman. Witnesses had given police the license number of the car. The accident occurred in a neighborhood near the outlet of Lake St. Clair where liquor boats are known to cross from Canada.

The officers found the automobile with the reported license number near the place where the woman was injured. Mayers went over to the car to investigate. One of the occupants of the car shot him through the head, killing him almost instantly. Lanstra opened fire, but also was shot and killed. Officers of the Detroit Italian squad located the automobile today. It had been pierced by several bullets. Frank De Marcurlo, 24, alleged rum runner, and his father, Sam, were arrested near the car. Police were searching for Sam Ricca, of Flint, under whose name the car is registered. Police said Ricca is under $25,000 bond in Flint awaiting trial for automobile theft.

THREE GANGSTERS WERE SLAIN IN CHICAGO SUNDAY

CHICAGO, June 1—(AP)—A war of extermination between rival liquor organizations was signalled today by the execution of three gangsters and the probable fatal wounding of five other persons, one a woman.

The dead, all members of the combine headed by Terry Druggan, overload of the turbulent valley district, were:

Sam Pellar, 32, Michael Quirk, 40, and Joe Bertsche.

The wounded:

George Druggan, brother of Terry; Mrs. Vivian McGinnis, 27, wife of a Chicago attorney and companion of George Druggan; Tony Tornatore, Joseph Ferrari and Sam Ministar, the latter three reputed members of the Joe Aello gang.

Pellar, Quirk, Bertsche, Druggan, Mrs. McGinnis and an unknown companion were seated at a table alone in the dining room of the Hotel Manning at Fox Lake, a summer resort near here, when a band of gunmen suddenly appeared at a front window.

The killers levelled submachine guns against the glass, discharged round after round of slugs into the restaurant and then drove away in the darkness.

Pellar, Quirk and Bertsche were instantly killed. Druggan and Mrs. McInnis were each struck by four slugs while the unidentified diner apparently escaped the withering spray of bullets.

A lone waiter at the restaurant told police the unknown man took Druggan and Mrs. McGinnis from the bloodbespattered floor and carried them to an automobile. Two hours later the pair was deposited in the emergency entrance of the University hospital in Chicago, 40 miles from Fox lake.

Attaches of the institution tonight said there was little prospect for their recovery.

About an hour after the Fox Lake shooting Tornatore, Ferrari and Monistar were ambushed on a North Side street by two gunmen who fled in an automobile. The trio was reputedly identified with the Aello-Moran gang of liquor racketeers.

Chicago and Lake county officials investigating the shooting advanced a maze of theories including one to the effect that the outbreak may have been connected with the slaying yesterday of Philip Gnolfo and the wounding of two companions in the Valley district, an Italian colony on the near southwest side.

POLICE AND SOLDIERS SUBDUE REVOLT IN INDIA

BOMBAY, June 1—(AP)—Fifteen thousand Indians surged through a two mile cordon of police at the Wadala salt works today and left behind 150 injured.

So overwhelmed were the police that they called troops to assist them, but the area was quiet tonight and the soldiers were withdrawn.

The police used their bamboo staves freely, thus accounting for the 150 casualties, but the nationalists who were unhurt emerged with handfuls of salt and considered their onslaught triumphant. The attack had been advertised as a "final raid" by the nationalist leaders, and they had spent a week in preparing for it.

Many persons were arrested and among theme were 9 women, headed by Mrs. K. M. Munshi, wife of a former member of the legislative assembly. The women were later released.

The raid was picturesque. Some of the volunteers plodded on foot to the salt pans, while others arrived in motor trucks and private cars. Many of the cars were decorated with the red, white and green colors of the nationalist campaign.

When the attack was over the soldiers had driven the raiders outside the police lines, some sat alongside the railway tracks, while others dashed to Bombay exhibiting the salt they had seized.

TWO BREAKS IN LEVEE BY SWOLLEN RED RIVER

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 1—(AP)—The swollen Red river broke through its levee in the "island district" in two places between Alexandria and Boyce today and spread over 3,500 acres of farm land.

Natives had moved out several days ago and no loss of humans or livestock was reported but several dairy farms and growing corn and cotton were covered.

The levee went out despite all night labors of volunteer workers.

After daylight the gangs gave up their battle to hold the 40-foot wall of water into its channel and stood aside to see the levee crumble with a 15-foot crevasse and within an hour spread to a 200-foot opening.

Shortly after the first break, another crevasse opened a quarter mile below and released another torrent. The spread of the was reported stopped this afternoon at Billy Bayou, three miles north of the city of Alexandria, where an emergency levee had been thrown up.

JUSTICE ROBERTS WILL TAKE SEAT IN SUPREME COURT TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—Justice Owen J. Roberts will take his seat in the supreme court tomorrow to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Sanford.

Confirmed without a roll call and without opposition after Judge John J. Parker had been rejected by the senate, the new justice is to take the constitutional oath in the robing room, surrounded by his associates on the bench, before falling in at the rear of the line in which the court enters the court room. While the other eight members take their places on the bench the new justice will stop at the desk of Clerk Charles E. Cropley, where he will be given a seat.

BODY OF FORMER GERMAN WAR PILOT WASHED ASHORE

LONG BEACH, N. Y., June 1.—(AP)—The body of Kurt G. Stollwerck, 34, former German war pilot drowned last night when his plane fell into the ocean off Lido Beach, was washed ashore today on the ground of the Lido Country club, almost opposite the spot where the plane went down.

Maloney said he believed Stollwreck, who came to New York last year, had relatives in Germany.

SOUTHWEST GALE SWEPT NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, June 1.—(AP)—A southwest gale that at times reached a velocity of 65 miles an hour swept through northern New England late today to take as its toll the lives of two small Greater Boston children and endanger the lives of many on land and sea.

Property damage, which could not be estimated tonight, was widespread. The Hamburg-American liner Cleveland, in Boston harbor, and the U. S. S. Milwaukee, in Rockland, Me., harbor, were both reported in temporary difficulty at the height of the blow.

The Cleveland, in from Galway to discharge passengers before proceeding to New York, was blown shoreward while standing off the quarantine station and her master, Captain Hennecke, made for the open sea again, returning to port an hour later.

The fatalities occurred when Shirley Elward, 3, of Cambridge, was struck and crashed by the bulkhead of a skylight, blown from its fastenings by the force of the wind; and Catherine Keliher, 14, was drowned in Fort Meadow lake at Marlboro, when a canoe in which she was paddling was upset by the wind.

Nancy Carroll, moving picture star and her husband, Jack Kirkland, were rescued with a party by a Boston fisherman when a yacht in which they were sailing for Marblehead had her engine crippled off Minot's light.

Robert F. Duncan of New York and an unknown companion took to the tender of their 35-foot sloop Dorothy, which went ashore off Gloucester.

The fisherman Mayo 1. went ashore off Nantasket and sprung a leak. Her crew of four were taken off by coast guardsmen of the Point Allerton station.

LONGEST EARTHQUAKE OF THE YEAR IN JAPAN

TOKYO, June 1.—(AP)—The longest and strongest earthquake of the year today had left only minor damage in its wake. Of 25 minutes duration and 12 millimeters magnitude, the disturbance stopped clocks and caused frightened people to desert their homes but nowhere in the affected area were any casualties reported. The quake heavily shook an area within a radius of 60 miles of Tokyo.

An official communique issued by the Tokyo Central Meteorological observatory said the disturbance was centered in the Pacific ocean eastward from Tokyo.

The quake was perceptible for six or seven minutes.

DIVERS SEARCHING FOR BODIES OF 13 PERSONS

SANTA MONICA, Calif., June 1.—(AP)—Divers groped through the kelp beds of Santa Monica bay today in a fruitless search for bodies of 13 persons believed lost when the fishing launch Ameco capsized on Memorial day.

Authorities definitely fixed the total of lives lost at 16 and said they believed the Ameco was overloaded when a great wave capsized the craft. Three bodies had been recovered pryiously. Thre were 33 survivors.

Officials said they had proof that 13 persons missing from their homes were aboard the Ameco.

NEW TAX RATE EXPECTED TO BE VOTED TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 1—The directors of the chamber of commerce have again come to the front in their efforts to iron-out present difficulties existing in the city and town governments. As a result of the initiative of the chamber directors a special city meeting will be held Monday night in the town hall at 8 o'clock when the voters will be asked to rescind the vote of last month for an eight mill city tax in favor of one of 10 mills. A 10 mill tax is deemed sufficient for the normal administration of city affairs during the ensuing year.

The officers of the chamber acting on behalf of a majority of the largest taxpayers in the town who hold membership in the organization, are not setting out to take the "kinks" out of the proposal for an audit of all town books and vouchers.

At a special town meeting, in fact, at two such meetings, the voters adopted resolutions authorizing an audit, by a certified public accountant, of all town books and appropriated the sum of $10,000 for the work. Alleged "flaws" in the minutes of the first meeting led to the holding of the second with a vote that was believed to be fool-proof. Pursuant to the vote, a committee of three, consisting of Dr. George E. Wilcox, Attorney William A. Arnold and Henry A. Bugbee was appointed to select the accountant to do the work and drew up an agreement or contract, to be submitted to the selectmen for their signature.

The committee drew up such a contract with Walter A. Musgrave of Danielson and Hartford. The contract was handed to the selectmen who in turn gave it to Town Counsel Arthur T. Kelley for inspection. In an opinion, Attorney Kelley, pointed to several "flaws" and "weaknesses" in the contract and on these grounds did not advise the selectmen to sign it.

This was followed by the refusal of the selectmen to sign on the contract for various reasons, but especially on the grounds that Musgrave was not the lowest price accountant to offer to do the work and that, therefore, the financial welfare of the taxpayers was not guarded in the proposed contract.

An impasse has been set up between the special citizens' committee and the selectmen as a result of the latter's refusal to sign the contract submitted by the former and it appeared that the matter would hang in mid-air indefinitely until the chamber directors took action over the week end by calling a conference of all parties concerned to discuss the situation.

Notices of this conference are being mailed to the directors of the Merchants' bureau, local manufacturers, the board of selectmen and the committee authorized to select the accountants. It is understood that an invitation will also be extended Town Counsel Kelley. The conference will be held in the chamber of commerce offices next Tuesday evening where an amicable solution of the problem, if such is possible, will give precedence to more drastic action to see that the wish of the voters is carried out to the best interest of all concerned.

CENSUS RETURNS MADE ON EASTERN CONN. TOWNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 1—The town of Killingly climbed to second place in the larger towns of Windham county, outranking Putnam which showed a decrease in the recent returns of the 1930 census. Killingly now has a population of 8,849, a gain of 671 over 1920 when the population was 8,178. The borough of Danielson, in the town of Killingly, has 4,206 residents. There are 136 farms in Killingly.

The town of Mansfield, in Tolland county, has a population of 3,018, as compared with 2,574, a gain of 444 since 1920, according to census returns issued at the office of Supervisor Otto E. Robinson of the third census district Saturday. Of the total population, 1,047 represents attaches or inmates of the Mansfield State Hospital and Training school. There are 74 farms in the town.

Plainfield, in Windham county has a present population of 8,023 as against 7,926 in 1920, a gain of 97. There are 121 farms. Haddam in Middlesex county has 1,754 residents as compared with 1,736 in 1920, a gain of 18. There are 108 farms in the town. The town of Portland, also in Middlesex county gained 410 residents during the last decade. The census returns show that there are now 4,054 residents as against 3,644 in 1920. The number of farms is reported as 11.

MANSFIELD VOTES TO BUILD NEW BRIDGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 1—The erection of a new bridge of steel and concrete to cost $2,950 over the Fenton river at the so-called Bassett's bridge, was authorized at a meeting of the town of Mansfield held at Spring Hill Saturday afternoon with an attendance of 60 voters. Work on the new span, which will be 66 feet long and will replace the old wooden bridge that recently collapsed, will be started next week by the Albany Construction company of Albany, N. Y. The voters also authorized the selectmen to sell the triangular tract of land between Mansfield Center and Spring Hill, comprising about half an acre, to the state to be used for highway purposes. The plot of land figures in the new course of the Willimantic-Storrs highway which is to be constructed of concrete this season.

OBITUARY

George J. Maheu

George J. Maheu, a native of this city, died in St. Raphael's hospital, New Haven, Saturday morning. He resided here until five years ago when he removed his family to Meriden. Besides his wife he leaves one son, George Maheu, a sister, Mrs. Mary Guay of Chaplin and two brothers, Octave of this city and Napoleon Maheu of Groton.

Mrs. Thomas M. McLaughlin

Over 1,500 people attended a novel "garage" entertainment and dance conducted at the new quarters of the Bouse Motor Sales company at 1132 Main street Saturday evening in connection with the big May used car rodeo. Four acts of vaudeville were presented by Manager Rudolph Bouse, each making a distinctive hit with the crowd. The acts were all of local talent and featured Ay Ricker in spectacular tap dancing, Cleo Wheeler and Mary Grochmal, singing and acrobatic and two dancing acts, Cooper and Sharvanian, famed eccentric ball-room terpsichore and Joe Pedro and Louis Camillo, harmony duo of guitar and singing. Dancing was enjoyed to a late hour. Refreshments were served by Messrs. Marceau, Gurnack and Clark.

Ignatius Straub, 21, of 163 High street, Norwich, was charged with speeding, at the session of police court Saturday morning. Through Attorney Arthur T. Kelley he pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. The charge originally placed against Straub was one of reckless driving but this was modified because of the lack of evidence and witnesses. The Norwich young man was arrested by Officer Albert Montie after an investigation of an accident on upper Main street Friday night in which Straub's car collided with six unoccupied cars parked against the curbing, damaging all including his own. Straub contended that an automobile which sped away struck his car on the left side and forced him over to the right and into the line of parked machines.

In an executive it's Leadership

in a cigarette it's Taste

KNOWING WHAT TO DO—and doing it—that's what carries a man up . . . and a cigarette, too.

PUTTING FIRST THINGS FIRST—good taste, uniform quality, aroma, flavor — Chesterfield's popularity is built on knowing what smokers want . . . and giving it unfailingly.

TASTE—THAT'S THE ANSWER and that's what smokers get in Chesterfield in fullest measure—the flavor and aroma of mellow tobaccos, exactly blended and cross-blended, all to a single, satisfying end . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

DON'T FAIL TO VOTE TODAY

Whether as a stockholder of the city of Norwich, as a taxpayer in the city of Norwich or as a voter in the city of Norwich, there cannot fail to be full recognition of standing by the administration which has made such an impressive record and displayed such business acumen during the past two years.

This applies equally well to democratic as well as republican voters and it is particularly true of that class who term themselves independent voters and who seek the best possible business administration of the city.

Looked at from any angle, Norwich has experienced an unusually fine conduct of its affairs for the past two years. If left in the same hands, it has reason to look forward to the same careful and successful handling of its business for the next two years. That is certainly what it needs. This is not the time for experimentation and there is no need of it. The city officials who have so admirably directed city business for the past two years are available, with two exceptions, and in their places a former councilman and well known men of affairs have been nominated.

With Mayor Robbins and the members of the council as listed above, guiding the city's affairs, Norwich has every reason to look forward with confidence to good government for the next two years, leadership that has been tried and proved worthy and conduct of the city for the benefit of all citizens, regardless of party. Equally faithful service has been rendered by City Treasurer Coit, the city sheriffs, and the water commissioner.

Today being election day, those who have the right to do so should insist upon getting to the polls and standing firmly back of those who have done so well by the city. It is no time to consider that there will be enough others to insure victory. It is no time to encourage the stay-at-home habit. Those who desire good government should be determined to support it and demand its continuance. They have never had a better opportunity than is presented today.

Get out today and vote. Vote the straight republican ticket for the continuance of good city government.

CIRCLING THE VILLAGES

There isn't any question but what the people in general want good roads, but where to put them finds them in a less unanimous frame of mind. This is as true over on Long Island as it is in Connecticut. There are those who would have the modern highway rebuild the main streets of the villages because it would look nice, mean a new and permanent street at no outlay and indicate progress. There are those who regard such a change as an appeal to all travelers to stop and buy.

On the other hand, there are those who believe that when new highways are being constructed they should be routed about villages and cities as possible because the through traffic means nothing in the way of increased business, while those who will buy will go through the community anyway. Also a new road means greater congestion, a more dangerous street, the passing of the quiet which previously prevailed, an increase in the number of accidents and an added expense from the extra policing which such a street requires.

Just at the present time, Suffolk county on Long Island is debating this problem. There has been no hesitation in taking sides because of these and other reasons. There are, in fact, those who are already making plans for hot dog stands and similar booths at frequent intervals when the new road is built, but there is objection to such treatment of the roadside even as there is to the changes in the village which are inevitable when a state road is built through them.

In Suffolk county the debate has been begun in time so that the majority sentiment of the various villages may be respected, provided, of course, that there is such a disposition, and apparently, from the difference of opinion, the start has been made none too soon to determine just what is wanted. The opportunity of being guided by the experiences of others is before them. They have a chance to forestall any move that may be found detrimental a few years hence, but the time for the decision is before the road is started rather than after it is completed. There is a chance to escape the sad predicament of insisting upon action now which is going to be proved a decided detriment later on.

CRITICS EFFECTIVELY ANSWERED

Those are clear and understandable statements which are made on another page by City Treasurer Coit and City Engineer Palmer, relative to the estimates for the coming year and the estimates and expenditures for the streets.

For the coming year the city treasurer shows that the city faces expenses which did not occur in the previous year. It must take care of bond interest on the new reservoir and it must pay a certain portion of the North Main street improvement cost. In other words, it must pay its bills and not resort to the practice of boosting the floating debt.

Those increases total $31,000. In addition, the city must find a sum equivalent to the $30,000 which the gas and electrical department turned over to the city last year but is not doing this year.

That brings the additional total up to $61,000. Fortunately, the city has a cash balance of $45,000, which the administration saved by good business practice, with which to meet part of this increase but the remainder must be provided by taxation. That fully explains the increase in the estimates for necessary expenses.

City Engineer Palmer has quite as effectively disposed of the effort to befog the North Main street improvement. The job when first considered and estimated and the job finally voted and completed were two different propositions. Different work being involved, the estimates were bound to be different, while with no estimate at all for the present Asylum street improvement any effort at comparison with a previous estimate is futile as a criticism of the administration.

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT

How one bad example results in the adoption of such a practice elsewhere is illustrated by the shooting of a Negro in the Grundy county jail in Oklahoma by a mob which battered its way into the institution, in spite of the national guardsmen drawn up to keep them away, and then shot the accused.

Oklahoma sentiment runs in much the same rut as that in Texas. There was the determination that lynch law should prevail, even though there was no reason to expect but what the accused would have been adequately penalized had he been given a trial and convicted. Taking the law into its own hands, the mob either experienced little resistance from the authorities and soldiers, or disregarded what was encountered. There was a wilful determination to cheat the law, although there was not a resort to such methods as have been used in certain of the Texas lynchings when accused persons have been burned at the stake and otherwise horribly treated before and after death.

To say that Texas conduct was responsible for the Oklahoma affair might be unfair. Those in the latter case might have been quite as much inflamed over the crime as were those in Texas, but the Texas example was certainly fresh in mind and, even though it was an example of what a civilized community ought not to do, it could have easily inspired those in Oklahoma.

One thing has been demonstrated in both instances and that is that the authorities have proved themselves unable to meet their responsibilities and public sentiment must have been strongly in sympathy with such lawlessness or it would not have been tolerated.

REDUCING TRAVEL EXPENSE

By its adoption of a bill calling for the reduction by half of the price of a passport and doubling the period in which it is good, the house of representatives has made a move to correct a war measure that has been running far too long.

Before the war a passport cost $2. Now it is necessary to pay $10 if you want to go abroad. There were other requirements which were established immediately after war was declared in order to curb foreign travel and keep close tabs on travelers. Certain of these have been removed but the passport price has remained unchanged, and with people unrestrained by war activities the fees collected from such a source have resulted in much revenue for the government.

Efforts to have the fee reduced to the pre-war figure have been underway for a considerable time. Not much progress has been made in that direction up to now, but the house has shown itself strongly in favor of the reduction and the extension of its benefits to all travelers and not simply one class.

In voting for the cutting of the fee to $5, the house has reacted to the demands of tourists and organizations representing the Americans who want to go abroad. Whether there will be any vote taken in the senate upon the bill at this stage when more important bills remain to be acted upon is a quandary. It will be easy to skip it in the rush during the closing days of the session.

Such a reduction is bound to come sooner or later. Cutting the war price in two will be helpful. It can hardly be said that such a reduction will cause any great stimulation to travel abroad, for those who can travel will do so anyway, but it seems only fair that this country should go as far as other countries in this direction and it is believed that if and when the $5 rate is put into effect that it will not be long before there will be a recognition of the justice of continuing the reduction and putting it back to the $2 rate where it was before the war caused the boost.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Be sure and vote today. Vote early and vote right by supporting good government.

Pull the top lever today for the continuance of a business-like, money-saving city government.

The man on the corner says: Of course, if everybody thought alike everybody would be right.

Having been proved by test that Mayor Robbins and the republican council are what Norwich needs, don't fail to retain their services by pulling the republican lever today.

MOTHER WAS RIGHT

Elinor received the news of her dismissal with a brave face, shook hands with the principal of the school she was leaving and walked steadily out the door and down the steps. But once out in the cold wind the tears streamed from her eyes and she gave way to the depression that surged within her. Just before the holidays! What a time to lose her job. She knew this teaching position had only been temporary, but she had secretly felt that when Miss Adams returned (the teacher whose place she had taken during a two months' illness) Mr. Allison would find her another place in his private school. She had done her best to earn it—and this was her reward. It wouldn't have been so bad for herself—but she must go home and make the unhappy announcement to her mother who had been so proud of her and so sure of her success. She felt the admission was too much to make.

But it was useless to try to hide her secret. The moment she stepped into the house her mother knew something was wrong.

"I'm a failure—a miserable failure," said Elinor, dropping down on the couch. "Dismissed now—just when we need my salary so much!" But instead of sharing her despondency her mother, as she always did, looked on the bright side.

"Don't take it so hard, dear," she consoled. "Everything will be all right. You'll probably get a much better job somewhere else and then laugh at yourself for worrying so because you lost this one." Of course her mother would say that! Her lovely, cheerful encouraging mother! How little she knew, thought Elinor, of the business world and its discouragements.

Long after her mother had gone to sleep that night Elinor lay awake thinking dejectedly about the future. Heavy-eyed she came down to breakfast to find her mother smiling.

"I told you everything would be all right," were her first words. "Mr. Allison called you this morning—" Elinor looked up. Mr. Allison? "He already has another place in mind for you."

"Mother!" Elinor exclaimed. "What did he say?"

"A friend of his who runs a private school in Pineville, 400 miles from the city on the St. Clara river, needs an English teacher—" Elinor sank into a chair and laughed hysterically. "What a joke! A job in Pineville! If losing my position here was bad, being offered another one in Pineville is worse." But, as usual, her mother looked on the bright side.

"The change is just what you need," she encouraged. "Go away from the city and get some fresh ideas. And I could come down there often to see you. You'd better accept right away." But the idea was so preposterous that Elinor didn't give it another thought for several days. She trudged the streets, she walked miles and interviewed prospective employers and every night she came home with the same word: "Nothing today, mother." Mrs. Burrows was complacent. She felt that in the end Elinor would find her advice sound.

"Mother," said Elinor in a dull voice one evening after much fruitless searching, "I've resigned myself to going to Pineville."

The day Elinor took the train her mother, smiling bravely as ever, kissed her good-by, with words of encouragement still on her lips. But as the train pulled out and she realized that upon her advice the future happiness of her daughter depended, she felt the first twinge of doubt. Should she, in spite of everything, have been so optimistic—have trusted in the future so explicitly?

Hours passed. Mrs. Burrows, doubting and trusting all at once, waited and waited for word. Then at last it came. And as she took in the full meaning of Elinor's letter she knew she had won. Her one moment of doubt was forgotten forever as she read:

"Dearest Mother: I'm going to love my new job! We are traveling through the most beautiful country. And at St. Clara we embark for the boat trip down the river to Pineville.

"I know what you are wondering—why I say 'we.' Albert Boles, a young surveyor, is on the train and is going to be stationed two miles from my school all winter. He's the most marvelous man I've ever known! Mother, dear," the letter concluded, and her mother's eyes were misty as she read, "you were right in laughing at my silly idea that the future would be a gloomy one for me. You were right—but if it turns out to be all it now promises to be you can never really know just how gloriously right you were!"—Exchange.

Psychic Factors in Illness

By George B. Lake, M. D., Chicago. (From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Even those who have not studied Latin are familiar with the old Roman phrase, mens sana in corpore sano (a sound mind in a sound body). It has, in fact, been repeated so often and so carelessly that people have forgotten what it means.

As a matter of fact, the mind and the body are so thoroughly mixed up, in a human being, that nothing very serious can happen to one without affecting the other. A man cannot have a sound body unless a sound mind dwells in it. If you don't believe in this interaction, watch some shy person in an embarrassing position, and see him blush (a purely physical dilating of the blood vessels in the skin of his face); or remember the last time you were ill and how touchy and crabbed you were, although you ordinarily have a beautiful disposition.

When a man has a high fever he often shows some of the symptoms of insanity, and we say he is delirious. The unfortunate sufferers from lockjaw are in such a state of nervous tension that a careless touch upon the bedclothes or the flashing of a bright light will throw them into violent convulsions.

If these things happen in certain diseases, it is only reasonable to believe that, in any illness, the quieter we can keep the mental and nervous state of the patient, the more rapidly he will improve.

When a person is acutely ill, he should be protected from all sorts of disturbances. The air in his room should be fresh, but moderately warm and of an even temperature, without drafts; the light should be moderate and even, with no sudden flashes; and every unnecessary noise should be suppressed.

In the house where sickness is present, the telephone bell should be muffled, so that the sick man cannot hear it, nor the conversations that go on. In fact, it is a good idea to ask interested friends not to call the house to ask after the sufferer, but to telephone to some kind neighbor for this information. The family can tell this neighbor, two or three times a day, how the case is progressing.

The person who is seriously ill does not want, and should not have any visitors. No one should enter the sickroom except those who must do so in order to care for the patient. Even the flowers, now so often sent by well-wishers, should be kept in another room until the sick man is definitely on the mend, for their odors and bright colors may cause him enough psychic (mental or emotional) disturbance to interfere with his recovery.

Do not forget that the psyche (the Greeks used that word as we use the word soul) is just as much a part of a man as his chest or his stomach, and needs as intelligent and sympathetic treatment, in illness, as is given to any of his other parts and organs.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 1—One thing about President Hoover's selection of "Jack" Hanford MacNider for minister to Canada sticks out.

If he ever finds it desirable at Ottawa to dress himself up in all the decorations he acuired overseas he will be an impressive sight even in Canada.

A survey of the MacNider deeds of war is impressive.

He has five American and seven foreign recognitions.

He was forever getting back into the fighting lines when he didn't have to, by the official records.

One says that he determined enemy points of resistance "by personal reconnaissance, uncovered enemy machine-gun nests and supervised their destruction" having volunteered for the job.

Captured Machine Gun

There's another that tells how "this officer, running forward in the face of fire, captured a German machine gun, drove off the crew, reorganized the line on the flank and thereby enabled the advance to continue." Still another tells of Jack and another officer and four scouts "preceding the line" and captured five Germans.

And here's one the Bystander particularly likes:

"On the way to the hospital at Paris for treatment, he turned and rejoined his regimental commander on the battlefield and rendered valuable and efficient service reconnoitering and delivering orders under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire until relieved."

And with it all, Jack MacNider has remained such a boyish and cheerful cuss. The Bystander had considerable to do with him when he was assistant war secretary. There was always something doing about his shop.

When he first took over on promotion of Dwight Davis to war secretary, MacNider decided he must have a properly embroidered flag of his regiment, the famous 9th regular infantry, on his walls.

So he just ordered one from the army flag makers at Philadelphia. It came in due course, and with it a bill for some hundreds of dollars. You could hear his roars of laughter at himself all down the corridors, and he paid up promptly.

Likes Air Travel

Another thing he liked to do was rival his colleague, Air Secretary Davison, in travel by air. MacNider insisted on having a plane assigned to him and galloped about on inspection trips all over the country. He kept a chart of his air travels, footing up his mileage totals at intervals. It showed a map cross hatching the country with lines of his goings and comings.

MacNider will be a very invigorating personality added to the diplomatic service. Just what induced him to accept the job, however, does not seem clear. He has been a busy banker with large plans for expansion since he left Washington. Why the yen for Ottawa?

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

How Carol's Nest Was Hidden

Opposing one who knows her mind
Is wasted effort, you will find.
—Carol the Meadow Lark.

Carol the Meadow Lark was very proud of the nest where Mrs. Meadow Lark was sitting on her eggs. It was a very cleverly hidden nest. Mrs. Meadow Lark had seen to that. Of course, it was on the ground.

"What anybody wants to build a nest in a tree or a bush for, I cannot understand," said Mrs. Meadow Lark, as she and Carol were choosing a place for their home. "No, sir, I cannot understand it at all. Give me the ground every time."

"I agree with you," said Mrs. Bobolink, who happened to be looking for a place for her nest and overheard Mrs. Meadow Lark. "Why, if I had a nest in a tree, I would worry myself to death. I wouldn't feel easy one minute. Of course, I mean a nest in the branches of a tree. Drummer the Woodpecker has a sensible home and Mrs. Bluebird and Mrs. Swallow and some others who make use of Drummer's old houses, are sensible. I wouldn't care for one of them myself, because I want to be where I can see all around. Sitting inside a hole in a tree, you can't see anything."

"That's true," said Mrs. Meadow Lark. "I want to be right out in the open. I don't want anything around me except grass. I want to look up and see the sky."

It was later in that very same day that Mrs. Meadow Lark chose the place for the new nest. As soon as she saw it, she knew it was just the place she wanted. She called to Carol and he hurried over. Of course he agreed with her. He knew that that was the wise thing to do. He knew that if she had made up her mind to have her nest in that particular place, she would have it there, whether he approved or not.

Now, the place she had chosen was a slight hollow in the ground just big enough to comfortably hold a nest. It was beside a little tussock of grass. It was just such a spot as Mrs. Meadow Lark had had in her mind all the time she had been looking. She examined the place very thoroughly. She flew up in the air, so as to see all over the Green Meadows from that particular spot. Then she dropped down on the grass again.

"We'll begin building at once," said she. "Yes, sir, we'll begin building at once. I'm anxious to get to housekeeping. We ought to be able to find plenty of dry grass to make the nest of."

There was plenty of dry grass. They didn't have to look for to get it. Of course, Mrs. Meadow Lark did most of the building. There was one thing she insisted on and this was that never should Carol fly directly to the nest. She never did herself. This was so that if any one should be watching from a distance, he would not be able to locate the nest. So always Carol and Mrs. Meadow Lark would drop down in the grass some distance from where the nest was located and then walk to it.

When the nest was completed, Mrs. Meadow Lark formed a dome-shaped roof of grass over it. That was so that no enemy flying over and looking down would see that nest. Then she carefully made a little covered runway leading to it. Not until this was completed was she satisfied. It was a wonderfully well hidden nest and Carol was very, very proud of it. After the eggs were laid and Mrs. Meadow Lark was sitting on them, Carol took the greatest care never to do anything to give that secret away. If he caught an insect that he thought she would like, he would drop down in the grass quite a distance from the nest and then make his way through the grass to the nest. No wonder that Danny Meadow Mouse had never been able to find that nest by watching Carol.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

India's Lost Friend

LONDON—Along with all her other troubles, India has just lost one of her best friends in the death of that unique personality, the Dowager Begum of Bhopal.

Until her voluntary abdication in 1926 in favor of her son, the Begum was for a quarter of a century the only woman ruler in the Indian empire, presiding over the destinies of the great Mohammedan state of Bhopal.

Her highness was one of the most powerful forces for uplift that Hindustan ever knew. Because of her wisdom and goodness, she came to be called the Queen Victoria of India.

Free Schools

Among her many benefactions, the Begum established free schools in her state and made primary education compulsory. She was an ardent worker for the betterment of the condition of women, and had four schools for girls in her state, a striking innovation.

The Begum didn't believe, however, that women should try to usurp the position of man. She even opposed the unveiling of her sex, and she practiced what she preached, for she clung to the veil in public.

A few years ago your correspondent was presented to her in Delhi and she wore a heavy white veil which covered her entire figure. One couldn't even see her eyes. There was the sensation that one was being introduced to a ghost. The situation wasn't without its embarrassments, especially when we entered into conversation.

Her highness had some rather peculiar notions about the veil. Although she clung to the belief that no man outside her family ought to see her face she had innumerable photographs taken unveiled, and gave these freely to her friends.

Frequently when she was talking with a British government official she would make him sit behind her, where he couldn't see her face, and then she would throw off her veil, so she could talk more freely.

Devoted To Islam

An ardent Mohammedan, when she abdicated she gave her fortune, some $30,000,000 for the propagation of the religion in India. Furthermore, she devoted her declining years to Islam.

Naturally her highness was greatly beloved by her people, and she was a prime favorite with British government officials and their wives, whom she delighted to visit and to entertain in her own palace. She was a jolly little body, and thoroughly enjoyed herself among Europeans.

The Begum was a forceful woman with decided views. In 1925, when she was 67, she made the journey clear to London to plead that the succession to her throne be altered.

She wanted her third and only surviving son to become ruler, instead of her grandson, who was the heir by virtue of the fact that he was the eldest son of her firstborn. She was a good advocate; her wish was granted.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Kelsey Press Company, Meriden.

Fifty-eight years ago a Connecticut boy, a typical Yankee product of the Nutmeg state, was printing and publishing an amateur paper on a small hand press. The publishing and printing interested him, but the machine itself proved even more fascinating. There were thousands of boys who could hardly afford even as small a hand press as his. The lowest priced machine at that time was $17. If he could devise a machine which would sell for less money—five dollars, say—he could sell them to thousands of boys.

The idea stuck with him, and the boy, William A. Kelsey, started to put it into execution as soon as he could scrape together enough capital to make a start. He was 21 when he finally made the venture. He called it the "Excelsior."

The original five dollar Kelsey press was a hand inker, chase 3 x 5 inches. In a couple of years it had several larger brothers, and one smaller, with a 2 1-2 x 3 1-2 chase. As time went on foot power presses were added and the young firm started to take care of grown people who required larger machines.

At first the machine work on the presses was done outside, but it was not long before W. A. Kelsey & Co. built its own shop, and started to make the presses entirely. The original building is still part of the factory group, and is now over 50 years old.

The business was a success from the start, and the native advertising genius of Mr. Kelsey caused it to expand very rapidly. It was not, however, incorporated until 1906, when it did so as The Kelsey Press company.

As time went on, other printing supplies were added and it now offers to printers a complete line including inks, paper, cards and type. It operates one of the only two type foundries in New England, and the only one in Connecticut. Equipment is supplied not only to those who wish to handle their own printing, but also to those who make it a profession.

The company has always done a very large export business by mail. It issues a Spanish catalogue, and handles Spanish correspondence in its own office. The export business provides the stiffest kind of test for direct mail work—yet the company has made individual sales—initial orders, at that, amounting to several thousands of dollars each. Kelsey presses have been carried on the backs of llama over the Andes, and into the heart of the African jungle on the backs of natives and in canoes. Many times presses and equipment have been packed in boxes weighing over 100 pounds so that they could be carried into the remote parts of the world on the backs of men or beasts.

The present officers are: W. A. Kelsey, chairman of the board; G. A. Snow, president and treasurer; R. B. Lee, vice president and secretary.

TRAMPLING ART FOR PROFITS

FOR all its virtues, modern industrialism can run amuck under the spur of greed for profits. Witness, the ruin threatening the Art of Music.

300 musicians in Hollywood supply all the "music" offered in thousands of theatres. Can such a tiny reservoir of talent nurture artistic progress?

The true function of the machine is to increase the value of the product fed into it—not to debase it. Therefore mechanical music, as a substitute for Living Music, is a spurious form of progress—Like a loom converting good wool into shoddy.

The grind organ, however operated, is a grind organ still. For music is an emotional art, a form of social intercourse, and hence dependent upon human contact.

Who profits by the elimination of genuine music from the theatre? Not the music-loving public! Not the musician!

If you agree that theatre patrons are entitled to real music—in addition to talking and sound motion pictures, for the price they pay—HELP SAVE THE ART FROM RUIN. Enroll with millions of others in the Music Defense League. When the public's voice is raised its will must be served!

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

OBITUARY

Miss Catherine T. Driscoll

After an illness of about six weeks, Miss Catherine T. Driscoll, 57, died at her home, No. 27 Claremont avenue, late Friday night. Miss Driscoll was the daughter of Jeremiah and Catherine T. Connelly Driscoll and was born in County Cork, Ireland, April 1, 1873. When a young girl Miss Driscoll came to this country and most of her life was spent in this city. For many years she was employed by the N. S. Gilbert Co. She was a member of St. Mary's parish.

Surviving are a brother, Jeremiah Driscoll, and a sister, Miss Mary Driscoll, both of this city, a nephew, James Kilkenny of this city, and three nieces, Miss Mary Kilkenny of Hartford and the Misses Helen and Rose Kilkenny of Norwich. Miss Driscoll was well known and highly respected by many friends and acquaintances.

George Segee

George Segee, 71, for 57 years a resident of Norwich, died at Riverside home, May 28th. He was the son of the late Solomon and Mary Segee and was married in this city, September 1, 1883 to Addie Osborne Purple. He is survived by a brother in Dover and a sister, Mrs. Mary Lavalley of Andover, Conn.

Matthew Delaney

Following an illness of several months duration the death of Matthew Delaney occurred at his home in Hanover Saturday evening at 6:30. Mr. Delaney was one of six sons of Margaret and John Delaney and was born in Saxonville, Mass., July 18, 1850. When he was one year old his parents came to Greeneville where he resided for a period of 50 years. He received his education in the old white school house on Prospect street and will be remembered by the older residents as an athlete and interested in amateur theatricals. He was pitcher for the old Arctic baseball team and was a member of the Shetucket Steam Fire Engine Co., No. 1.

On April 29, 1879 he was united in marriage with Catherine Delaney of Versailles by Rev. F. Van De Noort, then pastor of St. Joseph's church, Occum. They celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary in 1929. Seven children were born to this union, four of whom survive. Besides his wife, he leaves the following children: Miss Maude Delaney, of this city; Thomas, of Hartford; Jeremiah Delaney and Mrs. Fred Gauthier, both of Hanover. There are also six grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

He was the last of his immediate family and was a highly respected resident of Hanover where he has lived since leaving Greeneville. Mr. Delaney was a loving husband and father and his passing will be learned with regret by many friends. He was a staunch member of St. Joseph's church, Hanover.

SOUTH MANCHESTER SALVATION ARMY BAND GIVES NORWICH PROGRAMMES

Norwich again had the pleasure of listening to the Salvation Army band of South Manchester, numbering 50 players, in its annual visit here Sunday, when it played before four Norwich audiences throughout the day. The final appearance of the band was made at a union service in the evening at 7:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church, Rev. Percy A. Klinister, pastor. At each service the band under the direction of Bandmaster David Addy furnished delightful programmes of music, in addition to vocal and chorus numbers, which were heard by large and appreciative audiences.

At the First Baptist church the service was opened by Rev. Mr. Klinister, who welcomed the Salvationists to the city and turned the meeting over to Brigadier Fred P. Osmond of Boston, who has been a member of the Salvation Army for more than 40 years. Brigadier Osmond called upon the band to render several pleasing selections, which were interspersed with quartet and chorus numbers, given in fine voice. Several members of the band, who have been in the service of the Salvation Army for many years, were asked to testify to the benefits derived from their association with the army, which they did.

The address of the evening was delivered by Brigadier Osmond, who said that he did not believe he would extol the work accomplished by the Army, "as it speaks for itself." You are all familiar with the work of the Army. The Army without God can accomplish but little, he said, the secret of our success we have to attribute to God.

Brig. Osmond took for his text, the 10th verse of the 19th chapter of St. Luke, "For the Son of God came to seek and to save that which was lost." The preacher said that he sometimes said in meetings that he liked to think that He was human in seeking out sinners and saving them that He was not only a representative of God, but a representative of man. One of the slogans—an old one—in the Salvation Army is that "a man may be down but never out," he said. There is more truth in that than fiction. We believe that no matter how far you or all Christians have wandered away from God, His heart and love can reach them.

We find broken fragments of building material, disused and unused, discarded and neglected, and thrown in the scrap heap. I am speaking of humans. Some men and women have gone down the incline, their eyes have been focused upon the material things and they have forgotten God. There are many who have been spiritual Samsons. We are no stronger than at our weakest moments. That is true. Are we going to leave these persons, who have gotten into the mire? Ten thousands time, No. We must go and put our arm around them, give them our love and fellowship. Christ came into the world to seek and save sinners.

Brig. Osmond said that he hoped that the congregation would do their best in supporting the Army, not only with money, but with prayers. It is your job as well as ours, he said, after which he told the touching story of the wandering boy, who had left his home, wandered from the straight and narrow path, and later was reunited with his father to the joy of all.

The service was brought to a close with the congregation singing a hymn accompanied by the band, at the conclusion of which Rev. Mr. Klinister remarked how much he had enjoyed the service, and extended the band an invitation to be present with them again next year.

At Norwich Town Church

In the morning the band attended the service at the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, where there was a large and appreciative congregation. Prior to the service and to the pleasure of the shut-ins at the Johnson Home, also the children at Rock Nook home, the 25 bandmen gave a most pleasing concert. At the church, the band repeated numbers by request. During the hours of worship, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey was assisted by Brig. Fred Osmond, of Boston, who gave the address of the morning. Although the band comprises 50 men under the capable leadership of David Addy, the other five men were contributing their services elsewhere in Norwich. The harmonious sacred music rendered by this company of musicians, their splendid voices in chorus, singing the hymns, and the inspiring message of the morning were most appealing. After the singing of the doxology, Rev. Mr. Bailey extended hearty greetings to the band members, whom he said it was a delight to have present again; also to other friends and visitors, there being several other Salvationists in the congregation. The scripture lesson, St. Luke 10, beginning with the 25th verse, preceded prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Bailey. Brig Osmond chose for his text the 29th verse; But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, and who is my neighbor? Brig. Osmond in his introductory remarks expressed gratitude for the warmth in the greetings extended by the pastor, and felt that it should offset the chilly air. His address was largely on telling of the work of the Salvation Army in this, and other countries, 50 or more countries carrying on this helpful work. As a Salvation Army leader for more than 40 years, Brig. Osmond said that he had been going up and down the world telling of the salvation of Jesus Christ. He stated that he was converted in his early boyhood, and that after attending a few meetings he followed what his heart desired, the salvation of Jesus Christ, and he was glad to follow Him. This verse alluded to is a wonderful story. "And who is my neighbor? We are all akin, people of the orient, as well as our own nation, all one neighborhood. You don't have to go north, east, south or west to find your neighbor. While it is a gift from God and a source of blessing and inspiration in going to church, tell out the story to others, as is the policy of the Salvation Army and other Christians, to inspire others with the story of Jesus Christ. There is danger of our forgetting the more important things, instead we should look to the Kingdom of God. Our joy and happiness must have its origin from our own experiences. As a man thinketh in his heart, so he is. To bring men and women to God is the work of the Salvation Army. If we fail in this, we fail indeed!" said the speaker. The spirit of consecrated service is what counts and is worth while, administering to others, in serving Christ. The work of the Master will best be manifested by our own personal experience in helping our neighbors, by lifting their burdens and brightening their pathway. This is what the Salvation Army is doing the world over.

Following prayer by Brig Osmond, the band for its closing number played a spirited march, "Our Conquering Army." One other beautiful number was "He Will Forgive, the members concluding by singing one verse.

Bandmaster Addy, (Little David) as his companions called him, was assisted in leading by Harold Turkington. At the close Rev. Mr. Bailey complimented this body of fine young men for the wonderful service rendered and extended an invitation for them to come again.

Previous to their appearance at the First Baptist church the band went to the Norwich State hospital at 1:30 o'clock, where they rendered a fine concert for the benefit of the patients and an address was given by Brig. Osmond. Later in the afternoon the band was again heard in a splendid concert at Union square.

STATEMENTS BY CITY TREASURER AND ENGINEER

In comment made Sunday night upon the question raised by Edward G. Moran, the democratic candidate for mayor, as to why the city tax recommended this year is higher than last year, City Treasurer Charles Colt called attention to some hitherto unrevealed facts regarding some items of increased expenditure and decreased revenue to the city.

There are two distinct and equally good reasons for the higher tax rate recommended.

First: There are two first installments of bonds for the new city reservoir, one for $6,000 and one for $15,000, and the first payment of $10,000 on the North Main street improvement, or a total of $31,000, due this coming year, which were not due last year.

Second: The gas and electric department paid $50,000 toward the general expenses of the city last year but are not doing so this year. Instead of paying any money to the city this year, a large gas container is being erected and paid for by this department. This improvement will benefit the gas service and make cheaper gas rates possible.

Again referring to the inquiry of why taxes will be higher this coming year it should be clear that no political party can remedy this situation, declared Mr. Colt, and, on the other hand, it is well to consider that without the cash balance existing in the hands of the present administration to offset the items first mentioned the taxes would have to be more than a mill higher than now recommended.

According to a statement from the office of Chandler & Palmer, civil engineers, regarding figures quoted by Mr. Moran in a letter to The Bulletin upon differences in estimates upon the North Main street work in 1928 and 1929, the work for which estimates were made in 1928 was a repair job on that street, but the work in 1929 was for rebuilding the road from curb to curb. The Chandler & Palmer office was responsible for both estimates.

The office of Chandler & Palmer has the original figures for the North Main street improvement made in 1928. At that time it was not planned to improve the whole width of the street but only 18 feet, which included the tracks and two feet outside of the outside rail. Also it was figured the rail and the north curb near Golden street. The figure for this whole work was $32,000, which included the trolley area.

In 1929, the concrete surface had become more cracked and worn and it was decided to cover the whole area from curb to curb, using asphalt as a top outside of the track area. The total estimate was $50,000, including the trolley portion. The work was done for $45,536.09, or within about 10 per cent less than the estimate. The return from the trolley company and others on this work was $9,007.73, leaving the net cost of $36,318.36. In other words, the 1928 estimate was a repair job and the 1929 estimate was for rebuilding the road from curb to curb.

In regard to Asylum street, an estimate of $19,500 was made in the office of Chandler & Palmer in May, 1928. This year a petition with more than 60 signers came in to the council asking that this improvement be made and that $30,000 be appropriated therefor.

No estimate for this work was made by Chandler & Palmer this year but the amount of $30,000 as asked for in the petition was inserted in the warning.

WILL DEDICATE TABLET TO HARLEY F. ROBERTS

A tablet in memory of the late Harley F. Roberts, who was a teacher at Norwich Free Academy about 1892 to 1896, is to be dedicated when the Connecticut Forest and Park association holds its spring meeting next Saturday at Black Rock state park and Mattatuck state forest. Mr. Roberts was president of Black Rock Forest, Inc., and it was largely through his efforts and other public spirited citizens that most of these lands were given to the state. Black Rock park has 694 acres and Mattatuck forest 2,578 acres.

The morning program, which starts at 11 a. m. (D. S. T.), includes a walk to the summit of Black Rock over a section of the Mattatuck Trail. At 12:30 there will be a picnic lunch followed by the afternoon program. After the dedication exercises there will be field trips to Mattatuck forest, climb to the summits of Harley Roberts peak and Black Rock, and bathing in "Sand Dam pond."

CENSUS FIGURES IN 146 TOWNS SHOWING GAIN

An increase in population of almost fifteen per cent over 1920 is shown by compilation of the figures from 146 out of the 169 towns given out officially by the supervisors of the five Connecticut enumeration districts, up to Saturday night. This figure of increase is somewhat ahead of the forecast based on a considerably lesser number of towns made after Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and New Britain had been reported.

The total for the 146 towns as given out is 1,267,653 as compared with 1,102,739 in 1920, a gain of 164,810, or if reduced to a decimal fraction it is 14.9 per cent plus.

Among the towns missing in the 23 are Waterbury, New London, Norwich, East Hartford, West Hartford, and Middletown, all to be classed as sizable and susceptible to increases so that the high percentage of gain will be maintained. Some of the towns missing are small and they are in agricultural counties where gains have not been maintained.

The total by counties follow:

County	Missing Towns	1930	1920
Hartford	2	375,724	315,625
New Haven	4	347,159	307,236
New London	4	59,411	54,782
Windham	1	53,516	52,340
Fairfield	2	346,255	298,402
Litchfield	8	51,459	47,924
Middlesex	1	36,907	35,412
Tolland	1	27,083	26,018
Totals	23	1,267,653	1,102,739

NORWICH RIFLEMEN WON PLACES IN STATE SHOOT

At the annual field day Saturday of the Nutmeg Rifle league of the State Rifle League association the Norwich Rifle club was represented by Lieut. White, Dr. Frank W. Holms, Allyn L. Brand and N. C. Pierce and the Pioneer Rifle club of Groton was represented by Mr. McKenzie. Lieut. White was third in the 30 cal. match and Captain Pierce was third, with a score of 144. In the pistol match, Leonard of Avon and Eric Johnson of the Winchester Co. team were tied with a score of 151. Leonard won by having the lesser number of shots of the lowest value. Brand and Dr. Holms shot in 23 matches but their rank had not been determined when the teams left for home.

June 22 the Connecticut Pistol and Revolver championship matches will be held in Hartford on the range of the Hartford Gun club. There will be three matches at 25 and 50 yards and one match for the police department members and one match for the military men.

CARBRAY TAKEN BACK TO PRISON AT WETHERSFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1.—John A. Carbray, formerly of Norwich and for several months residing at 21 Deane street, Groton, who was arrested here Friday night charged with taking an automobile without permission of the owner, driving while under the influence of liquor and evasion of responsibility, will not be tried for his acts. Carbray, who was on parole from Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield, was delivered into the custody of a guard, G. H. Bradley, Saturday, and was returned to the penal institution where he will remain at least two years. He was sentenced in 1925 to a sentence of not less than five nor more than seven years for attempted murder in shooting his divorced wife and the man whom she subsequently married.

Carbray was released from prison on parole several months ago and was given employment by Rev. Oliver T. Magnell, rector of Sacred Heart church, Groton. Last Thursday night Carbray drove away in the priest's automobile and also drank freely of liquor. About 5 o'clock Friday morning, while driving in Montville and headed towards Norwich, his auto crashed against the rear of a machine driven by Mrs. Madeline Meyers, Brooklyn, N. Y. The impact of the crash was sufficient to cause damage to both automobiles and Mrs. Meyers and one of her two daughters were thrown to the highway, sustaining lacerations and bruises. Carbray fled from the scene of the accident, entering the woods and remaining under cover until late Friday, when he came to New London and delivered himself at police headquarters, for by doing so, Carbray was of the opinion that he would not be returned to prison.

PUPILS OF PRESTON SCHOOL TAKE FIELD DAY PRIZES

The annual field day of the schools of Preston was held last Thursday at the Poquetanuck school. The programme opened with a parade by the pupils. Each school carried a banner with the class name and colors and the pupils wore arm bands to match their school banner.

MILK THEFTS BRING $10 FINE IN COURT

Charged with stealing milk from the doorstep of a Broad street home, early Saturday morning, John Dombroski, 55, of this city, was fined $10 and costs in the city court later in the morning. Of late several complaints had been made to the police that milk was being stolen from doorsteps. Officer Frank Gwizdowski, while making his rounds early Saturday morning saw Dombroski take two bottles of milk from a doorstep and arrested him.

Good Turn for Boy Scouts

A dozen Scouts are wanted this (Monday) afternoon to assist in cutting trails through the Lucas Memorial park. Scouts who want to do this good turn bring rakes, shovels or any tool which is at hand that can be used. Scouts interested should call Boy Scout headquarters.

Chicago will vote July 1 on a unified traction plan which, if approved, will assure the city of a subway.

CHRISTOPHER THURBER, NEAR EAST RELIEF WORKER, DIES SUDDENLY IN ATHENS

Christopher Thurber, a native of this city and a graduate of Norwich Free Academy, who had won distinguished honor in Near East relief work, died of apoplexy Saturday in Athens, Greece.

At the time of his death he was American chairman of Near East relief and in recognition of his work the Greek government had decorated him last year. The funeral today (Monday) will be conducted by the nation, according to the dispatch from Athens.

Mr. Thurber's efforts in behalf of Greek refugees after they were defeated by the Turks led to his imprisonment by the Turkish forces, but he was subsequently released upon intervention by the American government. About a year ago he was seriously sick with typhoid fever.

Mr. Thurber graduated in the class of 1898 at Norwich Free Academy and at Trinity college, Hartford, with the class of 1903. He went into Near East relief work in the summer of 1921, being appointed at that time director of Near East relief for the Sivas district. Mr. Thurber was first stationed on a farm in Sivas, Central Asia Minor which was formerly owned by the emperor of Germany and was used as headquarters for American Relief activities among the thousands of Armenians and Greek orphans and refugees in that region.

Previous to going to Asia Minor he had been engaged during the war as director of the Red Cross activities at the Camp Wadsworth hospital and afterwards in charge of the same work at the public health service hospital at Greenville, S. C. Before entering the Red Cross service Mr. Thurber had been superintendent of the Home for Homeless Boys at Covington, Va.

The district in which his relief work was carried on was regarded as one of the most important in Asia Minor. It embraced a large territory where the native Christian population suffered severely during the war, and where, in addition to orphanage work, the Near East relief maintained industrial work for victims of continued warfare and deportations, who had been prevented by political instability and disorders from returning to their homes.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

ACADEMY LOSES CLOSE GAME TO NEW BRITAIN HIGH TEAM BY 4 TO 3 SCORE

The Academy dropped their fourth game of the season to New Britain high Saturday at the campus, 4 to 3, in a closely contested affair before a good crowd. Faulty outfield support forced Boots Greene to accept his second defeat of the season after pitching a sweet game.

Butsy Weisgraber, in left field, had a bad day, dropped one fly when on a disagreement about a fly ball he bumped into Pepin and also misjudged two, both going for extra bases and all figuring in the scoring. This was due in some measure, however, to a blinding sun for the New Britain left fielder had the same trouble and gave the Academy a couple of hits on flies that would have been easy put-outs on any other day.

Greene Fans Ten

Greene and Partyka, the New Britain high speedball artist, made a real good pitchers' battle of the tilt. Each team made eight hits while Greene struck out ten and the visitor seven. Greene had perfect control, as he also did in his five innings of work in beating Harding Friday, while Partyka walked seven and gave the Academy plenty of opportunities to score on which they could not cash in, especially in the late innings.

The Wildcats had good opportunities in the last three frames, putting two men on base each time and, although they needed only one run to tie, it was not forthcoming.

Gibbs and Pepin each made two Academy hits while Bogdanski, Potts, and Partyka had a couple for New Britain.

New Britain Scores Two

After a scoreless first inning during which each side went out in order New Britain broke through with two runs in the second. Bogdanski opened with a fly to left which Weisgraber lost and it went for two bases. Potts dropped a high fly in short center that might have been caught and Bogdanski, by good base-running and some football tactics on Fontaine at the plate, managed to score from second. Bud was knocked flat by the rugged third-sacker and dropped the ball. Potts went to second on the play. Partyka singled to left, scoring Potts. Ross was safe when Arico's dropped Gibbs throw at first, putting Partyka on third and Ross then stole second.

New Britain scored another in the fifth when Wojack got a Texas leaguer to left and stole second to score on Bogdanski's hit to right.

The Academy, held hitless for four innings, tallied once in the fifth on hits by Pepin and Geer. Greene's sacrifice bunt and Arico's single to right. In the sixth the locals concluded their run-making with two tallies. Gibbs led off with a hit to right and Fontaine walked. Breen singled to left, scoring Gibbs. Fontaine was caught trying to make third. Breen stole second and after Crowell had fanned, Pepin cashed in with his second hit, sending in Breen.

The visitors pushed over the winning run in the sixth when Weisgraber dropped Lipman's fly and Granitt hit one to right that Butsy lost in the sun and it went for a triple, driving in the run.

Wildcats Lose Chances

In the seventh, Reardon walked and Gibbs got a double to left with two out only to have Fontaine tap to the box, while in the eighth Breen walked. Crowell laid down a neat bunt for a sacrifice and Pepin walked but Geer hit into a double play, third to first. Again in the ninth punch was lacking when Greene opened with a fly to right that hit the trees and went for a hit although the fielder caught it. Arico fanned and Greene stole second. Reardon walked but Gibbs skied to right and Greene tried to steal third and was out.

Wildcat Scratches

This is the first time an Academy team has lost four games in a season since 1925.

Greene had a hit taken away from him Friday when it was ruled that he didn't touch first on a two-base drive to right center but had a single handed right back to him yesterday when his fly to right brushed through the tree.

Boo Geer didn't look bad, getting one hit in three tries and hauling down a fly in left field in spite of the bright sun. As Geer is only a lower middler, he looks like a real prospect.

This was the third visit of New Britain here in recent years and they scored their first victory. In 1927 they lost 7 to 0. In a no-hit, no-run game pitched by Greene, Jarvis and Labenski, and in 1928 dropped a one-sided game.

Lippman, the New Britain catcher, got himself in wrong with the fans from the first inning and consequently took quite a razzing.

New Britain played hard baseball all the way through, going into the bases in a manner that left little to the imagination.

Greene ended up his moundwork by fanning the side in the ninth on ten pitched balls. Six straight strikes to Lippman and Granitt were followed by a strike, ball and two strikes to Wojack.

Aces Beat Fitchville

Sunday afternoon at Fitchville, the Chapman Aces of Willimantic handed a defeat to the Fitchville club 8 to 4. A bad fifth inning was responsible for the downfall of the village boys. Carden pitched nice ball for Fitchville but errors at critical times lost the game. Next Sunday the Shyma club plays at Fitchville.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

MORTON AND MCKAY TOP FIELD IN WEEK END PLAY

Dave Morton and Eddie McKay carried off top honors in the week end tournament at the Norwich Golf club, Morton taking low gross prize with a 78 and McKay capturing low net with 80-7—73. Second low net went to M. E. Standish with 96-20—76. Ernie Bean and Frank Lathrop tied for third low net with cards of 93-16—77 and 95-18—77 respectively.

Several matches of the first round of the Memorial Day tournament were played over the week end. One match was played in the championship flight which is also for the club championship. In this match Johnny Moulton beat John Rogers 2 up in a hard fought match in which Rogers carried Moulton to the 18th green before it was settled. Eben Learned, Jr., defaulted to F. Russell Smith whereby Smith enters the second round.

Two matches in the second flight were defaulted, Dr. Veal of Stonington withdrawing in favor of Bruce F. Rogers and A. E. Payson defaulting to G. Blanchard.

One match was played in the third flight, Cy Duevel beating Ed Munyer 2 and 1. Duevel fought an uphill battle being 3 down at the 12th but recovering on the next five holes to win out.

Christy Mathewson won his first round match in the fourth flight when he defeated Frank Rinella 3 and 2. In another fourth flight match Wells Lyman took over W. Russell Baird 3 to 2.

Other first round matches will be played during the week as all the matches in this round must be completed by next Sunday afternoon.

LINDER PITCHES VELVETMEN TO WIN OVER BRISTOL ENDERS

Walter Linder pitched the J. B. Martin team to a close victory over the Bristol Endees Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin grounds, the score being 5 to 4. The score see-sawed back and forth until the seventh inning when the Velvetmen rallied to score three runs. It was a free hitting game with the Martins gathering 14 hits while the Bristol boys got 11. Dugas and Liberty hit for triples. Linder fanned ten men. The score:

NORWICH BOYS IN STATE TENNIS PLAY

In the junior state tennis championships held at Hartford Friday and Saturday two Academy boys, Capt. Irving Spiro and Bob Moody made an impressive showing, being finally eliminated in the semi-finals. On Memorial day the first two rounds were played, Spiro and Moody, playing in the doubles, easily winning. Saturday they played in the quarter-finals and again were victorious. In their half of the semi-finals they lost to a prep school pair, Shaw and Cox, after three hard sets, 2-6, 11-13, 2-6. However, Shaw and Cox met defeat in the finals.

As there was a bye in the other half of the semi-finals Spiro and Moody have third place in the state and in addition have qualified for the national junior championships next month.

Green Mt. Boys Win

The Green Mountain Boys won an easy victory over the Ice House All Stars Sunday afternoon in a seven-inning battle. The score was 9 to 2. Bekris and Adam divided the pitching honors for the Mountaineers.

Norwich has an election today.

That's right, I'm not joking, so if you have a few votes in your home get 'em out so they'll count either one way or the other.

Norwich either elects a new mayor or re-elects the present one. Also a few councilmen and aldermen will go into office. But on the whole it looks from where I sit like a mild time.

I've seen lots of elections but I don't remember one where there was such an apparent lack of pre-election talk. But, as the saying goes, a calm always precedes a storm.

But whoever wins I hope they will see that the conflicting parking signs are cleared up. Over in front of the Wauregan hotel there is a bewildering collection of parking signs.

Along the curb is painted a line with the words "No Parking" painted on it in black. Standing on the white line is one of the yellow and black signs that informs the public that 40-minute parking is allowed.

On one of the poles is another sign that says "40-minute parking." To the motoring public it is a question of to park or not to park. Not only that, but it puts the officer on the beat in a mighty funny position.

An out-of-town motorist draws up to the curb and parks. He has seen the sign on the sidewalk and pole and thinks he's all right. He leaves his car and when he returns there's a tag on it.

He hits the ceiling, and promptly looks up the officer, to ask how come. The officer in defense of himself points out the no parking sign and in turn the motorist points to the 40-minute parking sign. Then the fun starts. It looks like a draw.

Let's take a poll on the matter.

REDS TAKE BOTH GAMES FROM THE CARDS

CINCINNATI, June 1—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds won both games of a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals here today by scores of 5 to 4 and 7 to 1. Harry Hellmann had a perfect day at bat, turning in six hits, two of them home runs. Joe Stripp also hit for the circuit in the second game. The Reds pulled the first game out of the fire with a three run rally to tie the count in the eighth, but had no trouble in the second. Bennie Frey who pitched the nightcap for the Reds was given excellent support, with four double plays thrown in for good measure. The score:

CUBS ADVANCE TO SECOND BY DOWNING PIRATES

CHICAGO, June 1—(AP)—The Cubs drubbed Pittsburgh here today behind the good pitching of Guy Bush, to go into second place in the National league. The score was 16 to 4.

The heavy Cub artillery so dangerous last year, opened up and Meine and Spencer were hit hard.

Hack Wilson was the hitting star of the game with a single, double and two home runs, his 15th and 16th of the season.

About 40,000 customers attended to give the Cubs a sendoff for they leave tonight for the east. The score:

YALE CREWS GUESTS OF CARL TUCKER ON CRUISE

GALES FERRY, June 1—(AP)—The Yale oarsmen who make up the varsity, junior and freshman squads took a holiday today from their preparations for the Harvard regatta to enjoy a sail in Long Island sound as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tucker, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., on the auxiliary schooner The Migrant.

Mr. and Mrs. Langhorn Gibson, of New York, were also guests on the schooner. Mr. Gibson rowed on the Yale varsity crew in 1920-21-22.

A heavy wind blew out the Migrant's mainsail during the sail and the craft went into power.

Members of the third varsity crew, which won the American Henley at Philadelphia, Saturday began to drift into the training quarters today. Tomorrow Coach Don Grant, who accompanied this crew to Philadelphia, is expected to arrive and will give the combination eight its first workout on the Thames river. The varsity crews will hold their usual two workouts tomorrow, while the freshmen will hold one practice.

Italian All Stars Win

The Italian All Stars trounced the Young Hawks 14 to 3 Sunday afternoon in a game in which Pechini allowed only two hits.

BROUILLARD SIGNED FOR MAIN BOUT ON SHYMA OPEN AIR CARD JUNE 11TH

Leo P. Flynn, matchmaker for the Shyma Boxing club, announced last night that he has signed Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson as one of the principals in the main bout of the second open air show which will be held on June 11. Flynn's selection of Brouillard is a good choice as the Danielson leather merchant is a popular boy with Norwich fans.

To find a suitable opponent for the hard hitting Brouillard is one of the difficulties that Matchmaker Flynn is having. Negotiations with Joe Emmons of Waterbury are under way as Emmons seems to be the most logical opponent for Brouillard. Emmons has been going strong of late and is a hard punching boy who should be able to give the dispenser of dynamite a good battle. Emmons holds decisions over Tony Travers, Joe Clinch and Eddie Moore. It will be remembered that Moore is the boy who decisively defeated Brouillard some time ago. On comparative performances Emmons looks like a very formidable opponent. Brouillard recently scored a victory over Clyde Hull and feels confident that he can take over any boy in Connecticut.

The card for the eleventh will be made up of two four rounders and three six rounders with the eight round final. Young Lavigne has been signed for the semi-final but his opponent has not yet been named. Julio Rossi of Westerly returns in another bout with Ted Blanc of Montville in another six rounder. Rossi got a hairline verdict over Blanc in the first open air show and as there was some doubt they have been re-matched. Joe Russo, another Westerly favorite, will appear on the card.

GIANTS WIN DOUBLE VICTORY OVER BRAVES

BOSTON, June 1—(AP)—The Giants took both ends of a double header from the Braves here today before a crowd of 43,000 fans, one of the largest throngs which ever witnessed major league baseball in this city. The score in the first game was 9 to 4, and in the second 16 to 3. The Giants collected 12 runs in their half of the third inning of the second contest. Berger of the Braves hit his 13th home run of the season in the first game and his 14th in the second.

The second game had to be called at the end of the seventh inning because of the state law prohibiting commercialized sports after six p. m. on Sunday afternoon.

Walker in addition to pitching winning ball, helped win his own game with a homer off Cantwell in the eighth with one man on. The score:

ROBINS STRENGTHEN HOLD BY SLAUGHTERING PHILLIES

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 1—(AP)—The Robins strengthened their hold on first place today by slaughtering the Philadelphia pitchers to win easily by a score of 10 to 2.

Five home runs featured the Brooklyn attack in both the second and the fourth innings. Frederick and Herman hits home runs in succession. In the seventh, Bissonnette's third home run in three days followed Flowers' second triple of the game.

Helped by a murderous hitting attack, Adolfo Luque hurled an easy victory over the Phillies. The score:

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY HAS INCREASED TO 8849 IN POPULATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 1.—Killingly has a promotion. Out of Willimantic today came the announcement that it is second in population among the 169 towns of the county. That is stepping up a bit, as compared to the returns from the census of 1920. Not forgetting that the town of Windham, including the city of Willimantic, is the most densely populated of any given area of Windham county, it is something at least that Killingly rates second, even though it has but 8849 people, on the 1930 census as compared with 8178 when a count of noses was taken here ten years ago. At that time this town's population was given out as 8178. The gain therefore for this town in the past decade has been 671. And that's something, though not to be compared with Miami.

Killingly probably should be grateful for making the showing it is now accredited with, as to population gain, but those who know the town are a bit disappointed that the 10,000 mark was not reached. Harking back, one recalls that many people felt the same way about it in 1920.

It is agreed that one of the things holding down the growth of population here is the lack of housing facilities. Hundreds of people work within the border of the town of Killingly, largely within its manufacturing plants, who do not live in the town. There are no homes for them. They live in the villages of the town of Plainfield, in Putnam, in Webster, and various other communities outside the town. They would live here, in most cases, were there sufficient housing facilities.

And getting down to the borough of Danielson, which is out of luck on population ratings because what the average person recognizes as the borough is over the bridge in the town of Brooklyn, and because the borough's ridiculously restricted lines do not embrace scores of other homes built up just outside its borders are out of the picture, it gets the 1930 census picture with a rating of 4206 souls.

PAROLE VIOLATOR FOUND IN LOCAL CHICKEN COOP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 1.—Alexander Aitchinson, 26, charged with violation of his parole from the New York state reformatory, at Elmira, was being held at the police barracks today. Aitchison was dragged out of a chicken coop over on the Allen Hill road in Brooklyn, last night, after state officers had been called over there by Orlente Ethier, who has been around here about six months, and who told the state officers that someone had stolen an old Ford coupe which he left parked outside the place.

Ethier represented to the state officers that he had been living alone but, in checking up, the officers found Aitchison hiding in the hencoop. Under the circumstances he was locked up. Today it was determined that he was doing time at Elmira for the sticking up of a man in the Bronx district in New York. It was also learned today by the state officers here that he had been arrested in Montreal for breaking and entering and that he is also known to the police of Worcester.

Incidentally during the two weeks that he has been hereabouts and hiding out with Ethier, he had taken out a marriage license and proposed to marry a 14 year old Dayville girl. She was picked up this afternoon by state police, and held on a charge of being in danger of falling into vice. Ethier also was held at the barracks for possessing indecent pictures. The parties have been frequenting what is known as the old O'Brien place, near Allen Hill, in Brooklyn.

The stolen car that Ethier reported was still missing tonight, notwithstanding that the state officers have asked airplane pilots flying over this section today to watch out for the machine.

During last night the general store of Napoleon Gingrass, a selectman of the town, was bruglarized at Dayville. The thieves got away with a new radio set, cigars and cigarettes, and other things from the stock. Entrance was gained by forcing the rear door. State officers working on the case had no definite clue as to the perpetrators tonight.

Sudden Death Of Mrs. A. P. Burns.

The sudden and wholly unexpected death of Mrs. A. P. Burns at the home on Main street about 9 o'clock was a real shock to members of her family, relatives and friends. Mrs. Burns while talking with a relative was seized with what is regarded as a heart attack, raised her hand to her forehead, swooned and was dead in practically five minutes. Though she had been what might be regarded as mildly ill for some time past, there was absolutely no forecast of the impending end. Mrs. Burns had been down town going her week end shopping a short while before she died and had gone about as usual. Mr. and Mrs. Burns had observed the 35th anniversary of their marriage during May.

Mrs. Burns prior to her marriage was Miss Jessie Mildred Gardner, a daughter of Rudolph and Adeline Markham Gardner. Following her marriage to Mr. Burns the couple lived in Providence, later went to Philadelphia for a time and came into this town around 20 years ago. For several years Mr. Burns and his family lived on a farm in the eastern section of the town, later removing to Danielson.

In addition to her husband Mrs. Burns leaves the following children: Mrs. Rachel Atwood, wife of Harold E. Atwood, Danielson; Edwin A. Boston, Mrs. Mildred G. Nelson, Hartford, and Miss Althea, Danielson. There is also a grandson, Frederick Nelson, Hartford, and a sister, Miss Fannie S. Gardner, who has made her home here with Mr. and Mrs. Burns for a number of years.

Mrs. Burns was active in the affairs of the Methodist Episcopal church of Danielson. She was a splendid woman, and her untimely departure from this life was a real shock to all who knew her.

Borough officials, who try hard to carefully direct the business affairs of the community when the average person is thinking nothing at all about such matters, would be really appreciative if the voters of the borough would come out in numbers next Tuesday night, and lend their aid to the various important matters to be taken up. There is a bond issue to be thought of. There are sidewalk matters to be taken up, in their various phases. The particular special meeting has so much to do with finance that the officials really would be pleased if the voters came out and talked about it, and helped decide just what should be done.

On Saturday the body of Patrick Sullivan, who died at Yorkville, Me., arrived here and was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy for burial in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. The deceased was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Edward Lenihan of the West Side. Services were held in Maine prior to the body being forwarded to Danielson.

The unfortunate fact, these early June days, that numbers of men are still unemployed hereabouts did not start a stampede of these particular parts to cut ice Saturday morning, when May, stepping out of the picture of 1930, turned in a temperature down to the freezing mark. So veracious a citizen as Charles Williams will testify to this. Early riser that he is, he stepped out before the break of day to take a look at a thermometer that was down to 32 degrees. And that is where things stood to freeze. Freeze they did in various places, tender plants being nipped and ruined in a manner that has not been experienced hereabouts at this late spring date in many years.

An interesting reaction to the plan that involves mergers of mills in this section of eastern Connecticut with other plants in different parts of southern New England is the effect on the employes of manufacturing concerns here and hereabouts. Largely they appear to believe, with promoters of the consolidation plan, that the combination is a good thing, inasmuch as it seems to hold promise of cutting down purchasing, production and selling costs and to give the mills concerned a better chance to market goods at a profit. If that be true, and a New Englander is bound to hope that it is, there is the prospect of better times ahead.

Dimes grow to dollars in the Windham County National bank. Danielson. Ask for a "Fortune Builder." It is free. —adv.

Something approaching a torrent of New York and New Jersey cars sifted through this territory today, homeward bound after the three days' week end spent wherever fancy called in southern New England.

This June day did not live up to the reputation for the month. Temperatures were down close to freezing this morning. "What is so rare as a day in June?" just seemed to be entirely out of the picture.

Editor Frederick Babcock of Fibre and Fabric, Boston, was a visitor here with friends over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Coulter, and daughter, Jane, New Bedford, were visitors here over the week end with Mrs. Coulter's father, F. E. Bitzooo.

Miss Nellie Head remains ill at her home, as she has been for the three months. However, her condition is improved materially.

Some caustic critic of this and that remarked today that yesterday was the first Saturday he has been able to be about town for weeks without running into some Tag Day effort. And herein is reflected an opinion that is generally held about town. One might be led to believe that Tag Days are becoming too numerous, however worthy the cause.

Two weeks of school, more or less, and the end of the present school year will be at hand. Sunday night, June 8, brings the annual baccalaureate address, and then the usual round of commencement week exercises.

Again today a large number of Danielson became air-minded and improved the opportunity of taking a ride, at so much per head, in the excellent plane provided for their entertainment by a commercial service doing a passenger carrying business here.

PLAINFIELD

Rev. William C. Prentiss, Mrs. Phebe Edwards, Mrs. Nella Bradford and Everett Lawley were in Hartford during the week.

Memorial day service was held at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The holy communion was celebrated at 8 o'clock. After the service, the congregation bade farewell to the Church Army captains at the close of their five days' stay in the parish, and wished them Godspeed. This Army visit makes the fifth time within as many years that from one to 11 Army members have visited St. Paul's for periods varying from one to 11 days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cardinal have moved to Long Island, after having resided in Plainfield for 24 years. The house vacated by them will be occupied by James Lees and family.

James Royle spent Memorial day visiting in New Bedford with his niece, Mrs. Irving Philip.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Mello, of Westerly, visited local relatives Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marsland, Mr. and Mrs. John Kingsley, spent Memorial day in Cranston, R. I.

Mrs. Arthur L. Benton has returned to her home in Cranston, after spending a few days with her parents here.

COLCHESTER

Walter B. Lombard of Hartford, former local resident, visited over Memorial Day with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Riley.

Miss Edna V. Strong was on the street for a short while Saturday, following an illness of several days at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Lucy B. Allen.

Rivaley Among Fishermen

Lloyd W. Brown and Earl S. Stevens were wading the brooks on the outskirts of the village early Friday morning, returning with a fine string of trout, several of which measured fifteen inches and weighed twenty-one ounces each. They were the finest lot of trout seen here so far this season and were on exhibition Memorial Day in E. B. Holmes' store window where they attracted much attention from passersby. George M. Case still holds the record, however, with his recent catch of a twenty-four ounce specimen. Radio Engineer Eugene P. Beebe and John W. Goodrich are equipping themselves with some extra stout fishing tackle and a special brand of bait and expect to be out early mornings this week in a determined effort to shatter all previous trout-catching records for this vicinity. Gene says they will be satisfied with nothing smaller than a three pounder.

Miss Rachel Freedman, teacher in Hartford; Miss Lois Craig Pendleton, teacher in Litchfield; Miss Clara E. Park, teacher in Danbury, and Misses Margaret, Alice and Claire Brown, teachers in Hartford, spent the week end at their homes here.

Past Commander John Newton Phelps, prominent dairyman of Westchester center, has been having medical treatment the past week for blood poisoning in his hand.

Ernest E. Mintz of New York spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Mintz.

Captain Clarence H. Maynard, well known local radio enthusiast who has been living during the winter at the former George Brown house on South Main street, has moved to his summer home in the Frog Hollow section of East Haddam.

Captain Maynard and Radio Engineer Beebe have recently completed repairing and elevating the large radio antenna on the roof of the Holmes' store. They are both fast gaining a reputation in this vicinity for their cleverness in conducting unusual radio experiments.

Dr. Eugene M. Clifford of Hartford visited over Sunday with his mother and sisters here.

Fabricated Steel Orders Off

WASHINGTON —(AP)— New orders for fabricated structural steel for the first four months of 1930 reported to the department of commerce by 233 principal firms totalled 1,016,000 tons as compared with 1,232,000 tons for a corresponding period in 1929.

The Erie canal, in its early days, was known as "Clinton's Ditch."

PUTNAM

PROVIDENCE YOUTH DIES AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 1.— The careless driving by motorcyclists on the highways in this city over the week end caused accidents that resulted in the death of one person, sent another to the Day Kimball hospital this afternoon in a critical condition, with recovery doubtful, and placed a third person in a position facing a charge of manslaughter because of his alleged act of negligence.

Antranick Karakanian, 21, of 7 Crimea street, Providence, died shortly before noon today at the Day Kimball hospital of injuries received Thursday afternoon when a motorcycle on which he was a passenger with two friends, while traveling at a high rate of speed failed to round the hazardous curve at the intersection of Grove street and Killingly avenue, to cut diagonally across the angle in the road and crash into the highway fence bordering on the property of Anthony Goulet.

Karakanian, who was riding on the tandem seat of the vehicle, was thrown into the open lot adjoining the state highway. He sustained a fracture of the skull and internal injuries, which caused his death today.

Haig Bayanderian, 22, of 170 Dodge street, Providence, driver of the machine, is under arrest on a technical charge of manslaughter and is held at the police station in default of bonds of $2,000 for his appearance at the office of Coroner A. G. Bill of Danielson at 11 o'clock Monday morning, at which time an inquest into the death of Karakanian will take place. The driver, other than receiving a slight laceration about the right eye, was uninjured.

Haig Bedigan, 21, 270 Douglas street, Providence, who was riding in the side-car of the motorcycle, was severely cut about the face and hands. He was taken to the Day-Kimball hospital where he was given medical attention and discharged the same evening. No charges have as yet been preferred against him, although he is being held as a material witness.

Officer Harry Wallen of the local police who investigated the accident, found but one witness, Carl E. Weeks of Franklin street, who was in the immediate vicinity at the moment of the crash. Mr. Weeks will testify at the inquest. He stated to Officer Wallen that he was standing in the gateway of the Grove street cemetery when he observed the motorcycle passing. An automobile was parked in front of the residence of Luther M. Keith on Grove street, he said, and a young lady was about to step from the car to the street. Karakanian and Bedigan waved their hands frantically and shouted in an effort to gain the attention of the young lady in the automobile. At this moment the motorcycle gained added impetus and went forward at a rapid rate. A few moments later Mr. Weeks said his attentions were attracted to the dangerous cemetery curve where he heard a loud crash and screams. Going to the scene he assisted the victim until help arrived to convey the seemingly lifeless body to the hospital. George E. Perry, a resident of Grove street annex, heard the crash and was an early arrival on the scene. He will be summoned to the inquest, it was understood.

The young man who died at the hospital was an Armenian and had been a resident of this country but nine months, coming to Providence from Turkey. He is reputed to have possessed promising ability as a pugilist and according to a relative who came here today for the purpose of claiming the body, was to have been given a try out this month at an athletic club in Providence.

Second Motorcycle Accident

The second victim of week end smash-ups is Leodore Mayer, 22, of 12 High street, this city, who is at the Day-Kimball hospital as the result of a motorcycle accident which occurred this afternoon at 1:20 o'clock on the hospital hill on Pomfret street, near the residence of Martin Aldeman. Mayer, according to a late hospital bulletin, is suffering from a serious fracture of the skull and body injuries. He was still in an unconscious condition.

Mayer was riding a solo motorcycle in the direction of Pomfret. When about to round the angle in the highway near the Aldeman residence, he momentarily lost his balance and darted into a stone to lose complete control of the vehicle which was traveling at a considerably fast pace in order to make the hill. The machine dashed into the swamp lot 25 feet off the road, hurdled a three-foot brook and continued its mad rampage for a distance of 50 feet, coming to a stop only when it smashed through a group of young trees. Mayer was hurled nearly fifty feet when the cycle came to a halt.

Patrolman Benoni Durand investigated the accident and removed the victim to the hospital which is located only a few yards from the scene of the crash.

The grand total of fines and costs collected in the city court of Putnam during the past week was raised to $1100 Saturday afternoon with the trying of additional liquor cases created by raids of the state and local police over the holiday. The aggregate amount collected smashed all previous records and set up a new mark for a week's business.

George Trudeau of 42 Ballou street, whose kitchen bar-room was raided at midnight Thursday by local police, at a special session of court at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, entered a plea of guilty to charges of owning and keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell and paid a fine of $200 and costs. Trudeau was without counsel and offered no testimony in his own behalf, in view of the fact that his appearance in court Saturday constituted his first offense. Attorney Eric H. Johnson recommended the light fine, which was immediately imposed by Judge M. H. Geissler.

Benjamin Cohen, 35, Providence, R. I., rum-runner arrested Thursday noon by State Officer John T. Murphy of the Danielson barracks on the Putnam-Danielson road, a few feet over the Putnam town line, pleaded guilty to charges of transporting, owning and keeping for sale and actual sale of intoxicating liquors, for which he paid fines of $200 on the first two counts and an assessment of $100 on the latter, making a total of $500 and costs.

Cohen was en route to Putnam when accosted by Officer Murphy who hailed the car after a brief chase that led over the Putnam line. A search of the rear compartment of the vehicle revealed the 11 pints of grain alcohol which had been "doctored" and converted to the well known "moonshine." The load was accompanied by the "pill box," a physician's carrying case in which was contained an assortment of small bottles filled with various extracts for coloring and flavoring the alcohol. This, too, was seized by Officer Murphy and taken with the liquor shipment to the police barracks at Danielson.

Cohen, who is well known in Putnam and Danielson as an automobile accessory salesman, was placed under arrest and held at the barracks over the holiday, for his appearance in court Saturday afternoon. He was not represented by counsel and upon imposition of the heavy fine, reached into his trousers pocket, drew out the large wad of bills, promptly meeting his obligation.

A light frost that hit northern Windham county early today is believed to have caused considerable damage to early crops.

The lowest official temperature of Saturday was 36 degrees reported in Woodstock valley at 5:30 a. m. Asparagus was hit the hardest, beds in a dozen communities being damaged. Strawberries are in blossom and these also suffered, and the cold nip was reported to have effected beans, squash and tomatoes.

Miss Marion Warren of Grand View who has been ill for several weeks, has returned to her duties in the accounting department of the Citizens National bank.

Martin B. Robertson of Willimantic, formerly of this city, was a visitor here over the week end.

Patrolman Benoni Durand has relieved Patrolman Harry Wallen on duty in the down town district and Patrolman Joseph Page, for the past month night officer in the down town section, is now patrolling the north end beat. The change in the officers patrol schedule was announced today by Capt. A. J. Dubreuil.

Piles of sand dumped at intervals along city maintained streets in the east side of the city indicate that the street department is soon to begin the annual oil applications on these thoroughfares.

Miss Sadie Simon, a student nurse at the Beth Israel hospital in New York city, is spending a brief vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Simon of School street.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson was in this city today relative to the investigation of circumstances surrounding the fatal crash on Grove street late Friday afternoon which resulted in the death of Antranick Karakanian of Providence.

Miss Dorothy Keefe, a student at Connecticut College for Women, New London, passed the week end at her home on Ring street.

Quinebaug Pines, is the new name, which has been conferred by the state park officials on that beautiful and stately group of trees located on Priest Island on lower Park street, which is now a state park.

Saturday was the final day for property owners to pay their town tax assessments for the current year. Tax Collector Alfred Bonneville reported that there was no last minute rush of any size, in as much as the large majority of taxes were paid during the collecting days at the beginning of the month.

A report from the Day-Kimball hospital late this afternoon said that the condition of Martin Misiazek, 48, of Jewett City, injured Thursday evening in an accident at Franklin street crossing, Danielson, was considerably improved today.

Miss Nellie Clark of Webster, a sister of F. E. Clark of Grove street, this city, was conveyed in the ambulance to the Day-Kimball hospital Saturday morning. She is suffering from a cerebral hemmorage. Her condition was reported as somewhat improved today.

On Thursday afternoon a section of the commercial planes on a tour of New England included this city in their air oddessy when they passed en route from Providence over the north end of the city, flying in perfect triangular formation.

After awarding a judgment of $275 and costs to Albert Latici of Florence street, this city, in a suit against Nelson Hebert of North Grosvenordale Thursday afternoon, Judge Arthur F. Ellis of Waterbury adjourned the May civil session of superior court without date. Judge Ellis did not return decision in the marriage annulment action of Mrs. Jean Coleman Legg of Thompson, which was brought against her husband, John Francis Legg, of Worcester. Before adjourning the session Judge Ells returned a judgment of $700 in favor of Nora M. Hubbard of Plainfield, plaintiff, in a damage suit brought against Frank B. Green of Plainfield. This case was tried Wednesday.

Amie Salvas, proprietor of the Golf links at Harrisville, will appear in justice court in Woodstock Wednesday on a liquor violation charge. Salvas was arrested in a raid Friday evening, which was staged at the club house on his property, where State Officers Royal Scranton and Lionel Poirier seized a number of cases of home brew beer. Salvas was released on bonds of $2,000.

William Hayman was admitted to the Day-Kimball hospital late this afternoon where he was treated for a severe laceration of the scalp and cuts about the face and hands, which he sustained when an automobile which he was driving collided with a car on the Putnam-Willimantic road near the Frog rock at Phoenixville. Mrs. Hayman was cut from flying glass and was taken to the hospital for treatment, and discharged early this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Hayman live in Pawtucket, R. I.

Rev. James F. English, retiring pastor of the Congregational church, delivered his farewell sermon at the morning service today. The church was filled to capacity with parishioners. On next Sunday Rev. Mr. English will assume the pastorate of the Congregational church in Manchester, N. H.

PACHAUG MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The postponed Memorial services at Pachaug were carried out Sunday afternoon, before an assemblage of 150. Preceding the exercises, the parade moved over a short line of march, after forming at the left memorial entrance. Dr. George H. Jennings, past commander of the American Legion, was marshal, his aides being Major Earl Montgomery, of New Haven, with George Rochelleu and C. F. Morgan. The Ashland Boys' band, Fred Bourque, leader, headed the line. The color bearers were William Sharkey and Alec Raney, their armed guards being John Davis and Arthur LeGasse. John W. Blake was in charge of the firing squad. His command included Dona Morancey, John Smith, Stanley Savage, Irving Thornton, Victor St John, Charles Barber and Edgar Knox, all carrying Springfield rifles. The second part of the exercises was preceded by a band selection, Nearer, My God, to Thee, and the singing of America, the band playing the air. Prayer was offered by the chaplain of Pachaug grange, Rev. G. F. Goodenough. The band played Red, White and Blue, followed by Pleyel's hymn. The memorial address was by Rev. Harold L. Arnold, pastor of the First Congregational church of Griswold, who spoke on the subject, What Are We Here For? He told, during a 20-minute talk, of many present-day facts and requirements which the attentive listeners found to be of interest and profit. The speaker made special reference to Comrade James Jennings, the only G. A. R. member present. The next songs and band selections included America the Beautiful and Star Spangled Banner, with a quartette of brass instruments. The decoration of the cemetery gates, a very impressive feature, was performed by Marshal Jennings, George Rochelleu, William Watson and George Simineau, at a signal from Major Montgomery. All the arrangements at Pachaug were in charge of C. Frank Morgan. The grange committee on music was Walter Hyde, Byron Kinne and Fred Edmond. The gates were decorated with beautiful wreaths of laurel, fashioned by Mrs. C. F. Morgan and Miss Susie Morgan. W. B. Montgomery loaned his car that the laurel leaves might be secured.

Stanley Malek, a senior at Plainfield high, and official scorer for the Jewett City Twilight league, was one of a party in Boston, Memorial day, to see the double-header between the Boston Braves and New York Giants. During the warm-up practice preceding the game, a thrown ball from the infield went wide of first base and rolled over toward the fence. Stanley, right on the job, nailed the stray and transferred it to his jeans. Terry, the Big first baseman, made a burlesque attempt to recover the ball, then thinking better of it, tossed a kiss at either the pill or the lad, and turned his attention to another threw in from deep center.

Following a week of record-breaking cold and wet, there came a sharp drop in the temperature Friday, with frosts reported from several places in Griswold and Lisbon. Charlie Butts, watchman at the Aspinook plant, who keeps a record of the thermometer readings during the night, declares that at 3 a. m., the roofs were white with frost, at a reading of 36.

George Lindell, Griswold's sole Civil war veteran, was in Washington, R. I., Memorial day, and met several of his old comrades. Mr. Lindell is one of the eight surviving members of the Second R. I. Volunteers, of whom 786 answered "here" to the roll call in '61. Born in 1847, he is right on the firing line today and says he could shoot a musket again if he had to, adding that he thought ten years ago he was headed towards the final muster, but he got hold of a little something to take that seemed to touch the spot, so that now he is going strong for 90 and maybe more.

Little Miss Clara Jeffers brought to her teacher in the Riverside grammar school a fine specimen of mouse-eared chickweed. Local amateur botanists were puzzled, for among 240 flowers found in Griswold and Lisbon, this had not been listed. Common chickweed is to be found almost anywhere, but Gray's Botany says that the mouse-ear variety is rare in Connecticut. E. F. Burleson made the identification by research in his Britton and Brown Botany. The other flower found by another pupil is purple water avens.

The Woman's Mission circle of the Baptist church is to hold the last meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Mary Brewster Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The birthdays of all those present will be especially noticed. There will be a birthday cake. Transportation has been arranged for. Those not provided for are to notify Mrs. A. M. Brown or Mrs. B. R. Gardner. Those living above Tracy avenue will meet at Mrs. E. E. Gilbert's, those below that point at Dearnley's store.

The beautiful iris at the Baptist church Sunday morning were from G. H. Prior's gardens.

Memorial day visitors and week-end guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brooks and son, Donald, of Forestville, Conn., at Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Kingsley's. John Jacobs, of Lawrence, Mass., and Charles and Robert S. Tyler, of Hartford; Belle and Mary Comager, of Stafford Springs, and Oliver Comager, of Providence. Harry Paul, Mrs. Marion Strickland and three children, of Middletown, at Mrs. H. E. Paul's; Frank McCusker, Thomas Colinan, Mr. and Mrs. John Katrovsky and family, of Bridgeport, at Mr. and Mrs. Emile Dufresne's; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Dexter, and Mrs. Patrick Shea, of Pawtucket, at John Fitzgerald's; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meyer, of New Britain, and Miss Hallie Burleson, of East Orange, N. J., at E. F. Burleson's; Mrs. Annie Broadfoot, of Providence, at W. A. Broadfoot's; Mrs. C. H. Camp, of Bridgeport, at Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Ross.

Joseph Wolczak and daughters, Irene and Madeline, were week-end visitors in Crompton, R. I.

BOOK SHOWS HOW TO USE OLD WOOD TO ADVANTAGE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Old boxes, crates and used lumber have not outlived their usefulness, in the belief of the department of commerce committee on wood utilization.

The committee plans the interest 2,500,000 hildren attending 7,000 playgrounds, in making useful articles out of such wood this summer.

A booklet, "How To Make It," has been issued describing how to make more than 100 articles out of discarded wood.

WESTERLY

TAX COLLECTOR'S PLACE IS SOUGHT BY SEVERAL

The meeting of Pawcatuck Fire district will be held this (Monday) evening in the Liberty street headquarters building when the reports of the various officers and committees will be heard when the meeting is opened by Moderator Albert G. Martin. When it comes to the election of district officers it is expected that there will be several candidates for the office of tax collector, now held by Charles J. Norris. Mr. Norris some time ago announced he would not be a candidate for re-election this year, and a number of candidates for the office came forward. It was definitely learned that Lawrence Rook, Fred Crowley, John Wood and William S. Crandall are all desirous of succeeding Mr. Norris.

Alexandre Pinelli, 27, of 5 Woodland street, Providence, Saturday noon, pleaded guilty to the charge of operating an automobile when under the influence of liquor, when he was arraigned before Judge Oliver H. Williams in the Third District court. He was fined $75 and costs, totaling $88. He was examined by Dr. M. H. Scanlon.

Pinelli informed the police the accident happened when he swerved his machine sharply to avoid colliding with other machines were slightly damaged when one stopped suddenly at the scene of the accident, causing the car following to smash into it. There were three men riding in the front seat of the car, described as a sport roadster, Pinelli told the police. Judge Williams first imposed a sentence of 30 days in Providence county jail and then asked the defendant which he would prefer, a jail sentence or a $200 fine. He chose the latter and when it came to fixing the amount of the fine Judge Williams took in consideration the condition of the man's wife and set the fine at $75 with costs amounting to $8, the latter his companion, William Winslow, 20, of 235 Broadway, Providence, paid and the defendant was released.

Providence Man Pays $25

William Winslow, 20, of Providence, was before Judge Williams charged with being intoxicated while on the Nooseneck Hill road, following the overturning of the auto, also with resisting an officer and interfering with him in the discharge of his duty. He pleaded guilty and told the judge that he resented the questioning of anyone at the scene of the accident besides the driver and that he was handled roughly by the officers. He was fined $20 and costs, which totalled $25. When told that a probation officer would call upon him at his Providence home he stated that he would not be home evenings, as he was attending a Providence trades school.

Injured In Accident

On the Nooseneck Hill road in Ashaway, at the intersection of the Bradford road, there was an automobile accident about 3 p. m. Sunday in which two cars sideswiped. One of the autos occupied by a man, woman and child, swerved and crashed into a tree and was badly wrecked. Chief of Police Frank Brown, of Hopkinton, was called to investigate and two troopers from the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police. The ambulance of the Westerly hospital was called and the injured were taken to the Westerly hospital where they were attended by Dr. John E. Rulsi.

WEDDINGS

Hawkins—Sutcliffe

The marriage of Miss Ruth Oretta Sutcliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Sutcliffe of 8 Park avenue, and James Wilbur Hawkins, son of Mrs. Georgia Hawkins of Laconia, N. H., was solemnized at 9 o'clock Saturday at the Immaculate Conception church. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Fr. J. F. Vincent, S. M., who also celebrated the nuptial mass. The Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn's Wedding March were played by the organist, Mrs. James F. McMahon. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's sister, Miss Alice Madeline Sutcliffe, was the maid of honor and the best man was William J. Hogan, of Westerly. The bride's dress was a princess gown of white satin and her tulle veil was caught with orage blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. A princess gown of green satin was worn by the bridesmaid with picture hat to match and her bouquet was of Sylvia roses.

After the church ceremony a breakfast was served to relatives and intimate friends at Peckham's Inn. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins left on a wedding trip through the White mountains and on their return will reside at 14 Spruce street. The bride has been a bookkeeper at the office of the Westerly Automatic Telephone company, by which the groom is employed as a cable splicer.

Darlington—Poirier

Friday morning Miss Mary Verla Poirier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Poirier of 244 Mechanic street, Southbridge, Mass., and Charles Pierce Darlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darlington of 110 Mechanic street, this town, were married at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., who also celebrated the nuptial mass. The wedding marches and interludes during the mass were played by Mrs. James McMahon. The witnesses were Thomas Murray and Joseph Delaney. The bride wore white satin. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried lilies of the valley and sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Darlington are on a wedding trip to New York.

Butten—Dooley

Miss Norma Rochford Dooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Dooley of York avenue, and Henry Wilbur Butten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Butten of Stanton street, were married Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the rectory of the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M. Miss Cathryn Dooley, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Harold Butten, brother of the groom, was best man. After a motor trip through the Berkshires, Mr. and Mrs. Butten will make their home at 31 Greenman avenue.

About 4 p. m. Saturday on Main street, Bradford, Shiela Collins, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Collins of Bradford was injured when knocked down near her home by an automobile owned and operated by Frank Jacobson of Chase Hill. The accident was investigated by Lieut. George H. Champlin of the Westerly police and according to Jacobsons' story the child ran out from the sidewalk into the path of the automobile.

Members of the Sons of Union Veterans and I. O. O. F., attended the funeral services of Silas E. Barber, 85, G. A. R. veteran and former member of the Budlong post, G. A. R. of Westerly who died Thursday at the soldiers' home in Bristol. The services were held later at a funeral home in Hope Valley. Burial took place in Wood River cemetery.

He is survived by two sons, Elias H. L. Barber, of Pawtucket; W. P. Barber, of Providence, and a daughter, Mrs. Sarah F. Perry of Hope Valley.

Graduated From Air Corps' School

Paul Clifford Merrill, after taking six months' course, at the Air Corps Technical school at Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., by the state of Connecticut, which is permitted each year to send one man to this federal school, has returned home. He has been assigned to Brainard field, Hartford, as an instructor of the 118th Observation squadron. Mr. Merrill was graduated from the school with rank of a staff sergeant. He is a brother of Lieut. Harold W. Merrill, who was killed in the aviation service in France and for whom Merrill post, No. 18, American Legion of Westerly, is named.

MYSTIC

DENISON HOMESTEAD TO BE GIVEN TO FAMILY ASS'N

Mrs. Annie Borodel Denison Gates has sent out circulars to all Denison descendants, who are scattered over the country, in regard to the George and Ann Borodel Denison society, which has been incorporated. There will be a meeting in August, at which time it is hoped to complete organization. There will be a luncheon at her house at Pequotsepos Manor, near Mystic, at this time. Mrs. Gates, in her letter states that she intends at some future date, to deed this property to the society. This old house is the Denison homestead, built about 1717 by George Denison, grandson of Capt. George Denison and has been preserved by his descendants. In later years an ell was added. There are still some of the long, three-foot shingles o. the sides of the house. The large, two-story structure is weatherbeaten by time. It stands on the slope of a hill and commands a fine view. In front are two large elms and several large stones with peculiar dents in them. Old fashioned flowers add to the beauty of the place. The front door with its iron knocker still in excellent condition, is in the center of the house. As one enters, the large sunshiny rooms welcome the visitor and all are beautifully furnished with antiques. The summer beams, cornice and paneling are a feature. Tourists from all parts of the country call to see this ancient house, so well kept and where Mrs. Gates is noted for her hospitality. The Denison descendants will all be gratified to learn what Mrs. Gates plans to do with this beautiful homestead.

WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW SHOWS THE TREND OF BUSINESS DISAPPOINTING

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—The past week in business and industry brought to a close a month which began under a cloud of pessimism, accomplished little as it progressed, but experienced gradual resignation of confidence.

The passing of April without even a normal spring acceleration of activity was extremely disappointing, and May started off under the unfavorable augury of a sharp decline in the stock market. Aside from further easing of credit, the month produced little tangible improvement. The past week in particular was a period of vague and indecisive trends.

At this particular period of the year, the seasonal lull normally makes its appearance. Activity during the past week was restricted by the Memorial day holiday. Furthermore, retail trade was held in check by unseasonably cold weather over large areas.

Commodity prices failed to show stability, which continued to restrict new buying. Many observers, however, now look for a rush of consumer buying as soon as prices give definite evidence of having touched bottom, such as recently occurred in copper. Agricultural products, on the whole, were inclined to sag further, with wheat futures rallying, only to fall back again. Furthermore, downward revisions appeared in the price structure in steel and iron, as well as such non-ferrous metals as silver and tin. Petroleum and its products were fairly stable. The wool markets, also, showed a firmer undertone.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, June 1—(AP)—Formation of Midwest Steel corporation as a wholly owned subsidiary of the National Steel corporation was announced today. The new company's initial capital of $100,000 will be increased later to $50,000,000 or more.

One hundred and five communities will be in the market with new bond issues this week, but the total awards will be only $22,655,000.

Investments of Selected Industries, Inc., appreciated $5,715,158 in market value between January 1 and May 24. The total on the latter date was $61,417,768.

The council of the Tin Producers association has appointed a special committee to handle the regulation of output throughout the world.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Mr. and Mrs. George Lachapelle motored to Worcester to see the Harvard-Holy Cross baseball game Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lachapelle, Mr. and Mrs. Amedee Seney, Eddie Seney and Mike Bellerose attended the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bellerose, of Charclay. Mrs. Amedee Seney is sister of Joseph Bellerose.

Leonard Martel, of Taftville spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Martel.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lachance of Putnam spent a day recently with Mrs. Joseph Langlois.

Miss Alma Forcier, of Goodyear, school nurse for the town, is in charge of a pre-school clinic being conducted in the town under the direction of the state board of health. She is being aided by Miss Antoinette Coderre. Her record for the year is highly praised by state officials. The purpose of the clinic is to safeguard the health of the children who are to enter school in the fall.

Young people of the Methodist church were recent guests in the church rooms of Miss Cassells. Plans for the summer program of activities were made and a social hour was held.

Will Enter Boxing Bouts

George (Kid) Laflamme, son of Philias Laflamme is planning to enter the amateur bouts at Danielson, June 10. He is 20, and weighs 123 pounds. He won the decision over Alfred Breault in an exhibition bout in Galiaiale last week.

Mrs. Kent Goodnow, of Worcester was a visitor at the high school the other day. She was Edith Pierre, a former teacher at the school.

The dance Friday night at Spring Side Casino was largely attended.

LOCAL MAN HAULED IN ON THREE LIQUOR CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 1—Frank Nycek, 38, of Brook street, this city, was arrested in Lower Village about 9 o'clock tonight on charges of transportation and possession of liquor, driving under the influence of liquor and failure to obey the command of an officer. Nycek was spotted by Chief Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs, assisted by Police Officers William Hurley and Rudolph Laramie as he drove his car into the city. The order to halt was ignored and Chief Briggs crowded the Nycek car into the curbing, doing slight damage to the fenders of both machines in doing so.

Nycek will be presented before Commissioner Earle Mathewson in Norwich at 9 o'clock Monday morning on charges of transportation and possession. Later, probably Tuesday he will be arraigned in police court to answer to the other two charges. In the car which Nycek drove, the officers found one gallon of moonshine and three empty jugs marked "coffee," but which emited an odor giving the officers reason to believe that such had not been the last liquid to be contained in them. Some few years ago Nycek was arrested in Rhode Island on bootlegging and fined $500 and costs.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"The Bad One" a thrilling comedy-drama of life in the sea-port towns of France with Dolores Del Rio and Edmund Lowe as the leads is the production now playing at the Palace theatre which will be shown there today and tomorrow for the last times. Both Miss Del Rio and Mr. Lowe will be remembered for their excellent characterizations in "What Price Glory," "The Cock-Eyed World," and "In Old Arizona." The same masterful role is now the spirit of Mr. Lowe's part in "The Bade One" but as an American sailor he is a wise-cracking swash-buckler instead of a profane soldier.

Dolores Del Rio has departed from her usual demure roles to that of a high-spirited singer and dancer of the French cafes and shows unusual versatility. The other leading parts in this production are played for the most part by either South Americans or French and the slight accent which they have retained from their native speech makes the color of their voices even more realistic than is the usual thing.

"The Bad One" is filled with thrills and with many humorous incidents as well. One of the most exciting moments perhaps is the climax reached after there has been mutiny in the prison and the convicts numbering several hundred have escaped. The hero and heroine are involved and escape only after their lives have been endangered many times.

The popularity contest which is attracting great attention in Norwich is still going strong. Each admission entitles the bearer to five votes which he may cast for any girl of his choice. The winner of the contest will be awarded a vacation in Atlantic City and many of the leading stores are contributing clothes which she will take with her. There will be a sport outfit, a party dress, a traveling suit, four pairs of shoes, hats, lingerie, cosmetics, a wrist watch and a diamond ring as well as a traveling bag, a bathing suit and a bank deposit of twenty-five dollars.

The winner of the second prize will receive a Gold Season Pass to the Palace theatre and no girl would be more delighted with another gift. The slogan for you during the next few weeks should be, "Go to the Palace. Go early. Go often." Get those votes in soon for the most popular girl in Norwich.

PACIFIC COAST AIRLINE OPENS 'THROUGH' SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Four air passenger companies operating between Los Angeles and San Francisco have enjoyed a period of "pay loads."

A fifth company has opened a passenger service from Seattle to Los Angeles.

The Pacific Air Transport, operating the 1100 mile mail route between north and south, inaugurated a through passenger service with the opening of Boeing's 20-hour Oakland-Chicago service.

The new passenger line, second longest in the United States to be operated by one company, takes 12 hours and 15 minutes to fly between the two points, with stopovers.

GREAT LAKES AIR CRUISE WILL COVER 2,700 MILES

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A 2,700-mile air cruise around the Great Lakes has been sanctioned by the National Aeronautic association for August 8 to 17.

Sponsored by the Detroit flying club, the tour will be made by flying boats, amphibians, and seaplanes.

Wayne J. Sheldon will be cruise commander and Paul Strasburg referee.

Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Toronto, Mackinac Island, and Sault Ste. Marie will be visited.

ALCOHOL DRIVES TRAIN 52 MILES AN HOUR

SAO PAULO—(AP)—Alcohol was the fuel used to drive a special engine on an experimental train between this city and Rio de Janeiro recently.

The motor was installed in the forward section of a passenger coach, has four speeds forward and three in reverse.

It attained a maximum speed of fifty-two miles an hour.

The alcohol fuel is a special product of the state of Pernambuco. It is used as fuel for automobiles on account of its lesser cost.

OREGON WILL PRESERVE FORESTS ALONG HIGHWAYS

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—Joining the ranks of the states which have adopted the policy of beautifying roadsides, Oregon has launched the most extensive program yet promoted.

Vast tracts from 500 to 1,000 feet deep are to be brought into the scheme of beautification.

These great borders of forest land will be dedicated in perpetuity to the beauty of Oregon motor lanes and cutting of trees will only be done when necessary to enhance the charm of the landscape.

FIRST NEW ZEALAND BUILT PLANE COMPLETES TESTS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand—(AP)—The first airplane built in New Zealand recently completed a successful test flight. It is a one-seater monoplane, with a two-cylinder, 28 horsepower Lawrence motor.

Its weight unloaded is 330 pounds. The fuselage is 20 feet in length with a wing spread of 28 feet. The wings are detachable.

A fund is being raised by popular subscription to send the plane's builder to Auckland for his pilot's license.

CORNCOBS FURNISH MATERIAL TO MAKE AUTO GEARS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A hard, dense material expected to be of great economic value has been made from cornstalks and corncobs.

It is called maizolith.

The new substance was produced by the bureau of standards and Iowa State college in a joint experimental plant at Ames.

It has a tensile strength of about 7,000 pounds a square inch, and a compressive strength of approximately 17,000 pounds a square inch.

Maizolith is expected to find wide use in construction of noiseless gears, bushings, washers, refillable fuses, etc.

VINE, NEW LONDON LAUNDRY DRIVER, GIVES HIMSELF UP TO THE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1.—Edward S. Vine, 16 West Colt street, married and until recently employed as driver and collector by the Pequot laundry, and who eloped with Dorothy Turner, 17, of 28 Starr street, two weeks ago, delivered himself into the custody of the police Saturday night. Monday he will be presented in the police court, charged with embezzlement and conversion. Vine's mother, Mrs. Mary Vine, qualified on her son's bond of $2,000. The Turner girl is in New York but it is believed that she will return to New London within a day or two.

Vine embezzled about $130 from his employers and in leaving New London with the girl he rented a Hire and Drive It owned car and the couple left the state. Vine and the girl continued to drive from city to city and when they arrived in a small town named Seymour, Ind., for some unknown reason they abandoned the automobile. They then went to Buffalo, N. Y., where their funds became exhausted. The Turner girl has a sister residing in New York and the latter was pleaded with to send the couple funds that they might return to New London. This was done and, with the arrival of Vine and the girl in New York, the latter went to the home of her sister and Vine came to New London. He proceeded to police headquarters and was locked up until his mother came to his rescue by furnishing bail.

BROOK SCARED AWAY FROM MAE O'NEILL'S STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1.—An attempt was made last night to rob the apparel store of Miss Mae O'Neill, 23 Green street. Miss O'Neill discovered the attempted robbery today and reported it to the police. The thief succeeded in forcing a rear window, but because of a statue being broken the crook was evidently scared away before he succeeded in entering the store.

RAIL TRAFFIC HEAVY FOLLOWING HOLIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1.—Traffic on all west-bound trains of the New Haven railroad was exceedingly heavy throughout this afternoon and tonight, the majority of passengers being men, women and children who had spent the holiday and week end with relatives and were returning to their homes. Most of the trains were run in two sections. The Pittsburgh express, which reached here at 5:57 o'clock was run in two sections, consisting of 23 cars. While the Gilt Edge express that arrived here at 7:43 was also in two sections, consisting of 21 cars. The Merchants' limited, which does not stop in New London, was also run in two sections of 23 cars, including three dining cars.

Will Go To Willimantic

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

"The Return of Doctor Fu-Manchu!" That devout and learned master of the sciences, a kindly old soul, rendering all his energies toward the good of mankind, turned by a cruel trick of fate into a murderous maniac, his sane thought the destruction of the whites, exercising his knowledge to invent and practice new physical and mental tortures on his hapless victims, Dr. Fu, the creation of that master of Oriental fiction, Sax Rohmer, is at once one of the most malignant and interesting characters of the living screen, and Warner Oland seems to live the character in its smallest detail. O. P. Heggie is Inspector Smith of Scotland Yard, implacable, merciless, yet coolly calculating in his chase of the murderer, with Neil Hamilton as Dr. Petrie, his civilian assistant and petite Jean Arthur, the mental slave of the wily Chinaman.

For comedy relief, the program includes Bert Gordon in "Desperate Sam," in which Sam is forced to live up to his assumed character of a bold, bad man; John Arthur in "Adam's Eve," with Johnny heavily involved with a dangerous blonde, Frances Lee, and the famous "Prisoners' Song" in song-cartoon form. The latest Paramount sound news completes a peppy program, which will run through today and tomorrow, giving way on Wednesday to the screen version of that sensational novelistic indictment of war, "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," one of the ten best sellers today.

Breed Theatre.

Fox Movietone has scored another tremendous hit.

"The Golden Calf," described as a comedy with music, made an auspicious bow at the Breed theatre last night to an audience which voted it one of the greatest productions of the year.

This picture, with an amusing story of Greenwich Village and its artists as a background, has everything that a musical comedy should have. Beauty, talent, youth, personality, tuneful music, comedy of a high order and dancing unequalled before on stage or screen, are the elements which make this a production no one who enjoys pictures should miss.

Sue Carol, in the best role of her career, establishes herself as a real actress, Jack Mulhall, as the artist-hero, is eminently satisfactory in his light role.

Ej Brendel, cast in a typical Swedish role, contributes liberally of his fund of comedy and again stamps himself as the foremost character comedian of the audible screen.

Marjorie White, sensational "find" of "Sunny Side Up," again proves she is headed for early stardom by her outstanding performance as Sue's girl friend.

Spectacular dance numbers, staged by Earl Lindsay, are contributed by a beauty chorus of 100. The final sequences of the picture introduce to the audible screen, for the first time, the Illustrators' Show, annual high jinks of Greenwich Village artists and their models.

The Academy Orchestra

At the concert to be given by the Academy orchestra on Tuesday evening at Slater hall, besides the numbers by the orchestra itself, there will be three solo groups which the audience is certain to enjoy—a violin duet by Earle J. Swan and Dorothy E. Stewart; a group of songs by Regina A. Caplin; and a two piano duet by Eileen V. Krause and Stella Glowacki. There is every reason to anticipate a concert of interest.

W. H. Cameron, manager of the National Safety council, Chicago, daily walks from his home in Evanston to his office in Chicago, a distance of 12 miles.

Nelson Rockefeller's Bride-To-Be His Sweetheart Of Maine Beaches

Mary Todhunter Clark, of Philadelphia, and Nelson A. Rockefeller, second son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who will be married June 23.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1—(AP)—The wedding here on June 23 of Miss Mary Todhunter Clark and Nelson A. Rockefeller, second son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will mark a new chapter in a tale of romance which had its beginning on the beaches of Maine.

It was not far from there that the young scion of the house of Rockefeller was born.

It was near Northeast Harbor, Me., that these two minds found a mutual interest in the great outdoors.

Both are fond of horseback riding, tennis, photography, swimming and hikes through the hills.

Both families spent the summers there several years ago. Miss Clark and Nelson were very young then—he is only 21 now and she is 22.

But each summer they met again and the romance blossomed.

Made Debut in 1926.

Miss Clark made her debut at a tea here in October, 1926. She is identified with the activities of the younger social set in this city and New York.

During the last two years she has been responsible for much of the social service work sponsored by the Junior league.

In dramatic products presented by the league she has taken difficult parts and has appeared in specialty dances at the Junior League Cabaret, the Easter Ball, and the Devon horse show cabaret.

She was graduated from the Foxcroft school in Virginia in 1925, where she played basketball. A year later she took a degree at the Sorbonne in Paris.

She has traveled extensively in Europe.

Her mother is the former Miss Elizabeth W. Roberts, daughter of the late George B. Roberts, president of the Pennsylvania railroad years ago.

Father an Attorney.

Her father, Percy Hamilton Clark, is the son of the late E. W. Clark, head of a banking firm which bore his name. He is a widely-known attorney.

Miss Clark has six brothers and one sister.

The Clark-Rockefeller engagement marks the second alliance of the Rockefeller family with members of Philadelphia families.

Almira Rockefeller, daughter of Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, married M. Roy Jackson, master of hounds at the Radnor Hunt club.

The wedding ceremony will be performed in St. Asaph's Protestant Episcopal church, in Bala, a suburb, by the rector, the Rev. Benjamin N. Bird.

The Clarks have been lifelong members of the church.

It is said here that the couple will spend their honeymoon on a seven months' cruise around the world, making lengthy stops in China and India.

On their return, it is stated, they will occupy a $75,000 home which the father of young Rockefeller is building for them on the Rockefeller estate at Pocantico Hills, N. Y.

Luncheon

Veal Salad
Bread Butter
Lemon Cookies Iced Tea

Dinner

Sliced Roast Veal Creamed Potatoes
Buttered Peas
Bread Butter
Royal Salad
Fresh Strawberries Angel Food Cake
Coffee (Iced or Hot)

Veal Salad, Serving 4

1 cup diced cooked veal, 2-3 cup diced celery, 2 hard cooked eggs diced, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onions, 2 tablespoons chopped pimientos, 1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickles, 1-3 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup salad dressing.

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Lemon Cookies

(Appetizing to serve with chilled beverages)

2-3 cup fat (half butter), 1½ cups sugar, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons cream, ¼ teaspoon mace, 3cups flour, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar.

Cream fat and sugar. Add lemon juice and rind, salt, eggs and cream. Beat 2 minutes. Add other ingredients. Chill 2 hours. Break off bits of dough and flatten down, 2 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

Royal Salad

1 package lemon flavored gelatin mixture, 1 3-4 cups boiling water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup diced grapefruit (fresh or canned), 1 cup diced pineapple (canned), 3 tablespoons pimientos, ¼ cup chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt.

Pour boiling water over gelatin mixture, stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice and sugar. Mix well. Cool, add other ingredients, pour into mold, rinsed out of cold water. Set in cold place to stiffen. Unmold on lettuce and surround with salad dressing. Pineapple juice from canned pineapple can be substituted for the water.

Leftover canned tuna mixed with celery and salad dressing makes a very good sandwich filling.

SCULPTORS WERE GALLANT TO WOMEN OF OLD EGYPT

CHICAGO, June 1—(AP)—Sculptors of ancient Egypt were kind to their women subjects.

Women always were represented in the prime of beauty, regardless of advancing age or expanding hip-lines, according to Dr. T. George Allen, egyptologist of the Field museum here.

Only the men were represented in statues as they appeared in real life, he says.

Exclusive Perfume Rights.

PARIS, June 1— (AP)— Women who can afford to pay any price to be exclusive are accommodated at a perfume blending establishment which sells guarantees of exclusivity with its costly scents.

The perfumes are blended on special order, from submitted formulae or to suit the taste and personality of the customer.

When she has chosen her perfume it is registered and the formula becomes her property.

SINGLE ROSE ENOUGH FOR BRIDESMAID

PARIS, June 1— (AP) —Bridegrooms profit by the tendency of Paris to put small posies and big hankies in the hands of feminine bridal attendants.

The armful of long stemmed roses and sheaf of orchids is far less favored here than a single beautiful blossom or a small bouquet of old-fashioned flowers.

Long gloves are partly responsible for the change of opinion on the flower question. Long skirts and fussier fashions account for the rest.

Many fashionable brides here give their bridesmaids yard square monogrammed chiffon handkerchiefs. The handkerchief matches the bridesmaid's dress.

BERET ALL-DAY HAT AND IN EVENING, TOO

PARIS, June 1— (AP) —The Basque beret has been glorified by high powered milliners into a glorified form of headgear suitable for any hour providing it's made of the right material.

For sport and travel Parisians prefer the cloth hat, beret type, above all others.

It is also worn, in pliant shining black luciolle straw for afternoon.

In the evening the beret of lame or sequins is a favorite with some of the most chic Parisians for wear with theatre or restaurant costumes.

Matrons Strong for Blue.

WASHINGTON, June 1—(AP)—Blue is apparently the choice of the best dressed mature women for spring and early summer.

Mrs. Edward E. Gann attended the races recently attired in a light blue silk suit.

Mrs. James L. Whitley, wife of the representative from New York, is wearing a blue sports dress embroidered in red and a tight fitting blue hat.

Picture Hankies.

PARIS, June 1—(AP)—The big colored chiffon handkerchiefs beloved by dancing debutantes and other frivolous girls are now picturing fairy tales, love stories and historic happenings.

One series of handkerchiefs depicts famous heart affairs, including the lovers Abelard and Heloise.

Another group reprints English sporting scenes for the modern diana.

Organdie and Net.

WASHINGTON, June 1—(AP)—Organdie in pastel shades trimmed with net of the same or contrasting color fashions the dresses of many of the younger set.

Yellow embroidered organdie set off the dark beauty of a diplomat's daughter at a recent tea while across from her sat a congressman's daughter in pink embroidered organdie trimmed in net of the same shade.

Berets and Scarfs Match.

NEW YORK, June 1—(AP)—Berets and kerchiefs which match in color and fabric are increasingly popular for sports wear. Mrs. Hunter Marston wears this ensemble in brightly striped silk with a heavy wool sports suit in solid tone reflecting one of the hues in her striped cap kerchief.

Club Group Favors Court.

MACON, Ga., June 1—(AP)—The Georgia Federation of Women's clubs went on record in convention here as favoring entrance of the United States to the world court according to the original proposal of President Harding.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Plain cake gingerbread may be successfully baked in a waffle-iron.

Flour spread over the flames of burning oil or fat will extinguish the fire.

To keep meringue from falling, add one-fourth teaspoonful of baking powder.

Wool clothing, if worn in the kitchen, absorbs the odors of cooking.

To clean tapestry furniture, rub it with bran, which has been heated in the oven.

Mix cream cheese with chili sauce and serve on a lettuce leaf for a relish. It is delicious.

Place the ball of cord or twine in a jelly glass. Punch a hole in the tin lid of the glass for the cord to run through.

Fish will fry a rich brown if lightly brushed with salad-oil before being rolled in cracker crumbs or meal.

To keep poached eggs from breaking, or sticking to the pan, put a few drops of vinegar in the water. Or, try greasing the pan before putting the water in it.

Use mucilage paper such as is used to seal bundles in stores to label jars. Cut the paper in pieces large enough to write on them what each jar contains.

Where chocolate is called for in a cake recipe and you have no chocolate, use two tablespoons of cocoa and an ounce of fat. This is equal to one ounce of chocolate.

To mend broken china buy a small tube of artist's flake white oil-paint. Put a little on the edges of the china, press them together and set aside for a few weeks until the paint is well hardened.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

PRESERVING LINOLEUM

If you wish to preserve your inlaid linoleum on the kitchen floor, do not scrub it. When it is first laid, wax it two or three times with light coats of wax, well polished. Use a dust mop daily. If anything is spilled, wipe it up at once. When washing is necessary, use only a mild soap and lukewarm water. Then re-wax. The wax will fill the pores of the linoleum and the dirt will not grind in. If your linoleum is printed, give it a light coat of varnish before waxing to preserve the pattern.

SANDWICH FILLINGS

Utilize odd bits of ham, meat, cheese, etc., by putting them through the meat chopper, then rubbing the mixture to a paste and using it as sandwich fillings.

SALAD RING

For a change, fill a chicken salad in the shape of a ring and pile your salad dressing in the hollow inside the ring. It looks so pretty on the table and is interesting to serve.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Lemon juice, applied to the bites of insects, will relieve the irritation.

Dandelion stains can be removed from the hands and garments by using gasoline.

The scars from pimples will soon disappear if they are bathed with a solution of boracic acid, followed by an application of zinc ointment.

Buttermilk is used as a bleach. Pat it on the face with the finger tips or absorbent cotton, and allow it to dry on. When used frequently it renders the skin soft and white.

To rest it isn't necessary to lie down or sleep. Anything that produces relaxation, mental and physical, is rest. Suitable recreation is restful, also reading, as in each instance there is a relaxation of the nerves.

ILL-FITTING SHOES

Large callouses on the soles of the feet are the result of ill-fitting shoes. Shoes should be broad enough across the toes to allow perfect freedom and long enough to keep the toes from touching them up close, the arch of the foot fitted to correctly support the instep.

HEADACHES

People who are careful of their diet, get plenty of exercise and sleep, are seldom troubled with headaches. They are most often due to faulty hygiene. Eat sparingly of meat, but eat plenty of green vegetables and fruits and drink milk. A three or four mile walk daily will keep you in good trim.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Hats are still of the shallow crown persuasion.

Opalescent kidskin is regarded as important for mid-summer footwear.

Thirty-inch galalithe necklace in pastel tones are one of the late jewelry notes.

Hat and costumes are often of the same material. When this is not the case there must be a kinship in detail or trimming.

A luscious pink satin blouse, of creamy soft pink tone, has its V neck, its bowknot front decoration and bowknot cuffs piped in pale blue.

The lingerie neckwear trend is definitely toward the crisp and frilly type, such as is often executed in organdie. Net is also used for collar and cuffs sets.

Whether tweeds, silks, fine semi-sheer crepe wools or cottons, both sports suits and dress ones prefer the nipped-in waistlines to the straight cardigan cut.

Felt hats for men are sure to be becoming if a hat made of felt in the new pewter blue is chosen. This blue is really a gray with a strong leaning toward blue.

VELVETEEN.

For the formal occasion when one wishes to appear a little more correctly dressed than usual, a happy choice would be one of the new coats of black velveteen with a scarf collar of black and white satin.

THE COAT DRESS.

A model that compromises between the dress and the coat is a black flat crepe dress made on the lines of a coat, with raglan sleeves and smart touches of white pique at neck and sleeves. A practical and a distinguished model.

SPORT SHIRTS.

Shirtings in most tempting designs are shown in the shops for sports wear. With a yard or two of one of them you can make the most attractive sports shirt with sleeves running the length gamut from nothing at all to full length.

Some of these new shirtings are woven in colored stripes. Some have sel-color designs in faconne style.

POLKA DOT THE VOGUE.

With the polka dot on every hand we have wondered whether the dot could be used in any new dashing manner. Imagine our surprise to find it most excitingly new in its use on the fabric of a smart evening gown. The dots are larger than those of the daytime prints. Against a background of beige large black dots are liberally sprinkled. The effect is extremely smart and, conversely, smartly extreme.

OUR CHILDREN

If children will not drink milk add cocoa or grated chocolate to it and place a spoonful of whipped cream on top.

Dried fruits are some of the best confections for children, because they contain valuable minerals and sugar in not too concentrated a form.

Even a bath need not interrupt the serious business of play, for it is possible to find soap shaped like small pianos, trains of cars, French sailors and numerous other quaint conceits.

White woolly toys can be cleaned by rubbing with a paste made of starch brought to a creamy consistency with cold water. When dry brush the toy and it will be clean.

If the children are refusing cooked cereals, give them uncooked ones dressed up with a few strawberries. Their color appeals to the appetite and makes the children eat.

BLUE AND YELLOW FOR THE SMALL GIRL

Gay little coats and capes for small girls are of bright blue trimmed with sulphur yellow. One smart little cape has a convenient slide fastener. There are hats to match.

CHILDREN'S HELP

When fixing up the house for summer, let the children help. But to encourage them, let them do some of the interesting things, such as painting chairs and tables bright colors, sewing on pretty gay chintz curtains, stenciling the pattern on the pantry walls.

DECORATIVE SOAP

It is hard to believe they are not real flowers, these pretty little cakes of soap that look precisely like a half blown rose. And they come in colors to match the scheme of one's bathroom. The quality of the soap is excellent.

SHIRRING TRIMS FRENCH FROCKS

Frocks for very small girls evidence much shirring when in silky weaves such as wash synthetic satin in white or a pastel as indicated by the models originated in Paris. There is no detail to either the dress or the poke bonnet save close rows of shirring.

FOR SUMMER COVERINGS

For a gay room in the summer cottage or if one wants to be distinctly individual there is a new loosely woven fabric not unlike sacking that comes in brilliant plaid designs. It may be used for furniture covers or for hangings.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The average English woman is two inches taller than the average American woman.

There are upwards of 1,500 postwomen delivering mail in various parts of England.

Girls wearing short skirts and showing excessive use of cosmetics are refused admittance in churches in Chihuahua City, Mexico.

Wages of women in Denmark have more than doubled during the period between 1914 and 1929.

A women's union has been formed in Egypt to help girls obtain industrial jobs. They receive free instruction, fod and clothes for a period of three years.

According to Theodora Larsh, celebrated portrait painter, eyes indicate depth of character of a person. She says that she can tell by the eyes whether a model has much intelligence.

The Eskimo bride is chosen, not for her looks, but mainly because she is good at making clothing, a resourceful cook, and a handy worker around the camp. The girl who is unable or unwilling to do her share of the work, even if she possesses the beauty of a Venus, has a poor chance of finding a mate.

A society has been formed in Switzerland by Dr. Frida Imboden, of St. Gall, to aid poor brides and to promote earlier and healthier marriages among the working classes.

FOR THE BRIDGE TABLE

Small electric lamps with conical shades come attached to slender stands that may be clamped on to the side of a bridge table. If necessary more than one may be used.

CLEANING WICKER

An old silk stocking, with a big safety pin fastened through one end,

HIP EXERCISE

If you sit all day, the hips will spread unless you offset the tendency by doing exercises. Do this exercise several times during the day: Assume correct standing position, feet about two foot lengths apart. Stretch arms sidewards. Touch the finger tips of the right hand to the toes of your left foot, keeping adbomen flat and knees stiff. Then reverse, touching right foot with finger tips of left hand. Repeat ten to fifteen times.

BLACK WITH PINK

No combination of colors is smarter this spring and it is at its most attractive when it appears in printed spread unless you offset the tendancy frocks of chiffon or crepe, with black backgrounds and pale pink designs.

NEW GLOVE COLORS

Orchard, harvest field and henicoop have been plundered for colors on behalf of the new doeskin gloves. They come in peach, grain, and eggshell tints. As if this were not enough they come also in cherry-blossom white, not to mention oasis sand. Usually they are slipons, but sometimes they have swanky mother-of-pearl buttons.

CLEANING WICKER

An old silk stocking, with a big safety pin fastened through one end, makes a fine cleaner for those dirt-catching niches in wicker that the ordinary stiff brush does not touch. Run the stocking through the holes.

CLEAR GLASS LAMPS.

Lamps of translucent glass in lovely colors are charming with shades of parchment that are tinted a warm rose or soft blue.

SPORT JEWELRY.

Very new indeed is jewelry composed of tiny braided thongs with bright colored composition beads strung at intervals between.

FOOT-SCRAPER.

For spring weather do not forget the lowly foot scraper. It saves the housekeeper the work of sweeping out the mud and gravel tracked in.

TO WASH JEWELRY

Good jewelry with stones in them should be washed in warm suds, with several drops of ammonia added. This thoroughly cleans and shines them.

TARNISHED BRASS

To keep brass plates and handle untarnished rub a raw potato over them after they have been cleaned. This will keep them bright for several days.

RECIPES

Strawberry mold: Line a melon-shaped mold with lady fingers. Beat the yolks of four eggs with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, add one cupful of milk, put on the stove in a double boiler, let cook until it thickens, remove, add one-fourth box of gelatin which has been soaked in one-fourth cupful of cold water, stir until the gelatin is dissolved, strain and cool, then add one-fourth cup of cream and one teaspoon of vanilla. Cover the bottom with ripe strawberries and pour carefully over them a few spoons of the custard. When this is stiffened, fill the mold with berries and pour over them the rest of the custard and set in a cool place to stiffen.

Orange tulip: Serves six. Six oranges, 12 marshmallows, quartered, and six slices pineapple, diced. Cut top off oranges. Make five or six cuts down sides, so that pulp may be removed and orange shell shaped to look like tulip petals. Place shell in glass sherbet dish and refill with orange pulp mixed with remaining fruits. Top with salad dressing.

Individual pumpkin pie: Mix two-thirds cup of sugar with half a teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of cinamon and one teaspoon of ginger. Beat with two eggs until light, and stir in one and one-half cups of cooked pumpkin and one and one-half cups of milk mixed together. Either canned or fresh cooked pumpkin may be used. Use cheese pastry for the shells. Build up the pastry around the edges so that it will be thicker than the rest of the shell. Fill almost to the top with the pumpkin mixture. Bake in a moderately hot oven until the filling is set. This makes 12 individual pies.

PUT IRONING DAY ON AN ORDERLY BASIS

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

Now that modern interior decoration has made the kitchen a work of art, smart housekeepers are turning their attention to laundries.

These are usually spacious, airy rooms, conveniently located near the kitchen and so arranged as to provide a maximum of light and air.

Much can be done toward making your laundry more efficient by careful planning and placing of closets and laundry apparatus. And the provision of a removable ironing board is a clever gesture which saves space and makes the room applicable to other purposes on days when the laundry is not being done.

In the laundry shown here, for instance, a table is placed in the corner under an electric wall plug. The ironing board is made with collapsable legs at one end only. The other end, cut straight across, is provided with hooks that fasten to the side of the table. Thus the ironing board is conveniently near the wall plug—and, of course, the table gives plenty of room for dampening clothes.

Another most efficient feature is the building of shelves above the table in the corner. There are four open shelves and two closed ones, with plenty of space for laying ironed clothes safely away. Cleaning fluids for removing dirt and grease from silk frocks may be kept in the closed shelves.

The most interesting feature, however is the swinging arm for hanging freshly-ironed dresses as soon as they come from the ironing board. This is easily arranged by putting up a wooden arm protruding from the upper righthand shelf. This arm, set on hinges, swings back into the closet when not in use. When dresses are being ironed on the board below, swing the arm out at right angles from the self and newly-ironed frocks may be hung there and kept free from wrinkles.

So You'll Know, Her Waist Is Seven Inches Above Hips

The U. S. bureau of standards has decreed that a woman's waistline is seven inches above her hips. That settles it—or does it?

WASHINGTON, June 1—(AP)—A woman's waist, that mysterious line so fascinating to poets and lovers since time began, has at last been definitely designated by Uncle Sam himself.

Acting as referee for a group of pattern makers, the bureau of standards of the U. S. department of commerce has decreed that a woman's waist line is just seven inches above the hips.

Heretofore, left to the whim of every wind of fashion that blew, it has been tossed about on a sea of patterns varying at an angle of five inches to nine inches above the hips.

Moreover, Uncle Sam has toppled Venus de Milo off her pedestal. According to the measurements evolved from the conference of manufacturers, merchants and educators, there is no longer one perfect woman as represented by the cold marble woman without arms, but many!

The little slim brunette, the statuesque tall blonde, the plump woman and the Hollywood diet thin woman have now a chance to look in the mirror and with satisfied sighs say "I'm perfect!"

Here is the new set of proper measurements which will be put out by the patern makers.

(All measurements in inches)

WOMEN
Bust	34	36	38	40	42	44	46	48 50
Waist	28	30	32	34	36	38	40	42 44
Hip	37	39	41	43	45	47½	50	53 56

MISSES
Size	14	16	18	20
Bust	32	34	36	38
Waist	27	28	30	32
Hip	35	37	39	41
Socket bone to floor	52"			54

These measurements apply to patterns, not to ready-made garments.

No matter what the period whether of crinolines and muslins or of fish net and velvets, a man now knows where he stands. He must place his arms about a line just seven inches above the hips!

PORTUGUESE WOMEN COPS MUST BE SIX FEET TALL

LISBON, Portugal, June 1—(AP)—Half a dozen six foot Amazons will comprise Portugal's first corps of police women.

The requirement that they be at least six feet in height ruled out most of the 350 women who applied. Candidates also must be not more than 35 years of age, unmarried and possess a college edcation.

The six women chosen for the initial squad are undergoing rigorous training. Before undertaking their duties of watching over erring women and minors.

Later, when the force is increased, police women will be attached to frontier stations to apprehend female smugglers.

MINNESOTA SPONSORS VACATIONS FOR MOTHER

CROOKSTOWN, Minn., June 1—(AP)—Vacations for housewives and mothers, tried out as an experiment three years ago, have proved very popular in northwestern Minnesota and this year women from 13 counties will meet here for a week's recreation, free from all domestic routine.

State extension workers originated the plan. The women, largely from farms and small villages, just "loaf" for a week in June.

The notion back of the movement is that, while everyone else in the family may take a vacation at some time, the duties of mother never end.

SUNDAY BREAKFASTS HELP KEEP FAMILIES TOGETHER

NEW YORK, June 1—(AP)—The family persists as an institution because it gives satisfaction to human beings.

That is the conclusion of Porter R. Lee, director of the New York School of Social Work, who is conducting an analysis of family life based on 7,500 individual experiences.

Some of the most satisfying experiences center round family festivals such as Christmas and Thanksgiving. Picnics and Sunday morning breakfasts are other pleasant incidents mentioned.

Woman Lawyer and Doctor.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1—(AP)—Florence Margaret Ridgeway of this city is both a physician and an attorney and manages to give time to each profession. She has been practicing law since 1913.

Woman Holds Job 42 Years.

NEW ORLEANS, June 1—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Pohlman, keeper of the New Orleans city archives, has held that post 42 years. She is in charge of records ranging from original documents relating to the transfer of Louisiana territory to the United States to yesterday's newspapers.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Don'ts For Parents.

Don'ts for children are in disrepute but for parents they are just now coming into fashion. Here are a few which you might pin up beside your mirror to remind you each day of things you must not do to your child.

Don't make him feel inferior either by comparing his achievements with those of another child or by treating his accomplishments and his remarks as though they were futile or funny simply because they are childish.

Don't laugh at him. Don't humiliate him.

Don't tease him. A child cannot defend himself against the teasing or sarcasm of an adult and it is unfair and hurtful to take advantage of his helplessness.

Don't let him dramatize his own rages, disappointments and hurts. Treat them with brief sympathy if they seem to warrant it and at once turn your attention and if possible direct his to something else.

Don't make him jealous by showing favoritism in the family circle.

Don't nag him. Don't worry him. Don't let him feel your worries. Don't hover over him. Don't interfere with his play.

Don't intervene in quarrels with other children unless the odds are extremely unequal or there is danger of physical hurt.

Don't break your promises to him. Don't frighten him. Don't be harsh with him. Don't unnecessarily thwart his wishes.

Don't give in to him once you have taken a stand on a point which you have decided is important.

Don't let him get what he wants by crying for it. Don't get angry at him. Don't bribe him.

Don't try to make him obey you merely for the sake of showing your authority.

Don't expect him to be perfect.

Grandmother's Mitts Back.

NEW YORK, June 1—(AP)—Black lace mitts like grandmother used to wear are fashion's latest accessory with black afternoon and evening frocks this spring.

Mrs. Findlay Westover sponsored the vogue at a recent tea for wear with a black lace afternoon frock of flowing lines.

Women Back Forest Crusade.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1—(AP)—Minnesota women, in the interest of preventing economic waste, are ready to back a campaign to include forestry conservation courses in the public schools, according to Mrs. Sam A. Rask of Blooming Prairie, president of the state federation of women's clubs.

Women in Turkey are now demanding the right to become postwomen.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks for the many acts of kindness shown us during our recent bereavement in the death of our mother, Mrs. Beatrice Voucher. These tokens of sympathy will be forever remembered.

GLORIA AND FLORA FAUCHER, Taftville, Conn.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Anna Volkmann, who died June 2nd, 1927.

Sweet memories will linger forever;
Time cannot change them, 'tis true,
Years that come cannot sever
Our loving remembrance of you.

MR. CHARLES VOLKMANN AND FAMILY.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sparks Circus.

What is considered the finest group of Royal Bengal tigers ever shown in a steel arena in this country will be one of the outstanding features of the Sparks Circus, when that internationally known show comes to Norwich, Friday, June 13 for afternoon and night exhibitions on fairgrounds.

Sparks circus comes with many novelties and innovations and with a personnel and equipment that is said to be the highest class in outdoor amusement enterprises. Larger tents are being used this season, the capacity of the "big top" being 10,000 people, an increase of 2000 people since the last tour. During the winter the show was completely rebuilt at the Macon, Ga., winter quarters at a tremendous expense. Seats may be secured circus day at Alexander and Co., candy store, 231 Main street, same prices as at show grounds.

Egypt, the southern part of Illinois, produces more oil than Pennsylvania.

POETRY

June Days

June days are dream days.
Lovely golden-cream days.
When the sun is living in the fields of wheat;
June days are rare days,
Tremulously fair days,
As the winds go dancing down road and lane and street.

June days are gay days,
Beauty-crowded bay days,
When clods climb to rapture in each garden bloom;
June days are glad days,
Flouting thoughts of sad days,
As the roses tell the phlox that there is no doom.

June days are love days,
Fleecy clouds above days,
When the skies are leaning to the lilacs' mirth;
June days are my days,
Gorgeous butterfly days,
As I find my heaven in these ways of earth.

—Edgar Daniel Kramer, in Nautilus Magazine.

Waiting

The garden sleeps still and quiet;
It lies in a world of dreams;
I long for spring's smile to run riot,
But winter's chill finger seems
Ever tracing the frost of snow drifted
By lily-pool where it lies drifted.

There stirs a film on the birches,
A veiling of pale green mist;
Can it be some vision smiling searches
While stays the garden unkissed?
I long for the lisp of leaves growing
For wee, tender blooms, spring unknowing.

Lo, a robin starts singing:
'I watch ashen skies grow blue'
The dawn bells of Easter are ringing,
Glad spring! It is really you"
From nooks once to winter beholden
Stir crocus, snow-white and sun-golden!

—Agnes Choate Wonson, in Boston Transcript.

They say you can learn a lot from your boss if you'll just become a patient yes-man. In other words, yes and know.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Why are you standing there throwing stones at that poor little boy?"

"Because I daren't go any closer, miss. He's got whooping cough."—Boston Transcript.

Guest—"I told you to call me at 7! What's the idea of pounding at my door at 5?"

Bell Hop—"I'm just nailing it up, sir, until you pay your hotel bill."—Detroit News.

Meandering Mike—Tell me, lady, what can a poor man do when he's the father of 16 children?

Hardboiled Lady—Move to Italy and get a bonus!—The Pathfinder.

"Please spare a copper for a poor man."

"But I gave you a penny yesterday."

"Yes, but I went to the opera, dined at Frascati's and slept at the Ritz with that."—Lustige Blatter.

A teacher asked her class to state the difference between the words "results" and consequences."

A bright girl replied: "Results are what you expect and consequences are what you get."—Montreal Star.

"An old colored man," says a minister, "came to me one day with the odd request that I pray for his floating kidney."

"Why, Sam,' I remonstrated, 'how do you expect me to pray for some particular thing like that?'"

"'Wal, parson,' Sam retorted, 'las' week yo' all was prayin' for the loose livers.'"—Telechronotes.

GREENEVILLE

FUNERAL.

Nicholas J. Spellman.

The funeral of Nicholas J. Spellman was held Saturday morning from his late residence, No. 54 Prospect street, at 8.15 o'clock, followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. George Donahue, who was assisted by Rev. John D. Carey of Voluntown as deacon and Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan, as subdeacon. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of the church organist, Mrs. Michael J. Farrell. The singing was done by the church choir and Edward T. Connelly. At the offertory Mr. Connelly rendered Pie Jesu and the choir sang Lead Kindly Light as the waiting hymn. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery and the bearers were Jeremiah Desmond, Joseph P. Farrell, George Roberts, George Baker and Floyd Gelino. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Corcoran and Lyons.

Vincent Brophy of Fordham university is spending a few days at the home of his parents on Central avenue.

Men's Communion Sunday.

The men of St. Mary's Memorial church received holy communion in a body at the 9 o'clock mass. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Sullivan, who was assisted by Rev. George Donohue in distributing communion. Rev. Father Donohue delivered the sermons of the day at the three masses.

Harry Larose and William Krouse of Fourth street have returned after spending the week end at Hartford.

George Morris and Walter Atterbury spent the week end at Pleasant View.

NEWLY ORDAINED PRIEST CELEBRATES HIS FIRST MASS IN HIS HOME CHURCH

As was so eloquently declared by Rev. John J. Reilly who delivered the sermon, St. Patrick's parish was en fete Sunday—permeated by an air of triumph, of holy joy, since God had signally honored another parish boy by calling him to join the long line of duly accredited successors of the apostles. At 10:30, a great congregation assembled to assist at the first solemn mass of Rev. Terence Patrick Finnegan, one of fifteen candidates for holy orders ordained on the morning of Ascension Day by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, D. D., at St. Joseph's Cathedral, Hartford.

REV. TERENCE P. FINNEGAN

The place of honor was given the father and other relatives of the young Levite. The three altars of the church were adorned with lillies, white and pink carnations, and the sanctuary was fully lighted at the consecration. The ushers were John P. Corcoran, Leonard Desmond and Dr. Andrew J. Sullivan. Mozart's Twelfth Mass was given in all its grandeur by the chorus choir, directed by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine. The soloists in the finely rendered service were Miss Sadie A. Driscoll, Miss Eulalie Allaire, Roderick F. Sullivan and Horace F. Corning. "Veni, Creator," invoking God's inspiration upon the preacher, was sung by Henry J. LaFontaine and at the communion Roderick F. Sullivan sang Caesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus" (bread of angels) a composition truly celestial in its inspiration and beauty. Mr. LaFontaine had his choruses well in hand and the Mozart melodies went with marvellous volume and finish.

Father Reilly's Sermon

In his first solemn mass Father Finnegan had as deacon Rev. Myles P. Galvin, the sub-deacon was Rev. Arthur Sullivan, of St. Mary's parish and Rev. John J. Reilly was master of ceremonies. The rector of the parish, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May occupied a sea in the sanctuary. Rev. Father Reilly's text was "Thou hast called me by name. Thou are mine, and because thou art mine I love thee." Eloquently he dwelt upon the joyful cause on this happy day why Heaven should stoop to earth and earth would soon lift itself to Heaven, since once more a parish boy was to stand before God's altar within the walls of the church which has witnessed so much of parish history—happiness and sorrow, triumph and glory and pride.

Father Reilly spoke with solemnity of the mystery and the romance of the priesthood, a mystery the depths of which are never penetrated, a mystery to the priest himself, who has the least to do with it. He attributed much of the priestly vocation to a mother's influence—having its origin, perhaps, in a mother's prayer to Mary, mother of the first priest. How the tender bonds of love for Christ came into being and were developed and strengthened was traced, and the impressions and experiences of the youth until, with the conclusion of his seminary years he comes to the threshold of ordination, finally receives the stupendous commission of his bishop, "Then, in the name of the Lord, proceed."

Graphically the preacher sketched conditions—Christ sending out, not angels but men, yet men of ordinary human nature in which temptations are conquered by grace. The founder of any monarchy on earth might well fear for its permanence, not so Christ. The candidates, in all the weakness of their human nature are elevated like Christ through holy orders, sent forth to conquer hearts, in a varied ministry which the preacher described as he spoke of the spotless mind, pure heart and chaste body of the ideal priest who is patterned on his divine Exemplar. He pointed out the holy office and high privileges of the offering of the wondrous sacrifice of the mass, the forgiveness of sin, the multiform duties of the priest's ministry; and he earnestly besought the prayers of his listeners for the young priest, and for his success as he would go forth into new and untried fields. A very tender reference was made to Father Finnegan's mother, who was not spared to behold her son attain the climax of his hopes.

At the close of the mass the young priest gave his blessing to each individual member of the large congregation—in such numbers that the service was not concluded until one o'clock.

Father Finnegan is the son of John and the late Ellen Markey Finnegan. He was born in Norwich, March 21st, 1904, was graduated from St. Patrick's parochial school, class of '18, studied at St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, 1918-24, and made his philosophy and theology at St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, where he won the degree of M. A. in 1928 and S. T. B. in 1929. To what parish Father Finnegan will be assigned by Bishop Nilan has not been announced yet.

Afternoon Reception

Following the church ceremonial, a luncheon was served for about 100 relatives and friends on the lawn, at the home of Father Finnegan's father, 30 Grant court. Among the guests were Monsignor May, Rev. Fathers Galvin, Reilly, Henry J. Coleman, of New Haven, Edmund A. Cotter, Stonington, and Alfred Driscoll, Bridgeport. The reception from 4 to 6 was attended by over 200 friends, including a number from New York, Providence, Hartford, New Haven and Woonsocket.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE IS GREENEVILLE RALLY SPEAKER

Edward G. Moran, the democratic nominee for mayor, was the speaker Saturday night at a rally at Union hall in the Greeneville section, under the auspices of the democratic party, having an audience to hear him that more than filled the seating capacity of the hall.

Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, chairman of the party town committee, presided and introduced Mr. Moran, who was greeted with enthusiasm.

At the outset of his speech, Mr. Moran attacked the "Youth Argument" which had been advanced as a valid reason why he should not be elected mayor of the city of Norwich. He set forth what he considered to be the necessary qualifications for that office, and assured his audience that where more mature judgment and experience were necessary he had available to him the counsel and advice of efficient and capable men of experience, both democratic and republican, on whom he could readily call.

The speaker briefly traced the history of Norwich over a course of what he considered to be a successful past, a doubtful present and a discouraging future. He referred to the fact that Norwich had been largely dependent on industry which is now finding it necessary to seek locations in another section of the country, and he advised that one of the greatest and most vital problems facing Norwich and her administration consisted in bringing new business and enterprise to this city.

The unemployment situation was thoroughly discussed, and the speaker felt that the present administration had missed a great opportunity when it failed to call for the appropriation of its alleged "savings" for the purpose of making necessary repairs and providing work for the unemployed at a time when such was extremely important. A great benefit to Norwich labor and Norwich business would have resulted if this opportunity had been taken advantage of, he declared.

In the course of the speech the subject of overdrafts in city administration was analyzed and discussed, and an explanation was made of some of the alleged "savings" under the present administration.

What the speaker chose to consider as "political maneuvering" was given attention in his speech, and he referred to the great amount of attention which was given during the past few weeks to the oiling and sanding of streets, the painting of streets and cross-walks. He referred to the fact that, in his opinion, these last minute efforts were being made, not so much with the intention of patching up the streets as that of patching up general dissatisfaction. It was suggested that the republicans adopt a theme song to which they might give the title, "Oh How We Love You in June." In such event he expressed a willingness to write the words of the chorus with a theme of "And Oh How They'll Forget You in July."

Laurence Miles, democratic nominee for alderman, covered in an able and humorous speech the political situation as he saw it and as he hoped he was going to see it in the near future.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

CHRISTINE B. NISBIT'S UNUSUAL SUCCESS IN ART

A Boston Sunday paper pictured a painting, "Repose," by Christine Bacheler Nisbit, who is a niece of Mrs. Charlotte Fuller Eastman and the Misses Fuller, of Norwich Town, and is a former pupil at Norwich Art school. In connection with an exhibit of Mrs. Nisbit's paintings opening at the Vose galleries, Boston, E. W. Coburn says: Her works introduce to Boston a painter who has artist-family connections, and who has gained national prominence almost over night. She is a cousin of the late George Inness, Jr., whose original conceptions of art have been widely published. She studied with Mr. Inness in Florida, at the Yale Art school, of which she is a graduate, and at Fontainebleau and Colorossi's, Paris. Two of her mural paintings are in the Connecticut State Normal school, New Haven.

At the beginning of the present season Mrs. Nisbit started in as a general exhibitor. Her works were accepted for the 1929-30 exhibitions of the National Academy of Design, Art Institute of Chicago, Buffalo Academy of Fine Arts, Toledo Museum of Art, Wilmington, Del., Society of Fine Arts and the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors, at whose show last December she took the National Arts prize for her painting entitled "Respite."

At the 20th annual exhibition this spring at the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts, Mrs. Nisbit was awarded honorable mention for her decorative painting, "Aya and Tomi."

Besides being of the family kinship of the Innesses, Mrs. Nisbit is a cousin of Hon. Alvan T. Fuller, of Boston. Her "Repose" in the Vose exhibition gives indication of a talent that has been influenced in its development both by the religious and emotional romanticism of the younger Inness and by the dominant expressionism of the modernistic French painters.

NORWICH TOWN

FUNERAL OF THOS. O'CONNELL SEXTON OF CATHOLIC CHURCH

At his home 97 West Town street Saturday morning at 8:15, the funeral of Thomas O'Connell was held. Requiem high mass at 9 o'clock in Sacred Heart church was sung by the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn and was largely attended by relatives, friends, and neighbors. Friends were present from Waterbury, Hartford and New London as well as a delegation from the Total Abstinence and Benevolent society of Norwich, of which Mr. O'Connell had been a faithful and devoted member for about forty years. He was a devout member of the Sacred Heart church and its efficient and obliging sexton. The musical part of the mass was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy, who played Chopin's Funeral March as the processional, and for the recessional gave Lead, Kindly Light.

De Profundis was sung by Miss Mary Buckley at the offertory and for a waiting hymn, she sang Jesus Lover of My Soul. There were beautiful floral pieces. The bearers were William A. Murphy, Timothy Fields, Thomas Mara, Michael O'Connell, T. F. O'Connell, and John McKenna. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, where Rev. Father Quinn, read the committal service. Cummings & Ring were in charge of the arrangements. Mr. O'Connell was a highly respected citizen, quiet, most agreeable in his manner. He will be missed by pastor and people, in his duties around the church, where he was prompt and solicitous in his charge in caring for a house of God.

Norwich Town friends were in receipt of post cards last week from the Underwood family, who have returned to their home at Peck's corner, from an automobile trip to Hemuker, New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Sanderson of Willimantic were in Norwich Town Memorial day, to visit Mrs. Sanderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buckley.

Mrs. Harriet E. Brainard, Mrs. Charles Gremley, her son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley, of Mystic motored to Norwich Town Memorial day and were callers on Mrs. Brainard's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb.

The polls will be open in all the four city districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. standard time, or 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. daylight time, for the city election.

CENSUS FIGURES SHOW BIG KILLINGLY GAIN

Census figures for six towns in this part of the state given out Sunday show that the town of Killingly made the most substantial gain of this group, having 871 more population than in the census of ten years ago.

The figures for the present census and that of ten years ago are shown as follows, as well as the number of farms now in the towns:

	1930	1920	Farms
Mansfield	3018	2574	74
Killingly	8849	8178	136
Hampton	509	475	76
Plainfield	8023	7926	121
Haddam	1754	1736	108
Portland	4054	3644	11

The Killingly figure includes the population of the borough of Danielson which is 4206.

SMOKE FROM STOVE MADE CALL FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

There were two calls for the fire department over the week end. Saturday evening at 7:28 o'clock, there was a telephone call for a supposed chimney fire at No. 248 Main street. A fire had been started in a stove in the house and the smoke resulted in a telephone call from the Franklin Hardware Co., which occupies the ground floor. The property is owned by Mrs. Emma Welte and the premises are occupied by Arthur Quellet and family.

At 8:45 o'clock there was a telephone call for an automobile fire in the rear of No. 195 Yantic street. A Ford truck caught fire from a short circuit. The fire was put out while the fire apparatus was responding to the call. The truck is owned by Henry Monar of North Franklin.

Northern Lights Brilliant

The northern lights again gave a brilliant display Saturday evening. During the past few weeks they have been frequently seen.

This is attributed by Dr. Frank B. Schlesinger, director of the Yale observatory, to the fact that there are a number of sun spots this year, and in the years in which sun spots are frequent, the aurora borealis is unusually brilliant.

ON TWO COUNTS OF MOTOR LAW VIOLATION

Morris J. Krinsky of Woodhaven, L. I., had two counts of motor law violation lodged against him after a collision Saturday night on Thames street between the car he was driving and another automobile.

He was charged with reckless driving and with driving without a license as he was operating a Connecticut machine with a New York driving license. He was arrested by Officers Vuono and Pounch and will appear in the city court.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE DRAWS FINE OF $50

In the city court Saturday morning Leo Lacombe, 23, of No. 111 Orchard street, was fined $50 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. He was the driver of one of two motorcycles which figured in a fatal accident at Thamesville, May 8th, when Robert Cleaves was instantly killed. Lacombe was following Cleaves' motorcycle, both traveling at a fast rate, when Cleaves, noticing a delivery truck in his way, tried to stop. His machine overturned and crashed into the truck. Lacombe jumped from his machine which slid along the highway and into the other motorcycle. Cleaves was originally arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter, but Coroner Edward G. McKay, in his finding exonerated him of criminal blame in causing Cleaves' death and the charge was dropped, the reckless driving charge being substituted.

WASHBURN COLLEGE WILL GIVE DEAN NYE DEGREE

Dr. Irene Nye, dean of the faculty and professor of Greek and Latin at Connecticut college, at New London, has left for Topeka, Kas., to attend the commencement exercises of Washburn college, where she will be given the honorary degree of Litterarum Humanarum Doctor, a degree reserved for those whose chief interest is in what is known as the humanities. While at Washburn, Miss Nye will also be the guest of honor at a class dinner and will deliver an address at the annual alumni banquet.

PENSION VETO OVERRIDDEN BY BOTH SENATE AND HOUSE

Vote In the Senate Was 61 to 18—In the House 298 to 14—Only a Handful of Republicans In Each Branch Sustained the Presidential Veto—The Bill Provides a More Liberal Basis For Pensions to Spanish War Veterans, At An Estimated Outlay of $11,500,000.

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—By two overwhelming votes, congress today enacted the measure liberalizing pensions for Spanish war veterans over the veto of President Hoover.

With few preliminaries, the senate voted 61 to 18 to override the first veto message of Mr. Hoover to be acted upon. Within an hour, administration leaders in the house were trampled down as they sought to defer a roll call until Thursday and the house at once proceeded to vote 298 to 14 in favor of enactment of the bill.

The roll calls showed the most solid lineup against a presidential veto in recent years, only a handful of republican regulars in each branch standing by the president. The republican young guard in the senate joined the western independents in the uprising and some of the old guard machine also left the fold on the vote.

The democrats in the senate and house voted solidly against the veto.

The measure originally went through congress with the support of administration leaders and without any intimation of presidential displeasure. It provides a more liberal basis for pensions to Spanish war veterans and involves an estimated outlay of $11,500,000.

In vetoing the legislation, President Hoover voiced three objections. He complained it would allow pensions to veterans whose disabilities arise from "vicious habits," that it lowered the period for non-service connected disability pensioners, and that there should be requirement of need as well as disability for granting pensions.

Chairman Knutson of the house pensions committee brought back word from the white house today that Mr. Hoover was ready to approve a modified measure but it was too late to stop the senate, where an agreement previously had been entered into calling for a vote on the veto at 3 o'clock.

It was veterans legislation that brought Calvin Coolidge one of his biggest reverses in congress. His veto of the soldier bonus insurance measure was overridden in both the senate and house. These votes, however, were 59 to 26 in the senate and 318 to 78 in the house.

The first vote in the senate on a Hoover veto attracted considerable interest and members of the house crowded about the chamber during the roll call.

Knutson's motion to postpone a vote in the house was rejected 233 to 65.

After a brief parliamentary skirmish, the house proceeded without debate to vote on the veto.

Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, led the move in the senate against the veto. He was joined in debate by speakers on both sides of the chamber. Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, sought to refer the veto message to committee for consideration but his motion was held out of order.

The senate roll call, follows:

For overriding veto:

Republicans:

Blaine, Borah, Capper, Couzens, Cutting, Dale, Deneen, Frazier, Howell, Johnson, Jones, Lafollette, McCulloch, McMaster, McNary, Metcalf, Norris, Nye, Oddie, Patterson, Pine, Robinson of Indiana, Robinson of Kentucky, Shortridge, Steiwer, Thomas of Idaho, Vandenberg, and Waterman—28.

Democrats:

Ashurst, Barkley, Blease, Bratton, Broussard, Connally, Copeland, Dill, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hawes, Hayden, Heflin, Kendrick, McKellar, Overman, Pittman, Ransdell, Sheppard, Simmons, Steck, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh of Mass., Walsh of Montana, and Wheeler—32.

Farmer-labor—Shipstead 1.

Total—61.

Against overriding the veto:

Republicans:

Baird, Bingham, Fess, Gillett, Goff, Goldsborough, Gould, Hale, Hastings, Hebert, Keyes, Moses, Norbeck, Phipps, Smoot, Sullivan, Townsend and Watson—18.

The 14 members of the house who voted against the motion to override the president's veto were republicans.

They were Representatives Aldrich, Rhode Island; Chindblom, Illinois; French, Idaho; Houston, Delaware; Morton D. Hull, Illinois; Johnson of South Dakota; Knutson, of Minnesota; Lankford, Virginia; Luce of Massachusetts; Merritt, of Connecticut; Perkins of New Jersey; Taber, New York; Graham of Pennsylvania and Wainwright of New York.

GEM THIEF IDENTIFIED AS WHOLESALE JEWELER

NEW YORK, June 2—(AP)—One of the men arrested last week in a police roundup of a band allegedly dealing in stolen jewels on a nation-wide scale was identified today by Police Commissioner Mulrooney as a Fifth avenue wholesale jeweler.

The "Jack Rosen" arrested with five other men and a woman on charges of receiving stolen property, in reality is Alexander Friedman with offices at 535 Fifth avenue, Mulrooney said.

The commissioner's identification followed closely fixing of $25,000 bail for Rosen, or Friedman, and William J. O'Connor, Buffalo fight promoter, in supreme court. In pleading for admission of Rosen to bail his lawyer said his client had no previous record.

Mr. Mulrooney charged that Friedman was under indictment in connection with the theft of $200,000 in securities from A. E. Frank and company, Wall street brokerage house last August.

RESOLUTIONS APPROVED BY NORTHERN BAPTISTS

CLEVELAND, June 2—(AP)— The national convention of the northern Baptist church here went on record tonight as recommending federal control of the moving picture industry and advocating an unwavering defense of the prohibition laws. Resolutions on these subjects were approved today as the convention neared its final session.

A committee report on relations with the Federal Council of Churches in Christ also was adopted. The committee had considered whether the sponsoring of a radio preacher by the council is a proper function.

"While recognizing the unique phase of this situation we would not favor making this precedent by which the federal council would undertake the appointment of an official preaching ministry," the committee reported.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York, prominent exponent of liberal theology, was the chief speaker at the closing program tonight.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT WILL RECONVENE TODAY

PARIS, June 2.— (AP)—The French parliament which reconvenes tomorrow after the usual Easter recess will be occupied during the summer session chiefly with interpellations on domestic questions and in deciding how to spend the 5,000,000,000 francs which Premier Tardieu proposes to lay out for road improvement, encouragement to agriculture and electrification of the rural district.

No less than sixty interpellations have been registered by the secretary of the chamber of deputies and more than 80 deputies have given notice they want to discuss them. Many of them refer to the recent insurrection in Indo-China and the postman strike and penalties applied thereafter.

MINNESOTA FOREST FIRE IS THREATENING VILLAGE

DULUTH, Minn., June 2—(AP)—A series of forest fires which broke out in the region north of Duluth late today destroyed a number of farm homes and were reported as threatening the village of Knife River.

The home swept destroyed in the Rice Lake road district where a 3,000 acre fire, fanned by strong winds, was reported spreading rapidly.

A fire of lesser proportions was reported approaching Knife River, 15 miles from Duluth on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Hundreds of men have been pressed into service to fight the fires.

65TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY OF KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND

LONDON, June 2.—(AP)—On the eve of the celebration by King George V of his 65th birthday anniversary tomorrow, numbers of his subjects have been gladdened by inclusions of their names in the birthday honors list.

The list covers men and women in all professions, but the name that perhaps will capture the public imagination is that of the girl aviator, Miss Amy Johnson. Miss Johnson, who flew alone in a tiny airplane from England to Australia in 19 days, was made a commander of the British Empire.

An honor that will give pleasure to thousands of playgoers is the knighthood awarded to Henry Alfred Lytton, famous for his roles in Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

Sir Esme Howard, widely known in the United States as former British ambassador at Washington, was awarded a barony.

NEW SUSTAINED NON-FUELING AIRPLANE FLIGHT RECORD

MONTE CELIO, Italy, June 2.—(AP) —Major Umberto Maddalena, hero of the relief of General Umberto Nobile and the Italia, today became the aviation idol of Italy anew by establishing a new sustained non-fueling airplane flight record.

Major Maddalena and his companion, Lieutenant Fausto Cecconi, covered 8,350 kilometers (5,218 miles) of which 8,200 kilometers (5,125 miles) stand as the world record. With his fuel all but exhausted, Maddalena flew an additional 150 kilometers over Monte Celio field until only enough fuel remained for 10 minutes further flying, whereupon he landed.

Major Maddalena wrested the endurance record from Germany and the record for distance in a closed circuit from France. He flew over land and sea until his fuel was completely exhausted. He was 67 hours in the air.

BRITISH ADVANCING ARMS ACROSS THE MAP OF INDIA

BOMBAY, June 2.— (AP) —In the Peshawar, beset by a three-fold threat of civil resistance, wild tribesmen and communism, Britain today made the outstanding move in the strategy that is advancing her arms across the map of India.

British troops, without warning to the communities, marched into two villages of the northwest frontier, gateway to the Punjab, Charsadda and Prang. It was "Tommy Atkins" turn to try his hand at stamping out the reds who for weeks have kept that district in a turmoil and aided the attacks of the other two disturbing elements.

DAMAGE IN SPAIN BY RAIN, HAIL AND WIND

SORIA, Spain, June 2—(AP)—Heavy rain, with hail and wind, swept this district today and wiped out almost all the crops. No persons were reported injured but animals were killed, railroad service was suspended and the damage to property was estimated at near $500,000.

Graf Took Off For Home 9.12 E.S.T. Last Night

Started Eighth Ocean Crossing—Carrying 22 Passengers and a Crew of 50.

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., June 2—(AP)—Under a quarter moon, so bright the night sky was blue instead of black, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin floated from the ground at 9:12 E. S. T. tonight to start its eighth ocean crossing and complete its journey across four continents and two hemispheres.

With 22 passengers, four of them women, and a crew of 50, the giant ship lifted lightly into the luminous sky and with a roar of its five great motors headed away for New York and the sea beyond.

The departure was uneventful, the ship being towed easily from the hangar by the mobile mooring mast and scarcely more than half a hundred men. Ropes were cast loose. Gutteral orders were barked from the open windows of the control cabin where Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ship, superintended the sailing. And then came the final orders to the sailors and marines holding the ropes.

"Up ship," a navy officer called on signal from Dr. Eckener, and slowly, gracefully, the enormous bag, rimmed in silver by the moon on one side, and on the other a shapeless dim mass against the sky, floated upwards. Bells rang sharply against the stillness and five engines shattered the quiet with throbbing sound.

Its cabin windows, an added constellation in the night, the dirigible swung away toward New York, off on its latest great adenture. Three minutes after the ground began to drop away from the dirigible, it was out of sight. On the way to New York it was to drop a wreath at Asbury Park and after visiting the metropolis it was to cut across Long Island and sail away across the sea it has so often flown before.

Over New York City

NEW YORK, June 2—(AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, en route from Lakehurst, N. J., to Europe, passed over New York city at 9:55 (E. S. T.) time tonight.

MORE TROUBLE FOR REPRESENTATIVE BLANTON

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP)—Fiery "Tom" Blanton, a veteran of many congressional disputes, came back to his old seat in the house today to find new troubles awaiting him.

The Texas democrat took the oath after a week's delay to receive his election credentials, but immediately after his induction a resolution was offered calling for an investigation of charges he had made in political advertising during his campaign.

The resolution was offered by Representative Clancy, republican, Michigan, and was referred to an election committee. Clancy offered the measure after he had sought unsuccessfully to prevent the Texan from taking the oath.

TARIFF BILL ISSUE IN IOWA PRIMARY ELECTION

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 2—(AP)— The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was the principal issue in today's Iowa primary election.

Governor John J. Hammill, candidate for the republican nomination for senator, led the opposition to the measure during a heated campaign, contending the bill favored industry at the expense of agriculture.

Representative T. J. Dickinson, a farm leader in congress, also a candidate for the republican senatorial nomination supported the new farm rates as being the highest obtainable.

The voters appeared apathetic, and officials estimated the total ballot would be less than 400,000. The polls closed at 8 p. m. C. S. T.

FEAR FOREST FIRES HAVE DESTROYED SETTLEMENT

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont., June 2—(AP)—Five forest fires were reported sweeping over the "Gold-Rush" area of Red Lake tonight, and it was feared the little settlement of Howie Gold Mine had been destroyed.

Fire-fighters, struggling to prevent repetition of the 1918 conflagration that wiped out Sioux Lookout, believed tonight that their four-day battle was successful. They had shunted the flames toward stretches of water or halted them with back fires.

CONSIGNMENT OF LIQUOR FOR BRITISH AMBASSADOR

SAINT JOHN, N. B., June 2.—(AP)— A consignment of liquor for Sir Ronald Lindsay, new British ambassador to the United States, has arrived here on the steamship Manchester Exporter.

The liquor, the first consigned to the British embassy for some time, will be sent on to Washington under diplomatic seal. Sir Esme Howard, former ambassador, declined the privilege of importing liquor for use at the embassy.

HULK OF SUBMARINE S-51 WAS SOLD BY NAVY FOR $3,320

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP)—The battered hulk of the submarine, S-51, in which 34 men lost their lives, and which cost $2,229,000, was sold today by the navy for $3,320.

The submarine, striped of its machinery and fittings, will be scrapped by the Borough Metal company of Bristol, Pa. It was rammed and sunk off Block Island by the steamship City of Rome on Sept. 25, 1925.

COMMITTED SUICIDE AT NIAGARA FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 2—(AP)—"Well, I'm going to jump in."

With these words Michael Kostich, 52, a resident of this city tonight hurled himself into the mighty Niagara just above the cataract and was swept over the falls. The body was not recovered.

Kostich had been out of employment for some time.

SAN FRANCISCO BAY AIR FERRY NOSE-DIVED INTO WATER

Collapse Of Lindman Swedish Government

Result of Defeat In Both Houses of the Riksdag Over the Issue of a Wheat Tariff.

STOCKHOLM, June 2—(AP)—For the first time since October 1, 1923, Sweden tonight was without a ministry following collapse of the Lindman government.

The Swedish cabinet, as a consequence of the government's defeat in both chambers of the riksdag over the issue of a wheat tariff today tendered its resignation. The cabinet has been of a conservative complexion although without a moderate majority in either house of the legislature.

After summoning the presidents of both chambers and leaders of the opposition party, King Gustave asked the conservative ministry to retain control of affairs during the formation of a new ministry.

Heavy majorities brought about the overthrow of both chambers on a question of confidence. The defeat arose from a proposal to increase the tariff on wheat imports, upon which the cabinet had insisted.

The depressed state of agriculture has been a leading issue in parliament. Both major parties opposed increasing the levy of grain.

The government was headed by Rear Admiral Arvid Lindman who once before had been premier.

It was regarded as a possibility tonight that C. G. Ekman, leader of the peoples party might become the new prime minister.

King Gustave on January 11 opened the riksdag emphasizing his anxiety concerning agriculture. He said he considered the necessary measures would be passed to increase the consumptio nof Swedish grain and improve prices. The king forecast the reduction of income and capital taxes. The Swedish budget then introduced showed a total of $216,544,000.

Of a total of 230 members there were only 73 conservatives in the second riksdag chamber. The social democrats numbered 90, agricultural union 27, communists 1, liberals 4 and popular party 25.

The Lindman government's previous proposal of a higher import duty on sugar had been defeated. His cabinet was attacked by the liberals and the social democrats on increased appropriations for national defense and other issues.

WHITE WAS EXECUTED WITH SMILE ON HIS FACE

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 2—(AP) —With a smile on his face, R. H. (Bob) White, convicted of the murder of Louis Lavell, a fellow gambler at Elko, Nev., in 1928 was executed today in the new lethal gas chamber at the Nevada state prison.

Death came quickly and apparently without pain although the 200 pound stockily built man of forty strained on the straps that bound his hands and legs to the straight backed chair, after he had taken two deep breaths of the death-dealing hydro cyanic acid gas.

It was nine and one-half minutes from the time ten one-ounce "eggs" of cyanide of potassium, in a screen container, were dropped into a jar of sulphuric acid and water, until White's heart stopped beating, said Dr. E. E. Hamer, Nevada state health officer, who kept a specially built stethoscope on the condemned man throughout the proceedings and recorded the actions of the heart.

After the execution Warden Penrose declared Nevada's method of inflicting capital punishment "is by far the simplest and most humane method yet devised."

The expense attached to the execution of White amounted to 96 cents, represents dthe purchase price of all the materials.

PLANE SERVICE BETWEEN N. Y., PHILA., WASHINGTON

PHILADELPHIA, June 2—(AP)— Hourly airplane service between New York, Philadelphia and Washington was announced tonight by Nicholas S. Ludington, president of the recently incorporated New York-Philadelphia-Washington Airway corporation.

The service is to begin August 15 with a fleet of 19 trimotor 10-passenger planes. The flying time between this city and New York has been fixed at 35 minutes and the time in the air to Washington will be one hour and 10 minutes. Planes are to leave the New York and Washington terminals every hour on the hour between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Fares, it was announced, will approximate existing railroad rates, plus Pullman charges, and express as well as passengers will be carried.

ACTRESS MARY HAY BEING SUED FOR $50,000 DAMAGES

NEW YORK, June 2—(AP)—A $50,000 damage suit against Mary Hay, musical comedy actress and former wife of Richard Barthelmess, motion picture actor, was brought to light today in supreme court.

The plaintiff, the "U Don't Say Company, Inc.," charged that Miss Hay left a show entitled "You Don't Say" without proper notice. She filed a motion today to require the company to submit its complaint to the American Arbitration association for adjustment. She declared she gave proper notice.

NEW BREAKS IN AUXILIARY LEVEE BY RED RIVER FLOOD

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 2—(AP)— New breaks in auxiliary protection levees in the Alexandria area continued today as the Red river flood swept down toward the Mississippi river, but the main river levees under the strictest vigilance were still holding.

Levee officials reported that the Alexandria levees would weather the tide and they had hopes of saving any break at Pineville across the river and Marksville in Avoyelles parish downstream, where strengthening was hurriedly accomplished yesterday.

HOWARD REELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE I. T. U.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 2—(AP)— Charles P. Howard has been reelected president of the International Typographical Union by a majority of 10,103 over two opponents, according to a final unofficial report issued by union officials here tonight.

MACDONALD WINS A NAVAL PACT VICTORY IN COMMONS

The Government Defeated a Conservative Motion to Appoint a Committee to Examine the Treaty By a Vote of 282 to 201 — The Motion Was Made By Former Premier Stanley Baldwin—The Government Was Supported By the Liberals.

LONDON, June 2—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald tonight won his first victory on the London naval treaty in the house of commons, defeating a conservative motion to appoint a committee which would examine the treaty.

The government defeated the motion by 282 votes to 201.

The motion, offered by former Premier Stanley Baldwin, was to appoint a committee of 11 members to examine the provisions of the London agreement.

The government was supported by the liberals.

When Mr. Baldwin offered his motion he declared the United States had taken such an action to insure that it had got a square deal, and said he did not see why Great Britain should not do likewise.

The country desired to know before it was committed to the treaty, he said, "whether our security in the first place remains, whether we shall be in a position in any circumstances to fulfill our own sacred obligations under the league of nations, and thirdly—which is the most important—how we stand and how we shall stand in the future with regard to European standards of naval construction."

The prime minister answered that if the conservative proposal were adopted, it would affect future relations between the government and the house of commons.

As to Mr. Baldwin's remark that the United States was studying the treaty referring to the bearings before the United States senate, Mr. Baldwin said this had been done in the United States because it was part of the ordinary treaty procedure there while such was not the case in England.

Vehement criticism was left to Winston Churchill, prominent conservative.

"It is not a treaty of parity; it is a treaty of inferiority," he asserted. He added that never since the reign of Charles II had the country been so defenseless, and never in the reign of Charles II was it so vulnerable.

EIGHT DEAD, TWO DYING IN CHICAGO GANG WARFARE

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP)— Machine guns, shotguns and pistols blazed from the center to the four corners of the Chicago area over the week end and left the police with the fear they had a new beer war on their hands.

Eight are dead, two are dying and four others were wounded in lesser degree. In one affray, three men were massacred and a woman and man were probably fatally shot.

Five of the dead were known gangsters, two were apparently ride victims and for that reason assumed to have been gangsters, and one was a gambler.

The most spectacular affair was the slaying of three gangsters early Sunday morning in a cottage at Fox lake, north of Chicago. It was in this massacre that Mrs. Vivian McGinnis, wife of a lawyer, was shot four times as was George Druggan, brother of the Notorious Terry, who sat at the table with her.

GIRL FIRST TASTED LIQUOR AS AN UNDERCOVER AGENT

OMAHA, Neb., June 2. — (AP) — Brought into police court today on a charge of drunkenness, one of two Indian girls told Judge Holmes that she had first tasted liquor after she had been hired by federal officers to act as an undercover agent on her reservation.

The squaws were Betty McCauley, 20, and Bessie Others, 22.

Following the story told by Betty, Judge Holmes denounced the officers accused by the girl.

"It is an outrageous, dastardly system which debauches these girls and makes stool pigeons and drunkards of them in the name of law enforcement," Judge Holmes declared from the bench.

The two girls were arrested at the termination of a drinking party with a number of men who they said they met in the corridors of the federal building.

$500,000 PLAGIARISM SUIT AGAINST H. G. WELLS

TORONTO, Ont., June 2—(AP)— Claiming plagiarism against H. G Wells, English author, Florence A. Deeks of Toronto started action today asking $500,000 damages. Miss Deeks said matter from her book "The Web" was contained in Mr. Wells' "Outline of History."

Her first claim was filed in 1929, but the taking of evidence in England and elsewhere and other processes of litigation have delayed the actual hearing.

Mr. Wells and his publishers deny knowledge of the existence of "The Web."

"BEST" FOR ENLISTED MEN TO DECLINE GRAF INVITATION

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP)—Two enlisted men invited to return to Germany on the Graf Zeppelin will not make the trip because Secretary Adams said today he thinks "it best" that the invitations not be accepted.

No further explanation was made by the secretary. The men were William A. Russell, aviation chief mechanists mate, and Frank L. Peckham, chief boatswain mate.

Captain Harry E. Shoemaker of the navy made the trip from Germany to the United States.

POSSES FIGHT EACH OTHER INSTEAD OF BANK ROBBERS

BELLAIRE, Mich., June 2—(AP)— Seeking four men who held up the Antrim County State Savings bank at Mancelona and escaped with $3,000 this morning, hurriedly organized posses of Antrim county farmers engaged in a prolonged gun battle between themselves this afternoon.

The four robbers entered the bank at Mancelona shortly after 9 a. m., scooped the money from the tellers cages, and made off in an automobile. Herbert Sullivan, of Mancelona, who with a companion, sought to overtake the robbers, was wounded by a shotgun charge fired by one of them.

Posses numbering nearly 1,000 men were assembled and began searching highways along which the fugitives were believed to have passed.

Two divisions of the posse encountered each other here this afternoon and believing themselves confronted by the robbers opened fire. Dr. S. J. H. R. Gerver, one member of one of the posses was seriously wounded. He lay in a farm house for nearly two hours while the farmers besieged the house in the belief the fugitives were hiding there. One member of the besieging posse finally managed to enter the farm house and recognition followed.

The robbers were lost sight of several miles beyond Mancelona. Sheriff's officers here tonight believed the robbers had escaped from the county.

DETROIT POLICE READY TO COPE WITH GANGSTERS

DETROIT, June 2— (AP) —Police throughout the Detroit area stood ready tonight to cope with a renewal of the gangster warfare which broke out Saturday resulting in the slaying of five over the week end.

Two suburban policemen and three other men whose names appear on police crime records have been slain. The police tonight said there was a connecting thread between all five killings.

The latest slaying was that of Morris Forsmith, 22, whose body was found at the Nine Mile road and Sunset Boulevard at daybreak today, shortly after shots had aroused persons in the neighborhood. The killers escaped in an automobile.

Police saw in the killing of Forsmith a reprisal for the killing Saturday of Gaspere Scibilia and Samuel Parino in the rear room of a fish market. The automobile in which Saturday's slayers escaped is believed to be the one from which three men shot and killed Patrolmen Erhardt Meyer, 27, and Claude Lanstra, 24, in Grosse Pointe park early Sunday.

FOREST FIRES IN ONTARIO BEING DRIVEN BY GALES

TORONTO, Ont., June 2—(AP)—Rising gales in northwest Ontario today drove a dozen forest fires through sun parched timber limits, frightened residents fled from Robinson, but fire fighters at other points stood their ground.

So many blazes broke out near Port Arthur over the week end that all could not be given attention by forestry officials.

The towering Onion Lake dam, 19 miles from Port Arthur, was saved after heavy labor by fire fighters. It had been feared that the crib work and sluiceway of the 45 foot water head might be gnawed away by the flames, sending a wall of water down the valley.

Promise of rain in some sections brought hope tonight.

TEST SAIL OF AMERICA'S CUP YACHT WHIRLWIND

NEW YORK, June 2—(AP)—The potential America's cup defender, Whirlwind, financed by the New York syndicate headed by Paul Hammond and Langdon K. Thorne, had her first test under canvas today on Long Island sound. The double-ended sloop, designed by L. Francis Herreshoff secured amazingly fast. During her short workout she carried only her mainsail, two head stagsails and top jib.

Another trial will be held tomorrow and on Thursday the vessel will be hauled out for a final grooming before she enters her first competitive brush in the New York Yacht club regatta on June 11.

SALESMAN WAS SHOT BY POLICEMAN HE WAS BEATING

NORWALK, June 2—(AP)—William Regan, a salesman, was shot in the head tonight in front of the Elks club on Main street by Harry Muller, a supernumerary policeman.

Regan was said to have wrested the policeman's night stick from his hands and to have been giving him a severe beating when Muller drew his revolver and fired.

The wounded man was rushed to a hospital.

WINDHAM COUNTY SHOWS GAIN OF 1209 IN POPULATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, June 2—Windham county gained 1,209 in population since 1920, according to returns filed at the office of the third census district here, showing the 1930 population has 54,024 and that of 1920, 52,815.

Killingly made the best showing in growth with a gain of 671 which placed it in second place, next to the town of Windham. In gaining this position, Killingly outranked Putnam which now takes third place with a decrease of 307 in the town. The city of Putnam showed a decrease of 403. Windham, although retaining that place, also suffered a loss, the figure being 53 for the town and 259 for the city of Willimantic.

Hampton was the last town in Windham county to be heard from, the returns coming in over the week end and showing an increase of 34 over 1920. The present figure is 509 as against 475 in 1920. There are 76 farms in the town.

There are 10 of the towns in the county showing gains and the remaining five showing losses. That the county is an important agricultural center is shown in the fact that a total of 1,865 farms are listed in the returns of the 15 towns. Following is a tabulation of the county's population compared with that of 10 years ago:

Towns	1930	1920	Gain	Loss
Ashford	728	673	55
Canterbury	941	896	45
Chaplin	415	385	30
Pomfret	1,814	1,454	360
Scotland	398	391	7
Sterling	1,231	1,266	—	35
Thompson	4,997	5,055	—	58
Woodstock	1,709	1,767	—	58
Eastford	529	496	33
Brooklyn	2,248	1,655	593
Putnam	8,090	8,397	—	307
Windham	13,743	13,801	—	58
Hampton	509	475	34
Plainfield	8,023	7,926	97
Killingly	8,849	8,178	671
	54,024	52,815	1,715	516

It is noted as singular that three of the five towns that suffered losses suffered them to the number of 58. The total number of towns in the third district census area now completed is 58, out of 64. The six yet to be heard from are New London, Norwich, Griswold and Stonington in New London county, Middletown in Middlesex county and Willington in Tolland county.

HARTFORD MAN FINED FOR MOTOR VEHICLE VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 2—At the session of police court this morning Louis Fritz of Hartford was fined $25 and costs for operating a truck with a load in excess of the motor vehicle laws. He was arrested by State Policeman Kenneth Stevens of the Stafford Springs barracks while engaged in hauling equipment for a carnival which opened a week's stand here tonight.

Theodore Gadarowsky of 6 Ash street was charged with attempting to damage private property and was fined $2 and costs. He took an appeal to the next criminal term of superior court and was released under bonds of $100 furnished by Andrew Ogozalek. Gadarowsky was arrested by Officer Albert Montie on complaint of Alvin Ladd of Voluntown who said he saw the man put two pieces of glass underneath the wheels of his automobile with the intention of puncturing the tires. The car was parked on Gadarowsky's property at the town. on Gadarowsky's property at the time. Ladd told the court that under similar circumstances a tire of his car was punctured on a previous occasion. Gadarowsky said that he was not at home at the time he was alleged to have committed the act.

Judge Frank H. Foss of the police court this morning ordered the case of Frank Nycek of Brook street, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and failure to obey the command of an officer, continued until Wednesday morning. Nycek was presented before Commissioner Mathewson at Norwich in a preliminary hearing this morning. The case was assigned for the U. S. district court on the fourth Tuesday in September at New Haven. Bonds were fixed at $500.

NEW JERSEY CONCERN TO OPERATE EAGLEVILLE PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 2—Mansfield, especially that section known as Eagleville, is elated over the prospects of renewed business in the village mill property. It is expected that the former cotton plant will be taken over by a New Jersey concern with plans to begin manufacturing in the near future and giving employment to about 200 people. In view of this proposed purchase and at the request of the New Jersey concern, the assessment of the mill property has been lowered from $36,000 to $20,000.

In the Columbia town court this morning Rhiney Matchkoskin of Middletown, was charged with driving a car equipped with defective brakes. He was fined $3 and costs, amounting to $14.60. Paul C. O'Brien of New York city, was arraigned Sunday night, charged with violation of the rules of the road by cutting out of a line of traffic and fined $5 and costs, amounting to $16.60. The two men were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins. Another arrest made for violation of the rules of the road by Constable Alvin Greene is that of William Ritchie of South Manchester, who is to appear before Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, justice of the peace.

The Stafford-Willimantic highway was blocked near the John McShea home, a few miles from here, late Sunday afternoon when the wind blew down the limb of a large maple tree. A long line of cars were forced to wait while men of the state highway department removed the obstruction.

DANIELSON

KILLER DOG RAIDS MANY LOCAL CHICKEN YARDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 2. — Another killer dog is at large in Danielson, and engaged in making devastating raids on poultry yards and rabbit yards. This morning this dog left a large field in the rear of Ray Wood's barn on the Green Hollow road, strewn with dead chickens, the remains of one having been partly devoured. When Mr. Wood and Selectmen Charles A. Tillinghast and Alcott D. Sayles had finished collecting them they counted 46 dead birds of a flock about ten weeks old. Last week in another raid at the Wood place the dog, as yet unidentified, killed 23 ducks and left them scattered about the field much as the chickens were today. The dog's raids at the Wood place are made during the very early morning hours, it is believed.

The town will make an adjustment with Mr. Wood for his losses, as it also did recently with Ross Lyon, Broad street, who had chickens killed by another dog that was captured and, in turn, killed. Other reports came in today of rabbits being killed at the Lester Wheeler place on East Franklin street. This is no great distance across the fields from the Wood property, and there is the possibility, officials believe, that the same dog is responsible.

The dog that did the killing at the Ross Lyon place was a mongrel animal without collar or tag and its ownership could not be determined. Every effort will be made to find the dog that has been operating along the Green Hollow road and on East Franklin street. The animal appears to kill from pure viciousness, catching a chicken and crushing it to death probably with one bite, at least so the dead chickens appear.

In discussing the population of the borough of Danielson this morning, Postmaster E. H. Keach said that while census figures just given out show the number of persons living within the borough to be 4,208, the local postoffice actually serves about 7,000 people. Of this number, about 1,200 live on the West Side, which is in the town of Brooklyn, and the remainder, excepting some of those on the rural route, live on the outskirts of the borough's boundary lines, and what is to all intents and purposes Danielson proper.

WEDDING

St. Pierre—Gervais

This morning at 7:30 at St. James' church and in the presence of many relatives and friends, Miss Albina Robia Gervais, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ulderic Gervais of Westfield avenue, became the bride of Emil St. Pierre of Waterbury. Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., the pastor, performed the marriage ceremony and was celebrant of the nuptial high mass.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Gervais, of Torrington, as maid of honor and Antoine St. Pierre, Ansonia, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride's gown was of white satin and sulline and her long veil was caught with a bandeau set with rhinestones and garland of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of orchid satin with picture hat to match, and her bouquet was of pink carnations.

Guests were present from Waterbury, Torrington, Ansonia, West Warwick, Canada and Neitic, R. I., among the latter Rev. E. A. Hayden. The bride received many beautiful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. St. Pierre left this afternoon for a motor trip to Canada. An elaborate reception is to be given for them by relatives at St. Pie, one of their objectives. On their return they will make their home in Waterbury.

Long Court Session

Various matters claimed the attention of the town court today, morning and afternoon sessions being necessary. Samuel Sposato of this town, on charges of operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated and evasion of responsibility after a minor accident in which the car figured with one operated by Lawrence Gauthier of Danielson, was given a six months suspended jail sentence, and paid costs of $13.50. State Officer Lionel Poirier ordered Sposato into court.

Henry Boissoneau of Winthrop, Mass., charged with violation of a fishing regulation, did not appear and forfeited cash bail of $20. The case of Stanley Toper, Goodyear, was continued to June 20. The continued case of Peter Stacheki, Goodyear, was nolled. James Morrison, Dayville, went to jail for 210 days on intoxication and breach of the peace charges. A Dayville girl, 14 years of age, was committed to Long Lane farm.

Luther Pilling, owner of the General Supply company and the General Eclipse company, both local concerns, gave out the following statement this morning: "It is currently reported that outside interests have purchased the General Supply company and the General Eclipse company, and that a competing house is going to operate the General Supply company in its present quarters. This information is without foundation or fact, and there has been no change in the company. Luther Pilling being the sole owner of both companies. The owner has been approached in the past for the sale of his business, but no deal is anticipated in the near future."

Milton Nickerson, Providence, a member of the crew of the submarine O-4, now at the Submarine base in New London, was being held at the state police barracks here this afternoon awaiting the arrival of money with which to pay a fine of $25 and costs imposed upon him in a justice's court in the town of Thompson this morning on a reckless driving charge. Nickerson was the operator and owner of a car that he piloted off the state highway and into a mill pond at Wilsonville last night, taking his two sailor companions, Frank Smith and Harry Harrinter, also of the O-4 crew, on the unscheduled submersion. Being good undersea men, they all managed to escape from the old Buick coach in which they were riding and to gain shore.

State Officer Theodore Strand placed them under arrest, Smith and Harrinter on breach of the peace charges. The car was taken out of the pond with difficulty this morning. In it state officers found a gallon of alcohol.

Announcements by Dr. and Mrs. Clyde Gray of Horton, Kansas, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Thelma Arvilla Gray, of that city, and Max Erich Bretschneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arndt Bretschneider of Mechanic street, were received here today. The marriage took place Memorial day in Horton. Mr. Bretschneider, who is in the engineering department of one of the great western railroads at Horton, is a graduate of Killingly high school and, as mechanical engineer from Northeastern university at Boston. He has been in the west about three years.

Charles King of Maple street was arrested by state officers today upon complaint of a Worcester automobile dealer and a constable from that city that King had threatened to shoot them if they persisted in an attempt to take from his possession an automobile that he had purchased on a conditional bill of sale, and on which payments were not up to date. The Worcester men represented that they saw the car at the King place of residence, that they went to the house and informed King what their mission was and that he threatened to shoot them if they persisted about taking the car. They also complained that King afterwards did come out with a shotgun, upon which development they took their departure. King's case did not come before the court today.

Alexander Aitchinson, 26, who was dragged out of a chicken coop where he had taken refuge at the week-end, decided today to fight extradition to New York state, where he is wanted for return to Elmira reformatory, from which institution he was out on parole. New York authorities, it is understood, already have taken steps to get him back into that state. Aitchinson's attitude toward state officers at the barracks, where he was being held, was such today that he was brought down to the police station and placed in a cell. In default of bail, he will be held, probably at the county jail in Brooklyn, until such time as a hearing on the extradition can be arranged.

Maj. Kenneth P. Lord, U. S. A., now stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and who came here from time to time to inspect the Service battery during the captaincy of Frederic O. Armington, is a son of Henry P. Lord, director of the budget, who died today.

Children's day will be observed next Sunday at the Westfield Congregational church, with a special program at the morning hour. It is anticipated that a number of babies will be baptized.

George Stone of Broad street recently returned from a trip to Texas.

Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's church, will be the speaker at the baccalaureate service to be held Sunday evening in the auditorium of Killingly high school.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was today awaiting the coming here of a witness from Providence before proceeding with his inquest in the death of Antranick Karakanian, 21, Providence youth, who died Sunday at the hospital in Putnam from injuries received in a motorcycle accident near that city Thursday afternoon.

Martin Misiaszek, Jewett City man and a former resident here, who was injured in an automobile-grade crossing accident at Franklin street last Wednesday evening, remains a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, and has not sufficiently recovered as yet to permit of Coroner A. G. Bill questioning him about the affair, which happened while Miss Catherine Misiaszek was driving.

PUTNAM

MISS ROTHWELL BECOMES BRIDE OF E. J. PHANEUF

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 2—An early June wedding took place this morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's church when Miss Alexine Lillian Rothwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rothwell of Bolles street was married to Edgard J. Phaneuf, son of Mrs. Clara Phaneuf of Wilkinson street. The ceremony which was performed by Rev. Joseph D. Casey, curate at St. Mary's, was the second of the month of brides.

To the music of the wedding march played by Miss Rose Metras, church organist, the party entered the church. The processional march was most beautiful. Miss Rothwell was attended by her sister, Mrs. Grace Birmingham of Webster, who was matron of honor and by Miss Madeline McCoy and Miss Eleanor Irving as bridesmaids. Michael L. Hannifan attended Mr. Phaneuf as best man. The ushers were William Simonsi and Russell Lavigne.

Immediately after the ceremony Rev. Fr. Casey retired to the sanctuary where he began the celebration of a solemn high nuptial mass, assisted by Rev. Father Jegou as deacon and Rev. U. O. Bellerose as subdeacon.

The bride's gown of bridal satin was a bouffant model with dipping hemline in back. Her veil of point lace was fastened with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried an arm shower bouquet of white roses.

The matron of honor wore a peach colored frock of taffeta combined with tulle and a close fitting hat with a large brim. The color contrasted with that of her gown. She carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and roses. Miss McCoy was becoming in a frock of yellow taffeta. She wore a large brimmed close-fitting hat and carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations. Miss Irving's frock was of the same style but of a pink color. Her hat was of a contrasting color, wide brimmed and close-fitting and her bouquet of white carnations and roses was arranged in shower effect.

A reception was held at the Eagle's hall on Providence street following the church ceremony. Both Mr. and Mrs. Phaneuf are popular members of the city's younger set. They attended Putnam high school, the bride being a member of the class of 1927. They will make their home in this city upon their return from a brief wedding trip.

The pressure of business in the town court of Killingly this morning prevented Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, who is also coroner for the county, from conducting an inquest into the death of Antranick Karakanian, 21, Providence man who died at the Day Kimball hospital yesterday as the result of a motorcycle accident which occurred Friday afternoon on cemetery curve, Grove street. Witnesses involved in the case will perhaps be summoned sometime during the week.

A fire which for several minutes threatened the entire residential section of lower Walnut, Barber and School streets broke out last evening in a garage in the rear of the home of Thomas Duffy on Walnut street. Before the flames were subdued the one car garage and a Studebaker touring car, the property of Mr. Duffy had been destroyed. Only a charred skeleton of the structure was standing this morning.

The exact origin of the fire has not been definitely determined by Deputy Fire Chief Dumas who investigated, although it is believed that a short circuit in the wiring system of the automobile generated a spark which set fire to the gas line and then to the building. Mr. Duffy told Chief Dumas that he had put his car into the garage a few minutes before ten o'clock. A half hour later a passerby rushed up and informed him that a fire appeared to be burning within. The flames gained headway so quickly that the garage was a raging inferno when the firemen arrived on the scene. There was no opportunity to save the automobile and the only alternative of the fire fighters was to get a stream of water onto the Duffy home, the east side of which was badly scorched and about to take fire. A hose line checked the progress of the blaze and reduced its brilliancy in a few minutes time.

Hundreds were attracted to the fire which could be seen at a distance of several miles. Chief Dumas said last evening that the absence of the high prevailing winds of Sunday afternoon prevented what might have been a disastrous conflagration. Property damage created by the fire is estimated at $750.

A set of grade crossing signal lights used by the New Haven railroad to protect motorists from the hazards of the crossings, which have been in service at the railroad depot in Union square for nearly a month are attracting widespread attention and have served to bring hundreds of inquiries to the local railroad officials concerning their use and purpose. Assistant Superintendent William E. Sault said this afternoon that the lights have been placed at the vantage spot at the station for the specific purpose of educating the public to the use and mode of operation of the lights, in the nation-wide railroad movement to reduce the number of casualties and fatalities occurring at crossings annually.

A large walnut tree on the Killingly avenue side of the Grove street cemetery was felled yesterday afternoon during the height of a strong gale which swept over this part of the county. The tree in falling stretched its boughs across the highway and for nearly an hour forced traffic to divert through the Grove street cemetery. The road was blocked until members of the local division of the state highway department arrived to saw the column into sections and remove them to the side of the road. Fortunately there were no autos passing the point when the gust of wind blew the tree over.

An airplane owned by a Springfield man, which met with an accident Thursday afternoon at Porters plains in East Thompson during an attempted take off, was repaired and took off this morning for Springfield, according to an East Thompson report. The ship had the owner and his wife as passengers who were flying from Springfield to Providence. When over East Thompson the plane encountered engine difficulties and a forced landing was made. The pilot, after tinkering with the mechanism, started the engine and endeavored to take off.

Reaching an altitude of about 50 feet the engine faltered a second time and the plane in returning to earth crashed into the top of an apple tree, damaging the propellor and wing props. Neither the pilot nor his wife were injured, although both were seriously shaken-up from the effects of the mishap. The disabled plane attracted hundreds to the emergency landing field over the week end.

Members of the Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion, will gather at a farewell banquet to be held Tuesday evening at the Arnold sea grill and to be tendered in honor of Rev. James F. English, retiring pastor of the Congregational church who is to leave this month for Manchester, N. H. where he will become pastor of a Congregational church there. During the past five years Rev. Mr. English has been an enthusiastic member of the Anselm Mayotte post and has served actively and effectively on numerous committees of the veterans organization.

Thirty-two acres of land bordering on a pretty little pond in July will become the summer haunts of the Boy Scout troops of St. Mary's church. The location of the new Boy Scout camp is most ideally suited to its purpose, Rev. Joseph D. Casey, commissioner of the boys organization, said this morning that the first division of the organization will go into camp on July 5.

Workmen, who have been at work since January on the buildings on the camp site for occupancy, have increased their working force and with the assistance of several of the scouts working during spare hours, are rushing the work in order to have everything in readiness for the opening of the 1930 camping season.

The farmhouse, a large, old fashioned structure, is undergoing extensive repairs which will convert the building into a modern lodge when completed. The house is most attractive and will serve as an administration building and living quarters for the scout officials. Its accommodations consist of a large kitchen and a lodge room on the first floor. A great open fire place is being installed, which will be built of stone. The decorations here will be most homely and the color scheme of a brown base and an upper tint of buff on the walls is attractive.

Five rooms on the second floor will serve as sleeping quarters for the officials and one section will perhaps be made into an infirmary, Father Casey said. Two wells have been sunk and an abundant supply of sparkling fresh water has been obtained. Pipe lines have been run from the wells to the administration building and to the mess and recreation hall adjoining.

The recreation hall, which will also serve as a mess hall for the scouts, is a large building which was formerly used as a barn. The exterior has been covered with a fire resisting paper and the interior portions have been thoroughly renovated, the result being that a modern dining hall and recreation quarters are now in evidence which will provide for the comfort of the campers at meal hours and serve to dispell the customary gloom that shrouds any out door camp on rainy days. The carpenters have built a mezzanine floor on the second floor. This building is illuminated with an abundance of light pouring in through 26 windows which are protected from flies and other insects by the latest type of window screen recommended by the state department of health inspectors under whose supervision the camp is being prepared. In the cellar of the barn, a power driven pumping plant is being installed for the pumping of water to various points about the premises. When complete there will be water pressure and water supply sufficient to combat any possible outbreak of fire. Other modern articles of fire protection recommended for use in the rural districts are to be installed, according to Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's.

St. Mary's Boy Scout camp will be one of the most up to date health resorts anywhere in the state when present operations are completed this month. Its swimming facilities are the last word. The large pond which at present is without name, is a body of freshwater fed by a fast moving brook. There is about 450 feet of frontage on the pond owned by the scout organization.

Rev. Father Casey said today that the camp will be dedicated before the official opening and fitting exercises to commemorate the event will be held at a date to be announced in the near future.

The June meeting of the common council will be held Tuesday evening in the council chambers on Church street. Mayor Richard who has recovered from a long illness, is expected to preside. Other than routine business members of the board of aldermen do not expect development of any unexpected matters to come to the attention of the body at tonight's session.

Streets in the east side of the city were oiled and sanded this morning as the street department continued their annual task which was begun last week.

JEWETT CITY

MRS. E. R. SOULE THE BRIDE OF HOMER LEE, OF WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 2—The marriage of Mrs. Edith Richards Soule of Jewett City and Homer L. Lee of Webster was announced at an informal reception attended by a few intimate friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Robinson, on East Main street Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Lee were married Saturday in an Episcopal church parish house in Maplewood, N. J., the home of Mrs. Soule's brother, Tyler Richards. They were accompanied to Maplewood by Herbert Richards, Jr., of Versailles, a nephew of Mrs. Soule, the ceremony being attended by Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Richards and Frank Williams of Maplewood and Mr. Richards, Jr., of Versailles. The fact of the marriage was a surprise to nearly all the friends who were invited to give Mrs. Soule a farewell party, until as Mrs. E. H. Hiscox played the wedding march from Lohengrin, Mr. and Mrs. Lee entered the room and Mrs. Robinson presented them as a bride and groom. On behalf of these friends Mrs. Hiscox presented Mr. and Mrs. Lee a bridge lamp, reading a poem of Three Wishes, expressing the sentiments of the donors. Then the first time in over 30 years, leave-school class appeared and Lynwood Mills presented her a handsome leather pocket book as a remembrance from the boys in whom she has been so interested. After hearty congratulations to Mr. Lee and expressions of good wishes to his bride, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jay Ricketts, Misses Sarah Gill and Ines Lapham, Earl Robinson and Gerald Auger. Mr. and Mrs. Lee will live in Webster, where Mr. Lee has been employed for years. He is a native of Jewett City and lived here until he went to Webster. Mrs. Lee is a much beloved teacher in Riverside grammar school and a most helpful and interested worker in the Congregational church. It is with much regret that her wide circle of friends learn that her home is to be out of Jewett City. With her marriage the name of the Soule family goes out of this town for a delegation from Mrs. Lee's Sunday ing only Soule street to perpetuate the honored family name here.

Sczepanski-Miss

Miss Nellie Miss of Jewett City, daughter of Maciej and Victoria Miss, was united in marriage with John Sczepanski, son of Paul Sczepanski of Webster, Mass., at St. Mary's church, Jewett City, Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John J. McCabe and was witnessed by many friends and relatives. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Miss, as maid of honor and Misses Nellie Misiaszek and Emily Miss as bridemaids. Charles Sczepanski, brother of the groom, was best man and Edmund Dudkowski and Walter Sczepanski were ushers. The bride wore a gown of white satin, had a veil of tulle and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was gowned in pink satin and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Miss Emily Miss wore orchid georgette and Miss Misiaszek's gown was of Nile green georgette. Both carried pink roses. A breakfast and reception was held at Bijou hall and later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Sczepanski left on a wedding trip to New York, Niagara Falls and Washington. In a month they will return to Webster, Mass., and make their home there.

The guests at the wedding came from Boston, Worcester, Webster, Blackstone, Millville and Lonsdale, Mass., Newark, N. J., Pawtucket and Central Falls, R. I.

The bride has been a valued clerk in R. W. Dearnley's store, highly esteemed by her employer and the patrons of the store.

GEO. MACOMBER COLLIDES WITH CAR OF MISS CULVER

George Macomber, driving one of the cars in the local taxi service and Miss Lucy Culver driving a Ford car, were in collision Monday forenoon at Gardner 4-corners, on the Voluntown road. Fourteen stitches were taken to close a scalp wound received by Mr. Macomber, it being at first supposed that he had sustained a fracture of the skull.

Miss Culver, in addition to being bruised and shaken up received a severe abrasion near one eye. The taxi was bound over the main highway when the Ford came out of the side road. Both machines were badly smashed.

YOUNG POLISH PLAYERS EXCEL IN NATIONAL GAME

When it comes to baseball town, this borough is it. Right now, within the borough limits there are no less than 11 active teams doing business every day. All these more than one hundred ball players appear in some one or other of the line-ups of the following teams: R. G. S., Acco, Fisk, Kaceys, Q. C's, Holy Name, Tadpole Terros, Tadpole Rough Necks, J. C. Reds, Slater's All Stars and the Ashland Sluggers. A local manager, in looking over the list, declared that one must surely hand it to the Polish players. As they readily master every thing else, so do they become outstanding baseball experts. Locally, close to fifty per cent of the lads and young men on the borough teams today, reckoning in the juvenile nines, are of Polish descent. Boys from these teams, in their lower teens, not only know the game themselves, but they are able to reel off a surprising list of league players, telling with whom they play, their batting average and runs records, with adde personal information as to whether they are O. K. or N. G.

The cast for the coming grange entertainment, entitled, The Little Clodhopper, includes: Septimus Green, a young book agent—Walter A. Hyde; Ocey Gump, a fresh country fellow—LeRoy Holmes; George Chiggerson, a city lad—Royal Roode; Mrs. Chiggerson-Boggs, Georgie's doting mamma—Mrs. Lucy Davis; Miss Julietta Bean, Splinterville boarding-house keeper—Mrs. Ruth Holmes; Charmian Carter, the vamp—Miss Clara Hyde; Judy Elliott, The Little Clodhopper—Miss Helen Weaver.

Miss Julietta Bean's birthday party, Susan Gill, Stella Brand, Marion Brand, Mary Lewis, Minda Morgan, Kenneth Griswold, Clayton Lewis, Robert Bitgood, Frank Morgan, Walter Zvinglass, Moses Pepin, Russel Brand.

Miss Yvette Guillet, R. N., of New York city who has been here four weeks caring for her mother has returned to her duties in that city.

Heard Miss Gleaton

The May meeting of Pachaug Community club was held Thursday evening, the president, C. Frank Morgan presiding. After the acceptance of the secretary's and treasurer's reports, Mr. Morgan announced several coming events. M. H. Bartlett gave a fine report of the meeting in Hartford in favor of good rural roads. He stated that the organization is to be known as the Connecticut Rural Road association and the slogan is "Get Connecticut out of the mud!" The entertainment programme was announced by W. B. Montgomery, chairman of the committee. Community singing was led by John B. MacLean with Byron Kinnie at the piano. Miss Sally Fanny Gleaton from the Connecticut League of Women Voters gave an address. John MacLean sang. Mrs. Margaret Geer gave a reading and Miss Mabel Frink played a piano selection. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served. The committee was Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Stetson and Miss Susie Morgan.

Mrs. G. H. Prior was in Ivoryton Monday and conducted the funeral service of Mrs. Behrens, a well known King's Daughter. It was her request that her funeral should be conducted by a King's Daughter, and, as members of her own circle, felt her death so keenly, the state president was asked to officiate.

Mrs. Max Burkersroda of Carely avenue, has returned home after undergoing a major operation at a private hospital in New London.

WILLIMANTIC VOTES NEW TAX RATE OF 10 MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 2—The city administration returned automatically to a state of normancy tonight with the voting of a 10 mill tax rate at a special city meeting which was attended by about 500 interested taxpayers. The meeting rescinded the vote for an eight mill tax taken on May 15 and then after stirring remarks and a plea for cooperation by Harry N. Bullard approved the 10 mill tax rate payable August 2 without a dissenting vote.

This means that the police department and street and sewer departments immediately return to full weekly schedules, that the lights on the city streets will continue to burn after midnight and that normal construction work will proceed.

The lighting committee, through Chairman C. A. Lamaroux, announced tonight that the 375 lights will not be shut off in the future and that it is expected that the remaining 188 which had been curtailed in the past may be resumed. The police committee, through Chairman B. Lewis likewise announced that the regular six day working schedule of the police department will be resumed at once.

The meeting, although finally approving of the ten mill tax without a dissenting vote, was not, however, without its fireworks. When Mayor Walter R. King called the meeting to order and the warning had been read by City Clerk Arthur L. Clark, O. L. Willard presented a resolution to rescind the 8-mill tax rate.

In line with remarks A. L. Gelinas claimed fallacies on the part of the aldermen in administrating the city business, alleging that money had been wasted in the past and funds expended without proper appropriations. He said he did not mind the salaries which the aldermen now receive and which amount to $300 annually provided they were worth it. He charged that the closing of the footbridge for emergency repairs and that the shutting off of the lights was a political spanking administered to the tax payers.

Eugene Randall asked if it was any worse for the police to lose a day than the mill workers. He went on with an oration that brought hisses and cries to sit down from the crowd and in due time he obeyed the demand.

The vote to rescind was taken by ballot, resulting in a victory of 289 yes and 172 no. The tellers were Kenneth N. Hillhouse, Charles Pomeroy, Edgar W. Jacobs, Frank M. Lincoln, Lewye N. Gerry and Amie J. Martineau.

Tribute to the qualifications of Mayor King to render a sound business administration provided that the council had at least the income of ten mills to work with was paid by Mr. Bullard following a charge that laxity of attendance at previous city meetings was the cause of all present trouble.

Alderman H. I. Sanderson, chairman of the footbridge committee, announced today that the repairs to the span had been completed in 1,051 working hours at a cost of $3,546.43. With the original appropriation for these repairs amounting to $5,000 the committee has on hand nearly $15,000 to be used in painting the structure to preserve the material and beautify its appearance. Total labor charges amounted to $1,879.10 and the material amounted to $1,667.33.

THE ELECTION RESULT

Norwich has gone through one of the quietest mayoralty elections in years. It was a campaign in which little effort was made. A rattling good account of two years' accomplishments was furnished but a seeming lack of interest and appreciation on the part of the voters came near turning a deserved victory into defeat.

As it was, Mayor Robbins was returned to office by 40 votes, the first republican mayor of the city to be reelected since Mayor Harwood over three decades ago. He led his ticket in all instances, barring the water commissioner, in which office there is never any contest, but it was a narrow squeak for an administration that deserved a rousing vote of endorsement.

Two years ago, Mayor Robbins was placed in office by a majority of 894 at a time when there was a demand for a change. It was a majority in which there was extensive democratic participation. It was in response to a general demand for better conditions. In the two years there has been a real response to that demand and Norwich has received what it needed—sound city government.

Fortunately there were enough backers of good government to insist upon its continuance for another year, but the opportunity to insure it at this time for two years was disregarded. Whether because of overconfidence or a lack of necessary effort in getting out the vote, there was a falling off from two years ago. General apathy was conspicuous in republican ranks. Reliance was placed on the voters coming to the front, which they neglected to do. It was one of those instances which demonstrates the need of campaign effort from beginning to end.

Norwich and Mayor Robbins are to congratulated over the latter's return to office. There are reasons to anticipate the same efficient conduct of affairs for the ensuing year as has featured the last two, control still resting with the republicans.

The closeness of the vote for city treasurer indicated how that was anyone's race until the last votes were cast. A good treasurer loses, but one who has always been a strong vote-getter wins.

CONTROLLING THE PEDESTRIAN

The way of the pedestrian is filled with much trouble. He knows by experience if he tries to do the right thing, observes the regulations, stops, looks and listens and hurries across the street, he may be picked up by a careless and hoggish auto driver. He knows that if he steps out from in back of a standing machine he puts himself in the way of serious danger from moving traffic. He knows that if he goes blindly across the street he may be trespassing on the rights of others and getting under the wheels of a motor vehicle. He knows the need of being careful, but he doesn't always expect it.

When the former police commissioner of New York undertook to regulate the situation and to give the pedestrian rights which belong to him and furnish him a chance to get across the street in safety, he established rules that applied to many intersections that seriously needed them. He also fixed similar stiff regulations for other points where the situation was less serious and he also placed obligations on the pedestrian, so much so that he would be violating the law if he crossed the street at any other place than a crosswalk.

The aim was, of course, to stop jay walking, orders being issued to arrest the jay walkers wherever encountered. The importance of thus making the pedestrian take better care of himself in the street was apparent, but it was evident that it included points where such restrictions were not necessary. There are places where it is even safer to cross in the middle of a block than at congested corners.

Since the Whalen rule was put into effect there has been an opportunity to study the effect, with the result that the new commissioner has rescinded the order to arrest the jay walkers whenever seen, the purpose evidently being to see whether such an order is sustained in the courts. Evidently it became apparent that the police would have little else to do if enforcement was to be undertaken in view of the general disregard for the order by those who knew nothing about it, those who considered they should not be handicapped by it and those who are always willing to take a chance, even when their own comfort was at stake. If the whole affair serves to make the public, pedestrians and autoists more careful, no harm will have been done.

THE OVERRIDDEN VETO

The outcome of the Spanish war pension bill with congress overriding the presidential veto indicates the demand for sound legislation on the part of the president but the resort to political expediency on the part of congress. There was, of course, much joy experienced by the democrats and the insurgents in being able to turn down the administration, but the refusal to sustain the veto did not rest solely in their hands. There were others in large number who recognized the political advantage that was certain to accrue from the backing of any kind of a pension bill and the consequent political danger that would result from opposing it.

When the president sent the bill back he set forth three good reasons for not signing. He set forth points which prevail in the bill which establish a bad precedent and were not necessary in order to provide a just relief for those who participated in the Spanish war and are deserving of a pension.

It was an instance where a meritorious bill for the benefit of the Spanish war veterans could have been produced without extending pensions to those whose vicious habits have created disabilities rather than any influence of the war service. Under this bill the pension practices of the past in regard to such conditions are removed and a new excuse for drawing upon the government established. Also, under the bill, anyone who served 70 days, no matter how or where, and are disabled at any subsequent time in their lives may draw a pension.

In his veto the president was not inconsiderate of the deserving veterans. The points which he raised were entirely disregarded by both branches of congress, although he was not opposed to a pension bill that would have eliminated objectionable features. Congress took a different view, not without regard for political expediency, and the result is that the country gets pension legislation on such broad and open lines that one may well wonder where it will stop. All are placed in the same classification as those who experienced war sufferings and disabilities.

MAKE THEM FIREPROOF

Once again the importance of erecting fireproof structures for institutional purposes is demonstrated in the fire at the state hospital at Central Islip, N. Y. It was an employes' dormitory which was destroyed at an estimated loss of $200,000 and 28 persons were injured. Reports have it that it was the work of an incendiary, but where many persons are brought together the wisdom of fireproof structures cannot be disregarded.

Whether the thought of erecting a fireproof building was advanced when the dormitory was constructed is not known. That it should be demanded when the time comes for reconstructing the dormitory is apparent. Had it been a fireproof building, there would have been no chance for the incendiary to have gotten in his cowardly work and there would have been no danger to the 75 persons who were sleeping there.

When it comes to foiling the incendiary or the prevention of fires from other causes, sight cannot be lost of the value of erecting those buildings which offer effective resistance to fire. Many are the structures which are used at the present time for housing insane, aged persons and children. Under every possible care they are probably no more dangerous than they have been in previous years but there is always the possibility of a fire and, when such conditions develop, they invite serious consequences. The menace to life and limb is such that there is justification for insisting upon the additional construction cost that goes with the erection of a fireproof building. While preventive measures will do much in avoiding fires, they are not of much use in combating the incendiary who never gives consideration to the consequences that may befall his fellowmen as the result of his mania.

FORBES FOR JAPAN

Speculation has been rife as to the one to be selected for the ambassadorship to Japan. This post has been temporarily supplied during the period of the London conference by an assistant secretary of state in order that the position of this country in the negotiations might be clearly set forth at Tokyo during the discussions. That situation having been bridged, the need of filling the vacancy is recognized and in the selection of W. Cameron Forbes, President Hoover has unquestionably selected a man who is specially fitted for such service.

Mr. Forbes has been of special service to the government on more than one occasion. It will not be forgotten that he met the situation in a commendable manner when he was sent to make a survey of conditions in the Philippines, which resulted in his choice as governor-general, in which office he was instrumental in doing much for the islands. In later years he was named to make further Philippine investigations and when President Hoover was given authority to name a commission to investigate conditions in the Haitian republic, Mr. Forbes was placed at its head and prompt and satisfactory results were obtained from the study of conditions there.

With such a record of public service it was not surprising that President Hoover should regard him as the man to be sent to Tokio at this time. That he will prove to be acceptable to the Japanese government can be anticipated and there is every reason for believing that he will not only give a good account of himself in that post but that his service will be highly creditable to his country. When his nomination for the ambassadorship to Japan is presented to the senate there should be no delay in securing confirmation. There cannot be too many of such men in the diplomatic service of this country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Now comes the opportunity to tell how it all happened.

Elections come and elections go while voters who stay at home wonder at the results.

Those who think one more vote doesn't make any difference could easily swing many an election.

The census shows no unemployment on Block Island. Apparently getting ready for the summer visitors.

With an increase of $53,000,000 in money in circulation, some of the tightwads must have been loosening up.

Since May failed to measure up to expectations, it will be a bigger disappointment if June does no better.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, June 2—Senator Walcott of Connecticut has been named chairman of the newly authorized special committee of the senate, which carries the title "to investigate wild life," but the senator explains in answer to the joking suggestions of his friends, that it has nothing whatsoever to do with the great white way, or night clubs, but relates to the conservation and perpetuation of the wild animal life of the United States, and includes fish, flesh and fowl.

"If we continue depleting our wild animal resources at the present rate" said the senator, "in a few generations there will be litele left but the English sparrow and the destructive rat."

Senator Walcott added, "We must not only conserve wild life but also develop a love of nature and secure public cooperation for its protection and propagation."

Senator Walcott further explained that the committee will investigate conditions in national parks, on the great plains of the west, along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts out to the three mile limit; it will look into conditions of the fisheries of the Great lakes, and of smaller lakes and streams where fish abound and the lobster, oyster and other shell fish, will have their place on the program.

In fact the committee will endeavor to ascertain how far and in what direction depletion exists, and what methods, restrictions and process can best be adopted to stop depletion and increase future supply.

Senator Walcott enumerated a number of specific matters the committee will undertake, then it will report its findings to congress in December at the regular session.

But few buffalo are left on the plains; wild animal and wild bird life of the nation are running low. Although Mr. Walcott made no forecast of the intent of congress, the investigation seems to suggest, in its preliminary stage, the desire for federal protection along the lines of the Weeks' forestry act, also additional protection for birds, which has been given a start under the McLean-Weeks act, for migratory birds.

The chances are that a federal law to protect wild animal life along scientific lines under government control will develop, in order that the natural wild animal life of the country will not be entirely wiped out.

With Senator Walcott on the committee are Senators Hawes of Missouri, Pittman of Nevada, McNary of Oregon, and Norbeck of South Dakota.

After explaining the purpose of the committee, Senator Walcott added, "Don't forget that what I say about the English sparrow and the rat is true. They are likely to be the only ones to survive if the present lack of protection continues."

This is the school trip time in Washington. Every week end great buses come here from distant points, loaded with pupils from public or private schools. They are on a sight seeing trip, they make the rounds, have a good time and undoubtedly, although on some it makes but little impression, in their happy-go-lucky youth, yet the majority go home with an inspiration for better citizenship, after seeing the capital in its beauty and dignity.

One school, sending about 75 pupils was here last week staying at the hotel where your correspondent lives. They were a merry crowd, and after dinner Sunday night formed a part of an incident that isn't likely to happen outside of the capital, in hotels where scores of senators and members of the house make their winter home.

It was chilly, though June had set in; a heavy thunder storm in the late afternoon sent the mercury racing from 90 degrees to a "new low." Guests huddled around an open fire that blazed cheerfully in the lobby. Presently one of the republican members of the house started to hum an old "hymn-tune." It was taken up by others, among whom were prominent democratic leaders, like Garner of Texas and Collier of Mississippi, both of whom are playing leading parts in overthrowing what they believe to be "destructive republican policies."

Pretty soon the hymn swelled into "the congregation will please join in the singing" proportions. Then, as the last verse ended, the 75 students in the adjoining dining room countered with a rousing school song—and the game was on. It was a singing match between the old style and the new.

After a while one of the members of congress called out to the girls "Let's all sing America"! Everybody stood up and joined in a lusty patriotic chorus, following the leadership of a strong voiced, long armed member of the house who "kept time."

Somehow I wonder if those girls from a distant state wont later on recall that incident as one of the events of their trip, it fitted in so perfectly with the other sights of the capital.

Speaking of democratic floor leader, John Garner of Texas, reminds me of an after-election letter he received from one of his constituents, written in good faith, soon after the terrible flood, and tornado played havoc in that great state.

Addressing the congressman the writer said "I can't account for that terrible storm. They don't belong in Texas. I cannot account for it, unless it was the wrath of God because Texas went republican" And now Floor Leader Garner, who never lets his political affiliations enter into his personal friendship for men of the other party, is showing that letter with great glee, to his political opponents.

When congress calls, the ladies come a'running! If "progress" keeps up its present ambitious pace, pretty soon men will be crying long and loud for "men's rights."

Not only has Mrs. McCormick come out strong for the senate with a record of wanting it enough to pay out $250,000 for campaign expenses in securing the Illinois nomination, but now New Jersey is putting forth a woman candidate for the senate with Mrs. Mary T. Norton, member of the national house, her sponsor and campaign manager. Miss Thelma Parkinson is the candidate who will seek a place on the democratic ticket of New Jersey. That means the lady will lock horns with Dwight Morrow, former Senator Frelinghuysen, Representative Fort, and perhaps others, at the coming primary. It stands unchallenged that she will run as a wet, for Mrs. Norton is dripping, and proud of it, having been one of the two women to appear before the house committee hearing on prohibition and its appeal, and placing on the shoulders of prohibition, most of the evils of the day.

I don't know anything about Miss Parkinson, but I know that Mrs. Norton is one of the most efficient, well poised, attractive and strict party members of the house. If Miss Parkinson has her as campaign leader, other democratic candidates better keep their eyes wide open if they hope to win a the nomination. Miss Parkinson is a graduate of Smith college, class 1926, so has a New England educational slant.

And now to cap the climax, a movement is on foot by certain organizations to secure a place for a woman in the cabinet. The name of Miss Grace Abbott, director of the children's bureau, is to be laid before the president as successor to Secretary of Labor Davis, when the latter quits the cabinet to run for the senate, for which he has just been nominated. And there are others.

OPEN TO ARGUMENT

"What's that?" barked Mr. Benson in astonishment.

"I said," quietly repeated Drusilla, "that I'm leaving now. I gave Mr. Lane notice last Saturday, according to instructions that employes were to notify him a week before leaving, and not to annoy you. Your new secretary will take my place Monday." Mr. Benson continued to scowl.

"Where's your next job?"

"I'm not sure yet. I think I'll like to sell bonds."

"Bonds, eh?" in cynical amusement. "What do you know about selling bonds?"

"Not a thing. But I hope to learn. Good-bye, Mr. Benson." She opened and closed the door and found herself in the outer office. Well, it was over now, the tension and nervous strain of being Theophilus Benson's private secretary. Of course she knew very well that he had a character above reproach, that he was dependable and big hearted—no one knew better than she how far flung were his many charities—but his good qualities were blanked by his hornet tongue, his irascible temper and his snapping, sizzling criticisms. She was glad she was free of it all. Her nerves had been getting decidedly ragged lately.

On her way out she passed a closed door labeled "Bascombe Benson" and experienced a queer, unreasonable little ache at her heart. She wondered if there would be the same sparkle, gay and friendly, in his eyes for the new girl; the same flash of warm little smiles and merry scraps of conversation. Oh, well! She held her head a little more erect and hurried out.

On the following Wednesday morning Drusilla was ushered into Mr. Benson's office. He swung around in his chair with a rather ungracious "Well, Miss Mills, what is it?"

"I'd like to sell you some bonds, Mr. Benson," pleasantly, braving his sharp glance. She removed the broad rubber band from a packet of bond literature and waded into her little speech. He listened with growing impatience until finally he broke in abruptly with, "Now, see here, young lady. I don't want any of those bonds. I wouldn't have them. In the first place—" His words came out with a scathing emphasis as he presented in detail his objections to the various bonds she had offered. It wasn't until he paused for breath some time later that he seemed to notice for the first time that she was doing something with a notebook and pencil.

"What's that for?" he snapped. She closed the notebook, gathered up her belongings and rose.

"Thank you ever so much, Mr. Benson," smilingly.

"I didn't buy any of those bonds!"

"I know it. But I'm grateful anyway. You see, you always hated bond salesmen and considered them pests, so I figured out that if I came here and tried to sell you bonds you'd flare right up and use every argument you could think of against them. And that's just what you did. So I took it all down in shorthand and now I'm going back to Willards' and get their answers to all these objections of yours, and then I'll know just what to say when any of my future prospects put up arguments. Thanks again."

A sound like a strangled "Umph!" reached her just as she softly closed the door.

Late that afternoon as she emerged from her office building a tall, marvelously tailored figure fell into step at her side. "Hello, there!" with that laughing note in his voice that always made her catch her breath. "At last I've found out where you went when left us. Dad told me you had been—" The interrupted himself to say, "Let's finish this at dinner somewhere. I've got things to tell you." It was Bascombe.

"Say, Dad thinks you're the cleverest girl in the world. You made a big hit with the old boy this morning—the way you put it over him getting that information about the bonds. I thought you might like to hear this, because I know you had to put up a lot with his crabbiness. I don't blame you for leaving." It was really surprising how much there was to talk about across a softly shaded table during the dinner that followed.

"By the way," as dessert was served, "you told me once that you loved grand opera. I have tickets for Tuesday night and I'd like to have you go with me. I hope you can?"

The opera! With him! Quite suddenly a peal of ravishing music that was not of the orchestra, but infinitely more delightful, thrilled into her heart. "I'm sure I can!"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

A Safety Device

By Joseph Colt Bloodgood, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The development of obstetrics in this country, where the professions of medicine, nursing and social service meet on common ground within and without the hospital, has been the chief factor in reducing infant and material mortality. The greatest advances are through prenatal care, which means periodic examinations. Yet women who go through this are not yet benefitting from the same protection that periodic examinations would give if they continued them in at least yearly intervals, whether or not they had other children.

Cancer of the cervix, the outlet of the uterus, is rarely observed except in women who have borne children. The local spot that precedes the cancer is an injury during childbirth, a laceration or tear, and like any unhealed or improperly healed sore the chronic irritation of the cells in this spot may ultimately change into cancer.

The change is so insidious, and the extent of possible filtration in the cervix is so small, that the local cancer may be hopeless before it gives any warning by something unusual in the monthly period, or its reappearances after the menopause. Periodic examinations will detect and lead to the repair of these local conditions in the cervix that precede cancer. Many women will be saved if they seek an examination the moment they are warned, but more will be relieved if they acquire the knowledge and habit of periodic examinations.

As a rule, in cancer of the body of the uterus women are amply warned by some unusual discharge, or the reappearance of the monthly period after the menopause. Yet as in the breast, so in the uterus an unusual discharge or its reappearance after the menopause is not always a sign of cancer, nor necessarily of a local lesion which precedes cancer. But the wise woman will watch her monthly function and never neglect to seek an examination the moment anything unusual is observed.

We are having the same difficulty in getting men after the age of forty to submit to periodic examinations of the prostate gland, and of the cardiovascular system that we have in getting women to follow this rule. It may be unpleasant, but it is one of the modern safety devices, and its value is seen in some of the following statistics:

The enlightened individual who seeks advice the moment he or she is warned, reduces the incidence of cancer by that early examination from EIGHTY per cent to SEVENTEEN per cent; the hopelessness of cancer from more than FIFTY per cent to less than FIVE per cent; and the curability of cancer situated in the operatable area, is increased from TEN to SIXTY per cent.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

How Sharp Eyes Were Fooled

E'en those in cleverness most schooled
By simple tricks are often fooled.
—Carol the Meadow Lark.

Reddy Fox knew that Carol the Meadow Lark and Mrs. Meadow Lark had a nest on the Green Meadows. Mrs. Reddy knew it, Old Man Coyote knew it. Redtail the Hawk knew it. Whitetail the Marsh Hawk knew it. You see, it was no secret. Any one just listening to Carol as he poured out the joy of his heart would have known just what it was that made him so joyous. So, as I said before, it was no secret. But the location of that nest was a secret. Yes, sir, that was a secret and a well-kept secret.

"I don't suppose it is of much use to look for Carol's nest, but just the same I am going to try it," said Reddy Fox to Mrs. Reddy. "There is nothing gained without trying. A nestful of young Meadow Larks would taste as good as anything I could think of."

Mrs. Reddy grinned. "I wish you luck, my dear," said she. "I have already searched the Green Meadows several times for that nest. Perhaps your eyes are sharper than mine. Anyway, I wish you luck."

Reddy hid on the edge of the Old Pasture, where he could look across the Green Meadows. He saw Carol mount up in the air singing, for Carol dropped back in the grass. Reddy took careful note of just where that place was. He didn't go over there then, however. He remained in hiding. Presently Carol flew over to a post—a fence post—and for some time he sat on this, telling all the world how happy he was. When finally he flew, he dropped down in the grass very near the place where he had dropped down before. Reddy grinned.

"Of course," said Reddy to himself "that nest isn't there. I know Carol well enough to know that he never would make the mistake of flying directly to his nest. But I also know that that nest is not a great distance from that spot. It is near enough for Carol to walk to. The thing to do is to search in a circle around that spot."

So Reddy came out of his hiding place and started across the Green Meadows. As he drew near the place where Carol had disappeared in the grass he began to move very carefully. He would take a step or two and then stop to look and listen. Presently the very thing that he expected happened: Carol took to his wings and came out of the grass at a point some little distance from where he had dropped down into the grass. Reddy grinned triumphantly.

"That nest is right over there somewhere," said Reddy. "All I need do now is to hunt very carefully around that place where Carol left the ground."

So Reddy made right straight for that spot. As he approached it he moved very cautiously indeed. Yes, sir, he moved very cautiously. He looked to right; he looked to left. With every step or two he stopped to look, listen and smell. He knew when he reached the spot where Carol had been squatting in the grass. Carol had left a feather or two there. From that spot Reddy began working out in all directions. He was positive that Carol's nest, with Mrs. Carol on it, was not far away.

In this Reddy was right. As a matter of fact, twice Reddy passed within easy jumping distance of Mrs. Meadow Lark. Twice he looked straight at her and didn't see her. Yes, sir, Reddy looked straight at Mrs. Meadow Lark and didn't see her. The reason was that she kept perfectly still and her feathers were so nearly the color of the dead grass that it was difficult to tell grass from feathers. So in the end Reddy had to give up. When he got home Mrs. Reddy said nothing at all. She merely grinned.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 2—A quarter century of congressional press gallery experience affords an admirable diving board for a plunge into a congressional career.

By way of illustration, observe the technique of Louie Ludlow, a newcomer to the group of gentlemen from Indiana in the house, but a 25-year press gallery looker-on.

The Bystander has heretofore noted the extreme skill with which the said Louis has kept the home news fires burning via his former newspaper colleagues since he crowded into the house.

That was to be expected, of course. Louis knew the game. He knew as a news gatherer that the finest bait with which to angle for newspaper attention is news, real news, "recent happenings, theretofore unknown" as the dictionaries define news. That is what Louie set out to see that the home papers got, lots of it.

Opposes Bureaucracies

But that was not all. One thing his press gallery career impressed on this life-long Jeffersonian Democrat was the ever growing tendancy to concentrate power in the hands of Washington bureaucracy, "the centripetal movement in government" as he described it to the Bystander.

So his major congressional thesis turned out to be his resolution for a commission study of ways and means of decentralizing.

That's quite an undertaking, particularly for a minority newcomer to the house. What chance would any proposal he might make have of serious attention? Mighty little. But did that daunt Louie? Not at all. It merely inspired him to employ his experience as a congressional observer.

What he did was to begin writing letters. Goodness knows how many he turned out, presenting his resolution and a request for comment on it to big men in both Republican and Democratic political circles all over the country. And on an April day he put about a dozen solid pages of excerpts of some—just some—of his replies into the Congressional Record with a mild suggestion to the rules committee to take note thereof and consider giving his resolution a chance.

Wins Wide Support

"In presenting my case I bring as witnesses many of the mightiest spirits that have trod the soil of America in our generation," Representative Ludlow said in filing the record of the single-handed, yet nation-wide hearing he had conducted—and is still conducting— on his plan to launch a drive against the thralldom of bureaucracy."

There followed flatfooted declarations of support from 17 governors and eight former governors, from 17 state supreme court justices, from men like Thomas Edison, John W. Davis, Owen Young, Daniel Willard, Henry Ford, from bankers, bishops, college presidents and from a host of past or present republican national committeemen, mark that.

Keep an eye on Louie Ludlow of Indianapolis. He may be vice presidential timber in the making. Stranger things have happened.

EXCESS ACID SICKENS—GET RID OF IT!

Sour stomach, indigestion, gas. These are signs which usually mean just one thing: excess acid. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. Too much acid is making food sour in the stomach and intestines.

The way to correct excess acid is with an alkali. The best form of alkali for this purpose is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Just take a spoonful of this harmless, almost tasteless preparation in a glass of water. It works instantly. The stomach becomes sweet. You are happy again in five minutes! Your heartburn, gas, headache, biliousness or indigestion has vanished!

Know Phillips Milk of Magnesia and you're through with crude methods forever. It is the pleasant way—the efficient way to alkalinize the system; to relieve the effects of over-acidity.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has been standard with doctors for over 50 years. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores. Be sure you get the genuine.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

PLANNING TO ATTEND BIG LOYALTY LUNCHEON

A number of Norwich people are making their plans and reservations to be in New Haven on Thursday, June 12, to attend the "loyalty luncheon of one thousand" which is being arranged for by the Women's Law Enforcement Committee of Connecticut, and at which Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, U. S. A., will be the principal speaker. The luncheon is to be held at New Haven arena at 1 p. m. and Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, general chairman of the national committee, is to preside. Preceding the luncheon there is to be a dramatization of the recent hearings on prohibition before the judiciary committee at Washington.

The purpose of the luncheon is to combat the effort, to choose "wet" candidates in the fall elections.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Thomas J. Hogan

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas J. Hogan was held Monday morning at 8:15 o'clock at her late home, No. 69 Fountain street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. At 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin celebrant. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and at the processional Chopin's Funeral March was played. At the offertory, Mr. LaFontaine rendered Pie Jesu, the waiting hymn was Abide With Me and the recessional number, Lead, Kindly Light.

The burial was in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May conducted the committal service. The bearers were John W. Burke, Thomas Connell, Joseph Fitzgerald, Michael Driscoll, John F. Lichwell and Michael O'Connell. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Corcoran and Lyons had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Edward C. Madden

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the funeral of Mrs. Edward C. Madden held Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock at her home, No. 9 Boswell avenue. At 10 o'clock there was a mass of requiem at St. Patrick's church, the celebrant being Rev. John J. Reilly. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and Mrs. Bernard C. Coyle sang De Profundis at the offertory. As the waiting hymn Mr. LaFontaine played Lead, Kindly Light and as the recessional number, Chopin's Funeral March.

The burial was in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May conducting the committal service. The bearers were P. J. Morley, Mortimer Murphy, John Coleman, Thomas McCarthy, John Kelly and Jeremiah Murphy. There were many beautiful floral tributes and mourners were present from Boston, Bridgewater, Mass., and other places.

Marjorie P. Bushnell

Burial services for Marjorie Patricia, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bushnell, of No. 160 Laurel Hill avenue, were held Monday at St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic. Rev. A. A. Jalbert of Baltic was in charge of the committal service. Relatives and friends were present and there was a number of floral pieces. The child died Sunday. Undertaker C. A. Gager was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Loretta Higgins has returned from Philadelphia to spend the summer at her home on Broadway.

Miss Mary Porteous was hostess to the closing meeting of the Monday Auction Bridge club at a supper. The season's scores were announced, each member receiving a prize.

The Cunarder Carmania, on which Miss Crowell and Mrs Hannah M. Crowell were passengers, reached Havre Sunday.

On their return from Daytona, Fla., to their home in Portsmouth, N. H., Mrs. Arthur A. Rouner and children, Elizabeth and Arthur, are guests of Mrs. Rouner's sister, Miss Alif Stephens, of Pinehurst. Rev. Mr. Rouner who was also a guest, left for Amherst to fill an engagement.

The Monday club went to Castle Inn, Old Saybrook, for the final luncheon meeting. At cards, the prizes were won by Miss Louise P. Bailey and Mrs. W. Manley Eastwood, Jr.

MAYOR ROBBINS RE-ELECTED BY CLOSE VOTE AND DEMOCRATS WIN THREE PLACES IN THE CITY GOVERNMENT

LEE ROY ROBBINS
Re-elected Mayor

The republican party scored a divided victory in the city election Tuesday when Mayor Lee Roy Robbins was re-elected to that office by 40 votes, 2871 to 2831, over his democratic opponent Edward G. Moran, and the democrats succeeded in electing one alderman and one councilman to the common council, as well as electing the city treasurer.

Mayor Robbins, who went into office two years ago by 894 votes, when the entire republican ticket triumphed, is the first republican mayor in 34 years to be elected for a second successive term, that mark having been last accomplished by a republican candidate when the late Calvin L. Harwood was re-elected mayor in 1894 after having filled the office from 1892 to 1894.

F. Russell Smith, republican, and Laurence A. Millea, democrat, were the two aldermen elected, while the losing candidates were Paul H. Zahn, republican, and Joseph E. Eccles, democrat. Mr. Smith led Mr. Millea by 7 votes.

For councilmen, the three republicans elected were John H. Sherman, Daniel C. Leone and Edwin M. Hanks, and the democrat is Maurice W. Meyer, a new name in the political circles of his party. Mr. Sherman and Mr. Leone have been in the council for the past two years. One of the peculiarities of the vote was that Mr. Sherman and Mr. Meyer had the same number of ballots cast for them, 2867, which was the high vote for this office.

Republican Majority In Council

The result of the election provides a republican majority in the council for this year as there will be three republican and one democratic aldermen, seven republican and one democratic councilmen, with the republican mayor as the presiding officer.

One of the surprises of the election was the defeat of City Treasurer Charles Coit for re-election. This was accomplished by 11 votes by Charles S. Avery, who has held this office several times before and was defeated two years ago by Mr. Coit.

The two republican candidates for city sheriff, Charles V. Paynes and V. Roath Allen, were both elected by comfortable figures.

The straight party vote on water commissioner, where nomination is equivalent to election, showed the high and low marks on both sides, John M. Swahn, republican, receiving 2878 votes, and Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald, democrat, 2829 votes.

Light Vote Cast

There was a light vote cast as the electors exercising their privilege were a little more than 60 per cent of the men and women registered. The total vote cast was 5,745 as compared with the total of 5,933 two years ago.

The vote was cast in the districts as follows:

	Men		Women
Dist	Rgstrd	Voting	Rgstrd	Voting
1	2429	1585	2226	1363
2	1067	579	756	411
3	957	766	782	554
6	451	303	352	216
Totals	4904	3181	4116	2544

Districts Divided

The party results in the four voting districts of the city were divided. In the first, or central district, the republicans led their opponents by 144 ballots on the vote for mayor, indicating a considerable stay-at-home vote on the part of republicans who ordinarily count upon a larger margin in this district.

The sixth, or East Side, district also sustained the republican ticket by giving Mr. Robbins 123 votes more than his opponent, who made such an unexpectedly good run for the office.

Two of the districts gave democratic figures, these being the second, or West Side, which slid into that party's column by 17 votes, and the third, or Greeneville, district, which is ordinarily looked upon as the democratic stronghold. This part of the city sustained its record Tuesday by giving Mr. Moran 210 votes more than Mr. Robbins.

Elected Alderman

Interest in Results

There was intense interest in learning the results of the election as the closing hour arrived in the central district polling place in the city court room, where four voting machines were in use and where the officials from the other districts brought their returns for tabulation.

Moderator M. E. Jensen was in charge, officially declaring the voting closed at 6 o'clock, D. S. T., after Isabella McKenna and Jeremiah Sullivan had been the last to vote on the women's and men's lists, respectively.

The crowd of interested spectators filled all available space in the court room as they listened to Moderator Jensen take the figures from the machines with the assistance of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt and Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Joseph B. Downes.

The votes cast on the four machines were 550, 886, 890 and 254.

Election Results

About 9 o'clock the election results were announced in the town hall by Moderator Jensen, as follows:

NO ERROR FOUND IN FIVE COUNTY CASES

In five cases in which appeals from the superior court of this county were taken to the supreme court, decisions were handed down Monday in Hartford by the supreme court as follows:

Anthony J. Silva against New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, no error, per curiam; Absalon Bellefleur, against U. S. Finishing company, no error, Justice Haines; Joseph Micell against Lawrence A. Chappell, Jr., no error, per curiam; State Finance company, against James Ballestrini, no error, Agnes Bessette against Fidelity and Casualty company, no error, Justice Maltbie.

Anthony J. Silvia of New London secured a judgment of $4,166 against the railroad, but Judge Avery set the judgment aside and Silvia appealed.

Absalon Bellefleur of New London sued the United States Finishing company on a claim for $2,400 arising over the acceptance of a boring mill, but lost his case. He then appealed to the supreme court.

Joseph Micell, of New London, won a verdict of $2,100 and costs in a suit against Laurence A. Chappell, Jr., of New London and Chappell appealed to the supreme court.

In State Finance company against James Ballestrini of New London the plaintiff won a verdict for $544.56, against which there was a set-off of $477.12. This case was in the common pleas court and the plaintiff appealed to the supreme court.

The Agnes Bessette case was the suit brought by a Taftville woman who was one of a group of people who were struck by an automobile driven by Frank Mader. Mrs. Bessette secured judgment for $8,294.52 and costs of $69.22, from which the casualty company appealed and the supreme court finds no error in the judgment. The disposition of other suits hinges upon the decision in the Bessette case.

BOY SCOUTS TO PICNIC AT LUCAS MEMORIAL PARK

Boy Scouts who would like to picnic and cook this (Tuesday) evening at Lucas Memorial park and engage in an impromptu campfire are invited by the scout officials to leave the square at 4:15 on the street car. A single fare will place the scout within a short hiking distance of the park. Only scouts carrying a rake, axe or scycle will be admitted, for the plan is to rake over a field for future camping purposes.

According to the local scout headquarters, Troop 8 will hike to the park to hold an outdoor meeting. Other troops interested in going as a group should communicate with scout headquarters.

The scouts plan eventually to place a birch sign at the entrance to the park and to lay trails. Monday afternoon, a half dozen scouts, Arthur L. Peale, Howard Ludlow and John Seltman, cleared a portion of a field and laid a trail to the old spring. The scouts also cleaned out the spring so that for this evening those who go on the community picnic will have fresh spring water to drink.

According to Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale, Lucas Memorial park will make an ideal site for overnight hiking during the coming summer. He suggests that several troops might be interested in building lean-tos or other shelters. The park overlooks the cove and has many spots of beauty.

AMHERST COLLEGE PAPER MEMORIAL TO GEORGE HYDE

The "Amherst Graduates Quarterly" in its May issue under the items for the class of 1896 contains the following notice about George Hyde, a graduate of that college and member of that class:

"George Fuller Hyde died at his home in Norwich, Conn., Feb. 26, leaving the 24th vacant chair around the table of ninety-six.

"After his graduation from Amherst, Hyde went to Bridgeport, Conn., where he served for ten years as boys' secretary in the Y. M. C. A. Following his term in Bridgeport, he held a similar position for some years in his home town of Norwich.

"Failing in health during the past 18 years made it impossible for him to assume active occupation in the outside world, but Norwich papers speak in highest terms of his service during that period to his city, and especially to his church, the old First Church of Norwich Town.

"From his freshman year at the Boltwood to our last reunion "Doc" Hyde faced life with unfailing cheer and courtesy and kindness. He fought a good fight. His memory is an inspiration to any of us who may be inclined to complain at ordinary disappointments and difficulties."

MICHAEL CHINIGO WINS YALE ITALIAN PRIZE

Michael Francis Chinigo of this city, class of 1932, has been awarded the second prize, one of three Figli d'Italia prizes, according to the Yale Daily News, the college newspaper. The prizes, established in 1922 by the Great Lodge of the Order of the Sons of Italy of Connecticut and open to the undergraduate students of Italian, are based on (1) relative proficiency in Italian in courses taken during the year, (2) an essay in Italian on an Italian subject approved by the committee of award and (3) interest and activity in things Italian. The title of his subject was Il contributo italiano nel campo della zoologia.

TWO ARE FINED FOR THEFT IN LISBON

Found guilty of theft of a saw rig from the Demasrais farm, ownedby Arcadia Plante, in Lisbon, John Keller and Carl Hagstrom were each fined $10 and costs by Walter Drew, J. P., in Lisbon town court Monday night. Keller paid hub Hagstrom went to jail to work out his fine. The saw rig was stolen last Tuesday and Keller was arrested in this city, Sunday. Hagstrom gave himself up Monday evening at the Lisbon town court session.

PLUGGED PIPES CAUSED WATER FRONT EXPLOSION

Shortly before 7:25 o'clock Monday night, a hot water front in a range in the kitchen at No. 2 Peck street, exploded, and the resulting steam and smoke were responsible for a bell alarm from Box 15, West Main and Asylum streets. Engines No. 5, No. 6, Truck No. 1 and Chief Henry R. Taft responded, but as there was no fire the recall was quickly sounded. Mrs. Margaret Elliott and family recently moved into the house. There was a hot water front in the kitchen range but it was not connected with the hot water tank. The open ends of the hot and cold water pipes in the front were plugged up by the tenants. A fire in the range caused water in the front to turn into steam and the resulting pressure blew the front to pieces. The kitchen filled with steam and smoke from the range and the bell alarm was pulled as it was feared that the house had caught fire. No one was injured by the explosion.

MARRIAGES INCREASE IN STATE; DIVORCES ARE FEWER

For every ten marriages in Connecticut during 1929 there was approximately one divorce, according to statistics released by the United States department of commerce.

For the state as a whole the figures are as follows: 1928, marriages 11,650, and divorces, 1,276; in 1929, marriages 12,303, and divorces 1,221. During 1928 there were 21 annulments, four more than in 1929. On the basis of population in the state, there were 7.2 marriages per 1,000 persons during 1929 as against seven per 1,000 the preceding year. During the same period there was a decrease in the ratio of divorces to population 1929 showing .72 divorces per 1,000 as against .77 per 1,000 in 1928.

Unique among the counties during 1929 was New London, where marriages decreased to 945. The previous year there had been 971. Like most of the other counties, New London county's divorces showed a decline, 96 being recorded in the superior courts of the county as against 107 during 1928. Annulments decreased also, the two of 1928 vanishing in 1929 to zero.

New Haven county led in marriages in 1929 with 3,452, which was 139 more than the year before. In the county divorces during 1929 numbered 341, a decrease of 44 from the 1928 total. Annulments numbered five during 1929, one more than in 1928.

Second in the state for the number of marriages, having 2,289 during 1929 as against 3,017 during 1928, Fairfield county took the palm as the county with the largest number of divorces during 1929 and also for the largest increase in the number of divorces over the preceding year. There, 357 divorces were granted last year, 333, the preceding year. During 1929 only five annulments were granted, however, compared with eight the previous year.

Marriages in Hartford county during 1929 totaled 2,965, an increase of 110 over the previous year's figures. Divorces, on the other hand, decreased from 322 in 1928 to 280 in 1929. In each of these years there were six annulments.

Although at the bottom numerically in the total of marriages, having only 211 during 1929, Tolland county established three records. One of these is that the county showed the greatest proportional increase in the number of marriages, the 1929 total being 39—more than 15 per cent—more than the 1928 total. It also showed the smallest number of divorces during 1929 with only eight, and by reducing divorces from 14 in 1928, this county showed the greatest proportional decrease in the breaking up of the wedding bond, a decrease of approximately 43 per cent. In neither year were gossips of the county entertained by annulments, there being none.

Besides Fairfield county, two other counties showed increases in divorce statistics. Litchfield county, which had 44 in 1928, had 46 divorces in 1929 and Windham county showed 35 divorces in 1929 as against 45 during the preceding year. In both counties, however, increases of marriages more than made up for the gain in divorces. Litchfield showing 529 marriages as compared with 480 the previous year and Windham having 563 as compared with 501 in 1928. Neither county's records disclosed an annulment in either year.

The remaining county, Middlesex, apparently was pretty well satisfied with its 1928 record, little change being made there during the past year. In 1928 there were 330 marriages and 29 divorces; in 1929 there were 349 marriages and 28 divorces. Each year there was one annulment.

SHARKEY CONFIDENT OF WINNING BUT IS TAKING BOUT SERIOUSLY

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 2.—(AP)—Ten setting suns from the night he will climb into the ring in the Yankee stadium to battle Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship, Jack Sharkey is coasting down the home stretch of his conditioning campaign, calm and confident that the title will stay as it always has in America.

For Sharkey this is the greatest feat of his career. He fought and lost to Jack Dempsey when all the ristic world still lay before him. He "fincanned" through two vital struggles with Johnny Risko and Tom Heeney with a shot at Gene Tunney's title resting on the outcome. Now he is up there for the third and most important time.

Apparently the Boston sailor man, a strange fighting creature of moods and temperament, now realizes at 27 that championship opportunities will come to him only just so long. He is winding up a training period that has been singularly free of bickerings and mental outbursts that have left him either in contrary or foolishly emotional moods for other crucial struggles. With him, age, in a fistic sense, seems to be bringing wisdom.

Physically, Sharkey is immense. Years of constant training have padded his shoulders and back with ripping, powerful muscle. His legs and thighs are thinner and speedier than ever before. His eyes are clear, his weight just where he wants it at 199 1-2 pounds.

But it is the mental change that is most impressive in this sometimes morose, sometimes smiling, always puzzling pugilist. He seems matured and settled. He is calmer and his vision is broader. Occasionally he can listen to advice and take it. He seems to have nailed down the check rein on his emotions.

The bombastic sailor, of course, doesn't doubt for a moment that he will grind Schmeling to pulp.

"I won't lose my noodle against Schmeling," he said today. "I've been practicing for five weeks against my sparring partners to hold myself in and fight my fight no matter what happens. When they hit and hurt me I just stick them plenty with left hands.

"Sure I cried after I beat Phil Scott. So would you if you came as close as I did to losing $200,000 in purses. After he claimed foul I stood in my corner and I could see that dough floating away over the heads of the crowd.

"Then when they brought us together again I threw a left hook at his body so hard he said 'oof' before the punch hit him. Then he hung on the ropes and yelled 'I cawn't go on. I cawn't go on.' No wonder I cried.

"I've got no plan for fighting Schmeling. That's the bunk anyway. In the dressing room Al Lacey and I will talk it over. Then I'll go out and win.

"Say, can this Schmeling take a punch on the chin? Can he take a sock in the body? Does anybody know? And remember this—he never fought anybody like I'll be in there on June 12."

PATRONS OF COCKING MAIN FINED $10 EACH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 2—The sporting element of Westerly and surrounding cities and towns took deep interest in the results of the raided cocking main held on Sunday on the farm of George Stanley James of Hopkinton and conducted by Hopkinton Chief of Police Frank H. Brown of Ashaway and three Rhode Island state troopers from the Hope Valley barracks. The farm was located about two miles north of the Nooseneck hill state highway off Brightman hill on the dirt road known as the old Canonchet road. The interest in Westerly was shown by the large attendance at the special sessions of Third district court with Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench at 1:00 a. m. Monday morning at which Chief Brown appeared as the Chief of Police Complaining Officer of the town of Hopkington when there were ten arraignments.

The remainder of the nearby three dozen men picked up by the raiding officers were summoned to appear at 2:00 p. m. Monday in Third district court. Shortly before that hour James N. Smith, Rhode Island agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals appeared at the court house and the complaints which had been drawn were changed to have Chief Brown appear as a special agent for the society with the long name and it was not until 4:30 p. m. when Judge Williams went upon the bench to hear the cases which charged the defendants with being present at a place "where preparations were being made for an exhibition of fighting birds, game cocks" against the statute law of the state of Rhode Island. Each of the defendants arraigned pleaded guilty to the charge and were each fined $10 and costs as follows:

George Stanley James of Hopkinton, who in reply to extended examination by Judge Williams, stated that he had been before the court before. Judge Williams informed him that the officers had information that on his farm several cocking mains had been held previously and that these officers could have a more serious charge against him upon which a jail sentence could be imposed. The defendant replied that the first he knew of the affair was when he had read a Providence morning paper in which he learned that beer had been found on his place, three kegs, and money lying on the ground when the main was raided. The accused when fined $10 said "I haven't seen it."

St. Patrick's Win

St. Patrick's nine defeated Greeneville Monday afternoon at the Campus by the score of 6-2. Greeneville was allowed but three hits. Riley, Faulkner and Gallivan led the hitters with 2 apiece. TIDEN MAY BE DRAFTED FOR DAVIS CUP TEAM

By TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 2—(AP)—The move to draft Big Bill Tilden for Davis cup service gained momentum today as a picked squad of America's younger players gathered here to sail tomorrow at midnight for the international racquet wars abroad.

"I certainly hope Tilden will play," declared George Lott, the blond young all-around athlete from Chicago who is making his third trip to Europe as a Davis cup player and ranks as the veteran of the present team.

"Bill went over to Australia and brought the cup back in 1920 and he's been in every challenge round since. He's still the No. 1 ranking player of this country and he has been playing well over there in Europe.

"It certainly would be a shame to have Tilden on the sidelines at Paris.

"Bill, as I see it, is the only sure point winner we have in singles. I think he can beat Borotra any day, of course, not even that point is absolutely sure but Bill has a better chance for it than any of the rest of us."

Highly optimistic of regaining the cup, Lott believes America's big chance lies in beating Borotra twice and repeating last year's victory in the doubles.

"Of course we have got to win the doubles," he said. "Then an even break in singles would give us the cup.

"Van Ryn and Allison I consider the best doubles team in the country and probably the best in the world. They are better than Doeg and myself although we won the national championship last year when they were in a slump after their victories abroad.

"The French probably will play Cochet and Brugnon. There will be no dissension in the ranks of this pair as there was between Cochet and Borotra last year to make our task easier, but the Cochet-Brugnon combination can be beaten by a young team that knows how to do it. Brugnon."

In singles Lott thinks Cochet is virtually unbeatable and should be at the peak of his game by the time the challenge round is played. He has the greatest of confidence in Tilden's ability to beat Borotra and believes he himself if he gets the call, will have a much better chance of achieving this than last year when he gave the Basque an even fight for two sets.

"I think we are going to win this time," he said quietly. "I just have a feeling somehow."

It is an optimistic septet, this young squad drawn from all parts of the country—Lott from the middle west, John Doeg from the far west, Wilmer Allison and Berkeley Bell from the southwest; John Van Ryn, Gregory Mangin and Fitz-Eugene Dixon, the latter non-playing captain, from the east.

Having beaten Canada and Mexico without losing a single match out of ten played, the team next encounters the European zone winner. The players think it will be Australia, although Japan and England also have a good chance.

Leading up to the inter-zone final and challenge round, both of which come the last two weeks in July, the players will see plenty of competition. They are entered in the London championships at the Queens club beginning June 16 and the British championships at Wimbledon, June 23, on grass courts, later shifting to clay for intensive drill in preparation for the big international engagements.

For Doeg, the young Santa Monica, Calif., Hercules, as well as for Mangin and Bell, the reserve players, this is the first trip to foreign battlefields.

JONES SHOOTS BRILLIANT GOLF ON FRENCH COURSE

SAINT GERMAIN, France, June 2—(AP)—Golf courses in the United States, Great Britain and France all look alike to Bobby Jones. Upon his first appearance in France today the open champion of the United States and amateur champion of Great Britain cut three strokes from par of the course in which he was on the winning side in a best ball match.

With Harrison R. Johnston, amateur champion of the United States, as his partner, Jones defeated Andre Vagliano, amateur champion of France, and Marcel Dellemagne, winner last week of the French professional championship, one up in an 18 hole match.

Both Jones and Dellemagne, playing on his own course, bettered par, the professional returning a score of 72. Par for the course is 73.

Bobby did not win a hole on the first nine and the Americans were down at the turn. Johnston had won the second hole and Dellemagne took the sixth and ninth with the others halved.

Starting home Jones went to work. He first won the 11th with an eagle two, the 14th with par four and the 17th with par three. Meanwhile Dellemagne had won the 15th, with the others halved.

The Americans came to the home hole one up and a half at the last, decided the match.

The match was played in a light rain during the first nine holes and a downpour for the second half. Jones' driving was not affected by the rain but it seemed to bother him on the greens. Although he failed to break the course record, the Atlanta lawyer on his single appearance in France, shattered at least one record, the size of the gallery he attracted. Over 1,000 spectators followed the play in spite of the miserable weather conditions.

"Jimmy" Johnston equalled par with a score of 73 while Vagliano had a card of 75.

EASTERN LEAGUE VOTES $2,000 FOR WINNING TEAM

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 2.—(AP)—The directors of the Eastern league, at a meeting here today, decided to pay $2,000 to the players of the winning team if the same club should win in both halves of the split season.

If different teams win the two races, 10 per cent of the receipts of the first four games in the play-off for the championship will go to the players, 60 per cent of the total to the players to the winners and 40 per cent to the losers.

The directors went on record against the playing of three games in one day, as did Pittsfield and Albany on Memorial day. The next meeting of the directors will be at Albany, June 13, pennant-raising day.

Red Challenge

The Jewett City Reds, formerly the American Legion, wish to challenge any team averaging the age of 17 years, for a twilight game any night this week. If challenge is accepted answer through this paper or write to Manager Mert Tenizer, Box 125 Jewett City, Conn.

THE WIFE GETS A TOOTH PULLED

Scene—Office of the Dentist.
Characters—Wife, Husband and Dentist.

Wife: Good afternoon, Doctor, I've come to have a tooth out. You wouldn't hurt me would you, Doctor?

Dentist: Oh, I never hurt anyone intentionally. I try to extract teeth without giving the patient any pain.

Wife: You wouldn't fool me, would you? I brought my husband along so I could hold his hand, he's such a comfort in times like this. You know this is the first time I ever had a tooth extracted and I'm awfully nervous. You won't hurt me will you? Everybody says it's like going in swimming, you dread it for a time and then when it's done you don't mind it. It won't hurt will it Doctor, I'm such a 'fraid cat when it comes to being hurt.

Dentist: I don't think it will hurt. If it does it won't be much.

Wife: Can I depend on that?

Husband: Good gracious, don't ask the Doctor so many times if it's going to hurt. He won't hurt you if he can help it. I've had loads of teeth pulled and it never hurt me.

Wife: Yeah? Well, why don't you have those two teeth out that are bothering you, if you think it's such a picnic.

Husband: Ain't that just like a woman, Doctor? You try to comfort them and they refuse to be comforted. I suppose if I told her it would hurt like the devil she'd think I was trying to scare her and she wouldn't believe me.

Dentist: All right, now Mrs.——, if you'll sit down I'll take a look at that tooth. There, open your mouth.

Wife: You're sure you won't hurt me, Doctor.

Husband: Don't talk so much, give the Doc a chance to see the tooth.

Dentist: Yes, the tooth's got to come out. I'll inject something into the tooth so it won't hurt.

Wife: Come, here John and hold my hand. I feel like I would scream. I'm so nervous. I don't know when I've been so nervous before I hope I don't faint. Would you pull the tooth just the same if I should faint, doctor. All right, then I won't faint.

Dentist: There, open your mouth again. There, that don't hurt, does it? (Wife can't speak but she can still nod her head). Now, once again. Just once more and we'll be through and you won't feel the tooth come out. There now, it's ready to come out.

Wife: You sure it's not going to hurt?

Dentist: No, it won't hurt much. Are you ready? Well, grab onto the arm of the chair and hold tight. All ready now. (Dentist starts to pull).

Wife: Ooooooooohh, Ouaaaaaahhh.

Dentist: There it is.

Wife (recovering her powers of speech): Somebody has died to me. And you, you, (looking at her husband) are full of baloney.

LORD DERBY WITHDAWS ONLY HORSE IN DERBY

LONDON, June 2—(AP)—With Sir Hugo Hirst's Diolite still the reigning favorite to win the renewal of the Epsom Downs Derby Wednesday, the field was narrowed down to nineteen today with the scratching of Lord Derby's Caerleon. Diolite is quoted at 5 to 2.

The scratching of Lord Derby's three-year old leaves the English sportsman without a representative in the mile and one-half classic for the first time in recent years. Lord Derby originally named four for the rich stake but Caerleon was the only one declared last week. The three-year old pulled up lame yesterday after a stiff workout.

William Woodward's Scout II, the only American horse in the race, went six furlongs at a smooth pace this afternoon. As the result some tipsters are beginning to mention the Woodward colt as a prominent contender for the Derby prize. The bookmakers quoted 25 to 1 on him today as against 33 to 1 following his victory in the Newmarket stakes.

At the derby luncheon given at the Press club today for owners, trainers and jockeys, Sir Hirst expressed confidence in Diolite, saying the horse was in the best condition of his career and should not be beaten.

Steve Donoghue, winner of six derbys and who will have the mount on A. E. Cox's Sea Rover this year, said: "Whichever horse defeats Diolite will win."

ACADEMY HAS SLIM CHANCE FOR LEAGUE TIE

Possessing a thread of a mathematical chance for tying for the league championship, the Academy meets Stonington at Stonington tomorrow while Bulkeley, prospective titleholders, tackles Westerly at Westerly. If Bulkeley wins this game it will be all over but should they lose and the Academy win two remaining games, then things would be tied. Butsy Weisgraber is expected to do the pitching for the locals with Capt. Godomsky on the mound for Stonington. N. F. A. swamped Stonington in the game played here early in the season, 22 to 3.

Just who is going to be the state champion this year, if any, is a question that has arisen in the minds of many. It looks like there will be no such thing. There is not an outstanding club in the state at the present time with only two weeks of the season remaining. Harding has lost six times, three of them to state high schools. Hillhouse has lost three in succession now after winning 13 straight. New Britain has lost four. N. F. A., three in the state, and one outside, Bulkeley four and tied one, and so on.

SCHMELING HAS DAY OF REST AT CAMP

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 2—(AP)—Max Schmeling took an enforced rest today from his training grind because of lack of availing sparring partners. The German heavyweight will start boxing again tomorrow when a new set of spar mates will arrive in camp to replace those worn out by Max's punching.

Schmeling did his customary road work before breakfast and spent the remainder of the day on the golf links. He turned in a card of 110 for the morning 18 holes, breaking his own course record, and set out in the afternoon to do even better.

Devoe Elected Track Leader

NEW HAVEN, June 2—(AP)—The Yale track team tonight elected Arthur Gerard Devoe, of Governor's Island, N. Y., as next year's captain. He has been a high hurdler for two years. Daniel C. Cook, of Waterbury, will be the 1931 manager. Emmert W. Bates, of Detroit, was chosen as assistant manager and will succeed Cook in 1932.

KAPLIN WINS VERDICT OVER JOEY MEDILL; PENA KAYOES REED

HARTFORD, June 2—(AP)—Louis Kid Kaplan, of Hartford, won a ten round decision over Joey Medill, of Chicago, in the feature bout of the first open air bouts held at Hurley's velodrome here tonight. Kaplan weighed 135, Medill 137 1-2.

In the semi-final bout, Joe Smith, Hartford, 164 1-2, won an eight round decision over Battling Tracy, 163, New York.

Johnny Pena, 121 1-2, New York, won on a technical knockout over Eddie Reed, 118, Hartford, in the sixth round of a scheduled eight round bout.

Young Grenado, 123, New York, won on a technical knockout in the fourth round over Nick Christy, 125 1-2, Bristol, in what was to be a six round bout.

Marty Martino, 124 1-2, Hartford, won a four round decision over Johnny Angelo, 126, East Hartford.

Johnny Pinkum, 144, Hartford, knocked out Art Polowitzer, 141 1-2, East Hartford, in the second round of the opening four round bout.

GREENE LEADS BATTERS ON W-M FROSH TEAM

The Norwich delegation at William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va., which covered itself with glory in the athletic line in the school year now closing, will arrive home this week. This includes, Johnny Greene, Buck LaCroix, Jack Marks and Mace Goldblatt. All are former Academy luminaries.

The first three composed the outfield on the strong freshman team there while Goldblatt was a receiver on the varsity, although through injury he was kept out of the lineup most of the season.

LaCroix, at the conclusion of the freshman season, was as is the custom down there, elected its captain. Buck cavorted in centerfield, Greene in left and Marks in right. Greene also pitched two games and won them. The freshman won 12 games and lost two. Johnny pitched the last game of the season against Woodrow Wilson prep and beat them 9 to 1, allowing but three hits and would have had a shutout only for errors by his teammates.

Greene was the leading batter of the team, with a mark of .471. LaCroix was in third place with .350 and Marks fourth with .340. Johnny walloped six homers, four triples and two doubles.

From reports coming from the college the whole three local boys will have an excellent chance of making the varsity next season. The team will make a trip north, playing Princeton, Yale, Providence college, Boston college, Harvard, Holy Cross, N. Y. U. and Fordham.

They have all been listening in to the Norwich broadcast Friday nights from WTIC and claim it makes them homesick.

COLUMBIA NOSES OUT PENN IN TENTH

NEW YORK, June 2—(AP)—Columbia closed its home baseball season before a Commencement day crowd of 2,000 with a ten inning victory today over Pennsylvania, 4 to 3. It was the second meeting of Columbia and Pennsylvania this season in the Eastern Intercollegiate league.

Tom McLoughlin, Columbia third baseman, broke up the game with a double in the tenth, scoring Johnny Balquist, who had singled. The victory avenged Columbia's earlier defeat by Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, 7 to 1.

The defeat put Pennsylvania out of the running for the league championship and apparently clinched the flag for Dartmouth, although Yale still has a chance to tie for top honors.

Score by innings:
Pennsylvania . 001 110 000 0—3 12 2

MRS. STETSON LEADS FIELD IN EASTERN TOURNAMENT

BROOKLINE, Mass., June 2.—(AP)—Mrs. H. B. Stetson, of Huntington Valley, Philadelphia, former women's national golf champion, today led a field of 96 starters in the opening round of the three-day 54-hole medal tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf association, with a card of 86, here at the Country club. Mrs. J. L. Anderson, of Garden City, L. I., ended the first day's going as runner-up to the medalist with an 87 and Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Oakley, Watertown, placed third with an 88. The field, lacking its usual quota of outstanding players, due to Curtis cup matches in England, suffered another severe blow when Martha Parker, the Metropolitan association titlist, failed to tee-off during the day.

YALE HAS THREE MILE PRACTICE ROW AND SPRINT

GALES FERRY, June 2—(AP)—Yale's varsity boat rowed three miles upstream this evening as a part of its practice for the Harvard regatta. On the return trip, the beat was raised to about 40 for a short sprint.

The junior varsity also paddled three miles up the Thames; but did not attempt a sprint. This morning both crews went downstream for two miles.

Coach Don Grant organized a combination boat this afternoon and sent it three and a quarter miles upstream, paying most attention to form. Those in the boat were Walcott, bow; King, 2; Church, 3; Goodale, 4; Williams, 5; Manuel, 6; Turner, 7; Irving, stroke and Conger, coxswain.

The freshman oarsmen took over the old varsity shell today and spent most of the time becoming adjusted to it but managed to get in a two mile row.

HARVARD HAS FIRST ROWING PRACTICE ON THAMES

RED TOP, June 2—(AP)—Four Harvard crews went out on the Thames river today for their first workouts in preparation for the races with Yale on June 20. They arrived at their training quarters here last night.

The varsity and junior varsity boats went downstream for three miles this morning and covered the four mile course at a slow, easy stroke late this afternoon. Coach Whiteside expressed himself as satisfied over the condition of his men.

The freshmen and combination crews took to the water this afternoon for a three mile spin.

Besides practice for the regatta, the Harvard men are occupied with examinations which are now in progress.

Silver Bullets, Jrs., Win

The Silver Bullets Jrs., won their second straight game defeating the Cliff street All Stars Monday by the score of 7 to 5.

PHILLIES STAGE LATE RALLY TO BEAT CARDS

PHILADELPHIA, June 2—(AP)—Rallying in the closing innings, the Phillies defeated the Cardinals 9 to 6 today in the only game played in either of the major leagues.

The Cardinals were away to a four run lead in the first inning but the Phillies drove Hallahan from the mound in the seventh, following the scoring of two runs in the fourth, a like number in the fifth and three in the seventh to grab the lead. Bell pitched the eighth and was nicked for another two runs.

Collins started for the Phillies but was relieved by Elliott in the seventh, who held the Cards in check. It was the Cardinals seventh straight defeat. Whitney led the Phillies attack with two doubles and two singles in five trips to the plate. Hafey drove out a home run for the Cards in the first inning, scoring three runs.

PLAINFIELD TAKES SECOND PLACE BEATING WAUREGAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WAUREGAN, June 2—The Plainfield team went into second place in the Eastern Connecticut Twilight league by defeating the Wauregan team, 3 to 1, here tonight. Pechie, on the mound for the visitors was in top form, limiting the locals to three hits and fanning seven in the five innings of play. Lavalle pitched well for Wauregan. Pechie and Mette of Plainfield were robbed of home runs by spectacular catches.

The two teams meet again Tuesday night at Plainfield, the game starting at 6:45. Marriott or Klosbeck will hurl for Plainfield and it is expected that Lavalle will again go to the mound for Wauregan. The score:

HALL WINS TWO MATCHES IN DEFENSE OF TITLE

HARTFORD, June 2—(AP)—J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, N. J., defending his New England tennis title in the opening rounds of the annual elimination series, at the Hartford Golf club this afternoon, met and defeated two opponents and will rest tomorrow before resuming competition for the 1930 championship. Hall beat Bob Ryan, of Yale, in the first match 6-1, 2-6, 6-4, and trounced R. DeCorlete, Hartford, 6-1, 6-1, in the second.

The champion had the blue netman confused during the first set with a ball that barely skipped the net and took a low bound at the middle of the court but Ryan came back to take the second set, 6-2, and forced Hall to play his best tennis to win the deciding series, 6-4. Hall easily beat DeCorlete, consistently placing his shots out of reach of the Hartford player.

In the other feature matches, "Hobey" Hyde, runner-up last year, of Hartford, beat H. C. Robinson, of Hartford, 6-1, 6-2; and Ed Tarantiol, of New York, beat A. J. Smith, Waterbury, 6-2, 6-1, while Richard Murphy, of Utica, beat Harold Nearing, of Hartford, 6-1, 6-1.

HAYDEN BEATS DOLAN IN AMATEUR FEATURE

WATERBURY, June 2—(AP)—"Sonny Boy" Hayden, Torrington, 131, won a three round decision over Eddie Dolan, 144, in the feature bout of the Waterbury A. C. amateur boxing card, at Mulligan's stadium here tonight. Other results:

Danny Martin, Jr., Waterbury, defeated Joey King, New Haven.

Joe Harmon, New Haven, defeated Richard Valle, Waterbury, foul.

Don Knapp, New Haven, knocked out Allie Brown, Norwalk.

Eddie Jessup, Torrington, knocked out Joe Burns, Waterbury.

Tony Lavero, Bristol, defeated Jack Ready, New Haven.

Johnny Vitallo, New Haven, knocked out Johnny Davis, Norwalk.

Willie Attell, Norwalk, defeated Al Taylor, Bristol.

TRIPLE PLAY FEATURES MONTVILLE-COLCHESTER GAME

Bullet Buck Shahan of Montville Independents again pitched his team to victory by whitewashing the Colchester Shamrocks 16 to 0 at the Gair diamond Sunday afternoon, before a large crowd. The feature of the game was a triple play in the sixth inning, when Shahan caught a fly off the bat of Colchester's first baseman, throwing the ball to McKinney on first to put out Joseph Polack, he in turn throwing the ball to McDermott, who retired Slavkin at second. Awezec, Pinch, Caron, McKinney and Shahan held the honors for heavy hitting, Awezec getting three singles out of four trips to the plate. He also stole five bases. Caron, out of six times at bat, collected a single and double. Pinch, opt of five trips at the plate, got three hits, one being a two-bagger. Shahan, out of five trips, got one double and a single. McKinney, out of five times at bat, collected two singles. McDermott of the Independents also figured in a double play in the second inning, when he caught Solomon's fly and tagged out Fedus at second.

When LIFE is at STAKE!

The Mark of Quality

FOR ten consecutive years all the winning cars in that classic of automobile racing, the Indianapolis 500 Mile endurance race, flashed across the finish line on Firestone Tires.

IN FACT every famous driver in these races used Firestone Tires. Every one of them for years has refused to use any other and the reasons behind their choice tell a story of Firestone Leadership.

Leadership

Firestone brought out for automobile use:

—The first straight-side tire.

—The first rubber non-skid tire.

—The first commercial demountable rim.

—The first patented Gum-Dipping process.

—The first balloon tire.

Performance

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires

—hold all world's records on road and track for safety, mileage, speed and endurance.

—for ten consecutive years have won the 500-mile Indianapolis Endurance Race.

—were on winning cars in Pike's Peak Race—where a slip meant death.

—were on the Studebaker car which on a board track at Atlantic City in 1928 went 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes.

—ran 71,351 miles on a Detroit taxicab before the first tire was replaced.

—were on the G. M. C. truck carrying a two-ton load that hung up the Coast-to-Coast endurance record.

—for 10 years have been sold on a mileage cost basis to taxicab and bus lines in greater volume than any other tires, and now equip the world's largest taxicab fleet and the world's longest bus line.

THE Indianapolis Race requires the most expert driving in the world. It is won or lost on the turns. The man who can make the turns at the highest speed is the man who wins. The track is of rough brick and bumpy. As the race progresses, it becomes soaked with oil and very slippery.

THESE men flirt with death, but there is one chance they will not take. They will not take a chance with tires.

THESE drivers buy Firestone Tires. Their tires are not given to them by Firestone, much less are they paid to use them. And herein is the story.

MANY years ago, Firestone did pay drivers to race. The most famous of these drivers was Barney Oldfield and he painted on his car: "Firestone Tires Are My Only Life Insurance".

IN THE course of time Firestone withdrew from racing and the making of racing tires. Then the trouble began. The leading drivers of the country said that it was Mr. Firestone's business whether or not he paid them to use his tires, but it was their business to judge the risks they would take. They would race on Firestone Tires, no matter what they cost, or they would not race at all. And so Firestone had again to make racing tires.

THE difference between a Firestone racing tire and the Firestone tire you can buy from your dealer lies only in the tread. The heat generated in a tire during a race is terrific. It is heat that causes most tires to fail. The ordinary road tread will burn up on a track, and so for it Firestone substitutes a harder, lighter tread which would be exceedingly uncomfortable on the road but which perfectly answers the track requirements.

THAT, however, is only a detail. The reason why Firestone Tires stand up in any race is to be found in their construction. The same construction that you get in any Firestone Tire.

IN ALL tires other than Firestone, the cotton cords which go to make up the carcass of the tire are merely imbedded in rubber. In the complex twisting and pulling of these cords in a tire in action, the fibers in the cords rub against one another. The friction generates heat and when the heat reaches a certain point the tire collapses.

IN THE Firestone Tire, each of the millions of fine cotton fibers going to make up a cord is thoroughly insulated with rubber in the famous, patented Gum-Dipping process which is exclusive with Firestone. This reduces the friction in the cords and therefore reduces the heat and enables the Firestone Tire to perform normally under conditions where any other tire would collapse.

NO RACING car can be better than its tires. Neither can any other car. The racing drivers trust life and victory to Firestone Leadership. That same leadership is available to you at all Firestone Dealers.

TURNOVER OF ONLY 1,710,800 SHARES IN MARKET AFTER THREE DAY LAYOFF

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Hopes that the three-day vacation would revive the stock market were quickly dissipated today. Lethargy was virtually the only characteristic of the trading, as the day's turnover of only 1,710,800 shares attested. It was the smallest since Jan. 20.

The little speculative interest that was stirring manifested itself in a relatively limited selection of stocks. Steel specialties, the foods and a few merchandising shares were the favorites, although the utilities, which give some promise of merger developments, averaged higher. The rails, after meeting further liquidation in the earlier hours, recovered partially. Leading industrials eased.

Shorts were busy in numerous issues, particularly J. I. Case, which closed at 273 1-2, or 14 points below last Thursday's final quotation. Radio was also under pressure, yielding about a point and a half. Such stocks as U. S. Steel, General Electric, General Motors and Standard Oil of New Jersey, sagged fractionally in the absence of demand.

Republic Steel rallied about 3 points, the best gain in the steel group. U. S. Pipe and McKeesport Tin Plate were also strong, while Vanadium advanced 2 points, only to lose most of its rise. Goodyear, Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, General Foods rose, the last named breaking its previous 1930 high. International Harvester lost nearly 2.

Dividend reductions by three copper companies, including Kennecott, failed to cause a flurry in the group, which appeared to have been well deflated. Directors of Anaconda, one of the few remaining large producers which have not yet acted on the dividend question, meet in about a fortnight.

Commodity prices drifted irregularly. Wheat lost about a cent to a cent and a half in speculative response to beneficial rains in the northwest and a disappointing decrease in the American visible supply. Corn was steady and fractionally higher. Cotton declined 15 to 30 points net, reflecting favorable week-end weather. Raw sugar futures advanced in the early dealings, but subsequently reacted, closing almost unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were extremely dull and eased. Most of the leading European currencies made small declines.

33 BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED BY FIRE MARSHAL DURING MONTH

With the granting of six building permits at the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft during the last week in May, the total number of permits for the month was brought to 33. About half the permits were for alterations to frame buildings, while there were three for new dwelling houses. The total valuation of the new work was given as $31,633 by the owners in making their applications.

The report for the month follows:

New frame houses	3
New frame garages	6
New frame henhouse	1
New frame sheds	3
New cement garage	1
Alterations to present frame buildings	17
Alterations to present brick buildings	1
Alterations to brick and frame buildings	1
Total	33

Estimated cost by applicants—$31,633.

The following were the permits issued by Fire Marshal Taft last week:

To Walter Magesky to erect a one-car frame garage, 10x16 feet, in the rear of his home on Glezen street. The estimated cost is $125.

To Joseph Kornacki to erect a frame building, 7x11 feet, at 156 Boswell avenue to be used as a tool shed. The estimated cost is $18.

To Rebecca Crumb to extend a woodshed at 49 Maple street so that it will be large enough to accommodate one car. The extension will be 3x9 feet. The estimated cost is $25.

To Patrick McGrath to construct a two-car garage at 16 Goldberg avenue. The garage will be of frame construction with cement foundation and floor. The garage will be 20x20 feet. The estimated cost is $250.

To D. Hanna to erect a cement two-car garage at 445 Main street for Alfred C. Brine. The garage will be 19x19 feet. The estimated cost is $675.

To Anthony Wajdalowski to build an addition to his home at 55 North Cliff street. The addition will be 19x6 feet and one and one-half stories in height. The addition is for a kitchen and a bedroom. There will be a cement foundation and the superstructure will be of frame. The estimated cost is $200.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were seven sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, exactly the same number as for the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $23,534 and $20,100.

During the past week in New London there were nine sales of real estate as compared to five sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $26,478 and $21,300.

NEW LONDON

Prices of building materials are more favorable now than they have been in years, according to local building material dealers.

Most impressive of the reductions in prices in the immediate past has been those of rough lumber used for framing. These prices have been dropped from around $45 a thousand feet to $35 and $35 during the past four months, according to the dealers.

In keeping with the decrease in price of rough lumber the cost of millwork, masonry supplies, plumbing and electrical supplies have also shown appreciable decreases so that the prospective builder can obtain better prices than have been possible for years.

Millwork has been on a steady decline in price for the past five years and is now 25 per cent lower than it was a half a decade ago. This steady reduction is attributed to two things, improved woodworking machinery in the factories that turn out millwork and increasingly more intensive competition.

The plastering has been completed and all finished floors are down in the children's ward of the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals for which the H. Wales Lines company has the general contract. Work will start on the construction of the interior trim next week. The trim will be of the regular hospital type which is flush with the walls so that there are no projections to collect dust.

The walls for the new heating plant being erected in the rear of the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals were completed to the roof this week and work will start next week on the erection of the steel roof supports. The big chimney for the heating plant has already been completed. Besides the boiler room and equipment the heating plant building, which is being erected by the H. Wales Lines company, will contain a large garage and quarters for the ambulance drivers. A feature of the boiler room interior will be the use of arkatex tile for the walls, a glazed tile in cream color that provides an attractive interior finish for industrial purposes. It is believed to be the first installation of its kind in the city.

Building Permits

James Flanagan, frame addition, 342 Broad street, $500.

A. Rakosky, frame dwelling, Plant street, $9,000.

Geo. Sadinsky, frame dwelling, 12 Rosemary street, $4,500.

M. F. Dwyer, frame dwelling, 10 Rogers street, $7,000.

Morris Levine, frame dwelling and store, 59 Jefferson avenue, $5,000.

Gertrude F. Doyle, garage, 42 Lester street, $600.

Total number of permits issued for the week, 7; estimated cost of buildings, $27,100.

CHECK UP HEATER IN THE OFF SEASON

The prudent home owner will call on a heating contractor some time during the spring or summer months to make a thorough inspection of the radiator heating plant. Following are a few of the points that a competent man will note:

Most hot water and steam boilers are fitted with regulators to control dampers. The operation of the chains and pulleys should be checked and worn parts replaced.

Sometimes the turn damper becomes loosened in the shaft to the extent that the handle on the outside of the pipe does not indicate the true position of the damper.

If the boiler door is badly warped or cracked it should be replaced, since a door that is hard to close causes inconvenience and often results in the loss of draft as well as the inability to control the fire. Hinge pins should be examined carefully. Grates should be checked.

The mortar between the bricks of a chimney and around the smoke pipe often deteriorates to a point where it is completely eroded by the weather. This condition causes a leakage of cold air into the chimney and often interferes with proper draft.

If an inspection of the heating plant reveals excessive accumulation of flue dirt this should be removed in the spring. If this is delayed until the end of summer a thin layer of corroded iron will peel off the soot. Soot should be scraped from the smokepipe, and all ashes and refuse should be taken from the ashpit and firepot.

NEW CONTRIVANCES FOR THE KITCHEN

New kitchen utensils are perhaps not so flowery as heretofore, but they are infinitely more serviceable. Pots and pans may be had now in indestructable steel, guaranteed for a lifetime. They will not rust, burn or be affected by vegetable acid, and they come in all conceivable shapes and sizes, including double boilers, mixing bowls, preserving kettles, frying pans, and even refrigerator dishes.

Aluminum is as popular as ever, and a novel set in this material consists of triplicate pans closely fitted together, making it possible to cook three foods over one burner, and permit the housekeeper to keep her fuel bill down. Probably the most ingenious of the new kitchen contrivances is a cooker which makes it possible to prepare a whole meal at once over one burner. It contains pans and racks for meat, vegetables and deserts. Only a small quantity of water is put in the cooker, and as soon as the automatic vapor lid begins to click, the gas underneath may be turned down to a pin-point and cooking will continue.—The American Home.

CABINETMAKERS USED MUCH WALNUT

Contrary to the impression of many amateurs that colonial furniture always was made of maple, birch, pine or mahogany, collectors acknowledge that some of the finest examples of 18th century American cabinetwork were the lowboys and highboys of Pennsylvania, constructed of American walnut. Throughout Pennsylvania and the colonies to the south, walnut was very popular from the earliest days. Only in New England was it neglected, because in the early days there was no native walnut in the New England colonies, and in those days transportation facilities were so inadequate as to force the local cabinetmakers to rely largely upon the woods at hand.

During the past century or so New England has, however, not only grown much native walnut, but its cabinet makers, especially those skilled workmen who did such excellent work between 1825 and 1900, have turned out some rare examples of New England colonial furniture in this beautiful wood.

WINDOW RADIATORS HEAT OCCUPIED ZONE

What is the "under-the-ceiling" temperature of the rooms in your house? What is the temperature at the breathing line? And what is the temperature near the floor?

The answers to these questions determine the healthfulness and economy of a heating system as well as the comfort which it will give to the occupants of the room. Obviously, it is neither economical nor comfortable to have the air immediately under the ceiling several degrees warmer than the air at the breathing line and the air at the breathing line (five feet from the floor) warmer than the air two feet six inches from the floor. It is most economical to have the air comfortably warm at the hight at which people walk and sit. This is commonly referred to as the "occupied zone" of a room.

Research work during the last year at one of the leading schools of engineering has proved that this occupied zone of the room can be warmed most effectively by a long, low window type of radiator which gives to the room a relatively low under-the-ceiling temperature while it concentrates its heating effects where it will do the most good. This sort of heat delivery can be accomplished only with heat by radiator.

ROSE BOWER EFFECT GAINED BY WALL PAPER

Mind pictures of all the small houses that some day will be called "home" include a bower of roses to welcome the home owners. A modern and practical adaptation of this romantic tradition can be made with wall paper in the entrance hall. The design of the paper shows thick clusters of small, bright roses climbing over a scarcely visible trellis. By carrying the paper up over the ceiling the effect is indeed that of a rose arbor.

The dream cottage nearly always had sheer, ruffled curtains at small leaded windows. In the case of the real home, the curtains may be of cream colored organdy to match cream colored woodwork.

INDOOR HOT-DAY COMFORT

Electric fans render us independent of weather. Turn on your own breeze in any room that is stuffy! A household utility fan placed opposite the window will make the kitchen comfortable in the hottest weather. After the table is set start a fan in the dining room. And at night a bedside fan will give you eight hours of refreshing sleep for only four cents.

PHILIPPINE HARDWOOD RECOMMENDED FOR TRIM

Philippine hardwood, a recent entry into the field of interior trim is now packaged in cartons and may be purchased for immediate use. All cuts are accurate and each carton is double checked as to quantity and quality of pieces before enclosure in strong, dust-proof packages. This trim is guaranteed and reaches the user clean and undamaged.

The cost of Philippine hardwood trim is reasonable, only slightly higher than plain oak. The low cost is made possible because there is no import duty imposed on the lumber.

It is all dark red, fine textured, straight stock and is cut in a standard size used in many sections of the country. Its use will enhance the value and appearance of a room greatly in excess of its cost. Special patterns of molding or trim, as well as cabinets and panels may be obtained from the manufacturer if the architecture of the home demands it.

LAMPS OF WROUGHT IRON ATTRACTIVE

Styles in floor lamps are increasing rapidly in number. No longer is it necessary to follow a single popular style. In fact, many are going in for as much variety as possible, with the result that the room of many lamps has become the room of many-styled lamps. Variety is preferred and one glance into the establishments of house furnishers should convince one that variety is within the reach of everyone.

In all this search for novel ideas in light standards why not give more than a passing thought to wrought iron? Wrought iron isn't the cold, severe material of former years. Today the manufacturers of wrought iron fixtures are going in for the artistic fully as much as manufacturers of other lines. Wrought iron lends itself naturally to graceful lines and artistic curves, while by some means or other the manufacturers are creating all sorts of color effects which lend a peculiar air of beauty to wrought iron objects.

Bird cage holders, curtain rods, flower and plant holders, even smoking sets, are quite popular when made of wrought iron. For that reason the wrought iron light standard should feel quite at home in such company. It is quite possible, too, to have them made in designs of one's own devising, and for prices which are far from exorbitant.

CLOSET CABINETS MEET MANY NEEDS

The growing popularity of kitchen cabinets and cupboards in adaptable sizes apparently has convinced various nationally known woodwork establishments that the idea is worthy of further development. One of them now is advertising a variety of closet cabinets for the convenient storage of shoes, rubbers and miscellaneous articles of wearing apparel. They come in numerous forms and sizes, the object being, apparently, to produce a cupboard that will fit any closet or any space.

Many a closet, especially those which extend under the eaves, has considerable waste space. These little cupboards utilize much of this and take up none of the room usually devoted to coats, dresses and frocks. In fact, by eliminating the usual row of shoes.

COMBINATION STORM AND SCREEN SASH

Combination storm and screen doors have been with us now for several years and appear to be gaining steadily in popularity. Now another combination has been devised—a combination winter and summer basement window which would appear fully as inviting as the storm and screen door. These new basement windows are metal-framed and so constructed that the outer glass panels can be removed as soon as the thermometer rises to summer heat and make room for screened panels.

These removable sashes, it should be understood, are entirely independent of a permanent glass-paned window which swings in at the top. The permanent sash is on the inner side of the metal window frame, while the window with the removable sashes is on the outer side. In winter the extra sash serves as a storm sash for the basement, making that area much more comfortable than is possible with a single sash; while in summer, with the screen in position, the upper portion of the permanent sash may be drawn back a few inches and fastened, permitting a free current of air to enter the basement.

SHRUBBERY AS SCREENS

Don't forget that quick-growing shrubs are quite effective in shutting out unsightly views. Some of these, which boast really beautiful foliage in midseason, grow quite rapidly. They will serve nicely while the slower-growing shrubs are coming up to form a permanent screen.

SAVING MONEY WITH BRICK

Fortunate brick home owners, who have no wories about saving the surface, enjoy a big advantage over their less ofresighted neighbors. Present day painting costs are about double what they were before the war. Automobile costs are not correspondingly decreased, yet they are generally lower. Some fairly good cars are now surprisingly low priced. Three painting bills today are just about equivalent to the cost of a medium priced car. That is one of the advantages of the brick home.

NEW ENGLAND CONTRACTS

Contracts for building and engineering projects awarded during the week ended May 29, amount to $9,502,300, according to the F. W. Dodge corporation. The average of contracts awarded during previous weeks this year totaled $6,613,800, while those awarded during the corresponding week last year amounted to $8,775,400.

HENS KEEP STEADY GAIT IN EGG LAYING

In the 30th week in the Storrs egg-laying contest, the hens held almost steady. The let-up last week totaled only 34 eggs for the entire lot or a drop of an egg a day for each 200 hens, an almost negligible fraction.

The total production for all pens was 4,873 or a yield of 69.7 per cent. Although the pace slackened the least little bit as compared with the previous week, the birds, nevertheless, bettered the performance of the corresponding week a year ago by the comfortable margin of 188 eggs.

Tolvonen Leghorn Farm at Girard, Pa., won the week with a tally of 95 eggs. This pen from Pennsylvania is not only best in its class but is likewise leading all other breeds and varieties. Two pens of Barred Rocks entered by Pratt Experimental Farm at Morton, Pa., and R. C. Cobb at Littleton, Mass., gave the Leghorns a run for their money by tying for second place with 84 eggs each.

Hanson's Leghorn Farm at Corvallis, Ore., was an equally close third with a mark of 83 eggs or a production of just an even 90 per cent. Another Pacific coast pen of Leghorns owned by Hollywood Poultry Farm at Woodinville, Wash., tied with Scott Poultry Farm's pen of Reds from Groton, Mass., for fourth place. These two pens came through with 81 eggs each.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 1,518; Fisher P. Farm, Ayton, Ont., 1,354.

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass.; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 1,492; Spring Brook Farm, South Wethersfield, Conn., 1,455.

White Rocks—E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 1,389; Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass., 1,258; Adam F. Potl, Hartford, Wis., 1,252.

Rhode Island Reds—Edw. N. Larrabee, Peterboro, N. H., 1,658; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1,654; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1,637; Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 1,612.

White Leghorns—Tolvonen Leghorn Farm, Girard, Pa., 1,833; Steelman Poultry Farms, Lansdale, Pa., 1,614; Geo. Lowry P. Farm, Inc., West Willington, Conn., 1,593; Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 1,577; Leighton Orchards, Kingston, R. I., 1,571.

Michigan banks may soon require finger print indoreement in cashing the checks of strangers if they subscribe to a recent suggestion of the Michigan Bankers' Association. "No honest stranger will object to this method and no crook will comply as they recognize it is positive identification," the recent bulletin says.

SIX BEDROOMS, LOTS OF COLOR IN THIS DESIGN

There is more room in this house than one might guess from the outside. Six of the nine rooms actually may be used as sleeping rooms if necessary.

The second floor has four bedrooms, there is a maid's room over the garage, and a room on the first floor may be used as either guest room or library. Dining room and living room are secluded at the rear. A large fireplace adds to the coziness of the latter.

In rainy weather one may enter the two-car garage directly from the house by way of the kitchen entry, back of which is a pantry and two-fixture lavatory.

Lovers of color will like this type of house, for the exterior is French in character, which lends itself well to bright decoration. Plenty of reds and browns can be worked into the roof, which may be of either shingles or tiles. A green or French gray for the front door and other woodwork would match well with the warm colors of the roof.

Walls and chimney are of brick, painted white, to set off the colors of the roof and woodwork. Additional charm for the exterior may be gained by laying the garage and front doors in diagonal pattern as shown, and they could be treated in two colors, one panel in buff and the other in dark green. Plenty of color is not out of place in suburban homes such as this.

A woven wood fence to enclose the garden is suggested as it would harmonize with the house. Tasteful landscaping would complete the effect.

A lot 75x100 feet is desirable for this home, with the house facing north. The cost would run from $10,000 to $12,000.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

C. O. Jelliff Manufacturing Corporation, Southport.

The C. O. Jelliff Manufacturing corporation is celebrating this year, its 50th anniversary, having been established in Southport in 1880 by C. O. Jelliff.

Mr. Jelliff, at that time, was conducting a hardware store. His first manufactured articles were ox muzzles and hair cloth sieves. The hair cloth was woven on a carpet loom by hand, of course, and the ox muzzles were made in the back of his store by young boys.

The business was gradually enlarged to embrace all branches of wire weaving and a limited line of wire goods. In 1906 Mr. Jelliff interested local capital and moved to the present quarters. He died in 1914 and the business was conducted by the Jelliff family, until 1916 when the present management controlled.

The chief product of the company is woven wire, from the coarsest to the finest meshes. They specialize in the non-ferrous wires; the finished cloth being used chiefly in the industries, among the most prominent of which are radio, automotive, filtration and kindred lines.

The present management is the same as when the business was taken over in 1916. The officers are: Wilmot F. Wheeler, president; Frederic C. Bassick, vice president; Henry H. Rannell, secretary, treasurer and general manager.

If present plans are carried out, a research laboratory in Akron's municipal airport will have the first vertical wind tunnel in the United States.

POETRY

The Haunted Garden

There are spirits in my garden
When the moon is shining bright
And the stepping stones all glisten
With the jeweled dew of night;
When the hedgerows print their shadows
On the lawns and flower beds,
And the bloodroot and the windflower
Softly nod their sleepy heads.
There's a something comes a-stealing
By the bird-path and the wall
That makes known its mystic presence
Barely known, and that is all.

When the verry ceases chanting
And the whip-poor-will's at rest
And the robin in the apple
Sleeps upon her precious nest,
There's a sweet and pungent odor
From the black loam and the roots,
From the scent of mingled blossoms
Where the bee in daylight loots—
There's the perfume of a presence,
Like a lovely woman's hair
Fluffed by Summer winds and sun shine,
On the quiet evening air.

There is soft and stilly music
Out from underneath the stones
Where the crickets play their fiddles,
And the tree-toad's louder tones
Issue from the woodbine clinging
To the leading cherry tree—
There is music fit for angels,
And the angels come to me
Where I lean upon the gateposts
And remember those who've walked
In my garden of an evening,
Walked with me and softly talked.

There are faces in my garden
When the moon is shining bright
And the shadows of the years
Fall across the pathways white;
Lovely faces framed in moonlight,
Eyes of starlight, dark as sloes—
Red young lips with smiles upon them—
Smiling still beneath their snows.
Somewhere in the world, I doubt not—
Old, like mine, without a bow—
But tonight they crowd around me
Where the sweet alyssums grow.

—J. Otis Swift, in Lewiston Journal

Tell All The World

Tell all the world that summer's here again,
With song and joy, tell them, that they may know
How, on the hillside, in the shingle fields
New clumps of violets and daisies grow.

Tell all the world that summer's here again,
That white clouds voyage through a sky so still
With blue tranquility, it seems to hang
One windless tapestry, from hill to hill.

Tell all the world that summer's here again;
Folk go about so solemnly and slow
Walking each one his grooved and ordered way—
I fear that otherwise they will not know!

—Harry Kemp.

NEW LONDON COMMERCE HIGH SCHOOL CUT FROM SYSTEM BY CITY COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 2.—The city council held a meeting tonight of more than two hours' duration, at which the high school of commerce was cut out of the school system of New London. Councilor Miner, reporting for the finance committee, said that he condemned the expense in unreserved language and that at the hearing in committee the vote was 5 to 1 against continuing the school. He urged that no appropriation be made for its continuance and said that it was proposed to educate the pupils in the Williams Memorial institute, at the extra cost of $4,000 for the employment of two additional teachers. The cost of the school of commerce was $16,000. He said the attitude had been approved by educators capable of judging the situation. He pointed out that the school of commerce had started with a $15,000 appropriation and had reached a $20,000 appropriation.

Councilor Fox declared the school an unnecessary expense. The board of school visitors had advocated the erection of a junior high school at $500,000 but their request was denied and the city got along without the high school and was even accommodating some of the grades of the other schools. He claimed the tendency was to create needless expenses for education, as had been decided by competent judges. The children would receive the same education in the W. M. I. as they would in a separate school.

A resolution was offered by Councilor Miner to abolish the school and that no appropriation be made for it.

Councilor May advocated the retention of the school for another year and said that educators advised that course. He said that the council had no right to dictate as to the curriculum of the schools. This was replied to by saying that the council did not dictate the curriculum, but did regulate the expense. The motion was adopted 5 to 2 with Mayor Twomey and May on the negative side.

The chamber of commerce asked for the use of the ferry station as a yacht station.

The council went on record as opposing the separation of the steamship line and the New Haven railroad and passed a resolution to that effect. The city manager being instructed to have the resolution presented to the commission in Boston July 16.

Gasoline station permits were granted to a dozen applicants but the application of the Atlantic Gasoline Co. for permission to erect at Tilley and Bany street was held up for investigation.

Permission to the Y. W. C. A. was granted to sell roses on the street, Saturday, June 7.

A score of applications for permits to alter and construct buildings were granted.

Contract for tile sewer pipe was awarded the Thames Lumber Co.

A contract for altering a portion of the pier at Riverside park was awarded the Merritt-Chapman Scott Co.

Councilor Fox objected to the printing of the annual report of the board of school visitors, saying that no one read it and that it was a waste of money. He said that in Hartford tons of reports were sold as junk every two years and that it was a waste of money to have them printed.

Louise Strother, colored and with a police record, was charged with conducting a disorderly house, rear of 195 Bank street. Euler Miller, also colored, and Frank MacMenimen, 13 Chelsea street, Boston, white, were charged with frequenting. The Strother woman was fined $10 and costs and the Miller woman was penalized $15 and costs. The charge against MacMenimen was nolled. MacMenimen was observed to enter the Strother house shortly after 11 o'clock last night and as the place is known as a resort for blacks and whites a raiding squad, Sergeant John Courtney and Patrolmen Frank Philopena, Michael Dorsey and Braxton Hill, went to the house and arrested all found there.

BROOKLYN CLERK AND C. G. SAILOR GET INTO COURT

George C. Roschmann, 21, of Brooklyn, N. Y., employed there as a clerk, was in New London Sunday and today he was presented in the police court on a charge of indecent assault. He was not convicted, in fact, a nolle was ordered, in the absence of corroborative evidence of his accuser, Joseph R. Riker, United States Coast Guard academy. The latter was also tried on a charge of theft, for he took $110 belonging to Roschmann. Riker's case was continued to July 5 that Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer might conduct further investigation.

Roschmann was standing in front of the municipal building, State street, Sunday afternoon, and made the acquaintance of Riker, who was in civilian attire. During the course of events, Roschmann invited Riker to his room in the Crocker House and there the two men partook of liquor. When the hour became late, Riker was invited to remain for the night and he accepted the invitation. When Roschmann awoke, about 4:30 o'clock, Riker had departed and the former's money was missing from his trousers pocket. Roschmann went to the street and informed Patrolman Frank Linehan of his loss and stated that Riker had been his guest, but had departed for the sailor was due back at the academy early. Roschmann was advised to go to police headquarters, which he did, and made formal complaint. Linehan then made a search for Riker and observing a sailor coming from the vicinity of a Main street locker room, Linehan approached him and, upon interrogating Riker, the sailor admitted taking the money and produced it from the pocket of his blouse, but declared that Roschmann had told him to take whatever money he needed. Riker was taken to police headquarters and when confronted with Roschmann, the sailor accused Roschmann of having committed an unnatural act and said he took the money because he was told he could do so. Roschmann was then arrested.

In court today the two men repeated their stories, but Roschmann emphatically denied Riker's allegation and there was no additional evidence to show that the Brooklyn man was not telling the truth and there was evidence of Riker having taken the money, for it was found in his possession, and by his own admission he removed it from the pocket of Roschmann's trousers.

VINE'S CASE CONTINUED—TURNER GIRL IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 2.—Edward S. Vine, 56 Colt street, married, charged with embezzlement and conversion, was not tried today, his case being continued to next Monday. His mother, Mrs. Mary Vine, qualified as surety on her son's bond of $2,500. Vine, who eloped with Dorothy Turner, 17, of 18 Starr street, two weeks ago, is specifically accused of having embezzled $150, funds of his employer, the Pequot Laundry company, and to have driven a car of the Hire and Drive It, Inc., from the state when the couple eloped and to have abandoned it in Seymour, Ind. This was prior to Vine and the girl going to Buffalo, N. Y., in which latter city both received money from the Turner girl's sister in New York so that they could return to New London, for Vine's funds had diminished. Vine returned to New London Saturday night and delivered himself into the custody of the police for he believed by doing so he would not be severely penalized. He has promised to make restitution by returning the money he stole from his employer and to recompense the owners of the abandoned automobile. The Turner girl returned to New London Sunday night and was in court today. No charge has been made against the girl.

Resents Wife's Injuries

James H. Hayes, a sailor, was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. The former count was nolled, but on the latter charge, the court ordered a continuance until July 9. Hayes returned to New London early today and upon going to his home found that his wife was absent. When Mrs. Hayes finally returned, her facial features had been rudely lifted for she was bruised and scratched. She explained the condition as being due to rough handling she had received from a chief petty officer while attending a party with several of her acquaintances. Hayes had been drinking and he armed himself with a bread knife and a paring knife and with his wife went to the residence where the party was said to have been held, but the petty officer had vanished. Mrs. Hayes went home, but Hayes continued a search for the officer. Hayes was in front of the Hotel Mohican, State street, at 4 o'clock, displayed the knives to a porter and made known to what purpose he intended to use his weapons. The porter informed Patrolman Clarence Wells and Hayes was arrested.

James James, California, charged with train riding, was given suspension of judgment. He was arrested Sunday by Special Agent Harold Swanson, New Haven railroad.

Norwich Driver Fined

Harold Dooley, 110 Central avenue, Norwich, was charged with passing an automatic danger signal, corner of Glenwood and Ocean avenues Sunday, and was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell.

Two Others Penalized

Henry A. Monroe, Waterford, was charged with the same offense, as was S. Rutherford Basson, 204 Montauk avenue. Monroe was fined $15 and costs and Basson was penalized $10 and costs.

Joseph R. Schwartz, 900 Ocean avenue, who was arrested charged with passing an automatic danger signal on Bank street, having been arrested Sunday by Patrolman George Bruhns, was discharged.

One case of intoxication was tried. The man, an old offender, was fined $10 and costs.

Joseph Castagna, of 4 Tinker court; Mrs. Robert Spiers and infant son, Old Lyme; Mrs. Anna Taylor, 10 Huntington street; Mrs. Harry Griswold and infant daughter, 361 Pequot avenue; Mrs. Harry Johnson and infant son, Groton; Mrs. Sadie Grett, Stonington; Mrs. Wilbur Tslomm and infant son, Groton; Mary Loue Carver, 481 Williams street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

FUNERALS

Mrs. James Tevlin

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Tevlin, wife of James Tevlin, of 315 Montauk avenue, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, with Rev. Michael Reagon deacon and Rev. George Clark sub-deacon. The bearers were James Ahearn, Thomas Riley, Daniel M. Buckley, Charles J. Ducy, William O'Neill and Bernard McElroy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

William Stahler

The funeral of William Stahler, aged five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Stahler, 79 Ashcraft road, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

OBITUARY

John A. Johnson

John A. Johnson, 66, of 62 West street, died Saturday at the private hospital where he had been a patient but a few days. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Harold, Albert and Norman Johnson, and two daughters, Mrs. Herbert Broadhead and Mrs. Paul Riordan, all of New London. Mr. Johnson was a member of Stonington lodge of Odd Fellows and of Mystic lodge of Rebekahs. He was born in Bozrah April 23, 1865, and was a blacksmith.

Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith will reside in Waterford upon the conclusion of a wedding trip.

Mrs. Paul S. Barber and infant son, of Mystic, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

PAWCATUCK FIRE DIST. DECIDES ON SIX MILL TAX

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 2.—There was an attendance of 300 qualified electors at the 44th annual meeting of Pawcatuck Fire district tonight, called to order at the Liberty street fire station at 8 o'clock by Moderator Albert G. Martin. The clerk, Dr. William A. Hillard, read the call.

The report of the board of engineers, read by Fire Chief Joseph Purtill, showed the district to have 41 hydrants. During the year, 43 fire alarms were received, 11 out of the district, 7 telephone calls, 22 box numbers and 3 false alarms. The district has 2,700 feet of two and one-half inch hose and 500 feet of one and one-half inch hose.

In the fire district there are 148 60-candle-power street electric lights, two 250 candlepower, 28 600 candle power and six 1,000 candlepower lights. The board recommended the following payments for the coming year: $50 to the fire police, $150 to the drivers of the fire trucks for services and care of the apparatus, and $1,000 to Pawcatuck Fire Co., No. 1, payment of $500 to be made June 10 and the second on Dec. 10.

The fire district loss during the year, according to Chief Joseph J. Purtill, totaled $3,740, as follows: On Walton property, $1,000; James Real store, property of Mrs. W. A. Rose, West Broad street, $10; Sheffield house, Mechanic street, $10; Charles P. Ecclestone house, Mechanic street, $500; Eugene O'Neil house, Liberty street, $2,500; Fred Marriott house, Stanton street, $10; Alvin Kenyon house, Williams street, $100; David Shea house, Smith street, $10. The report was voted approved, the recommendations to be considered later in the evening.

The report of Karl G. Stillman, treasurer, showed a balance the first of the year of $5,489.42. Various receipts for the total of $23,667.88 for a grand total of $29,271.71. The expenditures totaled $23 598.20, leaving a balance June 2 of $2,673.51. The total net indebtedness of the district was shown to be $102,826.49, an increase over last year of $1,473.48. The auditors, A. R. Stillman and W. A. Hillard, reported their review and the report was voted accepted.

Tax Collector Charles J. Norris reported total collections of $23,673.13, which had been paid over to the treasurer. Mr. Norris stated that this was his 23rd annual report, and expressing his appreciation of assistance given him, stated that he was not a candidate for re-election.

On West Broad street, Fire Chief Purtill reported for a special committee that new street lights had been spotted, fire alarms wires were being placed under ground and three new large type Darling hydrants were to be installed.

The meeting voted the following salaries for the coming year: Collector of taxes, $350; treasurer, $200; (bond of treasurer and collector to be $10,000 each, the premium to be paid by the district); chief engineer, $300, and to three assistant engineers, $100; to janitor of fire station, $60 a month; to truck drivers, $150 a year, and approved the recommendations in the two payments to Pawcatuck Fire Co., No. 1, of $1,000.

The meeting elected officers, the tellers being Charles E. Austin and Thomas L. Donohue; the following were elected by one vote cast by the clerk: Moderator (for his 24th term), Albert G. Martin; clerk, William A. Hillard; treasurer, Karl G. Stillman.

Crowley For Collector

In the election of a tax collector a contest developed. Frederick J. Crowley, nominated by Pierce Morrison, who said he was a member of Pawcatuck Fire department and an interested worker in the fire district. John H. Wood was nominated by William Sylvia and William S. Crandall was named by William Martin. The result was announced at the end of the election: Total vote cast, 223; Crowley, 141; Wood, 48; Crandall, 34. Mr. Crowley thanked the voters for his election and promised strict attention to his duty. Clerk Hillard moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Norris, which motion was carried.

Other officers elected without opposition were: Tax assessors, William A. Hillard, Joseph H. McGuinness and David O'Keefe; auditors, William A. Hillard and Alberti R. Stillman; chief engineer, Joseph J. Purtill; first assistant engineer, John J. Donohue; second assistant, James E. Ryan; third assistant, John A. Shea; fire wardens, Charles J. Norris, Albert G. Martin and Fred J. Crowley, succeeding Edward Taylor, who declined for re-election.

Fire Wardens Charles J. Norris, A. G. Martin and E. W. Taylor reported that they had inspected the compact part of the district and found conditions not quite as good as a year ago, due to the torn-up condition of West Broad street. It was reported that, at the direction of the fire warden, Max Novogroski had cleaned up his property near Pawcatuck river bridge.

The fifth annual report of Pawcatuck zoning commission, presented by Karl G. Stillman, showed 43 permits granted during the closing year, as against 78 permits of the year before. They were: New residences, 5; industrial buildings, 3; garages, 16; additions, 15; miscellaneous, 4. In amount of money expended large industrial additions brought the total construction expenditure of the year up to nearly that of the year before.

For Pawcatuck sidewalks, all construction work had been completed with the exception of that on Robbins street, where a granite ledge required blasting for which town funds were not immediately available. The report was signed by William S. Crandall, Karl G. Stillman and James E. Ryan and voted adopted. For the garbage collection committee Pierce Morrison, John W. Barker and Alexander G. Marr, the latter reported total collections for the year numbering 24,093, amounting to $1,204.65 and 355 families were served.

It was a difficult matter to find a zoning commissioner to serve for three years and, after James E. Ryan, the present incumbent, declined, also Alexander Marr, Lawrence C. Purtill, William E. Martin, Pierce J. Morrison, the selection was finally made of Charles E. Austin. The garbage removal committee was named as follows: Alexander Marr, Pierce J. Morrison and John W. Barker.

The next matter considered was the voting of a fire district tax, to be payable on Oct. 1 and if not paid before November, interest added at nine per cent for the first six months, nine and a half per cent for the second six months and after a year 12 per cent. The treasurer was given authority to hire money for the payment of district debts. L. C. Purtill brought up the matter of fire in dumps and it was voted that the zoning board find a public dump for the district. A petition was received from residents of the east side of Thompson street for the installation of sidewalk. Referred to the zoning commission, with power.

Karl G. Stillman brought up the matter of a vault for fire district records and the board of engineers was empowered to procure this. Treasurer Stillman also presented, before the tax rate was fixed, figures to show that a six mill tax would produce $23,667.88 the past year with expenditures of $26,598.20, leaving a deficit of about $2,200. Consequently, the district had paid nothing on its indebtedness. He said with the new town revaluation showing an increase of 23 per cent, if continued in the fire district, the grand list would total $4,000,911, which with a six mill tax, would care for the town. Just before the meeting adjourned at 9:30, the tax rate was fixed at six mills, the same as last year.

Zoning Board Meets

A short meeting of the Westerly zoning board lasting a half hour was held Monday evening. Henry B. Morris was granted a virualizing permit on the Boston Post road at what was formerly known as Pine Lodge. On the request for a building permit on Hunter's terrace, off Mountain avenue near Carr's mountain, the petitioner was directed to file plats and the matter was continued to the next meeting.

All star double feature bill combining "Sweethearts and Wives," a mystery romance with Clive Brook, Billie Dove and Sidney Blackmer, and "The Melody Man," a musical romance starring William Collier, Jr., Alice Day and John St. Polis will be presented at the Palace theatre Wednesday and will be shown through Friday of this week.

The story of "Sweethearts and Wives" is all about a stolen necklace. The action takes place in a lonely little inn in the south of France and it is the sort of action that keeps your hair on end and you sitting on the edge of the seat. It is a thriller.

Billie Dove plays the part of the little maid who tries to recover the necklace for her mistress and her versatility as an actress is emphasized in her role. Sidney Blackmer has the supporting role opposite Miss Dove. He enacts the part of an English motorist lost and out of gas in the south of France. Lelia Hyams as his married companion finds herself in a difficult position and is especially worried lest her husband find her during this escapade. Clive Brook is the polished English detective who is trying to find the necklace and restore it to the husband of the lady who lost it.

"The Melody Man" is a dramatic piece with the underlying motive a conflict between youth and old age. An old musician who loves the music of the masters vies with a young musician who is a jazz leader. A crime committed by the older man at the apex of his career in Vienna and discovered fifteen years later results in a surprising climax.

"The Bad One" with Dolores Del Rio and Edmund Lowe will be shown at the Palace for the last times today. This production is superb in acting, in setting and in the dramatic qualities which hold interest from beginning to end.

A reminder. Do not forget that time flies. If you have not cast your votes in the popularity contest do it today. If you have cast the once go there again today and cast them once more. Every vote is a boost to help that popular girl in Norwich to get to Atlantic City.

A book, "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," has sprung phoenix-like from the ashes of the World's war, to kindle the civilized world with its audacity and daring theme, at a time when every mind is turned toward peace universal. It tells the story of a simple Russian peasant, a soldier in the army of the czar, captured by the Germans, imprisoned in a stockade camp and slowly ground to nothingness in the terrible grim machine of war. Arnold Zweig, the author, is a veritable firebrand and himself a soldier in the kaiser's forces before Verdun, writes with a pen dipped in personal knowledge of his subject. It is safe to say that with the opening of this tremendous picture at the Broadway tomorrow a new standard in talking pictures has been set, for here is a picture that will hold savant and serf, professor and pupil, highbrow and lowbrow, spellbound with its magic and consummate artistry. Chester Morris is the Grischa, who in one wild clutch of freedom, exchanged the deadly barbed wire and challenging bayonets of cold steel for the warm pulsing arms of the woman he loved—and then paid the price. Betty Compson is Babka, the outlaw sweetheart of the rebel prisoner, Gustave von Seyffertitz, the grim, unrelenting general of the kaiser's staff, Alec B. Francis, an officer of the German high command unfortunately born with a heart, and the other characters are as finely etched, in this story of the peasant, whose mad adventure in love and war turned the tide of empire and swept a proud and arrogant dynasty into dissolute ruin. The accompanying short subjects, announced in another column, are of equal interest. Today for the last times, Warner Oland, O. P. Heggie, Neil Hamilton and Jean Arthur, are shown in "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu," heading a brilliant program.

Breed Theatre

Capacity audiences are enjoying "The Golden Calf," Fox Movietone comedy, which is the current production at the Breed theatre.

Hailed as one of the best comedies of the year, "The Golden Calf" also has half a dozen unusually tuneful song numbers and spectacularly staged ensembles which add materially to its entertainment value.

Sue Carol is seen and heard first as a prim, prudish secretary to the gray Jack Mulhall, Greenwich Village advertising artist. To win his love, when he fails to pay the slightest attention to her, she transforms herself into a dashing beauty and becomes Mulhall's model destined to make him famous.

El Brendel, famous comedian, is a Swedish cartoonist in the production and also contributes a novelty song number that is guaranteed to cure even a bluebird of the blues. Marjorie White, Richard Keene and Paul Page are also featured.

The Academy Orchestra

The program for tonight's concert by the Academy orchestra at Slater hall is as follows: Program: Overture in D, from Cephale et Procis, Gretry; prelude, from L'Arlesienne Suite, No. 1, Bizet; The Swan, from the Carnival of Animals, Saint-Saens; Menuet, from the E-flat symphony, Mozart; Aubade, ballet from Le Cid, Massenet; two guitars, Horlick; Triumphal March of the Boyards, Halvorsen; Symphonic Concertante No. 4, opus 98, Earle J. Swan and Dorothy B. Stewart, Dancla; Calm as the Night, Bohm-Dole; Zamboanga, Cator-Dyer, Miss Cantlin; Suite for Two Pianos, opus 15, romance, valse, Misses Krause and Glowacki, Arsensky; American Youth, Cauer; The Skaters, Waldteufel; Raymond Overture, Thomas.

CHEESE is made even more tasty by GULDEN'S Mustard

Marble Worker Suffered Terribly From Gas and Acid Stomach

Mr. Folke Stohl

Mr. Folke Stohl of 21 Kensington street, New Haven, tells what eight bottles of Bon-Tone did for him. "Every bit of food I took into my mouth would form gas. This gas would press around my heart and make it palpitate terribly. I not only would have a queer taste in my mouth, but every day for weeks at a time I would get dizzy spells and my head would spin like a top and everything would go black before me. All day long my back would ache like a toothache and every time I'd stoop over I would wince with pain. Often I would lie awake all night and in the morning would feel so tired, and worse than if I hadn't been to bed at all. I never had a bit of trouble with my stomach until two years ago and now it's getting back to normal—the gas and acid have almost entirely gone and I have no more gas around my heart and don't belch at all. My back is better and I can actually stoop over without pain. No more dizzy spells and I sleep fine and feel 100 per cent better—thanks to Bon-Tone."

Bon-Tone is not designed to give mere relief—its goal is far beyond that—nothing short of completely restored health. This super-remedy with its 14 roots, leaves, barks and berries is for sale at Smith's Pharmacy, Norwich and by all leading druggists everywhere.

To Have Shore Cottage

The Greeneville H club held their regular meeting Monday evening on Fourth street. Regular business was transacted with President Wallace Atterbury presiding. It was voted at the meeting that the club would have a cottage at Pleasant View this summer for the benefit of the members and their friends.

The T. D. Sewing circle met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Beatrice Sullivan, of Mowry avenue, with a large class. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy work and lampshading, which was followed by a social hour with piano and vocal selections being rendered. Refreshments of assorted sandwiches, cookies, cakes, wafers, ice cream and coffee were served by the hostess. The dining room was prettily decorated in red and white, the circle's colors.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spaulding and daughters have returned to their home on Hamilton avenue, after spending a few days with relatives in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kreiger, of North Main street, have returned, after spending several days in New York.

FLORIDA OFFICER'S SON JOINS BANDIT RANKS

The son of a policeman, who died fighting two Connecticut bandits, is under arrest in Jacksonville, Fla., for highway robbery. Just a few months ago Detective Willie Smith was killed in a gun battle with Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthrope, escaped convicts from the Connecticut state prison. His son, Hoke Smith, attended the court. They appeared as heroes to the 19-year-old youth.

Today he is in the Duval county jail on five charges of highway robbery when he confessed to having participated with three other youths in the holdup of five filling station proprietors, netting them only $30 each.

He was arrested by Detective Willie Jones, the officer who stood beside his father during the gun battle and who was wounded in the fray. It was the duty of this detective to arrest the son of the man that fell at his side.

WOMEN CONVICTS WILL BE MOVED TO STATE FARM

It is expected that the women at the state prison in Wethersfield will be moved to the State Farm for Women at Niantic about July 1, Warden Charles S. Reed says. The change will be made when the buildings at the farm are completed.

With the prisoners will go Mrs. Alice Devanney, the matron at Wethersfield. Just what her official position at the farm will be, Warden Reed could not say.

At the present time there are 14 women at the state prison. How they will be transported has not yet been decided but will probably be decided by the directors, Warden Reed said.

HOWARD BARTON CLEARED OF ACCIDENT BLAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WORCESTER, Mass., June 2.—Howard C. Barton, of Norwich, Conn., was exonerated from all blame for the automobile accident, March 10, in which Marco Lucenti, 51, of 8 Adams street, Worcester, was killed, according to an inquest report filed in central district court by Special Justice Albert T. Wall. The court found that no criminal negligence contributed to the accident. An investigation showed that the brakes of the car were in good condition.

Lucenti had been a foreman in the Worcester sewer department for about 30 years. While crossing Shrewsbury street he was struck by an automobile operated by Mr. Barton. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries which resulted in his death.

BERNICE WILLEY RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB

Miss Bernice E. Willey was re-elected president of the Norwich Business and Professional Women's club at the club's annual meeting Monday evening. The meeting was held at the new Norwich Inn, on the Norwich-New London highway, with an attendance of over 50. A dinner, served at 6:30 o'clock, preceded the business meeting at which Miss Willey presided. Two new members, Miss Nancy Tomlinson of the Norwich Mental Hygiene clinic, and Miss Margaret Bridgers, a visiting teacher, were welcomed. The annual reports of the secretary, covering the activities of the year, the report of the executive board and the report of the treasurer, were heard and accepted.

The club voted an appropriation for a fund to provide summer vacations for dependent and neglected children. The amount of the appropriation was not announced but it is understood that it will provide vacations for a number of deserving children.

The officers for the coming year were elected, as follows:

President, Miss Bernice E. Willey; vice-president, Dr. Lillian M. Lynes; treasurer, Miss Edith A. Fellows; secretary, Miss Louise Babcock; corresponding secretary, Miss Mary V. Elliott; director-at-large for three years, Miss Mary E. Rogers.

At the close of the business session there was a most interesting address on Civilization and Its Tests by Rev. Robert H. Parkes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic.

MISS BERNICE E. WILLEY

SUPERVISOR H. T. GORMAN DIES UNEXPECTEDLY

Monday evening, Supervisor of State Highways Henry Thomas Gorman, of 305 1-2 Washington street, died very suddenly. Mr. Gorman, who was apparently in good health until about a week ago, was out Monday. After returning home from a local dentist's office, he was stricken with a heart attack, expiring within a short time. A physician who was called pronounced death due to embolism.

Henry T. Gorman, who was a fine type of manhood, was born in Norwich Town, Aug. 8, 1872, the youngest son of George and Katharine Mulligan Gorman, esteemed residents of Norwich Town. He attended the schools of Norwich. When a young man he was united in marriage with Miss Ellen Donohue, who died about four years ago. In St. Patrick's church, Nov. 20, 1929, he married Miss Mary Fitzpatrick, of Norwich. For many years Mr. Gorman, after his first marriage, resided in Versailles, where he conducted a store and livery business. After returning to Norwich he became identified with state activities as supervisor of highways in this and surrounding sections, discharging his duties in a most faithful and efficient manner. Mr. Gorman has held his state appointment since 1912.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Lester Bellows (Mary Gorman), and Misses Alice Helen and Margaret Gorman, all of Norwich. He leaves two brothers, George and John Gorman, of Norwich Town.

A most estimable citizen, Mr. Gorman possessed a kind and genial manner, was a loving and devoted husband, father and brother. His death has saddened many outside of the circle of his family and friends. Much sympathy was expressed Monday evening for his relatives in their sudden bereavement.

Supervisor Gorman was a member of St. Patrick's parish.

ZONING BOARD HEARS CLAIMS IN TWO APPEALS

The joint zoning board for the city and town of Norwich reserved decision on two appeals heard by the board Monday at the mayor's office in the court house. Selectman William S. Murray presided as chairman of the board.

The first appeal heard was that of Robert H. Russell, who asks for permission to conduct a cleaning plant at his garage at the rear of No. 6 Stonington road. Mr. Russell appeared with counsel. No objections were raised at the hearing.

The second appeal was that of Philip Silberman, who asks permission to build an addition to his garage at his premises abutting at 24 Asylum street. Mr. Silberman was the only one to appear at this hearing, there being no opposition voiced.

SUES FOR DAMAGE TO TRUCK IN COLLISION

The Groton & Stonington Traction Co. of Groton is made a defendant in a suit for $4,000 damages brought in the superior court by Marcus L. Trail, of Poquonoc, town of Groton, according to papers filed with Clerk John H. Walker.

Trail claims a large Mack truck of his was in collision, on Feb. 15, 1930, on the Poquonoc road, Groton, with a bus owned by the Groton & Stonington Traction Co., and was damaged to the extent of $2,500. Trail further alleges that he lost the use of his truck for many days, for which he figured the fair rental price at $40 per day.

SUIT FOR BURNS HE RECEIVED IN GARAGE

In a suit brought in the superior court and returnable in January, Abraham M. Yaham of Boston, Mass., claims $5,000 damages against George O. Murphy, Inc., of Pawcatuck, alleging that he had drove his auto into a public garage owned by the defendant on Nov. 7, 1929, for the purpose of having the motor cleaned and while the work was being done an explosion occurred and he was burned.

NORWICH TOWN

Community Picnic Today

The annual Community picnic, which for many years has been held in beautiful Lowthorpe Meadows, adjoining the Gilman estate at Norwich Town, under the auspices of Norwich Rural association, is this year to take place in another location in Norwich. This (Tuesday) afternoon from five o'clock on, the picnic which is to be conducted this year by the Women's City club, is to be held at Lucas Memorial park, in conjunction with the Rural association, etc. The roadway leading to this spot, which was the generous gift of Misses Nancy E. and Mary C. Lucas to the city of Norwich, is not far from the Tuberculosis Sanatorium, below Thamesville. In past years, when the picnic has been held in Lowthorpe Meadows, the Misses Lucas have always co-operated by contributing their attendance, as well as entering into the spirit of the programme, following the basket luncheon. It seemed fitting that in appreciation of their gift the Rural association should unite with the Woman's City club this year in holding its picnic at this location.

H. B. SELDEN IS MADE PROFESSOR AT COLLEGE

Faculty changes at Connecticut college at New London this year include some promotions, several new appointments, and the resignation of a few members who have been called to other institutions. Two important promotions are that of Henry Bill Selden from the rank of associate professor to that of full professor in the department of fine arts, and that of Miss Lavinia Stewart, college librarian, who is to be given the rank of associate professor.

The departments to which new faculty members are to be added are those of home economics, secretarial studies, and fine arts. Miss Margaret Chaney, who has been called to a full professorship in home economics, comes with highest recommendations from the position of professor of nutrition at Kansas State Agricultural college, at Manhattan, Kan. Miss Chaney was formerly a student of President Blunt in the University of Chicago, where she took her first degree and later, after taking her M.A. at the University of California, her doctorate in home economics. She has specialized in the subjects of food and nutrition, particularly in connection with under-nourished children.

To the department of secretarial studies, Miss Hyla Snider will come as assistant professor. She will also give one course in economics. Miss Snider is also a graduate of the University of Chicago, having taken both her master's and her Ph.D. degrees at that institution. She has had considerable business and administrative experience, held an important government post during the war, and has been teaching for several years at the Frances Shimer school in Mount Carroll, Ill.

Mrs. Margaret Hanson comes from the Buffalo State Teachers' college, where she has been teaching for some time, to take the position of assistant professor in the department of fine arts at Connecticut college. She won her diploma from Pratt Institute and her B.S. and M.A. from the Teachers' college of Columbia university. She has specialized in design, and has had practical experience in designing textiles. She will teach design at the college.

Miss Serena Hall, A.B., M.A., will be instructor in the English department.

Dr. Hannah Grace Roach, assistant professor of history, who has been on a year's leave of absence, continuing her studies in international law in Europe, with a foreign fellowship, will return in time to take up her work at the college in September.

Dr. John Lawrence Erb, professor of music, who likewise has been absent for a year, will also return.

Miss Doris Stuart Runciman, instructor in home economics at Connecticut college since 1928, has been appointed to the post of head of the department of home economics at Mt. Allison college in New Brunswick, Can. Miss Beatrice Reynolds of the history department, who was serving during Miss Roach's absence, will continue her studies for a higher degree; and Henry Philip Pratt of Pratt Institute, who has been giving weekly lectures at the college for some years, will be unable to continue his visits.

WORKMAN SUES FOR $10,000 FOR INJURIES RECEIVED

Leonardo Amerigo, of this city, is the plaintiff in a suit brought in the superior court against Harvey F. Fortune, of Killingly, for damages of $10,000 because of injuries suffered by Amerigo.

The Norwich man alleges that he was working upon the shoulders of the state highway leading from Canterbury to Newent on the afternoon of May 27, 1929, which highway was then under construction and closed to traffic, when he was struck and seriously injured by an auto owned by Fortune and operated by Francis R. Coffey.

As a result of the accident, caused by the negligence and carelessness of the defendant, the complaint recites that Amerigo was so seriously injured and suffered such great pain and agony that he was immediately removed to the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where a surgical examination revealed that he had sustained a very severe fracture of the left elbow, a fracture of the internal condyle of the left humerus, severe body bruises and abrasions and a severe shock to his entire nervous system.

As a result of the injury, Amerigo is alleged to have limited flexion and motion of the left elbow and has sustained permanent, partial loss of use of the elbow.

CHIEF CARRIER'S WIDOW IS 90 YEARS OLD TODAY

Today, June 3rd, is the 90th birthday of Mrs. Elizabeth Rose Carrier, widow of former Chief Joseph B. Carrier, of the Norwich fire department. It is a double anniversary, since it is also the birthday of Mrs. Carrier's daughter, Mrs. Georgianna C. Tucker, who resides with her mother at 125 School street, Norwich. In anticipation of the day, relatives from Stratford, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Morton H. Ellsworth and son, Morton, spent Sunday with Mrs. Carrier and daughter. There was a turkey dinner and each received a number of gifts.

Mrs. Carrier's husband really inaugurated the Norwich fire department—as far as making it modern and effective was concerned—and there are many who will take an interest in knowing that his widow continues in good health and at 90 found much enjoyment in the celebration of her birthday.

Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION has made the oven a safer place for cakes

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl. After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

CALUMET Baking Powder gives you the greatest possible help in preventing baking failures. For Calumet acts twice—and this double-action makes your cake come out successfully even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately.

Calumet acts first in the mixing bowl. Then, when you put your cake into the oven, the second action occurs, lifts the batter right up and holds it until the cake is perfectly baked—fine-grained, fluffy, beautiful! Bake a Calumet cake and see why Calumet is the most popular baking powder in the world.

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action.

Get a can of Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized one pound cans.

HOOVER DETERMINED UPON EXTRA SESSION OF SENATE

When Informed That the Legislators Were Restless and Anxious to Get Home For Campaigns, the Chief Executive Asserted That He Would Call a Special Session, For Consideration of the London Naval Treaty, the Day After This Session Ends—The President Talked With Leaders of the Rebellious Republican Congressional Forces.

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—Calling in the leaders of the rebellious republican congressional forces which yesterday rode rough shod over his pension veto, President Hoover today discussed policies of future cooperation and demanded prompt consideration of the London naval treaty.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican pilot, and Senator Moses of New Hampshire, the president pro tem of the senate, were invited to the white house for breakfast.

It is understood they informed the president of the restlessness in the party ranks and recalled the complaint heard yesterday at the capitol that no intimation of presidential disapproval of the pension bill was given while it was going through congress.

The only comment by Senator Watson after the parley was that he president "made it clear he would call the special session for the treaty debate the day after this session of congress ends."

Senator Moses is chairman of the republican senatorial campaign committee and there is every indication that the entire political situation came up for discussion at the white house.

It is known that several complaints have been made at the white house by the republican congressmen against retention of Claudius Huston as chairman of the republican national committee.

While Senators Watson and Moses made no comment regarding this situation, the belief prevailed at the capitol that there was no apparent indication that Huston intends to resign or that Mr. Hoover will ask for his resignation.

Huston's difficulties with party leaders developed after his testimony before the lobby committee that he had used in his brokerage account funds he solicited in behalf of the Tennessee River Improvement association. Huston had returned these funds to the association.

While the two senate republican chieftains were silent on the breakfast table discussion it became known that a frank exchange of views was given and that plans were discussed for closer cooperation between the executive and congress.

Senators Watson and Moses were among the handful of republicans who stood by Mr. Hoover yesterday when the senate and house, by overwhelming majorities, overrode his veto of the Spanish war veterans bill.

While the president was expressing himself upon early consideration of the treaty, Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee was sending to the state department a request of Senator Johnson, republican, California, for additional papers exchanged between this country and Great Britain in the pre-conference negotiations.

Borah later expressed the view that the senate would ratify the treaty within two weeks after it is taken up.

It is unlikely that his committee will reach the treaty again before late in the week.

UNDERGRADUATE KILLS TUTOR AND HIMSELF

CAMBRIDGE, England, June 3—(AP)—Tragedy today enshrouded historic Cambridge university when Douglas Newton Potts, a first year undergraduate, shot and killed Dr. A. F. R. Wollaston, noted English explorer, scientist, physician and tutor and then fatally wounded himself.

Young Potts also shot and severely wounded Detective Sergeant Willis who was taken to a hospital and was expected to recover.

The shooting took place in Doctor Wollaston's room in Old King college. Dean Milner White this afternoon said that Potts, who was an unusually bright student, suddenly left the college ten days ago. The faculty was much perturbed by the absence and a search was started.

Yesterday a message was received from the London police saying that Potts had been found there and was returning to college. Doctor Wollaston, it was understood, went to the station to meet the student and the two men returned to the tutor's rooms where Detective Sergeant Willis was waiting.

Exactly what took place then has not yet been made clear but it appeared that Potts was being interrogated on the unexplained absence when he drew a revolver and shot Dr. Wollaston through the heart. After shooting the policeman through the shoulder and leg, he then shot himself in the head.

CHANCES IN CABINET BY BRITISH LABOR GOVT.

LONDON, June 3—(AP)—The labor government today abolished a cabinet office and created two in its place. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald dispelled many rumors which had been rife for a week when in the house of commons he announced separation of the offices of secretary of state for dominions and colonies, and the creation of offices for each of those two divisions.

Showing that the plan had been maturely formed, the premier at once appointed J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal, who has been director of the unemployment problem, to the portfolio of the dominions.

Lord Passfield has been the dominions and colonies secretary but the premier did not include his name in the announcement.

Mr. MacDonald said the change was made necessary by approach of the imperial conference in October. The nature of the conference's business, he said, made it imperative that there be a head over each government, both for inter-imperial purposes and for our own unemployment problem.

HEARING REPORTS OF SITUATION IN PALESTINE

GENEVA, June 3.—(AP)—Behind closed doors the permanent mandates commission of the league of nations today examined the delicate situation in Palestine.

Its first step was to hear the report of British government representatives on how the mandatory power is proceeding in its effort to maintain a policy of well balanced justice as between Jews and Arabs in this Holy Land of three religious groups.

In a written report Secretary T. Drummond Shiels re-affirmed the government's determination to execute the mandate: to provide a national home for Jews and at the same time to ensure that the rights of non-Jewish populations in Palestine should not be impaired.

PLANE PLUNGED INTO THE HUDSON RIVER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 3.—(AP)—An unidentified plane plunged into the Hudson river about a mile and a half south of this city about 7:40 o'clock tonight (E. S. T.) It was reported sinking rapidly. Rescue boats had put out to it.

Three persons were reported injured. They were given first aid at Milton, N. Y., and then started by automobile for the Vassar hospital here. The names of the three and the nature of their injuries were not known here.

The plane, which was still unidentified, was being towed here. The accident happened near the west shore of the river.

13 INMATES ESCAPED FROM INSANE ASYLUM

IONIA, Mich., June 3—(AP)—Thirteen dangerous inmates of the state hospital for criminal insane made a daring escape from the institution before daylight today.

Eleven of them were still at liberty tonight.

The fugitives were armed with knives and razors. Throughout the day, state police, county officers, hospital attendants and volunteers patroled highways, examined thickets and woods, searched buildings and spread warnings to the country side.

Two of the 13 were recaptured within a few hours after the break. They were found in different places on a trunk line highway to which they evidently had gone in the hope of picking up rides.

The searching posses this afternoon went to a thicket four miles southwest of here after farmers reported seeing men in it, but none of the fugitives was found there.

Of those still at large, four were sent to the hospital because they had committed murder; one charged into a court room with two pistols and threatened the judge; another ran into a downtown Detroit bank and snatched $1,000, and the others were adjudged insane after committing robberies.

The men captured were Stephen Csordas, Detroit killer and Charles Kenney, committed from Detroit for robbery.

EXPLOSIONS ACCOMPANY MT. VESUVIUS ERUPTIONS

NAPLES, Italy, June 3. — (AP) — Mount Vesuvius tonight commemorated its own anniversary of last year's destructive eruption by shooting high fountains of lava into the air frequently.

The eruptions, accompanied by strong explosions, were visible for miles around.

Such an eruption is an annual spring occurrence but Alexander Malladra, director of the Vesuvius observatory, said tonight that this year's explosions will be less violent than those of last year.

Nevertheless earthworks were being thrown up tonight to prevent an outflow of lava.

Last year between June 2 and June 8 Vesuvius poured thousands of tons of lava over the countryside and submerged several villages.

BREEZE TOO LIGHT FOR TRIAL OF YACHT WHIRLWIND

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—A second trial of the potential America's cup sloop Whirlwind was attempted on Long Island sound this afternoon, the lack of breeze all but made the trial futile and although Paul Hammond and Langdon K. Thorne, who head the syndicate of yachtsmen financing her campaign waited for more than six hours conditions improved little.

A light southerly zephyr, did however, hold for about an hour and during the fleeting moments efforts were made to train the crew in the use of light canvas. Spinnakers, balloners and a large Genoa jib were broken out repeatedly.

Another attempt to stretch the canvas will be attempted tomorrow.

COL. W. J. DONOVAN TAKEN FROM SHIP ON STRETCHER

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Colonel William J. Donovan, former assistant United States attorney general, was taken ashore on a stretcher tonight from the French liner Ile De France, which arrived from Europe.

A wound Colonel Donovan received during the World war, when he was commander of the "Fighting Sixty-Ninth" regiment, re-opened yesterday afternoon while he was playing deck tennis. The colonel was carried to his hotel in an ambulance.

BELIEVE SIX FISHING BOATS FOUNDERED IN RECENT STORM

MEXICO CITY, June 3.—(AP)— Six small fishing boats from Vera Cruz and Tampico, with a total of twelve aboard, are believed to have foundered in recent storms inasmuch as they have not been heard from since they left their ports three days ago.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BOGOTA, Columbia, June 3.—(AP)—Meager reports reaching here said that numerous passengers died yesterday on the steamship Goenaga which sank after an explosion and fire near the port of Tenerife on the Magdalena river.

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 3.—(AP)—The steamship Goenaga, which had sailed from Barranquilla for Doarada, went down yesterday following an explosion near the port of Tenerife on the Magdalena river. Details are lacking but it is assumed that the ship was a coastwise boat, possibly carrying freight and passengers.

RIO JANEIRO, June 3.—(AP)— Unconfirmed reports said that the rebel forces of Deputy Jose Pereira and those of the Parahyba state government had been fighting continuously since Monday morning. The reports added that the state authorities had acquired several bombing planes which would be used against the rebels in a few days.

PARIS, June 3.—(AP)—Bankers, officials of the bank for international settlements and treasury representatives of creditor countries, in session here to perfect the details of the $300,000,000 reparations loan to be floated by the international bank, hoped tonight that the final accord concerning the loan would be signed Saturday— the anniversary of the signature of the Young plan.

ITALY WILL CUT NAVY IF FRANCE WILL DO THE SAME

ROME, June 3—(AP)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi declared today that Italy is ready to suspend naval construction preparations announced for 1930 if France is willing to do the same.

The foreign minister told the senate that the Mussolini naval formula comprises two fundamental principles—"equivalence and reduction."

"With the authorization of this government and in keeping with this formula," he said, "I have made known that the Italian government is ready, during negotiations or questions which were not solved at the London naval conference, to suspend shipbuilding operations for 1930 provided the French government is willing to do the same for its program voted for 1930."

TARIFF BILL EXHAUSTS ORATORY IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 3— (AP) — Blocked in an effort to obtain an agreement to vote on the second tariff bill conference report tomorrow, senate republican leaders today put squarely up to the opposition the burden of carrying on the debate.

Only one speaker was prepared to proceed and the senate was forced to quit after four hours of speech-making and wrangling over when the showdown should come.

After Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, had denounced the work of the conferees in compromising on rates, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant republican leader, proposed that a vote be taken on the second report at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

GOVERNORS FAILED TO EXCHANGE GREETINGS

BOSTON, June 3—(AP)—Due to an apparent misunderstanding, Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York failed today to have their exchange of greetings at the state house.

The appointment was made for 4:45 p. m., but the New York chief executive arrived an hour earlier. Arriving at the apointed time, Governor Allen expressed regret at having missed the visiting governor, who is here to attend his son's wedding tomorrow. A staff officer was immediately dispatched to Governor Roosevelt's hotel to present to him, with Governor Allen's compliments, a gold state seal pin.

PORTUGAL TO REDUCE ITS $10 VISA FEE ON PASSPORTS

LISBON, Portugal, June 3—(AP)—Portugal is expected to revoke or reduce, in the near future, its rule imposing a $10 visa fee on passports of citizens of Portugal and the United States traveling both ways between the two countries.

The national tourist department has recommended the change on the ground that it is strangling tourist trade, Germany's big tourist season, the department points out, is due to suppression of the "visa nuisance."

TO STIMULATE THE SALE OF STRAW HATS IN ITALY

FLORENCE, Italy, June 3—(AP)—A nation wide campaign for Tuscany straw hats today loomed as one result of the new American tariff. The manufacturers prepared to arrange displays of the new types of headgear in all principal cities to tickle the fancy of Italians and stimulate sales at home. The Federation of Hat Makers sent a committee to Minister of Corporations Bottai, who recommended the sales campaign.

TWO MORE MEMBERS OF BANDIT GANG CAPTURED

MANCELONA, Mich., June 3.—(AP)—Two more members of a bandit gang that yesterday robbed the Antrim county State Savings bank here of $900 were captured by a posse late today after a gun battle in a wooded area north of here. The men were identified as Leonard and Fred Elliott, brothers of Sylvester Elliott, who was captured last night in a swamp north of here, and who confessed a part in the robbery.

DICKINSON LEADING BY 75,000 IN IOWA PRIMARY

DES MOINES, June 3.—(AP)—Congressman L. J. Dickinson's lead for the republican senatorial nomination over Governor John Hammill neared the 75,000 mark this afternoon.

Unofficial reports from 2,122 of 2,424 precincts gave Dickinson 169,880, or 54 per cent of the total vote counted. Hammill polled 96,774, Lund 35,498 and Payne 11,774.

INCREASE REPORTED IN REV. FREIGHT LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—Revenue freight loadings for the week ended May 24 were reported by the American Railway association to have totalled 931,472 cars.

This was an increase of 7,468 cars above the preceding week, and reduction of 130,616 cars below loadings for the corresponding week a year ago.

Half Million Troops Fighting In China

Rebel Armies Have Taken the Offensive On Many Battle Fronts — Fierce Fighting Reported.

SHANGHAI, June 3—(AP)—Rebel armies on four battle fronts today challenged the supremacy of the Nationalist government of China. Fighting which began May 8 with but a few thousand men has reached huge dimensions, more than a half million troops being engaged.

Strengthened by reinforcements, the Northern Alliance armies flung themselves at the Nationalists in a general offensive along the Haichow-Tungkwan railroad in Northern Honan province. In this area it is said at least 400,000 men were fighting to determine the future of China.

The Nationalists, beaten back to Kweiteh, Honan, by fierce rebel onslaughts a few days ago, advanced to meet the rebel attack. Rested by a few days' respite from battle, their numbers increased to 150,000 men, the Nationalists were reported to have responded to orders of President Chiang Kai-Shek for a general advance.

In a left wing action, a heavy force of Nationalists continued to advance along the Peiping-Hankow railway in central Honan. They have met with strong resistance.

Edging in on the Nationalists' right flank the northerners were rushing reinforcements into northern Shantung province. Their object was to smash their way southward across the Yellow river and attack Tsinan. Chinese of that city fled by train to Tsingtao on the coast, their departure hurried by the explosion of the Nationalist powder house at Tsinan. Powder house guards were killed in the explosion, supposedly caused by rebel agents. The Nationalists were drawn up along the Yellow river to prevent the northerners from crossing.

GRAF DUE TO ARRIVE AT SEVILLE THURSDAY NOON

SEVILLE, Spain, June 3.—(AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, bound from Lakehurst to Friedrichshafen with a stop scheduled here, is expected to arrive at La Tablada field Thursday noon and will remain two hours.

Government meteorological officials reached here today and prepared to send weather bulletins to the German airship until it ties up at the mooring mast here.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Zeppelin, wirelessed officials of the field today to have fuel and food ready. While here the airship will discharge mail and passengers, and pick up others for the final journey homeward to Friedrichshafen.

900 Miles West Of The Azores

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 4. (Wednesday)—(AP)—The Zeppelin works at 1 o'clock this morning, mid-European time, (7 p. m. Tuesday, E. S. T.) received a message from the Graf Zeppelin, bound from Lakehurst to Seville, saying she was at latitude 38 north and longitude 44.3 west. That position placed her about 900 miles west of the Island of Fayal, Azores.

MAN TELLS CONFLICTING STORIES OF ADVENTURES

SIKESTON, Mo., June 3—(AP)—Telling conflicting stories of thrilling adventures with bandits and gangsters, Lawrence J. Miller, 35 building contractor of Naperville, Ills., appeared in several southeast Missouri towns today after being missing from his home since May 21.

He stumbled into Sikeston, suffering from knife wounds, which he said were inflicted by a gangster when he escaped from his captors 50 miles south of here after killing one of them with a jack handle. He left alone for his home after relating his experiences.

CLAIMS HIS WIFE WAS TRYING TO FRAME HIM

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Declaring that he had nothing to do with the two shots fired last night through the bedroom window of his estranged wife, Enrique Dechow, until recently known as "Count Von Buelow," surrendered to police tonight.

Dechow told police that his wife, Mrs. Lottie Brenner Dechow, was trying to "frame" him.

"I think she got a couple of friends to fire the shots," complained Dechow. "In any event I was at my home playing cards when it happened."

COM. BYRD ON HIS WAY TO THE ATLANTIC OCEAN

COLON, Canal Zone, June 3.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was on the Atlantic ocean tonight with his Antarctic expedition, bound for a triumphant welcome in New York after an absence of nearly two years.

Admiral Byrd's two ships, the bark City of New York and the steamship Eleanor Bolling, left here in mid-afternoon in a blinding rain which drove to shelter several hundred of those who stood on the pier to bid the party farewell.

William Gavronski, nineteen-year-old New York boy, is making the homeward journey as a coal passer.

PRESIDENT HOOVER SENT MESSAGE TO KING GEORGE

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—President Hoover today sent a message of congratulation to King George V of Great Britain on his 65th birthday anniversary.

"On behalf of my fellow citizens, and in my own name," said the president's message, "I take especial pleasure in extending to your majesty hearty greetings of friendship and good will on his birthday. May your majesty be blest with health and happiness for many years to come."

TWO MEN IN A ROWBOAT HAD $10,000 WORTH OF FURS

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)— Two men, arrested early today in a row boat with $10,000 worth of furs which police said were stolen from the Cunarder Berengaria, were arraigned later and held without bail on charges of grand larceny.

The prisoners, John Koerber, 25, and Humphrey Toomey, 30, admitted, police said, that they had been engaged in smuggling from Cunard piers for a year and a half.

Indian Nationalists Raid Salt Deposits

About 1,000 Were Imprisoned At Worli, a Suburb of Bombay—Women Started the Trouble.

BOMBAY, India, June 3—(AP)—One thousand Indian nationalists who were imprisoned at Worli—a suburb of Bombay—for making raids against the government salt deposits were responsible for the most serious disorder reported in India today.

Twelve of the volunteers were seriously injured by blows from police sticks, and a great many more received minor hurts.

The trouble arose when a group of women outside the camp attempted to obstruct the work of soldiers who were strengthening the barbed wire enclosure about the concentration camp.

The mob grew, insulting the soldiers and agitating the prisoners inside. At that a group of the interned volunteers rushed for freedom and a general fracas developed on both sides of the fence.

For a time authorities feared the gravity of the disturbance but the disorder eventually was quelled by reinforcements of troops and police.

The women who started the trouble were from the nearby mill-area, and when they were forcibly removed the volunteers inside the fence were so enraged that they rushed or the wires. Some of them got through but were put back in their quarters.

Five of those most seriously injured were taken to the hospital.

At Wharasana, where the breaking up of salt raids has become daily routine for the police, two attacks were made today by volunteers who still are using the old Ustadi camp as a base. There followed the inevitable sequel—charges by police armed with sticks, arrests and injuries to the raiders.

An outgrowth of the salt campaign caused the death of an Indian last night in the village of Cholinganallur, twenty miles from Madras. Villagers there had assembled to invite congress leaders to visit the village and break the salt laws. They were ordered to disperse, but the police who were returning to their quarters after breaking up the meeting were stoned. Two policemen were seriously injured and an officer gave orders to fire, one shot killing a native.

ROUND-UP OF HOODLUMS CONTINUES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 3—(AP)—As a sequel to the week end of gang shootings in the Chicago area—comprising nine killed and four wounded, the police tonight were composing a list of those unaccounted for while trying to stop more serious trouble by arresting all hoodlums in the open. To head this roll of missing they had the names of Terry Druggan, errant beer baron and Leo Mongoven.

Another gang kidnaping was exposed today by Lawrence Miller, suburban contractor and deputy sheriff of Du Page county, who, missing since May 21, telephoned his wife from a town in Missouri, telling her he had been abducted and beaten by a gang of bootleggers who thought he had "squawked" about a still in a barn he was remodeling.

In the roundup of hoodlums, customary police gesture after gang outbreaks, squads seized more than 100 suspects, among them Jack McGurn, reputed gunman for Al Capone, and two other alleged Capone henchmen. They later were released, but 25 others, aliens, were held for possible deportation.

NEGRO CHARGED WITH ATTACKING WHITE WOMAN

SNOWHILL, N. C., June 3—(AP)—An attempted assault upon the wife of a Greene county farmer Monday of last week was reveal today with the arrest of Ether Perry, Negro, who was charged with the attack.

Officers who had been searching for the woman's alleged assailant had kept the report of the attack secret until the arrest of Perry today and his identification by the woman.

As news of the Negro's arrest spread in Greene county, a mob formed.

Officers then took the Negro to a jail outside the county where he was lodged for safekeeping. They refused to reveal his whereabouts.

HEIR TO $5,000,000 SAYS WORK MAKES LIFE WORTH LIVING

LONDON, June 3—(AP)—John Arthur Dewar, $5,000,000 heir of Lord Dewar, late sportsman-distiller, today said he was old enough at 38 not to get excited about a million pounds sterling and that he would not stop work, having inherited it free and clear.

"You might as well be dead," the young scion declared, "as to stop work. It is work that makes life worth living."

He will continue his late uncle's racing stable. He said it would take 20 years to collect another string like that.

COOLING RAINS CHECKING FOREST FIRES IN ONTARIO

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., June 3—(AP)—Cooling rains today fell over the Lake Head district, checking forest fires which had assumed menacing proportions.

For 48 hours the scourge of the north woods had swept everything in its path—hamlet, woodsman's hut, valuable timberlands.

Pilot engines had carried refugees waiting in isolated clearings through walls of flame to safety. Harassed fire fighters tonight believed they had the situation under control in all except a few isolated spots.

CANNON CHALLENGES RIGHT OF SEN. LOBBY COMMITTEE

The Bishop Accused His Questioners of "Persecution" and Refused to Tell About His Southern Anti-Smith Campaign In 1928—Bishop Cannon Was Warned That He Must Take the Consequences of Refusing to Testify—He Will Be Given Another Opportunity to Answer From the Stand Tomorrow—Caraway, Chairman of the Committee, Sustains the Contention of Bishop Cannon.

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—Accusing his questioners of "persecution," and challenging their right to examine him, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., refused today to tell the senate lobby committee about his southern anti-Smith campaign in 1928.

He promptly was warned that he must take the consequences. But it was not apparent tonight what those consequences would be. He will be given another opportunity to answer from the stand tomorrow. It was for refusing to testify before the senate oil committee that Harry F. Sinclair went to jail, but no senator has indicated a desire to deal similarly with Bishop Cannon.

Today's committee session reached its issue at the close, in a moment as dramatic as any senate inquiry has seen since the days of the oil inquiry itself.

Hoots and applause throughout the crowded committee room greeted the declaration of the little Southern Methodist leader that "the wet and Roman Catholic press" was seeking to discredit him, and that the committee investigation amounted to "persecution."

Walsh of Montana, a Catholic and a dry, who had been questioning him, said:

"I cannot help but get the implication of that statement."

"I do not charge you, senator, with persecution," returned Cannon.

The bishop appeared before the committee at his own request as the result of a charge by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, that he had not accounted for all the money contributed for the 1928 Virginia anti-Smith campaign.

Tinkham said E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, had given Cannon $65,300 for the campaign and that only $17,000 had been reported to congress. The committee had previously gone into this with Jameson on the stand but did not reach this charge in today's session.

Considerable interest was shown by Walsh in a loan of $303 made to Cannon by Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

Cannon said the money was used to pay bills for sending out circular letters to persons he thought would be interested in an anti-Smith conference which was held in Asheville, North Carolina. He said it was repaid by giving the board credit for $303 worth of pamphlets containing an address he had delivered on "Prohibition Repeal Unthinkable."

Speaking in a low even tone and peering through his glasses, Cannon responded promptly to questions dealing with the activities of the board of which he is chairman and his own contacts with members of congress.

He said that he had sought "by every legitimate Christian means" to promote the prohibition movement and that he had received no payments for his activities in behalf of the dry cause in the last 30 years.

"It is not my habit to lobby personally very much," he said, adding that he used the word to describe legitimate presentation of views on legislation to members of congress.

The bishop said he rarely had taken part in the appointment of officials, but occasionally had done so. He added that he had urged Secretary Mellon to support an increase in funds for prohibition enforcement.

Cannon told the committee he had engaged in the 1928 campaign as a private citizen and not as a bishop of the Methodist church. He leaned on a crutch as he faced the committee.

The committee's authority was challenged when Senator Walsh asked if he had taken an active part in the 1928 presidential campaign.

"Just a little more active than usual," Cannon replied, as the audience laughed.

"You were active in the assembly of what was known as the Asheville conference, were you not?" Walsh demanded.

"Might I make a statement just here," Cannon replied as he pulled a prepared statement from his pocket, which challenged the right of the committee to inquire into his political activities.

He asked the committee to pass on the statement before he answered or declined to answer the question.

After a lengthy discussion between Cannon and Walsh as to the authority of the committee, the Montanan said:

"Of course, if you don't care to answer the question, you will have to take the responsibility. That is all."

In his statement, Cannon charged that the lobby committee investigation was an "effort to attack" him.

"This attempt on the part of this committee to go beyond its powers and to investigate my anti-Smith activities," he asserted, "is clearly not only political but personal, and because I believe it to be an effort to attack me and in some way to impair my influence as the wet and Roman Catholic press have been doing for nearly two years, I must decline to admit the jurisdiction of this committee over either my political or personal activities."

He quoted Chairman Caraway as having said the committee was empowered to inquire only into lobbying. Caraway was absent today.

"I want you to understand," Cannon asserted, "it is not because of the desire to conceal anything, but it is a question of persecution as I see it. I do not feel there is any reason why I should be called upon to make statements here which other people under similar conditions are not called upon to make."

Walsh said the committee was not exceeding its powers in inquiring into Cannon's political activities.

Walsh said after the session that the question would be put again tomorrow and any further action would be determined by Cannon's response. He would not say what would be done if the bishop refused to answer.

CARAWAY SUSTAINS CONTENTION OF CANNON

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 3—(AP)—Senator T. H. Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, chairman of the senate lobby committee, tonight issued a statement upholding the contention of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., that the committee had no right to inquire into the political activities of the bishop in the 1928 southern anti-Smith campaign.

Declaring that the southern Methodist leader had not been subpoenaed and that "it is purely a question of his desire in the matter," Senator Caraway went on to say in his statement that the lobby committee "was not concerned at all in Bishop Cannon's political activities, as it was not authorized to inquire into political activities."

GEN. DEVOL COMMITTED SUICIDE BY SHOOTING

REDWOOD CITY, Calif., June 3—(AP)—Major General Carroll A. Devol, 71, U. S. A., retired, shot and killed himself at his Menlo Park home, near here today. He shot himself through the heart with a .45 calibre army revolver. Gen. Devol had been ill for several months.

The shooting occurred at noon, while General Devol was in bed. His wife, downstairs, heard the shot and immediately called a physician. General Devol was dead when the doctor arrived.

The general was born in Ohio April 17, 1859 and was graduated from the Pennsylvania Military college in 1878. During the Spanish-American war he was placed in charge of transport service at Manila and later took part in the Philippine insurrection. General Devol retired April 1, 1912, but in October 1916 was called back into active service as assistant to the provost general.

In the early months of the World war he was placed in charge of draft registration and later in 1917 was made commander of the 13th Supply Zone with headquarters in San Francisco. On June 6, 1919, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and then retired again. At one time he was acting chairman and general manager of the American National Red Cross.

Besides the widow, two daughters survive.

PLEAS OF NOT GUILTY IN TOMS RIVER MURDER CASE

TOMS RIVER, N. J., June 3—(AP)—Pleas of not guilty were entered today in supreme court by Mrs. Hattie Evans and three marines of the Lakehurst naval air station, charged with the murders of Robert Evans, the women's husband, and his friend, Albert Duffy. Trial was set for June 10.

The three marines, charged with firing the shots at the Evans homes, which killed Evans and Duffy May 16, were Lester J. Underdown, Claude E. Carmichael and Madison Chappel.

Counsel for the three marines was assigned since they had stated they were unable to employ lawyers. Giles L. Darwell, another marine, alleged to have had pre-knowledge of the crimes, was not indicted but is being held as a material witness.

LEVEES AT ALEXANDRIA ARE HOLDING RED RIVER

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 3—(AP)—Levees were holding at Alexandria today as swollen Red river gradually neared its flood crest but the water was lapping at the top of the levees on the Pineville side across from Alexandria, and the patrol was constant down the main stretch.

At present about 3,500 acres of land are reported flooded through a series of crevasses in Bayou Rapides levees, with the current reversed into the Bayou mouth from the swollen Red.

The river in the past twenty-four hours has risen four-tenths of a foot, to nearly five feet above the flood level.

WOMAN FINED ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 3.—At the session of police court held this morning, Mrs. Lillian M. Higbee of Windham was fined $2 and costs on a charge of minor assault on Albert Sonnichsen. Another charge of failure to grant the right of way in connection with a slight automobile crash on the Back road, Windham, May 8, was dismissed. In the accident, car driven by Mrs. Higbee and Mrs. Gladys Sonnichsen, also of Windham, collided. The operators failed to come to an agreement as to who should settle for the damages and were consequently summoned to court by State Policeman Charles S. Hill of the Stafford Springs barracks. Mr. Sonnichsen charged that Mrs. Higbee had caused trouble and slapped him across the face in the presence of the officer. Mrs. Higbee told the court today that she would willingly pay a fine, adding to this a desire that she would like to have been strong enough "to put Sonnichsen over in the field on his head." She was represented by Attorney Samuel B. Harvey. Mrs. Sonnichsen testified that the damage to her car amounted to $2.50, stating that the damage caused to the other car was even less.

Elmer Lucier of Putnam was also arraigned in police court today to answer to a charge of driving a truck not equipped with reflectors. In view of circumstances in the case, the charge was nolled upon the payment of the costs. State Officer Hill made the arrest.

David Tachinsky, whose horse was killed in an accident in Windham Center some time ago, was charged with failure to display a light on the team he was driving at the time and received a fine of $2 and costs. Besides the team, two cars were involved in the accident, one driven by Mrs. Miriam Abbe and the other, which struck the team, being driven by Edwin C. Ackley of this city. No testimony was introduced in the case today.

HOLD CONFERENCE TO CONSIDER AUDIT PROBLEM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 3.—Chamber of commerce directors, manufacturers and other large taxpayers met in a conference this evening with the board of selectmen and the special committee appointed to select auditors to go over the town books, with the view of ironing out the difficulties now restraining the selectmen from signing the contract with the auditors.

The method of selection of the auditors, which resulted in the naming of Walter A. Musgrave of Danielson and Hartford to do the work, was outlined by the special committee authorized by a special town meeting to make a selection. The committee consists of Dr. George A. Wilcox, Attorney William A. Arnold and Henry A. Buzbee. While many requests were received from auditors, several of these lacked proper qualification, principally because they were not certified public accountants, as provided for in the vote of the meeting. While Musgrave did not offer his services for the lowest price, the committee felt that after all consideration had been made, his selection was the best for the interest of a thorough audit.

The contention of the selectmen is that the financial welfare of the taxpayers' was not held uppermost in drawing up an agreement for an amount considerably higher than some of the prices quoted by other auditors. This was given as the main reason for not signing the contract, the selectmen making it clear that in their opinion an audit of the town books was wholly desirable. Attention was also called to alleged flaws in the proposed contract, this being done through Town Counsel Arthur T. Kelley and the selectmen.

It was the general feeling of the conference that an audit of the town books should be made at once and that proper steps be taken to secure a contract suitable to all concerned or to have the proposed contract signed by the selectmen.

While the city administration took immediate steps to return all city departments to normal schedules with the voting of a 10-mill tax at the special city meeting Monday night, the necessity of curtailing several proposed expenditures yet remains, however. The 10-mill tax will raise the sum of $200,893 and there is an indirect income of about $15,000. The total income falls considerably short of the original budget, however, which amounted to $258,605.11. The plan is to pare down several of the items on the budget in the hope that the city fiscal year will end with little, if any, deficit.

The city fathers will not be able to realize a hope of cleaning up all or part of a floating debt of about $40,000. This debt has accumulated in previous years and is the residue of an amount that was substantially reduced during the last two-year administration under the guidance of ex-Mayor Charles A. Gates.

A style show that is expected to draw a large attendance will be staged by the domestic arts department of Windham high school in the school auditorium next Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Blanche McCluer of the faculty will supervise the program, which will be in two sections, of the first-year students and as many of the advanced students, comprising 60 girls. Each girl will disport three or four garments made as class room work and an explanation of each garment will be made by Miss Ethel Kathleu, who will act as mistress of ceremonies. The student models will wear the garments in the order they made them at school. Miss Irene Babcock will preside at the piano. Admission is free for the event, which it is hoped to make one of the annual functions of the school.

The student committee in charge of the show consists of: Abbie Easterbrook, chairman properties committee, Marjory Cady and Althea Andrews, Margaret Tracey, chairman state, Carol Allen and Evelyn Paulhus.

Bruno Fontanella of Stafford Springs was best man. The bride was attired in white georgette. She wore a veil and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. Her bridesmaid wore blue georgette and carried an arm bouquet of roses. Following the ceremony at the church, a reception held at the home of the bride's parents was attended by members of the two families and intimate friends. The bride received many gifts. After a brief wedding trip they will reside with the groom's mother, on Stafford street.

Stafford Springs experienced the heaviest traffic of the season Sunday. A steady stream of cars from early morning until late at night passed the fountain at Hay Market square. The most popular road entering the borough seemed to be the Buckley highway, which is part of the direct route from Boston to New York. During the heavy traffic of the day a count was made of the cars passing a given point and it was found that they averaged about 700 per hour. The Willimantic road also was well patronized and in the number of cars using this highway it was a close second to the Buckley highway. Along West Main street, which is the outlet toward the west of all cars passing through Stafford Springs there was also much motor vehicle activity.

Four Charges Against Him.

Herman Enders of Providence, R. I., was fined $7.00 and costs by Judge Heald in the borough court Monday after pleading guilty to the charge of operating a motor vehicle with defective brakes. On the charges of operating with a defective muffler, no windshield wiper, and not having a rubber tire on one of the wheels of his car, allow the metal rim to damage the highway, he was fined $3.00. The total fine and costs amounted to $23.10.

Oscar J. Berthiaume of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., paid a fine of $10 and costs for violation of rules of the road. Berthiaume was operating his car in a long line of machines on the Union road, Sunday afternoon, and when descending the hill east of the Merriam place his machine crashed into a car operated by Thomas H. McNeill, of West Hartford. The McNeill car was occupied by Mrs. McNeill and her seven year old daughter. While both were considerably shaken up there was no serious injury and the damage to both cars was slight. Mr. Berthiaume was unable to give any explanation as to just how the accident happened. Both Mr. and Mrs. McNeill testified that the first they knew of the approaching car was when it bumped into the auto in which they were riding.

DANIELSON

MANY IN ATTENDANCE AT FUNERAL OF MRS. A. P. BURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 3.—This afternoon at 1:30 at the home on Main street, a prayer service for Mrs. Jessie M. Burns, wife of A. P. Burns, was conducted by Rev. Albert Abbott, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was followed at 2 o'clock by the funeral service at the Methodist Episcopal church, with relatives and many friends, including members of the officials of the congregation in attendance. There was no singing, but throughout the service Mrs. Henry A. McEwen softly played appropriate music on the organ.

The bearers were Sidney H. Perry, chairman of the board of trustees of the church, where Mrs. Burns regularly attended, and Harold Holehouse, Henry A. McEwen and David King, the three latter members of a quartet that have many times sung at funerals with Mr. Burns as the fourth member. Burial was in the South Killingly cemetery, near which community Mr. and Mrs. Burns and members of their family lived for a number of years before locating in Danielson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

W. J. Stainton of Providence led the field in all of the events on the third registered shoot of the season under the auspices of the Danielson Rod and Gun club. In the 16-yard target event Stainton was high with 97 out of a hundred, with John Tebo, Pleasantville, Mass., second with 94. L. S. Ingalls of Danielson was high in class B, with 88, and Mark W. Buck and C. E. Walker tied for second with 86. In the distance handicap Stainton was high with 47 out of 50, L. S. Ingalls second with 44, from 20 yards. In the doubles Stainton was high with 42 out of 50, L. S. Ingalls second with 38.

The detail of the scores follow: 100 16-yard targets: W. J. Stainton, 97; John B. Tebo, 94; E. C. Griffith, 90; J. A. Carter, 89; L. S. Ingalls, 88; Mark W. Buck, 85; Charles E. Walker, 85; A. E. Wordell, 85; George L. Ingalls, 84; C. M. Slade, 83. Distance (50), Stainton, 47; L. S. Ingalls, 44; Buck, 43; Griffith, 43; Tebo, 42; Walker, 36; Carter, 34; G. Ingalls, 33. Handicap (50) Stainton, 42; L. Ingalls, 41; Tebo, 37.

Now the ghost-like boys that operate at night are picking on people out in the rural sections. During last night the home of George Fitts, out in Hampton, was burglarized. Evidently these operators cared nothing about the fact that Mr. Fitts has a brother, J. H. Fitts, who is a deputy sheriff of long standing in his position, and also lives in Hampton.

How the burglars managed to gain entrance was a subject of more or less speculation this afternoon. In any event, they went in probably through a window or through the cellar, and when they went out they had approximately $30 in cash, some of it taken from the pocket of Mr. Fitts' trousers, while he slumbered peacefully, and some of it from the hand bag of Mrs. Fitts, also not awakened by the intruders.

Mrs. Freda Elizabeth Moody, 54, wife of Allen Moody, died during last night at their home in Westminster. Mrs. Moody had been ill about one week. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Freda Elizabeth Carlson. She was a native of Sweden.

The death of Francis Plantier, 73, long a resident of Wauregan, occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Orilla Devenshire, in that place during the night. He was a native of Canada. For years Mr. Plantier, a weaver, was employed in the mill of the Wauregan company.

Miss Margaret Conway of the West side is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. Miss Conway, a woman of advanced years, was injured when she fell after apparently becoming confused on South Main street near the Quinebaug bridge at the swift rush of an approaching automobile, which, it is understood, did not strike her. She was given attention at the office of Dr. J. N. Perkins before being removed to the hospital.

Announcement is made that the Windham law enforcement committee of Connecticut had arranged a loyalty luncheon to be held in New Haven on Wednesday of this week but it has been postponed to June 12. Attendance from this section was expected this week, and those who had intended to go probably will make the trip next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boyd will be at West Point next week to attend the graduation from the United States Military academy with this year's class, on June 11, of their son, Harry T. Boyd, a graduate of Killingly high school.

For operating Massachusetts registered trucks in this territory without having the machines equipped with the necessary reflectors Carl Zolton of Lexington and Sidney Insalls of Somerville were before Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis in the town court this morning and were fined $1.00 each and costs.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Young and their daughter, Mrs. Ernest Welker, of Cleveland, are visiting with relatives here. They are former residents of Danielson, but located in Cleveland for years past.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Fulton of East Lynn, Mass., have been visitors with Mrs. Fulton's mother, Mrs. George Stone of Academy street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gorman have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fawcett and son, Richard, Jr., and Miss Anna Gorman, all of South Norwalk.

Mrs. George J. Heneault of L'Homme street was hostess to the Entre-Nous club. At bridge, honors were won by Mrs. Earl Wood, Mrs. Lucien Lambert and Mrs. L. A. Wolsard.

In the town court this morning Oriente Ethier received one of the most severe penalties ever imposed in this town for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant. Ethier was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to six months in jail. The penalty was so heavy because Ethier has a long criminal record, including convictions in Massachusetts and in Rhode Island for operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated.

Taking the chance that they might see the Graf Zeppelin starting on her return flight from Lakehurst to Germany numbers of people remained up hereabouts until after midnight last year, but to no purpose. On her first flight in, during the early morning, the great airship was seen over Sterling, but she evidently was on a different route last night.

PUTNAM

BRADFORD'S RE-APPOINTMENT MEETS WITH GENERAL FAVOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 3.—Following a meeting of the judges of the superior court of Connecticut held in Hartford, it was announced that the court officials of the superior court of Windham county had been re-appointed for another term of two years. Howard C. Bradford of this city was re-appointed state attorney for the county and Curtis Dean of Willimantic was renamed clerk of courts with Miss Marjorie C. Bradford of Putnam and Frank Foss of Willimantic assistant clerk for the ensuing term. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson was retained in office.

Mr. Bradford's re-appointment yesterday was a foregone conclusion in circles of the Windham county bar. He is the junior member of the well-known law firm of Searls, Russell and Bradford of this city and was named state's attorney of the county as successor to the late Charles E. Searls of Thompson, who held that office for many years previous to his death.

The re-appointment of Miss Bradford, Mr. Dean and Mr. Foss was favorably received in court circles. All are capable and efficient officers and are deserving of their positions.

At St. Mary's church yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, Miss Rose Vandale and Raoul Dufault, both of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church. Rev. Father Bellerose was also celebrant at a nuptial high mass which accompanied the ceremony.

Since the city's new one million gallon water reservoir now being erected on Oak hill has crept way above the horizon in the eastern section of the city, to tower above any other structure, scores of people have marveled and thrilled at the progress of the work, which is now nearing completion. This morning several craned their necks skyward to watch a steel worker taxi to the present top of the tank, riding on a steel plate which was being hoisted into position by a giant crane.

New signs of a bright yellow hue made their appearance in the business section this morning to warn motorists that parking throughout the business area is now limited to two hours. The new silent sentinels of the law were taken to their posts by the police department, and are part of the new code of parking recently enacted by the common council. The police committee formally advised Captain A. J. Dubreuil to issue instructions to the police officers to begin the enforcement of the new traffic laws today. Violators of the act in the future will be summoned into court and if found guilty will be forced to pay a fine of $10, as provided in one section of the act. Captain Dubreuil said this afternoon that he believed the city's traffic problems to be solved, since the motoring public today were observed to be faithfully abiding by the new terms of time restriction.

OBITUARY

Mrs. W. H. Reynolds

The death of Mrs. Mary Ellen Reynolds, widow of William H. Reynolds and mother of Superintendent Samuel Reynolds of the Putnam foundry, occurred Sunday at her home on Fremont street. Mrs. Reynolds died following a prolonged illness. She was in her 81st year.

Mrs. Reynolds was born in Illinois, the daughter of Robert and Nancy E. (Jordon) Tucker, on Oct. 15, 1849. She had been a resident of Putnam for a number of years and was widely known here. Besides Superintendent Reynolds, she is survived by three other sons, Sterling of this city, G. Mortimer of Torrington and W. H. Reynolds of Hartford, and two daughters, Mrs. Nellie E. Pratt of Hartford, and Mrs. A. M. Case of California.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and his sister, Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts, were in Hartford today, where they attended the funeral of Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, whose death occurred Sunday after a prolonged illness. Judge Marvin, well known in this city where he invariably presided at sessions of superior court, was scheduled to have presided over the May criminal and civil terms of court which were adjourned last Thursday by Judge Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury, who substituted for the deceased magistrate.

The Putnam factory of the Adams Manufacturing company, which is being consolidated with the Shelton, Conn., plant of the company, is partially operating, filling a few small orders which have been on hand for some time. The mill, it has been reported, will be closed in August.

JEWETT CITY

STAGING GIVES WAY, CLARENCE SWEET INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 3—Clarence Sweet, received a broken leg when a staging upon which he was working gave away and he dropped twenty feet, Tuesday evening. The lad was engaged in the work of erecting a tank at the plant of the Ashland Cotton Co. Dr. G. H. Jennings was called with Mrs. Elizabeth Chase, R. N., the corporation nurse, in attendance. The fracture was found to be of a complicated nature at the end of the leg bone and an X-ray being necessary, Dr. Jennings sent the injured man to the Backus hospital in Norwich. P. W. Chase took him to Norwich in his automobile.

TRUST CO. PURCHASES SAVINGS BANK BUILDING

Final plans were completed Tuesday, for the purchase of the building now occupied by the Jewett City Savings bank, by the Jewett City Trust Co., now housed in the Rioux block.

Occupancy will take place immediately upon the vacating of the premises, when the savings institution moves into its new building, corner of Main and Ashland streets. Included in the purchase will be the big steel vaults together with the furniture and fittings of the directors apartments. This new acquisition by the Trust Co. is to be seen as being in direct line with the policies of extension and business advancement. In these ampler quarters will be secured better means and facilities for improved public service, which, with the rapidly increasing demands daily being made upon this comparitively new institution have become imperative. The last to show that the assets have increased or show that the asset shave increased to a figure where they approximate $700,000. Their earnings also show a steady gain with the current year, giving promise of being the largest in the bank's history. The present officers are; Alex McNicol, president; James Q. Dolan, vice president and secretary; James H. Shea, vice president; Chester L. Dudkowski, treasurer.

Miss Helen E. Minsky, student nurse at the Joseph Lawrence School of Nursing is spending her vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Minsky.

Water will be turned off today 2 to 5 p. m. on Main St. from Tracy Ave., to Soule St.—Adv.

THEODORE BOULE ELECTED GRAND KNIGHT OF K. OF C.

At the meeting of the local council Knights of Columbus, Monday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Grand knight, Theodore Boule; deputy grand knight, George Lafave; chancellor, Walter Hebert; warden, John Tracy; recording secretary, Wm. Kolbusz; treasurer, Thomas Barnett; advocate Dennis Griffin; trustee, Louis Morey; inside guard, Joseph Skaradowski; outside guard, John Dombrowski; lecturer, Rev. Nicholas Caron; chaplain, Rev. John J. McCabe.

At the close of the meeting, a delicious hot dog roast served by Chefs John Tracy and John Dombrowski was greatly enjoyed by all.

Interest is running high in tonight's game between the Fisks and Kaceys, which will be played at the Fisk grounds. The Fisks are now leading the league but a victory for the Kaceys will put them into a three-team tie for first place. In an attempt to do this, the Kaceys have strengthened their lineup. Nap Liberty will be seen in action for them, as well as Frankie Poly, another clever infielder, who played a bang-up game for the Kaceys last week. According to the Fisks, there is nothing to it, as they intend to keep their slate clean.

Had Marvellous Fishing

Henry E. Holden and Dr. Frank D. Browning are home from a week's fishing on Moosehead lake, Maine. Both these fishermen are equally expert with fly and bait, which accounts for some of the wonderful creels of salmon and trout which were brought into camp at the close of each day's sport.

All through the wild country that borders the lake, an unbroken wilderness, extending many miles on either side, the daily fishing jaunts were made under the direction of an experienced Maine woods guide. The Doc says one of the disagreeable jobs that bothered some, was dressing the day's catch each night by the light of the camp fire, which must be done unless one hires a "dresser." And, when a party of fishermen hires a dresser, fortune almost always plays the trick of giving them nothing to dress. Never, Mr. Holden says, tempt Providence by hiring a dresser beforehand. One of the twain landed a twelve-pound salmon with a 11 oz. trout rod, in the upper waters of the great lake. With each declaring it was the other, it will be necessary to get a copy of the report of the weekly Moosehead salmon catches, published by the Association of Maine Camping Guides.

Fred B. Owen, of Fort Wayne, Ind., a native of Jewett City, and Mrs. Owen were calling on friends in the borough Tuesday. The visitors are on an automobile trip through the east, arriving here via New York state and Vermont. A visit will be made with John A. Owen, father of the youngerman, who resides in Providence. The parent was a former paymaster here for the Ashland Cotton Co., whose years of service date back to the 90's, and to the time when the late James O. Sweet was agent and superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wechsler entertained as Memorial day guests Mrs. Wechsler's father Jacob Goldberg, his sister Mrs. Louis Moses and three daughters, Misses Pearl, Estelle and Lucille Moses of Jamaica, L. I., and two brothers Harry Goldberg of San Francisco and Frank Goldberg of Riverhead, L. I.

At the June meeting of the board of warden and burgesses Monday evening it was voted to permit the Orville LaFlamme post, American Legion to sponsor a carnival.

A firm was given permission to erect a system of electric stop and go traffic signals, which are to be tried out for 30 days. Upon the expiration of that period, the borough may purchase them or not, as is seen fit. The borough assumes no liability in their installation and trial. The signals are to be placed at Brown avenue and North Main, Palmer avenue and No. Main, Green avenue and No. Main, at the junction of Main and No. and East Main, in Park Square, at the intersection of Main, Tracy avenue and Ashland street, at Postoffice Square, at the head of Soule street. A lighting arrangement, seen by drivers desiring to pass, non-stop, through the borough will inform them of the speed limit which must be maintained to avoid a hold up at the central borough signals. The regular traffic lights will permit such time settings, as the volume of traffic at stated intersections may require.

THE ZEPPELIN'S VISIT

When the Graf Zeppelin has been in this country before the question has been raised as to what the development of this type of aircraft might result in. These were occasions when the dirigible was under test, when its possibilities were being tried out, when confidence was being created in this type of machine for navigating the air.

While it was considered probable that regular trips might be made by the big gasbag for the purpose of transporting passengers and a certain amount of express matter, as well as the mail, it was not then anticipated that it might be used in bringing three continents closer together. By its latest accomplishment, the possibilities in that direction have been magnified. We have seen the Graf Zeppelin successfully going south and across the Atlantic to South America and then up the west side of the Atlantic to the United States, and it is now completing the third side of the triangle on its return trip to Germany. It has successfully covered a new route and it bids fair to return safely from where it started.

Nothing could have done more to direct attention to the possibilities of utilizing the dirigibles of this type for rapid communication between continents. The favorable impression that was made on the previous trip has been greatly improved and if it results in arousing still greater backing for the dirigibles no one need be surprised.

There is no reason to suppose that the dirigible will crowd the airplane out of the air. Each has its own use and its own advocates, quite the same as the railroads and the motor vehicles, and it is perfectly evident that the backers of each are going to do their best to bring out the fine points of their respective craft.

With the circling of the Atlantic, the Graf Zeppelin has demonstrated that the previous trip to this country was no stroke of luck but an accomplishment which proved what such a craft could do. Its size and character brand it a peace craft, but it is in peace terms that the world is thinking these days and the dirigible is commanding more and more thought in this country as well as Germany and Great Britain.

ACCIDENTS IN THE HOME

It is something of a surprise to have Dr. M. G. Lloyd of the United States department of commerce tell us that one-fourth of the deaths caused annually by accidents occur in the family home. These are the kind, compared with other classes of accidents, which get little publicity, but the figures mean that some 25,000 persons die each year from accidents happening in homes. Many times that number are hurt more or less seriously, children being the chief victims and falls the most common cause of accident, while elderly people suffer rather frequently, too.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs is planning to undertake a national campaign to reduce hazards in the households and has already brought out some interesting facts by offering the homes of its members in North Carolina for a survey under the direction of Dr. Lloyd. In the few months covered by the inquiry, there have been reports of 469 accidents serious enough to interrupt the normal activities of the individuals involved. Two hundred and forty, or more than one-half, were falls, with slipping on rugs, stumbling on stairs and misfortune in play figuring prominently. There were 12 fatal accidents in the period, four from falls, eight from burns and scalds, and one was a case of infant choking.

While a reduction of the accident toll will not be easy, particularly in the case of children, who, naturally, do not have the sense of responsibility possessed by their elders, a considerable improvement can be accomplished. The removal of obvious hazards, such as placing vessels of scalding water out of reach of the young, will help. So, also, will precautions with respect to the keeping of matches. Medicines should not be easily accessible, especially those that are dangerous or poisonous. Instruction can be given to boys and girls in playing with many kinds of toys and other measures may be adopted which will contribute to better the record as to safety in the home.

A PRESENT WORLD PROBLEM

This is a small world after all and we are closer neighbors than we sometimes realize. Conditions affecting a wide area in any part of the globe cannot fail to be felt elsewhere and it is this fact which the federal department of commerce brings to mind when it calls to our attention that unemployment is not confined to the United States but is a world problem at the present time.

Germany, Austria, Italy, Great Britain, Russia and other countries are experiencing serious conditions of unemployment. Industrial depression in any one important country affects all other countries which buy or sell in its markets. Thus ill conditions spread continually more and more. Losses in the foreign trade of the United States are due to curtailed demand in countries which, under normal trade conditions are extremely profitable customers. If this nation sells fewer goods abroad it must reduce its purchases in foreign markets. The same is true of all other industrial and commercial nations.

However, this is a time for displays of courage based on a reasonable degree of confidence, at least in the United States. Accumulated stocks of goods are being used up, credit is available for all legitimate needs, human wants are unlimited in progressive countries, productive efficiency is increasing steadily, and mass production is reducing costs. Meanwhile, standards of living continue to advance.

Since the exchanges of products across the borders of states and between continents is essential to the prosperity of industrial nations, the craze for prohibitive tariffs and additional trade barriers of other kinds is to be deplored. Interchange of goods and services should be as free as possible, as long as national standards of living are not jeopardized. Government and business organizations must continue to study the problem of the so-called industrial cycle, create reserve funds for extension and building programmes, stabilize production, promote peace and cooperation, and work unceasingly to eliminate all forms of waste, particularly the waste of war.

MICHIGAN'S WARNING

Another state has been given cause for making an investigation of its institutions and the way they are maintained by the escape of 13 insane criminals from the state hospital for the criminal insane in Michigan. It was only a few days ago that Ohio was getting nation-wide attention because of the penitentiary situation in that state where over-crowding was one of the underlying difficulties, and now Michigan is confronted with the claim that its criminal insane hospital conditions permitted the escape of dangerous inmates because of over-crowding.

Featuring the escape of the insane criminals, five of whom had committed murder, was the fact that they had armed themselves with knives and razors. Just why this should have been permitted and how it was accomplished are things which Michigan should be anxious to find out. Such persons, whether slayers or in the institution for other crimes, should have been denied access to any and all weapons. That might not have prevented them from attempting to escape but it would have made it impossible for them to have brought the pressure they did, which resulted in opening the gates to them.

It is to be expected that those in penitentiaries will be denied access to weapons of all kinds, but more than the ordinary reason for such denial exists in the case of insane criminals. The desperation of criminals who are rational may be bad enough but it can hardly be compared with that of the mentally unbalanced. In their cases more than the ordinary precautions are necessary and it will be surprising if Michigan doesn't take steps to see that there is no opportunity for a repetition of the escape at its criminal insane hospital. Fortunately there was no loss of life, but one shudders to think what might have happened had one of those who had already taken life been seized with the desire to add to their killings. If Michigan failed to get sufficient warning from Ohio, it certainly needs no more of its own experiences.

WILD LIFE CONSERVATION

It would not require long association with Senator Frederick C. Walcott of Connecticut to know one of his special interests is along the line of the protection and conservation of the wild life of our fields and forests. So that it seems altogether appropriate that he should have been appointed by Vice-President Curtis as chairman of the senatorial committee which has been especially empowered to investigate the subject of conservation of our wild life resources.

On the committee with him are Senators Harry B. Hawes, Missouri; Key Pittman, Nevada; Charles L. McNary, Oregon, and Peter Norbeck, South Dakota. The territorial range evident in the appointments is wide and each of those named has been prominent in some meritorious conservation movement in the past, all of which assures a particular interest in the subject assigned for their committee duties. Their study will cover a wide range of subjects, including investigations of federal game reservations, bird sanctuaries, migratory birds, predatory animals, the fish life of coastal and inland waters and our fur resources. The information the committee assembles will form a basis for determining the most appropriate methods for conserving our wild life resources, but not to the exclusion of their reasonable use.

This action on the part of the senate marks the first serious attempt congress ever has made to lay down a broad and comprehensive programme for the perpetuation of the birds, fish and wild animals of the nation, and it is more than likely to result in the enactment of considerable needed conservation legislation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With the election over there is still the adjourned city meeting ahead.

Those running their heaters are not the only ones asking if it is hot enough.

The man on the corner says: Speaking of the election, it isn't so much what it was as what it might have been.

Are we able to squeeze out the interpretation from the election that there are those who think departmental deficits are desirable things?

With the state department experiencing its greatest demand for passports, unemployment should show quite a decrease when they are all issued.

Speaking of the friendless, there should be included the corn borer, dandelion, Japanese beetle, mosquito, weeds, cut worms and a lot of those other pests that seem to have no other use than to keep man busy like the fleas do the dog.

MOTHER TAKES A HOLIDAY

For several weeks Nan had unconsciously harbored her smoldering rebellion, but it was not until she spoke to young Mrs. Caine that it flared forth.

"I get so bored with suburban life," drawled lovely Mrs. Caine, looking very much like the latest model for a magazine cover and fully aware of the fact. "When housework becomes monotonous I get the blues and must spend a couple of days in the city."

The words were a replica of Nan's own brooding thoughts. She scoured the aluminum pans with added aggressiveness and contemplated her busy life. Nan had three youngsters, while Mrs. Caine as yet knew nothing of the responsibilities of motherhood. Bob sensed her rebellious mood as soon as he finished his lunch.

"You're tired," he offered as she adjusted Jimmy's rompers and wiped the youngster's ruddy cheeks.

"Rather," returned Nan, without glancing at her husband.

"Today I met the dashing Mrs. Caine in the loop," continued Bob, "and I was wondering why you, too, couldn't run over to Aunt Bethy's and spend this afternoon and tomorrow with her. What you need is a little diversion, away from the children."

"Bob!" exclaimed Nan, immediately enthused. "Do you really think you could manage over the week-end? I'd just love a holiday and I could call in Lois." Lois was the schoolgirl whom Nan and Bob occasionally called in to care for the children.

Nan prepared her overnight valise in some confusion and hummed a gay tune. She hugged the three children, administered a swift kiss to the cheek of her husband and sailed away in expectancy Aunt Bethy was genuinely pleased to see her niece. Uncle Ned escorted the two to an exclusive restaurant and the glamour and excitement seemed to creep into Nan's blood as of old. There was something alluring about city life, something that Nan would always miss.

The soft strains of an orchestra drifted through the smoke-laden air and Nan remembered it was just exactly five hours ago that she had left her family. They were probably preparing dinner now and listening to the radio. She wondered if Bob would remember not to give Dot any dessert tonight. The little girl had attended a party the day before and had had more than her share of sweets. She wondered if Lois would remember to give Jimmy his heavy flannel nightgown.

After dinner, which tasted delicious to Nan simply because some one else had prepared it, they went to a movie. When the humorous acts were over, the much-talked-of movie was flashed upon the screen, something called "Say It With Songs." The tiny tot in the picture resembled her own 2-year-old Jimmy. He was running away from school, through hazardous streets, following his daddy. Something terrible was about to happen, something that gripped Nan's heart in agony. A huge truck flashed into the street and rolled over the boy. He was fatally hurt, it appeared.

Between sobs Nan whispered that she must leave the theater immediately. The picture had shaken her jovial spirits. Thoughts of small Jimmy flashed before her and a hundred possibilities seemed to flood her brain. Her relatives nodded to each other, secretly predicting a breakdown for their tired niece.

Nan did not remain in the city over night. She took the very next train that pulled out for Westville. In less than an hour and a half she entered the kitchen of her home and a wave of happiness surged through her as she recognized the various objects in the room that only that morning had appeared so hateful.

Bob sat in the living room with Jimmy huddled contentedly in his lap, while Dot and Henry sat near by, listening wild-eyed and breathlessly to some story that appeared thrilling.

Nan, gazing at the beautiful picture, decided that some day they would all enjoy a holiday together. Until then she could wait in contentment and peace.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 3—President Hoover could not fail to have been impressed by the fleet spectacle he witnessed off the Virginia capes.

The "battle wagons," with their attendant cruisers, destroyers, submarines, plane carriers and circling flocks of assorted fighting planes made an imposing sight.

To a layman, no doubt, it would have been more imposing had they been ordered in close formation and passed close by the reviewing ship instead of steaming in battle order.

As it was, the fleet covered leagues of ocean in both directions.

As an engineer, Mr. Hoover could view with intelligent interest and understanding the propelling mechanisms of the cruiser Salt Lake City.

Misses A Thrill

But he missed the most intriguing sight by not boarding and inspecting the Saratoga or the Lexington.

Those two carrier giants are the most dumbfounding naval units the Bystander has ever seen in a good many years of coming and going abroad navy ships.

There is nothing whatever about their interior arrangement to even remind a visitor of any other ship he has ever been aboard. They are so huge that officers who have been aboard since they were built told the Bystander they still got lost at intervals below decks.

Imagine a ship equipped with full size automobile ambulances to hustle possible injured men from the vast flying deck to sick bay, far below. Yet they are there. You stumble on 'em parked down in the "hangar deck," all ready to be flipped up on one of the plane elevators, get the cases, be flipped back below again and roll under their own power to the hospital.

They even use "gas mules," regular tractors, to tow planes about the mighty deck or the hangar below, which in some ways is more impressive than the 888 foot stretch, unbroken by any impediment, of the flying deck itself.

That flying deck is 150 feet or so longer than the central corridor of the ground floor of the capitol building, the "longest corridor in the world" as guides are so fond of saying. It is more than 700 feet from the house side door to the other end outlet on the senate side.

Movies On Deck

The hangar deck looks vast enough to house the whole senate chamber. Usually the crew of a carrier, about 2,100 men, have their night movie shows on the flying deck.

There is plenty of room for them and for the 100 or so planes parked there when the ship is in operation.

In bad weather, however, the projector operator just tilts his lens down instead of up through a deck aperture, and the show reels off in the hangar, all snug and comfy as a big motion picture theater ashore.

It would accommodate twice the audience it has.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Looking Backward.

Mr. Editor: Ofttimes a chance word will start us thinking and we wander back at least mentally to other days, and other years and we recall something or someone who have been forgotten. Just recently I met a young fellow who had broken his arm and he had said he did not think it had been set properly. His thought of going to see a certain doctor in Jewett City by the name of Sweet, and he asked me if I had ever heard of him. The name was familiar for I told him many years ago, near to the city of Norwich in a town called Franklin, there was a family named Sweet, the members of which were known far and wide as natural bone setters. I told him many interesting stories of those people and if this one of whom he had spoken was in any way connected with that family, he need not go any further, for he would not find any better.

I do not know if there are any of those people left today, for there were many tales told of them and their wonderful ability. It was said the women of this family were equally as good as the men and that they would get their practice in the art of bone setting by taking a chicken or anything with a broken leg, set it, put it in splints and through this crude way learn the art through actual experience. I personally recall a case of a man with a broken lower limb, received by being thrown out of a saloon in Water street, Norwich. Some of his friends suggested getting Dr. Sweet of Franklin and forthwith a man volunteered to go after him on horseback. And what a day! The snow was knee deep and it was still snowing. Although I was only a small boy of about ten years, I recall the whole circumstance as though it was but yesterday and I stood by when the doctor performed the operation. That was perhaps the first time I had ever seen any member of that family who certainly were gifted in their peculiar line.

Years after there came to this country a certain very famous surgeon, the famous Doctor Lorenz, who had a great deal of publicity through the papers and perhaps deserved it, his most noted case being the young daughter of Armour. But in the case of the Sweets they perhaps were equally as good in their line, and in those early days there was not the ballyhoo one gets today.

I was reading the other day in the papers an adv. about a camp site and they stressed the fact that one of their great attractions was a spring of crystal clear water. Of course this is all very fine but as I read it I gave a thought to what was one of the most famous springs of cold, pure water that dates back to perhaps 1610 and no doubt was known to the early Americans, the Indians, long before that. That is the famous Sachem spring which was located on the right under the hill before you reach what is known now as Hunter avenue and years ago was called Hunter's lane. Where the beginning of this spring is I do not think anyone knows but the water has certain medicinal qualities and on the hottest summer days us "kids" would stop there and get a drink. No cup; what did we want a cup for? We just dropped down flat on the ground. And was it good? Nothing in this wide world ever tasted better; as clear as crystal and exceeding cold. This very locality is rich in legend and story and all this section has a peculiar fascination for the student of early history for nearby the Narragansett Indians forded the river under the command of their sachem, Miantonomo, to engage in conflict with the Mohegans who were led by the crafty Uncas. This ford of the river was almost directly opposite the present plant of the J. B. Martin Co. It does not require much imagination on our part to see them in a mental picture, all decked out in their war paint, as they stealthily climbed over the hills that are to be seen even today as you approach the great plain where was fought the only real battle between the Indians. There were many battles fought between whites and Indians, but this was Indian against Indian. All this can be found in early records, but many people do not have access to this and to me it is only repeating what may be found in early history of those days and times in eastern New England. It was here that Miantonomo was made captive by the Mohegans. I may be pardoned for writing this and yet it is interesting to the ones of today who, perhaps, do not know the drama of life that was enacted here in the early days that tried men's souls.

On the edge of a slight elevation we note a cube of stone. That was erected as a memorial to Miantonomo, and the date is 1643. It was not always in this location as perhaps you may know but for years was in the center of the field on the land of Benjamin Durfey, who lived at one time in the old Tavern house that stands just east of 13th street on Boswell avenue that was formerly called the old Indian trail and was then the Providence turnpike. At one time it was known as the back road. Miantonomo was not killed here but historians tell us he was captured here but was killed somewhere near Hartford or Windsor. Of that fact there is no certainty. No one knows and at this late day never will. This memorial to Miantonomo was erected July 4, 1841, mainly through the influence of one of the leading citizens of Norwich, William C. Gilman, as recorded in Caulkins' History of Norwich. Those early Americans are now only a memory for they have moved on to the setting sun along that vast and shadowy stream of time that swept them into oblivion.

YOUR HEALTH

Health Audit

By J. C. Moore, M. D., Seattle.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Since the dark ages man has been seeking a miraculous "cure all"—a remedy that would not only cure all ills that human flesh is heir to, but also something that would stop the deterioration incident to old age. Ponce de Leon believed that he had found the fountain of eternal youth. One had merely to bathe in these life giving waters and the ravages of time would be dissipated and he would come forth, young and virile. We now are amused by the recital of his story and the belief that he and others at that time had in this "fountain of youth." A few decades hence our progeny will be equally amused by many of our present-day rejuvenators.

Much has been done by wise legislation, such as the "Harrison Pure Food" law, to curtail the sale of nostrums that once flooded the country. Not only is the word "cure" prohibited by the Harrison Act in the advertising of these remedies, but also any narcotic drug in the formula is absolutely forbidden.

There is, however, a class of charlatans still preying upon the public credulity, who by cleverly worded advertisements are obtaining millions of dollars annually and giving worse than nothing in return. Many of their victims have nothing wrong with them, but are led to believe that they are seriously ill by the recital of a set of symptoms that are purely physiological. And in other instances, diseases of an insidious nature are left unchecked until the patient is beyond medical aid.

The Gorgas Memorial Health Institute has for many years advocated periodical health examinations—a health audit by the family doctor. Many have acted on this advice and their diseases have been recognized in their incipiency, and have been prevented from making further inroads upon the health of the individuals who wisely followed this advice.

Your family physician must succeed or fail according to the advice he gives you. Not so with the advertising quack who from afar diagnoses your case, and for a consideration sends you his "miraculous" remedies.

If you are wise, believe not the self-acclaimed super-man, who tells you through newspaper and personal letter advertisements how wondrous wise he is. But go instead, if you are ill, to the man who year after year, day or night, stands ready to serve you. If you are not feeling ill, go anyway, at least once a year, and have him audit your health books. That is your best insurance against getting sick.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Meets Starnose

Though getting even doesn't pay,
It seems the universal way.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was over at the Smiling Pool. Peter cannot keep away from the Smiling Pool at this time of year, because so much is going on there, his curiosity will not let him keep away. He was sitting where the ground was rather low and damp near the head of the Smiling Pool. He had been sitting there for some time. Somehow, everybody seemed too busy to talk to Peter.

"It is very stupid over here today," said Peter. Of course, he was talking to himself. "I wish something would happen. If nothing happens pretty soon, I believe I'll take a nap."

Nothing did happen and presently Peter was actually dozing. He wasn't in a safe place at all. Presently, as he sat there dozing, the ground began to move under him. At least, that is the way it felt. Peter's eyes flew open. He looked hastily this way and that; then he grinned. "That must have been a dream," thought he. "It certainly gave me a funny feeling. Yes, sir, it gave me a funny feeling. It made my stomach feel queer. It certainly must have been a—" Peter didn't finish. You see, the ground did move under him again. It wasn't a dream. Peter distinctly felt that ground rise beneath him.

Peter was dozing no longer. His eyes were wide open—as wide as he could get them. He hastily jumped to one side and turned to look at the place where he had been sitting. "It is so!" he muttered, quite as if he didn't believe what he was saying. "It really is so! The ground is pushed up right where I was sitting. What is more, it is being pushed up a little further along."

It was true. Even as Peter looked, the ground was pushed up a little ridge. When he looked back to where he had been sitting, he saw that that little ridge continued for some distance. It had been freshly pushed up. Peter began to chuckle. "Miner the Mole!" he exclaimed. "It is my old friend Miner the Mole! What under the sun is he doing away down here, and how did he get here? No wonder I was startled. Miner is digging one of his tunnels and he must be pretty close to the surface to push the earth up that way. He gave me a scare. Now I'll get even with him. I'll give him a scare.

"Miner the Mole!" he exclaimed

So Peter hopped over to the spot where the earth was being pushed up and thumped with his stout hindfeet. He thumped hard. Yes, sir, he thumped hard. Then he looked back at the little ridge. Once he thought he saw it move ever so little, as if some one was moving beneath it. He wasn't quite sure of this, however. Having thumped two or three times, Peter sat down in the shade of a big fern to watch. He suspected that he had frightened Miner the Mole so that he wouldn't work again for a while.

"Probably," thought Peter, "Miner has run back. That is what made the earth move a little back there. I don't believe he'll do any more digging here for a while. I guess I'm even with him now. However, I wish he would come out. It is a long time since I have seen Miner the Mole and there are some questions I should like to ask him."

But though Peter sat there for a long, long time, he saw no more signs of the little tunnel digger, who had tunnelled right under him and so startled him. Finally Peter gave up and went about his business.

Knew His Vegetables.

Jerry is a garden enthusiast and had been indulging in his favorite sport of buying seeds. As he was leaving the store the clerk remembered Jerry's weakness and tried to take advantage of it.

"Wait a minute; let me sell you some real nice succotash seed."

Jerry, not to be outsmarted, called back: "Thanks, I don't need any succotash seed, but I will take some hominy seed."

Too Much Probation.

Mandy was explaining the crime wave, according to her understanding, as she routed the dust and polished the mirrors.

"Yes," she said authoritatively. "They is lots of crime nowadays, ever since we had so much 'probation'."

"So that's it?" her mistress asked.

"Yes'm," was the reply. "It used to be that bad folks, they lived together, and the good folks, they lived to theyselves. But since we had so much 'probation' why just everybody lives everywheres."

GRINDS TEETH? MAYBE IT'S WORMS

If your child grinds teeth—beware of worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

"A GIRL'S MOST ALLURING CHARM?"

Famous Screen Stars say: "Lovely Skin"

Nothing attracts people as irresistibly as skin that is utterly soft and smooth. This is a secret every screen star knows.

For without it . . . say 45 Hollywood directors . . . no girl ever reaches stardom. The close-up demands skin that is breath-taking in its loveliness.

MARIA ALBA

Like 9 out of 10 charming screen stars, vivacious Maria Alba, of Fox Films, guards her skin with Lux Toilet Soap. "Its lather is so soothing, it leaves my skin like velvet," she says.

GREECE HONORS THURBER WITH MILITARY FUNERAL

The funeral of Christopher Carson Thurber, director of the Near East Relief in Greece, was held Monday in Athens, according to a cable message received in New York by the offices of the Near East Relief. The Greek government honored him with a military funeral, and declared national mourning. All expenses of the funeral were paid by the state, which proclaimed him "a precious collaborator and a great friend of Greece."

Three cabinet ministers represented the government at the services in the Greek cathedral. The Metropolitan and several bishops represented the Greek church, and Robert P. Skinner, American minister, and Mrs. Skinner, were the official representatives of the United States. The entire American colony at Athens, with hundreds of leading Greek citizens and refugee children and adults, were present.

Mr. Thurber, who died in Athens last Saturday, was born in this city in 1880 and graduated at Norwich Free Academy in 1898. He is survived by his wife and by his brother, Charles Francis Adams Thurber, of Auburndale, Mass.

He had been in Near East Relief work for nine years.

In 1922, Thurber was at Sivas, Asia Minor, in charge of relief work during the massacres and deportations. More than 90,000 deportees, of whom only 9,000 were reported to have survived passed the door of his home. From among the survivors he collected 7,000 children, whom he took by way of the Black sea to Istanbul.

Twice during his nine years in the Near East he was thrown into prison. As a recompense for his imprisonment, the Turkish government appointed him mayor of Scutari, a suburb of Istanbul, where he cared for many refugee children. When typhus broke out in the Selemie barracks in Istanbul, Thurber was in charge of hospital work there. He himself came down with the disease, as did 11,000 of his charges.

The Greek government awarded him three medals, including the Cross of War, for bravery in connection with his relief work.

FINAL EXAMINATIONS AT CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

Final examinations at Connecticut college will begin today (Wednesday). This week, Rev. Henry J. Murphy, of Broad street, ordained on Ascension Day, is visiting friends in Hartford. He will celebrate his first solemn mass in St. Patrick's church the coming Sunday, at 10.30.

Many of the property owners along the post roads are showing great ingenuity in their work making rustic fences, arbors, benches, trellises, and other things which add to the appearance of door-yards and lawns.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Garity of Stonington, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Julia Garity, to Charles Power, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Poer, of Hempstead, Long Island.

Miss Ferissa M. Jenkins, who is to marry Lieut. Jesse L. Huffman, U. S. N., June 7th, was presented a purse of gold by City Manager Holt in behalf of employes in the New London city hall and friends when she terminated four and one-half years of service there.

COUPLE CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott, of No. 290 Norwich avenue, Taftville, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding, Saturday, at their home. In connection with the anniversary there was a mass at Sacred Heart church, sung by Rev. Father Mandler. Dinner was served for 45 guests and during the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Scott were presented a purse of gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott were married in Putnam, May 30, 1880, and have five sons, two daughters, 23 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Mr. and Mrs. Scott have been residents of Taftville for 20 years. Relatives from Fitchburg, Mass., and Hudson, Mass., were present at the celebration.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Parker, who spent the week end in New York state and attended Monday the graduation of their daughter, Miss Deborah Parker as a college senior from the Knox school Cooperstown, were guests over Monday night of relatives in Poughkeepsie. Mr. and Mrs. Parker and Miss Parker motored home to Norwich Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugart Norman, of Pelham, N. Y., are guests of Dr. and Mrs. Louis T. Cassidy, of the Little Plain.

Mrs. John R. Tarrant was hostess to the Tuesday Contract club. Miss Mary G. Shannon won first prize, Mrs. Henry H. Vignot and Miss Alma Bowman being tied for second honors, and dividing the prize.

Mrs. Louis T. Cassidy, who spent May in Washington with her mother, Mrs. Alice Mason Drury, has arrived home, accompanied by her mother, who is her guest for a number of weeks.

PERSONALS

Miss Alice Buckley of New York is in Norwich for a few days, visiting her sisters, the Misses Buckley.

Miss Eleanor Counihan is spending the week at Annapolis, where her brother, John Counihan, is a cadet at the U. S. Naval Academy.

Mrs. Henry Nye and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Perkins and children, of Mansfield Center have been entertained recently by Mrs. Nye's sister, Mrs. William Weaver of Norwich Town.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis have returned to their home in Morristown, N. J., after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rheaume and family at their home in Uncasville. Mr. Davis' mother accompanied them to Stamford, where she will be the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Davis and family for a few days.

MONTVILLE PASTOR HAS BEEN ADVANCED TO WATERBURY

Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, D. D., bishop of the diocese of Hartford, has appointed Rev. James Aloysius O'Meara, pastor of St. John's church, Montville, to St. Patrick's parish, Waterbury. Father O'Meara will succeed Rev. Dr. Farrell D. Martin, who died May 26th. The Waterbury parish is considered one of the most complete of its size in the state. The newly assigned pastor will begin his duties there Thursday, June 12th.

Father O'Meara was born in New Haven, was graduated from St. Charles' college, Baltimore, then was sent by his bishop to Paris for two years of philosophy at the famous Seminary of St. Sulpice, returning to Grand seminary, Montreal, where he was ordained Dec. 20th, 1902. He was made pastor of St. John's, Uncasville, March 13th, 1924. There he has done signally good work, in a parish of over 1500, having an assistant priest only on Sunday. The congregation numbers Catholics of five or six nationalities, so that Father O'Meara's ability as a linguist has stood him in good stead. He has made many improvements to the parish property and leaves a substantial sum which is the nucleus of a fund for a new and larger church, so urgently needed by this constantly growing parish.

To succeed him at Montville Bishop Nilan has named Rev. Thomas Lynch, now pastor at New Hartford.

It is an interesting fact that two of Father O'Meara's four sisters are members of the order of Sisters of Mercy and at this time both are stationed at Waterbury convents—Sister M. Robertus, formerly sister superior at St. Mary's convent, Greeneville, being at St. Margaret's convent, while Sister M. Geronimo is at the convent of the Sacred Heart. Both are notably fine teachers.

Rev. Father O'Meara has co-operated in all public activities for the welfare of the town of Montville and while his friends in all denominations will miss his aid and ready sympathy in every good cause, they will congratulate him on the evidence of the confidence of his bishop in advancing him to the head of the large and important parish in Waterbury.

CAUGHT IN WILLIMANTIC WITH ALCOHOL IN CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 4. — Mary Korpocz, 37, of Providence, and Sebastian Muscarella, 22, of Bayonet street extension, Waterford, were arrested on Brook street shortly before 1 o'clock this morning by federal, county and local police on charges of possession and transportation of 40 gallons of alcohol. Muscarella, who was driving a Nash coupe, claimed that he had been called to Providence by the Korpocz woman to deliver the alcohol in Willimantic for which he was promised a handsome return. The alcohol, in ten gallon tins, was lodged in the rear compartment of the coupe. Both will be arraigned before Commissioner Earl Mathewson in Norwich at 10 o'clock this morning.

The arrest was made by Police Officer William Hurley, who was a member of a group awaiting the car and consisting of Chief of Prohibition Officers of Connecticut Stanton L. Briggs, Federal Officer Harry W. Avery, County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler, Capt. Frank McLean and Officer Hurley.

The woman's husband, Wetole Korpocz, is now serving a six months' sentence in the Norwich jail for a second offense on a bootlegging charge. He also has a record of a previous similar offense in Rhode Island. The pair were held without bonds awaiting trial.

RAILROAD BUSES UNDER STRICT CROSSING RULES

"Practice what you preach" is an old adage which is being carried out to the letter every day by the New Haven railroad and its subsidiaries with regard to its own grade crossings.

Railroad officials in discussing grade-crossings before duncheon clubs and various other public groups during the past year have emphasized the statement that crossing accidents would be completely eliminated if motor vehicle operators would exercise the same amount of precaution in moving over a railroad track at grade that they should exercise at the ordinary street intersection. This exercise of caution is practiced in an even greater degree by the bus operators of the New Haven railroad's highway subsidiary, the New England Transportation company, and by its street railway subsidiary, the Connecticut company.

According to the safety code strictly prescribed for the operators of the N. E. T. motor coaches, they must bring their vehicles to a complete stop before proceeding across a railroad grade crossing. This means that when the bus actually starts across the track it is in low gear and there is a minimum chance of stalling the motor. Even at a street railway crossing, bus drivers are required to reduce their speed to ten miles per hour in approaching it. Similar regulations are prescribed for the car and bus operators of the Connecticut company.

REV. JOSEPH COOPER RE-ELECTED HEAD RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCIL

Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, was re-elected president of the Norwich Council of Religious Education at its annual meeting Tuesday evening at the conference room of the United Congregational church. Other officers, all of whom were re-elected, are:

Vice president, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church; treasurer, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Pullen.

James L. Case was appointed chairman of the financial committee; John B. Stanton chairman of the week day religious education committee; Rev. Percy Kilmister, pastor of the First Baptist church, of the teacher training committee; Miss Signe Seaberg of the daily vacation Bible school committee and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne of the Americanization school committee.

The following were appointed members-at-large on the executive committee, Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., pastor of Park Congregational church, William G. Park and Earl Stamm.

The slate of officers was presented by Mrs. Browne, as chairman of the nominating committee, who also gave a report on the Americanization school. Other reports covering the activities of the council during the past year were submitted by Miss Pullen, as secretary, Rev. Mr. Abbott, as treasurer, James L. Case, as chairman of the finance committee, and Miss Seaberg, as chairman of the daily vacation Bible school committee. Rev. Mr. Cooper presided at the business session, which was called to order at 7:45 o'clock.

REV. JOSEPH COOPER

Following the business meeting, Rev. Theodore A. Green, D. D., president of the Connecticut State council and pastor of the First Congregational church at New Britain, gave a very interesting address on the subject, "Why Have Councils of Religious Education Anyway?" The devotional period was led by Rev. Percy Kilmister. There were about 75 in attendance.

ACADEMY ORCHESTRA GIVES FINE CONCERT PROGRAMME

The Academy orchestra gave its annual concert, the 25th, Tuesday evening in Slater hall before a good sized audience that found much to admire and enjoy in the programme presented. The selections chosen had variety and interest and the musicians responded with spirit and intelligence to the leadership of the conductor, Frederic H. Cranston, whose arrangement of the programme provided several pleasing numbers besides the orchestral selections.

The concert introduced to a Norwich audience a new soprano voice of much promise, when Miss Regina A. Cantlin, an upper middler at the Academy, was heard in several well rendered solos. She sang "Calm As The Night" (Bohm-Dole) and "Zamboanga" by Cator-Dyer and when she was recalled for an encore gave much pleasure by singing O'Hara's "Till Starlight Dies."

Miss Dorothy B. Stewart, violinist, filled a place on the programme most acceptably, when she played alone instead of in duet with Earle J. Swan who had suffered an injury to his hand which precluded his attempting the assigned duet with Miss Stewart, although he was able to play with the orchestra. Miss Stewart rendered "Berceuse" by Joclyn and followed this with "Pas Des Fleurs" from "Nalla" by Delibes as an encore. Miss Eileen Krause was the accompanist.

Another number of special merit was by the pianists of the orchestra, Miss Eileen V. Krause and Miss Stella Glowacki, who gave Arensky's Suite for Two Pianos, opus 15, Romance and Valse, repeating the selection when the audience indicated its enthusiastic approval and asked for an encore.

The orchestra opened the concert with seven numbers as follows:

Overture in D (Gretry), from Cephale et Procris; Prelude, (Bizet) from L'Arlesienne Suite, No. 1; The Swan, (Saint-Saens), from the Carnival of Animals; Menuet, (Mozart) from the E-flat Symphony; Aubade, Massenet) Ballet from Le Cid; Two Guitars (Horlick); Triumphal March of the Boyards (Halvorsen).

These were followed by the three soloists and the programme was closed with the following orchestra numbers:

American Youth, Cauer; The Skaters, Waldteufel; Raymond Overture, Thomas.

The orchestra is made up as follows:

First violins—Earle J Swan, Dorothy B. Stewart, Dorothy M. Beetham, Celia L. Tankel, Sarah M. Taffel, Miriam Gordon, Daniel Alexander, Anna M. Leone, Virginia F. Freeman, Miss Faith E. Curtis, Ethel G. Brown, Joseph S. Longo.

Second violins— Judith E. Oaken, Harold S. Friedland, Joseph Dembo, Olga V. Edmond, William W. Lyman, Jr., George B. Bell, Helen G. Lichwell, William H. Prothero, Jacob Lorinsky, Mary L. Hull, Aloysius W. Grabowy, Charles E. Bielicki.

Violas—Norman L. Geer, James C. Casey, F. Everett Reed. Cello, Mary E. Reed. Clarinets, Sherman H. Barber, Lester L. Libby. Saxophone, Murray G. Slosberg. Piano, Eileen V. Krause, Stella Glowacki. Organ, Edward M. Wigley. Double bass, Allyn L. Brown, Jr. Trumpets, Lawrence W. Deauville, Raymond J. Zagraniski, Irving Atkind. Trombones, Mr. Louis H. Walden, Raymond E. Johnson. Circular bass, Woodrow W. Sebastian. Drums, William W. Leonard, James A. Quinn.

PATRICK F. COLEMAN HEADS WHITE CROSS COUNCIL

Patrick F. Coleman was elected grand knight of White Cross council, No. 13, Knight of Columbus, at a meeting Tuesday evening at the K. of C. home on Broadway. Other officers named for the coming year are: Deputy grand knight, John C. Donovan; chancellor, Leonard Desmond; treasurer, Harold Desmond; warden, George Lee; inside guard, John Kelly; outside guard, William Shannon; trustee for three years, Thomas H. Beckley.

The outgoing officers were named a committee to make arrangements for the installation of the new officers, which will take place at the next regular meeting.

At the meeting, which was in charge of Deputy Grand Knight Coleman, regular business was transacted and a report was made showing that many members of the council will attend the layman's retreat to be conducted by the Dominican fathers the week end of June 27 at Charles Island, Milford, Conn.

CITY COURT FINES DRIVER ON SPEEDING CHARGE

In the city court Monday morning Morris J. Krinsky of Woodhaven, L. I., was found guilty on a charge of speeding and fined $10 and costs. The accused was arrested Saturday evening at Thamesville after his machine had figured in a collision. The arrest was made by Officers Peter Vuono and Michael F. Pounch.

Called to Mystic

Mrs. William Hassler of Occum and Mrs. Otto Berberich of Norwich are in Mystic, called there by the illness of their mother, Mrs. Minnie E. Campbell.

POLICE HOLD THREE AFTER WILLIMANTIC MAN'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 3.—Three local young men, Arthur Roberts, 21, married, of Pleasant street; Napoleon Arton, 16, of Quercus avenue, and Philippe Saint Hilaire, 22, of No. 16 Ives street, were arrested on technical charges of manslaughter tonight, following the death at St. Joseph's hospital, at 7:20 o'clock, of Joseph Blanchard, 21, of 40 Temple street. Blanchard died presumably of injuries sustained in an assault made upon him Saturday night, March 1, by the three young men in a wrangle resulting from the destruction of St. Hilaire's derby hat by Blanchard.

Following the assault at that time the three young men were arrested by Officer Leo Piche and arraigned in police court on charges of assault. They pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs, total of $17.95 in each case. Blanchard loafed for two months after the time of the assault and about a month ago went to work at New London, returning home because of ill health Sunday, May 25. He was attended by Dr. S. J. Turcotte.

He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital yesterday afternoon and died tonight. Doctors who have treated him include Drs. F. E. Wilcox, Michael D. Riordan and E. J. Ottenheimer. A preliminary examination of the body was made following death, by Medical Examiner Louis I. Mason of this city, who notified Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson. Dr. Mason announced that an autopsy would be performed tomorrow morning to ascertain the cause or couses of death.

On the night of March 1, the three young men now facing manslaughter charges and Blanchard had been drinking beer and got into a fight near the Brick Top Wet Wash after Blanchard had destroyed St. Hilaire's hat. According to St. Hilaire's statement Roberts engaged Blanchard in a fistic encounter near the wet wash establishment. The four then went to Blanchard's home on Temple street at the invitation of the latter, and where St. Hilaire alleges Blanchard struck him in the eye. The statement then continues to say that Arton, in coming to the defense of his companion struck Blanchard, knocking him onto a bed. Complaint to the police was made by Mrs. Marie Blanchard, mother of the deceased, who said at the time that her boy had been beaten up in the yard and then again badly beaten in her presence at their home.

The deceased is survived by his mother and two sisters, Miss Yvonne Blanchard and Mrs. Oliver Lariviere, all of this city. Roberts, Arton and St. Hilaire were held without bail tonight, awaiting the outcome of the autopsy.

COMMUNITY PICNIC AT LUCAS MEMORIAL WOODS

There was an attendance of over 125 at the community picnic of the Norwich Rural association at Lucas Memorial Woods, early Tuesday evening. The picnic, which is usually held in Lowthorpe Meadows, was this year held at the Lucas Memorial Woods, under the auspices of the Woman's City club. The picnic was held from 5 o'clock until twilight.

Willard Hough, president of the Norwich Rural association, presided and William G. Park was the leader of the community singing. A large number of Norwich Boy Scouts were present, with their scout executive, John L. Sullman. The Scouts sang songs to ukelele accompaniment and gave demonstrations of first aid and fire-making.

A feature of the evening's programme was the reading of the poem, The Building of Springfield, (Bacon Lindsey) by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman. After the programme many of the audience lingered to enjoy the beautiful scenery. Many residents of Norwich Town, and the city were numbered among those present who also included visitors from Bozrah and India. The roads approaching the memorial woods have been improved by Selectman William S. Murphy.

ISSUES URGENT APPEAL FOR SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army appeal to raise $5,000—maintenance fund for the current year—has received donations to date amounting to half the quota. The subscriptions are coming in slowly and R. D. Butler, of the Boston Salvation Army headquarters who is in charge of the appeal, is worried about the tardiness of the campaign. Mr. Butler, during the three weeks of his stay in Norwich, has learned of the great demands made upon the Salvation Army by a class of needy poor of the city and vicinity, who find the organization as a final source of support, and therefore he is very anxious to raise the quota which is the smallest minimum with which these urgent demands may be met.

Ernest O. Rodier, chairman of the Salvation Army appeal, speaking about the slowness in which the contributions are coming in said: "I have accepted the chairmanship of the Salvation Army because I had first hand information and knowledge that the organization is rendering a particular service to the poor and needy of Norwich and vicinity that cannot be supplanted by any other charitable institution in our city. I am aware of noble and charitable service rendered in Norwich by a number of other organizations, but the Salvation Army service is of a specific nature, filling a special need in the city.

While I feel that we must courageously work hard to continue uninterrupted employment and good business, I am aware that there is more urgent need among the poor and unemployed this year than there was in the last few years of the peak of prosperity. This makes it necessary for me to appeal to the kindness of the people of Norwich, who are blessed with the ability of giving to worthy charity, to help those who, through no fault of their own but only by being victims of unfortunate circumstances, must extend a hand and ask for succor.

With the contributions coming in slowly, owing to the fact that we are endeavoring not to put a burden upon the limited number of Norwich citizens who are ever engaged in raising the means of supporting worthy institutions in the city and therefore conducting this appeal solely through the mails, I again appeal to all who read this message to stop for a moment and think of the noble sacrifice with which the Salvation Army worker endeavors to come to the help of men, women and children who find themselves in the throes of dire distress, want and illness. A minute of thought on this subject will touch the heart of the reader and will urge him to send a donation to Arthur E. Story, treasurer, or to Salvation Army headquarters, No. 10 Cliff street. The cause is worthy, the need is great, the heart of our citizens is charitable, and only in their good will and generosity lies the last hope of those who are forced to ask for assistance. I hope that, as in former years, our good people and friends of the Salvation Army will answer this worthy appeal.

MENTAL HYGIENE INSTITUTE TO OPEN THIS MONTH

Final plans for the mental hygiene institute which is to be held at New London, June 30 to July 19 are announced in the programs just issued.

As previously announced this institute provides an intensive period of study for those who wish to consider mental hygiene from its many angles. The faculty is made up of men and women of local state and national reputation each one an authority in his special field.

Admission to the institute will be granted all those who have a professional background of training or experience. Application blanks for admission must be filed with the state department of health. Further information and copies of the program may be secured from the division of mental hygiene of the state department of health.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Anna Bourque

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of Mrs. Anna Bourque was held Tuesday morning at her home, No. 156 Aldrich avenue, Moosup and there was a solemn high mass at 9 o'clock at All Hallow's church. Included in the attendance were many relatives and friends from Holyoke, Westerly, Jewett City, Bristol, Plainfield and other places. Arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Dougherty Brothers of Moosup.

Miss Catherine T. Driscoll

The funeral of Miss Catherine T. Driscoll was held at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning at her residence, No. 27 Clairmount avenue, followed by a requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Arthur Sullivan was celebrant of the mass and Mrs. M. J. Farrell presided at the organ. At the offertory Mrs. Farrell rendered Pie Jesu and as a waiting hymn sang Our Lady Della Stradda. At the recessional she played Chopin's Funeral March.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, and the bearers were Daniel and John Driscoll, John C. Donovan, Martin Cooney, Kenneth Twomey, all of Norwich, and Daniel Connelly of Hartford. There was a large attendance and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Cummings and Ring.

George Segee

At 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon funeral services for George Segee, who died here Thursday, were held at the parlors of Undertakers Cummings and Ring, Main street, the Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church officiating. Burial was in West Plain cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Ricketts. Friends acted as bearers.

Patrick McGrath

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of Patrick McGrath of Lebanon was held at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of his brother, James J. McGrath, in Bozrah. At a requiem mass in St. John's church, Fitchville, at 9 o'clock Rev. Edward Morrison was celebrant and Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ. At the processional Mr. LaFontaine played Chopin's Funeral March and at the offertory, De Profundis. As a waiting hymn Jesus Lover of My Soul was sung and the recessional hymn was Abide With Me.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Fr. Morrison reading the committal service. The bearers were Thomas McGrath, John Fields, James McGrath and John Sullivan. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Corcoran and Lyons were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Matthew Delaney

Funeral services for Matthew Delaney were held at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at his home in Hanover followed by a requiem mass in St. Joseph's church, Hanover, at 9 o'clock, Rev. W. J. O'Brien officiating. Seated in the sanctuary was Rev. A. A. Jalbert. Miss Nellie Milner was in charge of the music assisted by the boys' choir of the church. Miss Milner sang Pie Jesu at the offertory and De Profundis as a waiting hymn. At the recessional Chopin's Funeral March was played.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. O'Brien. The bearers were James, Matthew, William, John C. and Edward Delaney, all of Norwich, and Eugene Delaney of Newark, N. J., all nephews. Included in the large number of relatives and friends in attendance were people from Hartford, Newark, N. J., Boston, Norwich, New London, and other places. There were many beautiful floral forms. Undertakers Cummings and Ring were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

"Brought Back My Strength"

"My little daughter was born on a homestead in northern Alberta. I had four other children and I worked so hard that I suffered a nervous breakdown. The doctor's tonic did not seem to help me and when a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to take that instead. I kept on until I felt well again. It brought back my strength. Today I can do anything, thanks to the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. William Patent, 1415 W. 62nd Street, Seattle, Washington.

OBITUARY

John Mullen

John Mullen, a native of New York city, died there Monday after a short illness. He was a frequent visitor in this city. Besides a sister and brother in New York Mr. Mullen is survived by several nieces and nephews, among whom are Mrs. Ernest White and Misses Mary and Hannah O'Donnell of Norwich.

Mrs. Herbert H. Corey

The death of Hazel Irene Swift, wife of Herbert H. Corey, occurred at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning at her home No. 8 Lambert Parkway, following a short illness with pneumonia. She was born in New Haven, Sept. 4, 1901, the daughter of William T. and Irene Swift, and gained her public school education in that city, later graduating from West Haven high school. At Christ church, West Haven, March 27, 1929, she was united in marriage with Herbert H. Corey.

Besides her husband Mrs. Corey is survived by her parents, and also leaves many friends and acquaintances, who were deeply grieved to learn of her death, and who extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

NAMED PRINCIPAL NORTH ADAMS HIGH SCHOOL

John F. McGrory, a former Norwich boy, has been elected principal of the Drury high school, at North Adams, Mass., having been chosen from 60 applicants for the position. Previous to his appointment he was head of the science and mathematics departments at the school and was a teacher there since the fall of 1912.

Mr. McGrory, who is a brother of Nathan McGrory of this city, was born here 41 years ago and after completing his preparatory education here, graduated from Holy Cross at Worcester with the bachelor of arts degree in 1911. He remained at Holy Cross as an instructor for a year, doing graduate study during that period leading up to his master of arts degree which he received in 1912.

Scarlet fever—New London, 1; Canterbury, 1.

Measles—Hampton, 1; Willimantic 3.

Whooping cough—Norwich, 1.

FRANKIE BUSH, LOCAL BOY, SPARRING PARTNER FOR MAX SCHMELING

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 3—(AP)—The slaughter of the innocents, a tragedy for sparring partners but a highly amusing comedy for the guests, reached a high water mark today in the training camp of Max Schmeling, first German ever to challenge for the world's heavyweight championship.

The scowling Teuton took three new sparring partners and one old one into his outdoor arena this afternoon and for the sake of condition and the amusement of 600 paying guests, all but took their features apart with cutting left hooks and numbing right crosses. He did not knock his working men out, for that would have ended their usefulness, but he did mold them from earnest, rather apprehensive young men into grinning, blood-smeared caricatures with his steady flow of cutting leather.

The three new comers, Frankie Bush, Jackie Shaw, and Karl Ackner, novices to the prize ring, replaced the last of a lengthy string of human punching bags who have tried unsuccessfully to stand up under Schmeling's devastating socking. The German is in the pink of fighting condition, a bit light at about 186 pounds, but browned and vigorous from his weeks of work in the open air. He fought his mates for six rounds today and drew up at the finish hardly breathing heavy.

He seeks only to hold that fighting edge until the night of June 12 when he faces Jack Sharkey in the Yankee stadium.

Schmeing fought Jack Shaw first today, warming up in the opening round, and then plastering the newcomer with a steady flow of left hooks and short right crosses to the head that left Shaw bloody and helpless before the second session was over. The German shuffled forward in relentless fashion, weaving and bobbing as a defense against punches, straightening to slam away with deadly counters as he evaded blows.

Frankie Bush, a comparatively little fellow from Norwich, Conn., got off fairly light in the third round but Karl Lackner, an Austrian caught Max in a body punching mood and the result was very amusing to everyone but Karl. After two heavy blows to the body Lackner had to be led away from there. He came back later for another round but after two right hand punches on the chin, he stumbled around the arena, doubled up, as though looking for something he had dropped on the canvas. This time they took Carl away for the day.

The last sacrifice was a Giant Italian named Humberto Torriani. Max punished him so badly with his short slams to the head and body that Humberto, too, had to be relieved.

Schmeling will continue overhauling his mates tomorrow when another new crop is due.

ACADEMY CLUB CLASHES WITH STONINGTON THIS AFTERNOON

At Stonington this afternoon, the Academy plays its 15th game of the year in meeting Stonington high. It is a league tilt, probably the last that the Wildcats will play this season. So far this year the locals have won 13 and lost four.

Butsy Weisgraber is expected to get the mound call for the Red and White, with Red Fontaine behind the bat, Alex Arico at first, Speed Reardon or Jerry Fitzgerald at second, Capt. Chubby Gibbs at short, Mickey Breen at third, Bob Geer in left, Hack Pepin in center and Ed Flather or Les Crowell in right field.

The Academy had little trouble in beating Stonington at the campus about a month ago, winning by a 22 to 3 count, and should win again today with ease.

The Academy is tied for second place in the league standing with Chapman Tech, each having won five and lost three. Tech climbed up on even terms with the Wildcats by defeating Windham Monday at New London, 1 to 0. Hewitt pitching. Bulkeley, in first place, has won seven and lost two with one more game to play, with Westerly today. By winning this, Bulkeley can clinch the title, which would be its first. The Academy has won from 1925 to 1929, inclusive.

OWLS BLANK POWERMEN IN DUSTY LEAGUE GAME

The Robert Gair Owls got revenge on the Eastern Conn. Power Co. Tuesday evening at the Gair diamond in Uncasville by easily defeating them by a score of 7 to 0, which places these two teams in a tie for first place in the Montville Industrial Twilight league, both winning four games and losing one. Lawless, Paddy Ryan, Shahan and Hanson led the Owls with two singles apiece. Ryan stretched a single into a three-bagger on an error by Newton, and he also made a wonderful catch on Dugas' long drive in the fourth inning, which was labeled for four bases.

Dugas led the Powermen in hitting with a two-bagger in three trips to the plate.

CHELSEA BOAT CLUB TO HOLD OUTBOARD RACES ON JUNE 15TH

The first outboard motorboat races on the Thames this season will be held on Sunday, June 15th under the auspices of the Chelsea Boat club at Kittemaug. There will be three classes, B, C, and the Free-for-all and the classes will be run off in three heats with the exception of the free-for-all which will be 10-laps. There will be a marathon which will be from Kittemaug to Norwich and return.

The race committee has a large number of entries and more are expected within the next few days.

Nuggets Win

Behind the steady pitching of Fred De Barros, the Nuggets defeated the Rose City Stars, 19-11. De Barros pitched hitless ball until the seventh, when they collected four hits and with some costly errors by his team mates collected 11 runs. Borelick, snappy third sacker, collecting four hits out of five times at bat, and Piotrowski with two doubles and a single in five times, were the batting stars of the day. The lineup: Borelick, 3b; Piotrowski, 1b; Sadusky, 2b; De Barros, p; L. Hoffman, ss; Murray, c; Kirstein, cf; S. Wojcehoski, lf; J. Wojcehoski, rf.

A Challenge

The L. H. Majestics would like a game for Saturday or Sunday at Norwich. They would like to hear from the Hardigs, Trojans or Norwich All Stars. Answer in Friday's Bulletin.

JOE EMMONS SIGNED TO BOX LOU BROUILLARD

Promoter Leo P. Flynn of the Shyma club announced last night that Joe Emmons, conqueror of Tony Travers and Eddie Moore, had been signed to box Lou Brouillard of Danielson in the main bout of the open air show on June 11th. Emmons seems the most logical candidate for the Danielson boy as Emmons holds a victory over Eddie Moore who has beaten Brouillard.

The remainder of the card has also been made up with the exception of the first four rounder. For the semi-final six round bout Joe Russo of Westerly meets Joe Preston, hard-hitting Worcester boy.

Another six rounder brings together the popular New London boy, Young Lavigne and Young Granado of New York. Young Granado appeared on the supporting card to the Kaplan-Medill bout at Hartford the other night and won on a knockout over Nick Cristo. Ted Blanc of Montville and Julio Rossi of Westerly have been rematched for six rounds. These boys gave a good account of themselves in the last show, Rossi winning a hairline verdict. Berny Corcoran, Taftville boy, clashes with King Grapp of Westerly in a four rounder. Dutchie Franks of Colchester has been signed but the promoter is looking for a suitable 155 poung boy to go against him.

DISSINGER GETS TWO HOMERS AS PLAINFIELD WINS

The pitching of Clocher and the terrific batting of Roy Dissinger and Bill Pechie gave Plainfield their second consecutive victory over Wauregan last evening at the Plainfield Community association grounds by the score of 5 to 2. Dissinger led the attack with two smashing home runs, one falling far over the fence in left center with no one on and the other a long drive in left field with one on base. Pechie connected for a long triple and a single. Plainfield pulled off four double plays during the game. Plainfield now stands second in the eastern Connecticut Twilight league with Moosup leading by a margin of one and a half games. The score:

ROSENBLOOM GETS EASY VERDICT OVER HOFFMAN

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, Harlem contender for the light-heavyweight championship, gained an easy ten-round victory over George Hoffman, New York heavyweight, at the Queensboro stadium tonight.

Miss Poindexter Wins Tourney

FARMINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Miss Jean Poindexter, of the Hartford Golf club, won the Connecticut Women's Golf association one-day tournament at the Country club of Farmington today with a low gross score of 86. Three others managed to get under 90, Mrs. J. B. Kirby, of Highland, who had 87, Mrs. C. E. Elwell, of New Haven, who had 88, and Mrs. Roderick Pirnie, Long Meadow, who scored an 89. The field of 111 broke all previous records for attendance.

Roath St. Tigers Victorious

Led by the terrific hitting of Billy Barry, star catcher, the Roath Street Tigers easily won from the Division Street A. C. team Tuesday afternoon by the score of 7 to 3. The game was played at the Boswell avenue diamond and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. Beside Barry the stars of the game were Joe Burke and his brother, Red. Dunion also played a nice game at second base. The Cubanski boys were the fielding stars.

Sharkey Pounds Partners

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 3.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey's left hand was much in evidence today as the Boston gob went through five rounds of boxing with his sparring partners in preparation for his June 12 battle with Max Schmeling. He weighed 200 pounds after today's workout, which included road work, shadow boxing and the usual calisthenics in addition to his five rounds of glove work.

Edwards Released to Baltimore

CHICAGO, June 3—(AP)—The New York Yankees today released Foster Edwards, right handed pitcher, to the Baltimore club of the International league. Edwards who started his career at Dartmouth and later pitched for the Boston Braves has been of little use to the Yankees this season, having taken part in only a few games without winning or losing a decision.

Taylor Kayoes Johnston

CHICAGO, June 3.—(AP)—Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., knocked out Jackie Johnston of Toronto, Canada, in the second round of a ten-round match in the Congress open air stadium tonight. Taylor floored Johnston for a count of nine and then put him out with a right to the chin. They each weighed 128 pounds.

HEARD AFTER THE ELECTION

Place—Corner of a busy street.
Characters — Two of Norwich's democratic adherents, discussing Monday's election.

First Democrat: Well, my good friend, what did you think of yesterday's election. We gave 'em some scare yesterday didn't we?

Second Democrat: Yes we sure did, but I had no idea it would be so close. The friends of Democracy turned out fine.

F. D.: And can you imagine it, I turned down the committee's offer to run for mayor. You know when they asked me I thought they wanted to make me the goat. I didn't think the democrats would have a chance so I was wise and declined the offer. Now I wish I'd have taken it and I bet I'd be the mayor this morning.

S. D.: Well, you wasn't the only one who was asked to run for mayor. The committee called on me also but I had the same hunch as you. If I'd only accepted I know I could have won easily. Why only a few minutes ago one of my republican friends, if you can call them friends, told me if I had run he knew a hundred republicans who would have given me a vote.

F. D.: Well, don't you think I got friends too. Ain't I always been liberal with my money. Ain't I always given to all the drives and haven't I held office in the civic organizations. Ain't I a public spirited citizen? That ought to count for something.

S. D.: Yes, that's true but you gotta have personality and that's what I got. Now if I had accepted the nomination I could have polled a lot more votes than most people in town. I'm kinda sorry I didn't take the nomination.

F. D.: Yeah, and you ain't the only one. There are two or three more who are kicking themselves that they didn't take it when it was offered to them. They thought the same as everybody else that the democrats didn't have a chance and they got fooled.

S. D.: Looks like we was a coupla saps, eh?

F. D.: Yeah, you and me both.

RUTH HITS HOMER AS YANKEES TROUNCE SOX

CHICAGO, June 3—(AP)—Babe Ruth hit his seventeenth home run of the season here today, but its principal service was to give the Babe the major league home run leadership over Hack Wilson of the Cubs. The homer had little effect on the score as the New York Yankees opened their western tour by drubbing the White Sox, 13 to 7.

Every Yankee participated in the heavy hitting which drove Ted Lyons from the mound in the fifth and continued against Dutch Henry to the tune of 19 blows. Chapman also hit a homer for the Yankees while Earl Combs hit four times in five trips to the plate. Carl Reynolds, leading the White Sox also hit a homer and three other hits and drove in five of Chicago's runs. The score:

SAYLES ELIMINATED IN GOLF CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

One of the upsets of the club championship of the Norwich Golf club was furnished Monday afternoon when John Dicz eliminated Johnny Sayles, one of the favorites to win the tournament. Dick beat Sayles on the eighteenth hole after Sayles had squared the match on the seventeenth.

In a third flight first round match on Tuesday, Dr. T. H. Whipple eliminated Bob Patrick 2 and 1 in a close and hard match.

ALEXANDER, THE GREAT, GIVEN RELEASE BY PHILLIES; MAY GO TO COAST

PHILADELPHIA, June 3—(AP)—Father Time has beckoned another former star out of the major leagues. Grover Cleveland Alexander was today declared a free agent to go when and where he will.

The veteran pitcher of the Phillies, who holds the National league record for victories, has been given his unconditional release.

What "Old Pete" expects to do in a baseball way he says he does not know, but he would like to continue to play the game with a minor league club, preferably on the Pacific coast.

"I'm just going to sit tight here for a few days and see what turns up," he said after the club management announced he was a free agent.

"I think I would like to play in the west. You know, I was raised in the west and I guess I'm sort of used to it out there. I've been around the east for a long time, now, and I think I'm ready to try it in the other direction."

"Yes," the former star added, "I'd like the coast. I've only seen it on spring exhibition trips, but it looked good to me."

Alex was asked whether he still thought he could win in the big leagues, and if he would seek a coaching or managerial job.

"That first question is hard to answer," said Alex after a pause. "To tell the truth, I'm afraid I'm through as a big league pitcher. It's like the one horse shay, you know, it doesn't last forever."

Alex wanted to impress upon his friends that he was given fine treatment by the Phils to whom he returned last winter after an absence of twelve years. "Burt Shotton, the Phillies' manager, found it a hard job to tell me I was through, and there are no hard feelings. I tried to win, but I couldn't."

Alexander who learned to play baseball on the prairies, was 43 years old last February. He was born in St. Paul, Neb.

Alex entered organized baseball more than 20 years ago, and in his brilliant career helped the Phillies to win their only pennant and was a big factor in the St. Louis Cards winning the world's championship in the classic series with the New York Yankees in 1926.

Alexander came to the Phillies as a rookie in 1911 from the Syracuse, N. Y., club, and was traded to the Chicago Cubs in the winter of 1917. He was released by the Cubs on waivers to the St. Louis Cards in June, 1926, and came back to the Phils last winter.

Alex was a winning pitcher from the moment he entered the big circuit. He twirled 373 victories up to the end of last year, but was unable to win a game this season. His best average as a pitcher was in 1915, the year the Phils won the flag, winning 31 games and losing 15. His greatest total victories came the next year, 33.

CLARK PITCHES ROBINS TO WIN OVER PIRATES

BROOKLYN, June 3—(AP)—William Watson Clark, Brooklyn's southpaw ace, gave the Robins a 6 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today as Brooklyn opened its home stand against the western teams of the National league.

Clark pitched a good game, holding the edge over Ray Kremer most of the way, but Brooklyn errors kept the Pirates within striking distance and they tied the score in the ninth inning. Clark came up in the last half of the ninth and paved the way for the winning run with a double to left. Gilbert followed with a single that sent him home.

Babe Herman's thirteenth home run and one by George Grantham were the hitting features of the game. The score:

REDS OUTHIT GIANTS BUT FAIL TO WIN

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—The Giants couldn't outhit the Cincinnati Reds today, but they could bunch their blows off their former teammate, Larry Benton, in the first three inzings and the result was a 9 to 1 victory for New York.

Benton was driven from the mound in the third inning as the Giants scored eight of their runs right at the start. Ray Kolp finished with a two-hit performance for the rest of the game. Carl Hubbell yielded 12 hits, but kept them scattered and received good support.

Hugh Critz, formerly of the Reds, celebrated his first appearance at the Polo grounds in a Giant uniform by hitting a home run. Frank Hogan also hit a four master. The score:

Harvard Crews Row 14 Miles

RED TOP, June 3.—(AP)—Coach Whiteside sent his Harvard varsity crews down the Thames and back for a total of 14 miles today in preparation for races against Yale. This afternoon the boats sprinted at the end of a six-mile row. In the first workout this morning they went down as far as the bridge and back, a distance of eight miles.

The freshman and combination crews paddled six miles this morning and again this afternoon.

WESTERLY

MISSING PATRICK HANNAFY FAILS TO CLAIM ESTATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 3—In the probate court Tuesday afternoon Judge Edward M. Burke disposed of matters as follows:

Estate Michael E. Hannafy. Petition received from Washington Trust Co. that the amount due Patrick Hannafy, whom the trust company had sought unsuccessfully to locate, be paid into the court registry. The belief was expressed by Attorney Dunn and the court that the legatee who had been a hotel porter at various southern and northern resorts was still alive and purposely keeping his whereabouts unknown. The order was entered to pay the amount into the court registry from which it could be paid out, upon receipt of proper claim.

Estate August a Nelson. First and final account of Ethel E. Nelson, N., executrix from April 2, 1929 to May 14, 1930, showing no balance received; allowed and ordered recorded. As the distributions to seven children some of whom resided in Hawaii would require several weeks for a return the case was continued, with no collection, to July 15th.

Estate William M. Greene. Petition received from Industrial Trust Co., represented in court by Manager James M. Pendleton, that testator, residing in Cincinnati, a former vice president of the Baltimore and Southwestern railroad, and a Watch Hill summer visitor, had died leaving a will and two codicils, Fanny Pierce, Edward B. Coy and Bertha P. Hollister appeared as witnesses and one one of the codicils Bertha and Stella Hollister. A son, Orlando S. Greene is a principal legatee. Continued to a special session, Wednesday June 18th at 9:30 a. m.

Estate Lewis S. McNeil, alias. Inventory received, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate Fanny P. S. Gavitt. Inventory received, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate Hannah Babcock Groton. Petition received from executors and granted to sell shares of U. S. Steel at market value on day of sale.

Estate Karl W. Saunders. Petition received by father for leave to sell interest of minor in property corner of Narragansett avenue and Jay street for not less than $745.17. Granted. Bond made $300 with wife as surety.

Estate Grace E. Burgowyne. Continued to June 17th for first account.

Estate George W. Pappin. Petition received and granted for leave to sell certain articles at private sale.

Estate Emily S. Clark. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate E. Frank Clark. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate Elizabeth Haswell, 2nd. Petition received from brother, Francis G. Haswell, that the testatrix died a resident of Westerly May 2, 1930, leaving a will wherein he was named executor, an praying that the estate be admitted to probate. The only public bequest was $1,000 to Christ Episcopal church and a trust fund was set up for a New London nephew. Will admitted to probate and Francis G. Haswell confirmed as executor. Bond was made $40,000 without surety. Provision was made in will that interests in real estate be sold at public auction or private sale with proceeds for F. G. Haswell as the residuary legatee. Alexander M. Blake was named appraiser.

Estate Foster K. Johns. Final account was received from guardian, Alice M. Johns, represented in court by Attorney Roche. Allowed and ordered recorded.

MILLIONAIRE STOKES DEFENDANT IN ACTION

In the superior court for Washington county before Judge Poulliot of Central Falls, R. I., Tuesday morning, Jeduthan R. Champlin, a resident of South Kingstown, represented by Attorney Dunn sought to recover $6,000 from J. G. Phelps Stokes of New York city, represented by Attorney Roche for sums of money claimed due him, for a saw-mill outfit and equipment under contract, and services as foreman. This was in the Great Swamp reclamation project, so-called, in the Indian Cedar swamp, near Wood River Junction, located mainly in the town of Charlestown. Plaintiff seeks also to recover for material and supplies furnished. The jury empanneled was: Harry G. Parris, North Kingstown; Elisha S. Holmes, South Kingstown; Attillio Fraguelli, Charles D. Miner, Westerly; Edwin Fisher, Charlestown; Eben P. Weeden, Hopkinton; Benjamin C. Locke, South Kingstown; William A. Clark, Westerly; Elisha P. Crandall, Charlestown; Alexander Greig, Westerly; Ronald G. Hinchliffe, South Kingstown, and Daniel H. Spink, North Kingstown. Edwin Fisher of Charlestown was appointed foreman. When the judge found that the trial of the case would last for at least two days the jurors not on the panel were discharged from further service at this term of court.

The plaintiff represented to the jury that as the owner of a saw-mill he was approached by the defendant relative to its sale and some cash payments were agreed to be made to him for the sale of lumber, but no payments had been made for the lumber, it was represented. That after a visit to Mr. Stokes in New York the pay of $300 a month was to be made after a probationary period when the work was found to be satisfactory. The work was necessarily slowed down in June, 1922, when there was a freshet.

Jeduthan R. Champlin, the plaintiff, was on the stand until mid-afternoon in direct examination and following the recess, cross-examination was begun by Attorney Roche and will be continued today, (Wednesday).

The cases set down to follow this are Margaret W. Smith vs. Nancy M. Browning and William H. Smith vs. Nancy M. Browning. In the Champlin-Stokes case there is a large mass of correspondents in which there appears the names of Farm Reclamation, Inc., and after Feb. 23, 1922, Mr. Champlin testified, the company checks were in the name of Saw Mills Swamp Co., a change made at the direction of Mr. Stokes.

Alarm For Chimney Fire

Alarm on Westerly fire station at 5:45 a. m. Tuesday for Box 76 was for a chimney fire at the home of Fred Boucher at 7 Main street, White Rock. All three pieces of fire apparatus of the Westerly department responded but only the ladders from the ladder truck and the booster hose from the Ahrens-Fox motor pumper were used. The fire was extinguished without loss or damage. Recall was sounded at 6:12 a. m.

TWO BADLY INJURED—WOMAN DRIVER GETS RATTLED

Returning from Bradford to New York on the state road to Westerly shortly before 8 a. m. Tuesday, a Durant sport-model roadster of N. Y. registration, which had traveled only 332 miles crashed through a guard rail, overturning three upright posts and turned over when a boulder was struck head-on. Two of the three occupants were seriously injured: William Wayno and Emily Trionisant of Burdickville. They were taken to the Anderson hospital in the automobile of Frank A. Sullivan. Wayno is reported to have received a compound fracture of the right wrist; possible fracture of the pelvis; injuries to his right leg and multiple bruises and abrasions. Miss Trionisant has a comminuted fracture of the right elbow and ankle and contusions and abrasions. The car was operated by Lulu Eklund of Stony Point, N. Y. She reported to Officer Paul McCarthy of Westerly, who investigated the accident, that a car coming from Westerly crowded her machine on the curve at McGowan's corners, causing her to lose control of the car and it swerved to one side hitting a fence rail and then a pole. The police reported that she had no registration in the machine and she was given a summons to appear in court Friday.

Following the crash the woman, who claimed to have been the driver, declared that she knew that she was driving too fast and that she never wanted to drive a car again and would give what remained of the badly smashed auto to anybody who wanted it. Horace Nelder, residing on the Westerly-Bradford road, accepted the "gift" and had directions given for a Westerly wrecking truck to tow the car away. Officer McCarthy took the driver to the Anderson hospital in the police car and to the Westerly police station

Ends Piles Quick

No Salves or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that Lee & Osgood invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

Sluggish Systems Frequent Cause of General Bad Health

Noted Authorities Advise Cleansing System with New Laxative

Many so-called "little things" may easily lead to more serious consequencies. Headache, coated tongue, biliousness, bad breath and a general tired feeling, any one of them may be signs of a seriously clogged-up system. And today people are discovering that one of the best possible measures they can take to insure good health is to avoid constipation by using Feen-a-mint, the modern chewing gum laxative.

Feen-a-mint is especially famous and popular because it works on an entirely new principle—that of uniform internal distribution.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

CLOSING PRICES OF LEADING STOCKS WERE LOWER IN DULL MARKET SESSION

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Further reports of declining steel mill operations encouraged selling of stocks today and closing prices in many leading issues were one to three points lower, with slightly larger losses in a few specialties.

Until the final hour was well under way trading bade fair to establish a new low record since August, 1928. Professionals, tired of endeavoring to make the tired market advance, switched to the short side around mid-day but met with only fair success. It was reported that ingot production of U. S. Steel had been reduced nearly five per cent this week, bringing its level of operations to 75 per cent of rated capacity. News of the steel corporations curtailment was not unexpected in view of the approach of summer dullness, but the size of the decrease may have been rather surprising.

The dullness of security markets since the decline early in May was emphasized by the decline of $315,389,447 in New York stock exchange member loans on collateral during May. The total at the end of the month was $4,747,567,912 and the reduction contrasted with a gain of about $407,000,000 in April. The record high mark of street loans is $6,649,352,929 established on September 30, 1929.

The money market showed further signs of easiness. For the first time in several years some brokers were offering 30-day time loan loans as low as 2 3-4 per cent. The tone of call funds improved as the June 1 payments moved back to the banks.

Selling pressure in the stock market was directed most persistently against the steels, although representative industrials in other lines, as well as some of the utilities, also declined. U. S. Steel lost 2 3-4. Vanadium, Newton, Bethlehem and Crucible about a point each and American Rolling Mill nearly 2. American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Montgomery Ward, Radio, Coca Cola, United Aircraft, Electric Power and Light, Standard Gas, Johns Manville and American Tobacco B yielded one to three, while Air Reduction, Columbian Carbon, Worthington Pump and a few others suffered larger losses. Continental Baking "A" and preferred, American Encaustic Tiling, Curtiss Wright A, American Locomotive preferred, and Pullman made new 1930 lows. Foster Wheeler, McKeesport Tin Plate and J. I. Case were moderately strong.

Grains were firm. Wheat advanced 5-8 to 7c on unfavorable Canadian weather and a decrease in the world's visible supply. Corn improved fractionally. Cotton sold off in a quiet market, with net declines of 19 to 23 points in the new crop months. The tone of sugar was steadier and the close a shade higher.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Ingot production of the United States Steel corporation has been reduced nearly 5 per cent during the past week, it was reported today. The present rate is 75 per cent of rated capacity, compared with better than 72 1-2 in the preceding week and about 80 per cent three weeks ago.

Business transacted on the New York hide exchange during the first year's operation exceeded the annual production of hides produced by the big packers of the country, reports Milton R. Katzenberg, president of the exchange. The hide exchange completed its first full year of operation today, with total sales aggregating 269,120,000 pounds with a value of $43,600,000.

L. C. Stowell, president of the Dictaphone company, reported on his return from abroad, that European business is making "a splendid comeback." He said foreign sales of his concern showed marked gains, but total 1930 business is somewhat below corresponding period of 1929. He said he expected 1930 results would be favorable, however.

The New York Federal Reserve bank today reduced its buying rate 1-8 of one percent on shortest term bankers' bills, bringing the rate to 2 3-8.

Raw silk futures touched the lowest points in history on the national raw silk exchange today; net declines ranged from 11 to 18 points. Weakness was attributed to bearish reports from Japan. Exports from that country to the United States between May 16 and May 31, were reported at 7,626 bales against 23,320 bales in the same period last year.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—Treasury receipts for May 29 were $3,354,29146; expenditures $18,758,213 19; balance $104,609,500.71.

COLUMBIA

The Hebron Post of the American Legion held exercises at both cemeteries on the Green, Friday. A parade was formed, led by the members of the legion, followed by Hebron band, Columbia Boy Scout Troop and school children who decorated the graves. A volley was fired, followed by Taps, the band then playing "Nearer, my God, to Thee."

Memorial day guests at the home of Mrs. Jennie Hunt were Miss Hattie Strickland and Elmer Clough, of South Manchester, and Miss May Turner, of Willimantic.

Misses Florence and Jean Oram of New York spent Memorial day and the week with Miss Anne Dix.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lyman, of Plainville, spent the week end with Mrs. Lyman's sister, Mrs. Raymond Squier.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Winsor and family and Mrs. Louise Goff, of Johnston, R. I., spent Friday with Mrs. Winsor's sister, Mrs. Clayton Hunt.

Mrs. Julia Little of Hartford opened her Columbia home for the summer Thursday and had as week end guests Mr. and Mrs. George Peck of Rutland, Vt., and Miss Eleanor Rowell, of Amherst.

Horace Little of Hartford is building a summer cottage at the lake.

Mrs. Lucy Clarke who has been spending the winter in New Haven, returned Friday to Columbia for the summer. She was brought home by her grandson and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Herman Little of New Haven. Mrs. Lillian Clarke will care for Mrs. Lucy Clarke during the summer.

CORONER HOLDS SGT. SMITH CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

In a finding announced Tuesday, Coroner Edward G. McKay holds Sergt. Nelson Smith of the New London police department criminally responsible for the death of Gordon Simms in New London, May 20. Simms was fatally shot while attempting to evade arrest. In his finding, Coroner McKay says:

In May, 1929, the said Gordon Simms had trouble with Putnam Burhoe, who then lived in New London. Burhoe objected to the attentions that Simms was paying to Burhoe's wife. Simms assaulted Burhoe with his fists and Burhoe caused Simms' arrest. This case was disposed of in the police court at New London. Later Burhoe and Simms had further trouble. Burhoe found Simms leaving the Burhoe home and objected again to Simms' attentions at the Burhoe home. Simms again attacked Burhoe causing him bodily harm. Burhoe left New London and returned the next day. He eventually made complain against Simms and a warrant was issued for Simms' arrest; this warrant was dated June 10, 1929. Before it could be served on Simms he had left town with Burhoe's wife. The warrant remained in the files of the department.

Simms returned to New London a short time ago as did Burhoe's wife. Burhoe learned that Simms was still paying attention to his wife. On the night of Tuesday, May 20, 1930, Burhoe discovered that Simms was then on Mountain avenue, in New London. He went to a friend named Moore for advice and help. Burhoe decided that he ought to inform the police and have Simms arrested. Detective Sergeant Cavanaugh who had some knowledge of the previous trouble was not available and Burhoe decided to get the assistance of Detective Sergeant Smith.

Burhoe found Sergeant Smith at home and in bed. He informed him of what he wanted. Sergeant Smith dressed and left his house with Burhoe and Moore in Burhoe's Ford sedan. They drove to Mountain avenue and learned that Simms had left; Simms' car had been parked there and it was gone. They rode onto Main street and Crystal avenue looking for Simms or his car. When they came onto Crystal avenue from Main street and rode along Crystal avenue, they saw Simms on the north sidewalk of the street walking in front of Jimmy's Tire Shop and going toward the garages beneath the shop. Burhoe turned his car around and brought it to rest partly on the sidewalk near Jimmy's Tire Shop. It was then about 10.15 p. m. (standard time).

Jimmy's Tire Shop is located on the north side of Crystal avenue and about 200 feet from Main street. It is set back from the sidewalk about 18 feet. The building is about 24 feet wide and about 80 feet deep including an ell which is attached to the entire northerly end of the building and used as a garage. East of this building there is an alley-way, which separates this building from the Thames Diner. This alley is about on the same level with the sidewalk for a distance north from th front of the building half way to the rear. At that point the ground slopes rather abruptly down to a point about 10 feet below the general level of the sidewalk. The slope ends near the rear of the building. The ground at the bottom of the slope is uncultivated land and is used partly as a chicken yard. The slope and back yard are littered with tire rims, scraps of iron and boxes. The alley is unlighted and the slope and the yard are especially dark. The surface of the slope is rough. The space between the chicken yard and the rear corner of the building is about 25 feet.

West of Jimmy's Tire Shop there is an alley-way which separates that building from the home of George Lincoln. This alley is used as a runway for automobiles which occupy the garages beneath the Tire Shop. It extends north from the front side of the building to the rear of it and has a sharp grade at its southerly end. This alley is unlighted but the street light in front of the Lincoln home illuminates it partly.

When the Burhoe car stopped, it rested partly on the sidewalk at the head of the alley west of the tire shop. Sergeant Smith got out of the car and went down into the garage alley alone to the first garage, where Simms kept his car. Simms was inside the garage. Sergeant Smith opened the door, told Simms who he was, and told him he was under arrest. Simms came out of the garage and he and the sergeant had a few words. Simms wanted to lock the garage but Smith ordered him to go along. Before this conversation Smith shifted his revolver from his holster to his top coat pocket. Smith finally took Simms' right arm when Simms demurred at going, and started to take him to the automobile. Moore came to Smith's assistance near the top of the grade and took Simms' left hand and arm. In this manner Simms was brought to the auto. Burhoe waited at the automobile with the doors open. When Simms reached the automobile, he braced his foot against the running board and broke away from Smith, striking him in the face. Some of the testimony indicated that Simms struck Smith with an object which he had in his hand. However, Smith's appearance shortly afterwards gave little indication that a weapon was used. The blows that Smith received stunned him and caused him to fall down and against the car. Meanwhile Simms tore himself away from Moore who had his left hand and arm. When he freed himself from Moore, Simms ran past a car parked close to the tire shop and turned into the alley near the diner.

As soon as Simms started to run, Smith took his revolver from his coat pocket and fired one shot at the fleeing Simms. Smith fired a second shot as Simms ran around the corner of the diner alley. One or both of these shots were fired while Smith was down near the ground. Simms ran through the diner alley and down the slope into the back yard. Smith pursued Simms into the alley followed by Moore and Burhoe. When Smith came to the top of the slope he fired four shots rapidly into the yard in the direction of Simms. One of these shots struck Simms in the left temple and penetrated his brain. Simms fell to the ground near the northeast corner of the tire shop building.

Smith continued down the slope and fell. Moore ran past him and Burhoe following also fell. Smith got up and went into the yard and came out into the garage alley. Officer George Perkins who ran to the scene when the firing started met Smith in this alley and Smith still had his gun in his hand. Smith informed Perkins that Simms was hiding in the bushes and warned him that Simms might harm him.

Moore and Perkins started to search for Simms. Moore found him lying on his face over some tire rims between the chicken yard and the end of the building. He was alive but unconscious. Help was obtained and Simms was taken up to the street and rushed to the hospital. He expired as he was being brought into the hospital.

Examination of Simms' body disclosed two wounds on the right side of the face that might have been caused by falling to the ground and did not appear to have been inflicted by a bullet. There was a bullet wound with entrance just below the tip of the left scapula and exit at the posterior axillary line left or under the arm pit. A second bullet wound was in the left temporal region which caused the death.

While Simms was being taken up from the yard to the street to be conveyed to the hospital, Sergeant Murphy found a flash light half way in the diner alley. The bulb was broken and the rim holding the glass was slightly dented, but the glass was intact, and there were no dents on the barrel of the flash light.

If a person were struck with this flashlight with any force about the head or face, substantial injury would result. Sergeant Smith was injured slightly about the face, with a mark on the right side of his forehead, and another at the left side of the nose, and there were marks also on the top of the left hand. These injuries were not substantial and could have been received when he fell on the slope. They did not appear to have been caused by the flash light.

Of the two shots fired from the front of the tire shop, neither caused the fatal injuries. One apparently missed completely, for the window of the tire shop was broken by a bullet. This hole was near the top of the window, and the course indicated that it was fired from a position near the ground. The other may have struck Simms in the back. The shot that struck Simms in the temple was received while Simms was at the foot of the slope, very near the place where he was found. A person receiving such an injury could have taken but a few steps.

The question to be decided in this case is, whether the police officer was justified in killing the person whom he attempted to arrest. Consideration must first be given to the nature of the charge upon which the person was being arrested. This was for breach of the peace, which is in the nature of a misdemeanor. Killing a person charged with a misdemeanor is unjustifiable unless it occurs while the police officer is defending his own life against the attack of the misdemeanant or to prevent his receiving great bodily harm. Killing to prevent escape in such a case is unjustifiable. Sergeant Smith was arresting Simms for breach of the peace. Simms attacked Smith and struck him with enough force to knock him down and against the car. Smith might well have thought from the suddenness and force of that attack that his life was in danger, and as soon as he could recover his powers he repelled that attack by firing his gun. However, even when the first shot was fired Simms had abandoned the attack and was escaping. The second shot was fired when Simms was about 40 feet from Smith and running around in back of the buildings. When the fatal shot was fired Simms had run over 100 feet and was about to pass around the building. In so far as the police officer was concerned the attack was over and the attacker was making good his escape. Under these circumstances the police officer was not justified in firing the shot that killed. While it is true that Smith may not have seen Simms while he was in the yard, he actually fired four shots into the place where he thought he might be. There were at least four people at the scene whom Smith could have called on to assist him in capturing Simms after he had escaped.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Gordon Simms was caused by the criminal act of Nelson Smith in firing a shot at the said Simms causing fatal injury while the said Smith was attempting to prevent the said Simms from escaping from the custody of the law, and I have so reported to the prosecuting attorney of the city of New London.

POETRY

With A Big If

If you can thrive on raisins and sultanas,
Or live on nuts and not go off your own
If you can dine off fricasseed bananas
Instead of cutlets and a pint of Beaune;
If half a glass of lemon juice and currants
On rising keeps your inner man in tune
Instead of breakfast; if for sheer endurance
Nothing sustains you like a well-stewed prune;

If you enjoy ingesting uncooked carrots
And feed with relish on a well-heaped plate
Of that strange yellow stuff they feed to parrots,
Or wursel souffle or a deviled date;
If you can swallow vegetable marrows
And crew the turnip's unconvincing top
If you can buy your lunch off costers barrows
And never hunger for a well-done chop;

If fig and nut and orange pip and apple
Do all the work of steak and Irish stew;
Enabling you with earthly cares to grapple,
To fight life's battle and enjoy it, too
If you can feel like cockatoo or rabbit
And shun the flesh of pig, or sheep, or cow,
Still, that won't wean me from the beef-steak habit,
And what is more — I'm off to have one now!

—London Morning Post.

Wings Of Dawn

Dawn is dense with twitter,
And the white air swims and sings
In rapid wings that glitter,
And the flashing of wings—
Delicate and fugitive shiverings.

The dews curl up in haze,
While the sun from his hive,
Like a giant bee ablaze,
Bursts dizzily alive—
And through the glow a thousand swallows dive.

Light like a storm
Deluges the grass,
And birds in a swarm
Wheel, dwindle and mass—
And their wings are split silver as they pass.

—Joseph Auslander.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"The new maid seems rather nice and quiet." "Yes, she doesn't even disturb the dust when she's cleaning."—Boston Transcript.

Maid—Oh, yes, ma'am. It's your son!—The Pathfinder.

The Cynical One—Women age faster than men. They also lose their powers of memory first.
The Other One—Can you prove it?
The Cynical One—Yes. Just notice how many women at the age of 30 have difficulty in remembering how old they are.—Detroit News.

Conductor—Next station is Long Wait Junction. Change cars for Mauch Chunk, Sequedunk, Quakake and Podunk, Hokendaqua, Catasauqua, Mocanaqua and Tamaqua.
Green Brakeman (at other end of car)—Same at this end.—Pathfinder.

An old Negro preacher was explaining to his congregation the difference between faith and knowledge. "Now my bredren," he said, "dat's like dis: Dar's Brudder Johnsing a-sittin' on de front seat wid Sister Johnsing and de five little Johnsings. She knows dey's her chillen—dat's knowledge. He believes dey's his chillen—dat's faith."—Civic Opinion.

"Well, yer worship, it was like this," said the man charged with disturbing the peace. "Me and me wife gets into an argument over the washin'-money. She culls me a lazy loafer and hits me over the head with a kettle. Then I knocks her down an' she comes up agin and knocks me down and kicks me in the neck."
"I see," said the malstrate, "and what next?"
"Well, er course, then we gets mad an' starts to fight."—Fo'c'sl Banter.

MOTHER OF SEVEN IN NEW LONDON SEEKING MISSING HUSBAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—Mrs. Fred S. Groves, 580 Seneca avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., came to New London this evening looking for her husband. Mrs. Groves told a pitiful story and requested the police to assist in finding Groves. The latter, who is a restaurant worker by occupation, was out of work in Brooklyn and, through an agency, he obtained work at Fern's restaurant, 68 State street. He went to work Memorial day. When Mrs. Groves did not hear from her husband, she came to New London, so she used all her money to reach here in search of the man, for she is the mother of seven children. In order to make the trip here she was forced to bring the infant with her. Inquiry at the restaurant revealed the information that Groves resigned this forenoon and was paid. He explained his reason for abandoning the work as due to having obtained a better position at Ocean Beach. A search of the restaurants there, however, failed to find the man. The woman and baby are being assisted by the Learned mission. Grove is described as being 45, about five feet, four inches in height. He is medium build, has mixed gray hair and is slightly bald. When he started for New London, Groves wore a gray suit, tan shoes and straw hat. Groves has been married 29 years and has been estranged from his wife.

OBITUARY

Edward Ernst

Edward Ernst, 35, of Riverside Beach, Waterford, and a former New London baker, died last night at a sanitarium in New York, death being caused by pleurisy. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Louis and Bernard Ernst, of Waterford, his father, a sister, Miss Caroline Ernst, of Danbury and a brother, John Ernst. Mr. Ernst was born in Danbury but for several years was associated with his brother in the bakery business here. He had resided in Waterford 14 years.

DENATURED 4TH OF JULY—DOES THE PUBLIC WANT IT?

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—There is a movement hereabouts to dispense with the customary observance of Fourth of July, for there is an existing sentiment tending toward the abandoning of firing of explosives, although that sentiment is being displayed by but few. However, that all who are interested in the observance of the day may have an opportunity to be heard, a public meeting will be held in the council chamber of the municipal building Friday evening next at 8 o'clock (daylight saving time), to decide the matter.

Violate Parking Laws

Three more arrests for violation of the city's parking laws were made today. Samuel S. Sachs, 10 Kernboro street, Roxbury, Mass., is charged with blocking traffic. Marcy Spinnato, 30 Montauk avenue, is charged with parking overtime on Main street, and Carlyle D. Hazall, 626 Dixwell avenue, New Haven, is charged with operating an over-length truck. The last named driver was arrested this afternoon by State Police Officer Peter Busch. All of the drivers were ordered to present themselves in the police court tomorrow.

Miss Katherine Prindiville, superintendent of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, in driving on Ocean avenue this afternoon found a rug in the highway. Miss Prindiville had the rug taken to the hospital and then notified the police of its being found.

Harold A. Haynes and Miss Mary E. Barca, of Jefferson avenue, were married.

Steam yacht Corsair, owned by J. Pierpont Morgan, entered the lower harbor during last night and remained in port until this forenoon when the yacht steamed to the eastward.

Woburn Runaways Return

Joseph Pica, 18, and his brother, Michael, 16, of Woburn, Mass., runaways, were arrested at the union station early this morning by Special Agent Harold Swanson of the New Haven railroad. The boys were locked up and today money was sent here by the father that they could return home. The boys said they ran away several weeks ago and went west as far as Oklahoma and when arrested were trying to get back home.

FUNERAL

John A. Johnson

The funeral of John A. Johnson was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 62 West street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Burial was in the Fish cemetery, Mystic.

George Hill, of 8 Pratt street; Miss Loretta Robarge, Stonington; Mrs. William Lind and infant son, 117 Pequot avenue; Mrs. Bridget Loftus, 528 Main street; Ralph Pressman, Middletown, and Mrs. Fred Ellis, Holyoke, Mass., the last named injured Friday night when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband and son was hit by a car operated by Samuel Terry, Submarine base and intoxicated, on Poquonoc road, Groton, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

John Brown, 443 Bank street, was arrested today by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey at the request of the police of New Bedford, Mass., who hold a warrant charging Brown with neglect to support his minor child. In court, Brown's case was continued until Thursday next, when an officer will arrive here from New Bedford to take charge of the prisoner, who has waived extradition. Brown furnished a surety on his bond of $200.

John N. Leverone, for many years a member of the firm of Leverone & Musante, proprietors of a store on State street, today sold his interest in the business to Mrs. G. B. Musante, widow of a former member of the firm. The business will be conducted in the future by Mrs. Musante and G. B. Leverone.

Police Sergeant and Mrs. William T. Babcock visited in New Haven last night, making the trip by automobile.

CORONER HOLDS SMITH RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith is criminally responsible for the death of Gordon O. Sims, of New London, who died from a bullet wound in his brain earlier in the month. Smith shot Sims after the latter had beaten the officer and was attempting to escape, following being arrested on a charge of breach of the peace, according to a finding handed down today by Coroner Edward G. McKay, of Norwich. On the filing of the finding with Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer, Sergeant Smith, who has been at liberty on bail of $2,000 since the night of the shooting, was presented in court on a charge of manslaughter. At the request of Attorney Morris Lubchansky, counsel for Smith, the case was continued to a week from Wednesday. Smith's bail was not increased. In the event of the finding of the coroner being sustained when the case is heard next week, Smith will be bound over until the next term of the superior court, but if Coroner McKay's finding is not sustained, Smith will be discharged. Smith has been under suspension since the night of the shooting and if bound over he will remain suspended until such time as his case is disposed of.

FINES FOR THREE TOUGHS WHO ATTACKED SAILORS

A gang of youths revived their pastime of attacking and beating members of the coast guard, stationed at the state pier, last night. As a result of their conduct three of four arrested were penalized when tried in the police court today. Petro Paskey, 79 Harrison street; Roy and Clifford Stanners, 2 Front street and Frank Raymus were the accused, being charged with breach of the peace. Paskey, Raymus and Roy Stanners were fined $10 and costs each. Clifford Stanners was given suspension of judgment. The young men were on Main street about midnight when A. R. Fulman and J. E. White, were walking to the state pier. Without provocation or warning the gang leaped upon the sailors and administered a beating. While the fight was in progress a telephone message was sent to police headquarters and Patrolmen Frank Linehan and Henry Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh arrived in time to apprehend the gang.

Horton Messick, Cosgrove court, was charged with reckless driving and was fined $10, but the court ordered the fine remitted. Messick, a youth, was driving on Granite street and when at the corner of Brainard street, he suddenly and without giving a signal, attempted to drive to the latter highway. At the same time, Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was passing and his cycle was struck by the automobile resulting in the officer being thrown to the ground, but he sustained only minor bruises. Ray but recently returned to duty after the cycle he was riding was struck by an automobile at the corner of Meridian and Church streets.

Versey Autry, submarine base, charged with speeding, was fined $10 and costs. Autry was arrested on Ocean avenue last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey.

John Kearney, 24 High street, was charged with intoxication and was fined $25 and costs. He was arrested on Trumbull street last night by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Bailey when he was found asleep in an automobile. Kearney also gave the officers trouble in effecting his arrest.

Joseph Sammataro, 18, of 121 Shaw street, charged with loitering and refusing to obey an order of a police officer, was given suspension of judgment, but was advised to conduct himself in a creditable manner in the future and to obey any order delivered by an officer. Sammataro was on Bank street, near Shaw last night and with two companions was loitering in front of a store, the proprietor of which had complained because of the constant gathering of loiterers there. Patrolman Henry Sylvia had received instructions to put an end to the loitering and when he ordered the trio to move away from the store, the command was heeded by two of the youths, but Sammataro refused to depart and as the officer explained it, "gave me the horse laugh."

Herman R. Zieff, 35 Russell street, Brookline, Mass.; Francis G. Benson, Blackhall and Willard DiBiasi, Noank, were charged with parking overtime on State street, neither driver presented himself in court so their bonds of $2 were forfeited.

PROGRESSIVE FIGHT GETS TWO MEN ARRESTED

Alexander Gray, colored, a member of the United States Coast Guard, state pier and Peter Pijeaux, also colored, a former member of the service and residing at 17 Hill street, were arrested today by State Police Officer John Smith, the former charged with assault with a deadly weapon and the latter with assault. Gray was held in bail of $1,000 and Pijeaux's bond was fixed at $250. The arrest of the Negroes was the result of a fight between the two which lasted nearly a half hour, during which time the fighters, fought through three streets to have their combat ended by the state police officer on the Central Vermont railroad bridge, which spans Winthrop's cove. The fight was witnessed by several hundred men and women. Gray went to the home of Pijeaux about 8:30 and gave an alarm at the rear entrance. The warning was responded to by Mrs. Pijeaux and Gray asked to see Pijeaux, at the same time threatening Mrs. Pijeaux if she did not produce her husband. Mrs. Pijeaux informed her husband of Gray's presence in the yard and Pijeaux left the house and engaged in conversation with the sailor. The nature of the conversation is not known to the authorities, but in a few seconds, the two men were fighting and Gray held an ugly knife in his right hand. During the fight in the yard, Gray lost possession of the knife, but not until he had inflicted a slight wound beneath Pijeaux's shoulder-blade. The battlers continued their fight to Hill street and followed by Mrs. Pijeaux and two other Negresses the men fought gradually through the street to Main street. There the crowd that watched the fighters increased in droves and all followed the fighting Negroes as the men waged their battle to Hallam street. On this street, Gray seized a stone, about half the size of a canteloupe and this he retained as a weapon. During the fight through Hallam street, Pijeaux received a blow on the head from the stone, but he continued to battle with his assailant. As the fighters reached the railroad bridge, Officer Smith who was passing in an automobile was attracted by the crowd and arrested both men.

What Is Going On Tonight

Ladies auxiliary, No. 54, meets in A. O. H. hall.

ANNONCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

"Swwethearts and Wives," a mystery romance with Clive Brook, Billie Dove and Sidney Blackmer and "The Melody Man" a musical romance starring William Collier, Jr., Alice Day and John St. Polis will be presented at the Palace theatre today on the double-feature bill which will be continued through Friday of this week.

"Sweethearts and Wives" is all about a lady who has lost a diamond necklace. Her husband is about to divorce her and if this necklace is recovered he has grounds for a suit. He hires an English detective to go to the little town in France where his wife is staying and try to get the necessary evidence. But his wife has a little maid who is a clever girl and she is doing her best to find the necklace. And there is another character—an English motorist traveling in the south of France with a married companion who does not want her husband to know about this little lark. They become involved when they get lost and out of gas. This is one of the most entertaining films and one of the most hair-raising plots in screen history.

"The Melody Man" is a different kind of story but just as entertaining. It is concerned with the conflict between a musician who loves the old masters and one who is a leader of jazz.

Both of these films are unusual in quality, excellent in plot and unsurpassed in cast. This is a double-feature bill which should not be missed by anyone and besides giving you an evening's pleasure it will give you an opportunity to cast more votes for the girl in Norwich whom you want to send to Atlantic City in the Popularity Contest. Not only will she have the distinction of being the most popular girl in town but she will have won a fine vacation and a nice wardrobe complete in every detail to take with her. Remember that one admission entitles you to five votes. Why not get them early? And why not get them often?

Forty-three students were graduated from the Connecticut College of Pharmacy in New Haven. These are the first to complete the course in the college, started in 1927.

GOSHEN

There was a hard white frost here on the hills and valleys, the grass froze and in the lowlands, tomato plants and tender vegetation was killed. This was Saturday morning, May 31.

An airplane from Brainard field was seen to do some stunt Saturday afternoon, when, like a huge bird, it was seen to make a long circle and glide with a closed throttle nearly to terra firma near Schillers Country club place. In a few seconds the bird man rose again and disappeared in the direction of Hartford.

Mrs. Sherman Fox of East Hartford is spending the week with friends here.

The month all have been waiting for, Beautiful June, is here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sherman, of Norwich, were with friends here Sunday.

Thursday evening, June 19th, is the date for the annual moonlight excursion sail down the Thomas river and out into the sound by the Norwich C. E. Union. This annual trip is looked forward to with much anticipation.

ANNONCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

What happened in Temple Tower? The girl inside, prisoner of a giant criminal and a half crazed jewel thief—the intrepid "Bulldog" Drummond outside, baffled by spiked walls and barred windows from access to the girl he loves—neither knowing if the other were still alive or not—behind them both the sinister figure of the Masked Strangler with murder in his chilly heart, and things happen!

This is the powerful central situation in "Temple Tower," Fox Movietone all talker, the spine chill which introduces local film fans to something new in the way of screen entertainment when it opens at the Breed theatre tomorrow for three days.

KKenneth MacKenna has the featured portrayal of "Bulldog" Drummond in this latest H. C. McNeile novel to be adapted for the screen. Marceline Day, Henry B. Walthall, Cyril Chadwick, Peter Gawthorne, and other favorites are in the cast of this offering. Donald Gallaher directed.

"The Golden Calf," with Sue Carol, El Brendel, Jack Mulhall and Marjorie White will be shown for the last times today at 2.15, 7 and 9 p. m.

NATURALIZATION COURT ADMITS 87 APPLICANTS TO CITIZENSHIP

Eighty-seven new citizens were made at a naturalization session of the superior court in this city Tuesday. Thirty-one applications were continued for various reasons and 12 applications were denied, Judge Allyn L. Brown was on the bench. The court session, which opened at 10 o'clock in the morning, was held up the entire afternoon, because of the fact that Judge Brown was a bearer at the funeral of Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin at Hartford. The court recessed at 12:30 o'clock and Judge Brown left immediately for Hartford to attend the funeral. The judge returned shortly after 5:30 o'clock when court was reconvened and the examination of applicants was again taken up, the session lasting until 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Federal Examiner L. W. Throckmorton of New Haven questioned the applicants and their qualifications were passed on by Judge Brown. Non payment of personal taxes, drunken driving convictions, liquor law violations or statutory offenses were responsible for the holding up or dismissal of a number of applications. Other cases were continued for further study or due to the absence of witnesses.

Each of the newly made citizens was presented D. A. R. manuals and flag codes by Mrs. Frank I. Royce, chairman of the patriotic education committee of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., Inc.

CRITICISM AND SUPPORT OF P. U. COMMISSION

Criticism and support of the public utilities commission of the state are forecast in the announcement of the speakers for the luncheon of the New London County League of Women Voters which is to be held today (Wednesday) at Norwich Inn.

The speakers are to be Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light company, and Professor Albert Levitt of Redding who has attacked the commission on the ground that it has failed to conform to the law in a number of different ways. The subject for the two speakers will be "The Regulation of Public Utilities in Connecticut".

The league will hold an all-day meeting, beginning with a business session at 11 o'clock at which the county chairman, Miss Edna L. Tyler of New London, will preside. The annual reports of officers and committees will be presented.

A luncheon for which there had been 105 reservations up to Tuesday night will be held at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and at 2 o'clock the session will be held at which Mr. Ferguson and Professor Levitt will speak.

WOMAN'S CLUB PLANS FOR COMING YEAR

At a recent meeting of the new officers of the executive board of the Woman's City club many interesting offerings for the coming year were discussed. Among the appointments already assured are a course in current events by Prof. Lawrence; a lecture and moving pictures; an evening of dramatic dancing; another afternoon on "Literary Norwich"; an art exhibition; and an "Old Folk's Concert." All of these except the course in current events are free to members of the club. The usual number of round tables are being arranged and this year all are without additional fees.

STONINGTON SHOWS 800 INCREASE IN POPULATION

The population of the town of Stonington as shown by a preliminary count of the returns of the 15th census, taken as of April 1, 1930, is 11,020 as compared with 10,236 on Jan. 1, 1920. These figures are preliminary and subject to correction. The population of this area was not shown separately in 1920.

There were 144 farms enumerated in this area at the 15th census. The population of Stonington borough, which is included in the above total, is 1,993.

Happy on 90th Birthday

Mrs. Elizabeth Rose Carrier, of 125 School street, Norwich, had a most enjoyable day Tuesday, which was her 90th birthday. Mrs. Carrier is the widow of Joseph B. Carrier, former chief of the Norwich Fire department. She received calls and cards and messages, gifts of various sorts, and was especially pleased to have a call from the present fire department chief, Henry R. Taft. Chief Taft took along a beautiful gift, a pink begonia, in full flower. A decorated birthday cake, a gift of ice cream and other remembrances from friends made the day happy and cheery.

Norwich Girl Gets Degree

Miss Anna McNamara of Norwich, daughter of Mrs. Jane McNamara and the late John McNamara, was among those who received the degree of master of arts from Columbia university. Miss McNamara, who is at present teaching school in Passaic high school, Passaic, N. J., is a graduate of Smith college, Northamptor.

NORWICH TAX PAYERS TO DISCUSS ESTIMATES

At a meeting of the Norwich Tax Payers associations to be held Friday evening at Odd Fellows hall there will be a discussion on the various items in the estimates, which are to be acted on at the annual city meeting next Monday. The special committee appointed by the association to investigate the junior high school project will report at the meeting.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH AT STERLING

Everything is in readiness for the celebration of the third anniversary of the dedication of the United Protestant church of Sterling. Advance reports indicate a larger attendance than last year when Senator J. Thomas Heflin was the principal speaker. Larger delegations from Massachusetts have been promised for the klan parade. The program will start at 11 a. m. with a religious service. At 1:30 p. m. the klan will parade. Grand Dragon John W. Perry of the Realm of Connecticut and Rhode Island will speak at 2:30 p. m. At 3 p. m. Dr. William H. Anderson of New York will give the feature address of the day. The day's programme will be interspersed with band concerts and musical numbers.

HEALTH DEPT. TO SHOW NARROW WIDTH FILMS SOON

The state department of health has recently added to its equipment a projectorscope for the showing of narrow width films. This will be followed by a full line of films on 16 m.m. stock. Many of the most popular of its standard width films are now being duplicated in narrow width and so will be available to small groups for educational purposes.

As such films are all of the non-inflammable or slow-burning type they may be shown in small halls without the usual inspection and license by the state police, as required by law for the showing of the standard width or 35 m m. educational films.

The use of both narrow and standard width films by the department is in line with its policy to meet the demands of local groups with health illustrative material which will be best suited to their needs.

TO HOLD FALL SESSION AT THE UNITED CHURCH

The executive board of the eastern district of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut met at the home of Miss Elizabeth G. Day of Colchester recently. Mrs. Carl Holdredge of Ledyard, the new chairman of this district, presided. An invitation to hold the fall meeting of the district on Thursday, Oct. 16th, at the United church, Norwich, was gratefully accepted. Last fall such a meeting was held at Danielson and was attended by about 400 women. An equally inspiring program is promised for this meeting on Oct. 16.

Named Secretary-Treasurer

At a meeting of Connecticut state board of pharmacy, held Tuesday at Hartford, Ex-Mayor Herbert M. Lerou, well known local druggist, was appointed secretary and treasurer of the board for the 13th consecutive year. Mr. Lerou is regarded as one of the leading druggists in the state.

Prominent members of the society will be special speakers, including the conference president, Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood.

Talk by Miss Avery

Miss Gertrude S. Avery was the principal speaker Monday afternoon at the joint meeting of the Intermediate and Junior C. E. societies in the Congregational chapel, which was decorated with spring flowers. The meeting, at 4 o'clock, opened with music by Miss Eleanor Smith. "How to Make Friends and Keep Them," was the subject treated by Alice Avery, leader, who also offered a prayer. Bible readings were by Beatrice Riccetti, Doris Seagraves and Olive Beebe. The call to worship was by the juniors, who also sang God Wants Me for a Sunbeam. The intermediate choir then sang What a Friend We Have in Jesus. This was followed by Miss Gertrude Avery's talk, she being in the costume of India, from which country she returned recently after being engaged in missionary work for over five years. Miss Avery, taking the audience on an imaginary tour, told of the work of the boys and girls in the school at Ahmednagar, where she was at first located. Placing a garland around the neck of one of the girls present, Miss Avery showed how visitors would be decorated. At the close of her talk, the audience gave her a rising vote of thanks. Miss Avery told the children that at one time she was a junior, in the same class with their leader, Mrs. Ernest Washington. Another song by the intermediates, I Would Be True, was followed by a brief talk by Mrs. Washington, who also announced those awarded prizes for attendance. For perfect attendance, Betty Barber; attending every meeting but one, Doris Leanhart, Raymond Barrett, Flora Kinney, Alvan Williams and Leslie Hahn; honorable mention, Louise and George Rogers. Junior pins were presented those attending 12 or more meetings, Robert Hayman, Natalie Browning, Pauline Holmes, Barbara Benton, Alice Howard, Socrates Kandrow and Mitchel Floyd. Little Natalie Browning sang Follow the Gleam, with her sister Betty accompanying at the piano, also playing for the hymns sung. Miss Jessie E. Hyde, leader of the Intermediate C. E. society, expressed in a helpful way what each letter of the name represented. In this society Doris Seagraves was given the prize for perfect attendance and Eleanor Palmer for attending every meeting since she had become a member. Beatrice Riccetti ranked third, being absent but once. Ruth Avery, Doris Seagraves and Beatrice Riccetti were presented diplomas for two years' work as intermediates, and were graduated into the Senior C. E. society. Their leader, Miss Hyde, complimented them for their work, also gave them for their motto, "First Things First." Rev. Mr. Bailey spoke to the girls on their graduation, as did also Miss Eleanor Smith, president of the Y. P. S. C. E. After prayer by Rev. Mr. Bailey, a devotional book was presented him by Mrs. Washington, in behalf of the juniors; Raymond Barber, in behalf of the intermediates, presented him a kitty-kit. For the graduating class Beatrice Riccetti presented a book to Miss Hyde. The meeting closed with a cornet solo by Edward Jordan, with Betty Browning at the piano, and the mizpah benediction.

BISHOP CANNON DEFIES SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE

Persists In Refusing to Answer Questions About His 1928 Anti-Smith Activities—Warned That His Refusal Might Be a "Penal Offense," the Bishop Defiantly Replied "I Understand That Perfectly"—Senator Walsh Said That the Committee Either Must Drop the Matter Or Report the Bishop's Defiance to the Senate—Committee Has Recalled Cannon For Today.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Defiantly refusing to answer questions put by the senate lobby committee today about his 1928 anti-Smith activities, Bishop James Cannon was recalled by the puzzled senate investigators for tomorrow with committee action on his case in prospect.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, warned the slight, gray-haired bishop of the Southern Methodist church, that his refusal to answer the committee's questions might be a "penal offense" and Cannon, in his same defiant manner, replied "I understand that perfectly."

"Of course, you must take your chances on whether the questions you are or are not pertinent," added Senator Walsh.

"I have considered all the contingencies, senator," quickly countered the bishop across the committee table, "and I stand on my rights as an American citizen to carry on political activities as an individual without the right of anybody to inquire into them."

The lack of a quorum of the committee of five forestalled action today.

Walsh indicated the committee would withhold a decision upon its future course until the return of Chairman Caraway next week.

Time and again, amid applause and boos, the bishop clutched his single crutch, turned his head from the examiners and shot out: "I decline to answer that."

Once when Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, asked Cannon about his banking account, the bishop shouted "You will never see that."

The questions Cannon refused to answer dealth almost entirely with his activities in the 1928 campaign in which the Virginian took a leading role against Alfred E. Smith, democratic nominee.

Walsh said two courses were open to the committee—either to drop the matter or report the bishop's defiance to the senate.

When Harry F. Sinclair declined to answer Walsh in the Teapot Dome investigation a report was made to the senate which was transmitted to the district attorney and Mr. Sinclair was prosecuted and sent to jail.

Another course was under serious consideration—adoption of a resolution giving the lobby committee the explicit authority to question Bishop Cannon. However, a speech in the senate today by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, assailing the lobby investigators for "exceeding their authority" indicated opposition to such a move.

The crowded committee room was keenly silent as Walsh after some preliminary questions again put to Bishop Cannon the inquiry as to his part in the 1928 Asheville anti-Smith conference.

Laying his crutch aside, the bishop pulled from his pocket a prepared statement. It concluded that the committee's line of inquiry "is an intolerable infringement upon the rights of American citizens to entire freedom in their political activity, and seems to be intended as a threat to independent citizens against any repetition of the uprising of 1928."

Walsh leaned across the table and recalled that the lobby committee investigated the political activities of the Southern Tariff League and of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in their efforts to elect candidates to congress.

"For myself I am entirely satisfied," he continued, "that we were wholly justified in pursuing that line of inquiry and it would be perfectly indefensible, in my view, on the part of the committee to decline to go into a similar inquiry in your case."

Not only did the bishop refuse to answer the questions about his political activities but he added:

"If I should be subpoenaed I should take exactly the same position I take as a voluntary witness."

Turning from this line of inquiry Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, questioned Cannon at length concerning various financial transactions, but each time the 1928 political campaign was involved the bishop declined to answer.

Blaine asked about $6,000 which was contributed by the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church to Bishop Cannon for circulation of a speech he had delivered on "Prohibition Repeal Unthinkable."

"That $6,000 was expended," Cannon replied, "in the way in which they expected me to expend it and if they wish an accounting for it they can have it."

Blaine asked what Cannon did with the money when the received it.

"I put it in my pocket," the bishop said.

Blaine also attempted to ascertain what was done with $65,300 contributed by E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, for the anti-Smith campaign, but Cannon declined to answer except to say that the report made by Jameson to the committee was correct.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT BY BISHOP CANNON

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Shortly after he had refused to tell the senate lobby committee what disposition had been made of the $48,300 contributed by E. C. Jameson of New York for work in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., tonight issued a statement in which he presented an itemized distribution of the fund among the Virginia congressional districts.

"I insisted then and insist now that this singling out of myself and of the Virginia anti-Smith democrats because we fought the wet Tammany candidate is a deliberate and intolerable infringement upon the rights of American citizens, and is a threat to independent citizens against the repetition of the independent action of 1928," he said.

He said the money was distributed as follows:

General purposes of state work, including speakers, travel, automobiles, postage, etc., (round numbers), $16,000; for county and precinct organization, election day work, etc., first congressional district, $2,000; second, $4,500; third, $6,500; fourth, $2,200; fifth, $4,000; sixth, $3,000; seventh, $3,000; eighth, $2,500; ninth, $2,100; tenth, $2,500; total, $48,300.

SEVENTH ARREST MADE IN JEWELRY THEFT CASE

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The police drag net which already has yielded six prisoners and an estimated $500,000 in jewelry believed stolen, today brought a seventh prisoner and $15,000 more in jewels believed to have been stolen from a Pennsylvania family.

The newest prisoner, charged with feloniously bringing stolen goods into the state, is Max Nadel, a pickpocket with a criminal record.

In his pockets, police said, they found $15,000 in uncut diamonds, gold chains, and miscellaneous pieces of jewelry. They identified it as a loot from a Pennsylvania robbery but withheld the victims' names.

Nadel said he bought the jewelry two years ago.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF YALE-IN-CHINA STAFF

NEW HAVEN, June 4.—(AP)—Anxiety felt for the safety of Yale-in-China staff members as the result of the spread of fighting into the central Chinese area, was dispelled today by receipt of word that all are safe and that work is going on as usual.

A cablegram was received by Palmer Davis, executive secretary, at the home office here, from members of the China staff who are located in Changsha. It says there is no cause for anxiety on account of the revolution.

ANOTHER DIVORCE FOR FILM ACTRESS RIZA ROYCE

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—(AP)—Riza Royce, film actress, was granted a divorce again today from Josef Von Sternberg, movie director. The superior court approved a settlement giving her $25,000 cash and alimony of $1,500 monthly for five years.

The actress accused her husband of cruelty, staying away from home all night and of once ejecting her from their home. Von Sternberg denied the charges.

Miss Royce divorced the director in 1927, but in 1928 they became reconciled. They were first married in July, 1926.

HOTTEST WEATHER OF THE YEAR IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The hottest weather of the year was recorded in New York today with the thermometer reading 90 degrees at 4 p. m. Two deaths were attributed to the heat.

TATHAM HAS PERMISSION TO GO BACK TO ENGLAND

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Federal Judge Coxe today gave Edward Tatham, director of the English liquor firm of Justerini and Brooks, Ltd., permission to go back to England pending the trial of a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws against him and his firm. His bail was increased from $10,000 to $20,000.

Tatham was arrested May 23 on a Montreal-bound train. Prohibition agents said they found records on his person indicating he proposed to dispose of the firm's liquor to prominent Americans.

Some of these Americans were believed to have testified at the grand jury investigation of the case today, but their names were not disclosed.

DEFEAT FOR FLORIDA'S WAR-TIME GOVERNOR

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 4.—(AP)—Tom A. Yon, democratic incumbent in the third Florida congressional district, administered a decisive defeat in yesterday's primary to Sidney J. Catts, war-time governor of Florida, returns today showed.

With only 50 precincts missing, Yon polled 14,356 votes to 6,667 for Catts. J. Harvey Bayliss, mayor of Pensacola, ran third with 3,678.

With 361 of the 420 precincts in the fourth congressional district tabulated, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida's first congresswoman, continued to amass an overwhelming total over Dewitt T. Deen, wet candidate. Mrs Owen had 44,860 to Deen's 11,434.

YOUNG MAN DROWNED WHILE SWIMMING IN BANTAM LAKE

TORRINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Stephen Klupucz, 22, drowned while swimming in Bantam lake late today. His body was recovered. He is believed to have suffered an attack of cramps.

At the time of his death, state police were dragging the other end of the lake for Miss Katherine Salmon, New York nurse, who drowned Saturday and whose body has not yet been found.

BUENOS AIRES, June 4.—(AP)—The French Aero-Postal company plans next week to have two planes carrying mail over the South Atlantic at the same time.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 4.—(AP)—The doorway to the British consulate was partly burned by persons who fled after setting the place afire and filling the walls with posters which attacked Great Britain's stand against the Indian nationalist campaign.

PARIS, June 4.—(AP)—Torrential rains which have persisted until farmers have begun to despair of the ripening of their crops today continued to mar the pilgrimage of American gold star mothers to the battlefield cemeteries wherein lie their heroic sons.

ALEXANDRIA CONSIDERED SAFE FROM THE FLOOD

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 4.—(AP)—Alexandria observers today expressed belief that the Red river flood was cresting here at 41.05 feet as the river remained at that level throughout a large portion of the day in spite of a two-inch rain overnight reported at Boyce, 20 miles up the river.

The river here today was 5.05 feet above flood level with no additional breaks reported but sandbags and planks were being used for strengthening the levees in Rapides and Avoyelles parishes.

The main levees were holding and Alexandria was considered safe from the flood. A fertile section between here and Boyce is flooded because of a series of crevasses in the Bayou Rapides levee.

Heavy forces were in action on the Pineville side of the river, opposite Alexandria, where the river was at the top of the levees. Workmen also were topping the banks at Echo, below Alexandria, and the Ben Ruth cross levee, southeast of here.

At Marksville in Avoyelles parish the river was holding to its banks with the height of the flood still to pass.

PAGE & SHAW CASE PUT OVER UNTIL FALL TERM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 4.—(AP)—The trial of Otis E. Dunham, president of the Page & Shaw Candy Co., and 11 others charged with conspiracy to defraud in connection with the sale of stock of the company, will be put over until the fall term of Middlesex superior criminal court unless cases pending are disposed of in time to begin the trial this month. It was said today that no judge would be available to try the case in July and that the trial would take at least six weeks.

David Sager of Boston, a salesman, arraigned today in the stock case, made the 12th defendant. He was released in $3,000 bail after pleading not guilty to indictments charging conspiracy to defraud, conspiracy to steal and conspiracy to sell securities without authority. Eighteen persons had been indicted in connection with alleged irregularities in the sale of company stock after it had been barred from sale in this state by the state department of public utilities.

52 PLEADED GUILTY TO LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Fifty-two of 140 individuals and firms indicted last fall in a roundup of an alleged "whiskey shavings" liquor ring pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, in federal court today.

Fines totaling $15,800 and ranging from $100 to $1,000 were imposed. Indictments against the other defendants were dismissed.

Edwin Glickstein and Jacob Terner, officials of the Glickstein-Terner Bottle company, Brooklyn, were among the principal defendants. They pleaded guilty and were fined $1,000 each.

Federal investigators charged the ring made liquor from alcohol and shavings scraped from empty whiskey barrels, and that they used counterfeit bottles, corks, labels and stamps. The conspiracy, the government said, spread from coast to coast and as far south as Texas.

LOOKS WITH FAVOR UPON TELEVISION DEVELOPMENT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 4.—(AP)—The federal radio commission looks with favor upon television development, Major General Charles McK. Saltzman, its chairman, declared before the annual convention of the Radio Manufacturers' association today.

Although emphasizing that present developments in radio-vision are "very much in the experimental state," the chairman declared "that with the rapid progress made in all of the technical phases of radio in this day and age we may expect developments to come out of the laboratory which will have a vital stimulating effect upon this new art."

TESTIMONY IN DEFENSE OF PATROLMAN FULLER

NORWALK, June 4.—(AP)—Testimony that Supernumerary Policeman Harry Fuller shot William Regan, a salesman, in self-defense was introduced at an inquest held here today by Coroner John J. Phelan.

When the inquest was adjourned today until Saturday at 1 o'clock, all witnesses except Fuller had appeared. Fuller is confined to a hospital as the result of injuries suffered at the hands of the salesman, but is expected to be discharged Saturday.

Those who testified today were Dr. Robert M. Wolfe, Ferdinand Hartog, Jack Van Silk and Edward Shields.

SIX ARRESTS MADE ON COUNTERFEITING CHARGES

DETROIT, June 4.—(AP)—The arrest here of six men on counterfeiting charges, following the arrest in New York of seven others and the seizure there of a printing plant and $900,000 worth of bogus $10, $20 and $50 bills, was announced today as the culmination of nine months of investigation by the United States secret service.

STATE AUDITOR ACQUITTED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

TOPEKA, Kans., June 4.—(AP)—Will J. French, state auditor, was acquitted of embezzlement charges by a district court jury today. He was accused of temporarily converting to his own use $1,242 from a river channel land fund in his custody.

Chinese Nationalist Forces Defeated

Americans In Anhwei Province Have Been Warned to Leave the "Danger Zone."

SHANGHAI, June 4.—(AP)—Nationalist government forces were defeated today in heavy fighting both in Honan and Shantung provinces, said Japanese dispatches, and retreated before northern alliance rebels. Four hundred thousand men are battling in this area to determine the future government of China.

Bandit armies devastating the Yangtse valley cut telegraphic communications, shutting off news from areas about Changchow, Honan province, and Changsha, Honan province, where the nationalists were hard pressed by rebels yesterday.

Menaced on four battle fronts by rebellion, with bandit and communistic armies ravaging several provinces, the nationalist government was struggling to maintain itself despite a depleted treasury, crop failure and demoralized business.

Americans in Anhwei province, north of Pukow, were warned by their consular representatives at Nanking to quit the "danger zone."

POINT OF ORDER AGAINST WATCH AND CLOCK DUTIES

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—A point of order was raised against the watch and clock duties in the tariff bill conference report today by Senator Barkley, dem., Kentucky, as the senate took up the report dealing with controverted rates.

Barley based his objection upon the same ground that sent the flexible provisions back to conference for revision, contending the conferees had exercised their authority in revising the watch and clock duties.

The point was raised immediately after the senate had agreed to take up the rate report with a view to voting on it at the same time it disposes of the one dealing with the flexible provision and the export debenture plan.

Ruling on the point of order was deferred until tomorrow.

FIGHTING FOREST FIRE ON 60-MILE FRONT IN ONTARIO

DYMENT, Ont., June 4.—(AP)—Undaunted by the crackle and roar of forest fires raging less than a mile away, more than a score of women and children returned to their smoke-filled homes in Dyment today to establish food lines for their men-folk, fighting to block the path of the licking flames.

In a new 60-mile front west of Lakehead, near Larson and Upsala, flames were being fought. Big fires are raging also at Mack, Cedar Lake and Dog Lake.

The body of Paul Garten, former German war ace, was recovered today in the lake at Allenwater, where he crashed on Monday while cruising over the flaming forests.

RHEIMS THE CENTRAL POINT FOR GOLD STAR MOTHERS

RHEIMS, France, June 4.—(AP)—This cathedral city has become the central point for movements of American gold star mothers and wives.

Two groups were here tonight, numbering more than eighty, and the Verdue-Meuse contingent will arrive tomorrow to increase the number to more than 125. They will spend part of the day visiting the historic cathedral here and probably will be received formally by the mayor.

Two other groups of mothers were ready for the homeward journey today. Those whose sons were in the 27th division left for Cherbourg to embark on the steamship Republic. A second group finished packing in Paris preparatory to a start homeward tomorrow.

SEC'Y DAVIS HAD FOUR HOUR TALK WITH HENRY FORD

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Secretary Davis and Henry Ford had a four hour uninterrupted conference today in the latter's private railroad car, parked in Union station. Mr. Ford came to Washington to be a white house guest.

The principal purposes of the conference, Secretary Davis explained, were to discuss a survey of the Ford plant at Detroit, now being conducted by the department of labor, and "to exchange views on a multitude of subjects in a place where we would not be disturbed."

Ford told his guest that he is planning an extensive selling campaign in China.

EXCELLENCE IN RADIO DICTION REWARDED

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Alwyn E. W. Bach, staff radio announcer of the National Broadcasting company, today won the medal offered by the American Academy of Arts and Letters for excellence in radio diction, it was announced by Hamlin Garland, secretary of the award committee.

Bach was born and educated in Worcester, Mass. He began as a radio announcer in 1922 in Springfield, Mass., on station WBZ, and was transferred in 1926 to station WBZA in Boston. He has been on the National broadcasting staff for more than two years.

HARRY K. THAW HAS BEEN DENIED NEW TRIAL

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Levy today denied to Harry K. Thaw a new trial of the suit of Marcia Estardus, former actress, in which she won a $25,000 verdict last year.

Counsel for Thaw moved for a new trial on the ground the verdict was against the weight of evidence. Miss Estardus charged Thaw attacked her with a hair brush in his apartment New Year's day of 1929.

MIDDLETOWN MAN DIED IN PHYSICIAN'S OFFICE

HARTFORD, June 4.—(AP)—Henry W. Hubbard, secretary of the Russell Mfg. company, of Middletown, died suddenly in a physician's office here today while on a business trip. He was 63 years old. A widow and two sons survive.

Second Victory For British Labor Govt.

Defeated Amendment In the House of Lords to Eliminate District Levy From Coal Bill.

LONDON, June 4.—(AP)—The labor government of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today won its second victory within the span of a week by defeating a house of lords amendment 250 votes to 220.

Just a week ago today the labor government beat off a conservative motion with a majority of 29, the vote being 270 against 241.

The amendment defeated today would have eliminated the district levy from the coal bill. An extremely controversial measure which has troubled the MacDonald administration throughout this session of parliament.

When the bill originally was introduced it provided a central levy to subsidize coal exports. The conservatives and liberals joined to defeat the central levy, but the government thereupon inserted a district levy. It was this levy which the lords sought to eliminate.

Had the government been defeated to day it would not necessarily have meant dissolution of parliament, for the administration has been beaten on coal bill questions previously.

The vote of a week ago, however, was a genuine test.

The conservatives had moved to reduce the salary of J. H. Thomas, who is known as the unofficial minister of unemployment. Such a motion serves notice upon the government that its tenure is to be tested. The government was saved by the aid of the liberals.

HARTSHORN MEMBER OF BRITISH LABOR CABINET

LONDON, June 4.—(AP)—Vernon Hartshorn, postmaster general in the labor cabinet of 1924, tonight accepted Prime Minister MacDonald's invitation to become lord privy seal, the cabinet post just vacated by J. H. Thomas, who becomes secretary of state for the dominions.

Another appointment expected immediately in the partially reconstructed labor cabinet is that of Dr. Christopher Addison as minister of agriculture in succession to Noel Buxton, whose creation as a peer was announced in the king's birthday honors Monday.

Mr. Hartshorn will act as the prime minister's first lieutenant in an intensified campaign against unemployment which will be conducted by a committee of ministers. He also will take charge of unemployment matters in the house of commons, answering questions on the subject.

TWO WATERTOWN BANK ROBBERS SENTENCED

LITCHFIELD, June 4.—(AP)—Two of the three bandits who on March 28 robbed the Watertown Bank and Trust company tonight began paying the penalty for the crime with state prison terms of from 20 to 25 years.

The bandits, John Smeden and Edward Puckus, both of Waterbury, were sentenced in superior court today after they had pleaded guilty to robbery with violence.

Zenkauskas, also of Waterbury, charged with being the third member of the gang which robbed $22,000 in the daylight bank hold-up, is being held in Windsor, Ont., where he was arrested last week in connection with a series of burglaries.

A nation-wide search for the bandits resulted in Smeden's arrest in Detroit. Puckus' arrest in St. Louis followed shortly afterwards.

MISS BETSEY CUSHING WEDS JAMES ROOSEVELT

BROOKLINE, Mass., June 4.—(AP)—Miss Betsey Cushing, daughter of Dr. Harvey Cushing, world famous surgeon, and Mrs. Cushing, today became the bride of James Roosevelt, Harvard, '30, son of Governor and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

The wedding, one of the most fashionable of the social season, took place in the beautiful stone Episcopal Church of St. Paul in the presence of more than 350 persons prominent in society and the official life of New York and Massachusetts.

The couple was married by Rev Endicott Peabody, headmaster at Groton school, assisted by Rev. William L. Clark of St. Paul's.

MRS. MORROW TO REMAIN NEAR HER DAUGHTER

NEWARK, N. J., June 4.—(AP)—The republican senate campaign in New Jersey for the next few days will be without one of its most picturesque campaigners.

Because she wants to remain near her daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg, who expects soon to become a mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow's address tomorrow to a group of women in Burlington county, southern New Jersey, probably will be her last for a week or ten days.

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are at the Morrow home in Englewood.

Colonel Lindbergh, too, is remaining almost constantly with his wife. He has not flown for several days. He recently aranged for hangar space for his airplane at the Newark airport.

MAY TAKE UP TREATY AT REGULAR SESSION

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Talk was heard at the capitol today of an effort to take up the London naval limitations treaty before adjournment of the regular session, after calls at the white house by Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Allen, of Kansas, both republicans, and advocates of the pact.

Allen, upon leaving President Hoover, predicted the treaty "will be ratified before we go home." However, both he and Vandenberg, who called later, were silent on the white house discussion.

HOOVER LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION BILL PASSED

Approved By the House 218 to 117 After a Spirited Debate On Prohibition — The Measure Authorizes Summary Prosecution of Minor Prohibition Law Violators Before U. S. Commissioners—The Bill Now Goes to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—President Hoover's law enforcement commission program to expedite justice and relieve congested federal courts was approved today by the house with the passage in a stormy session of the much controverted bill to permit United States commissioners and handle minor dry law violations without a jury.

Passage of the last of four proposals came late in a day filled with crisp debate over prohibition, charges and counter-charges by members on both the republican and democratic sides.

The measure, known as the Christopherson bill, was the major legislation desired by President Hoover and Attorney General Mitchell in the commission's program. On it hangs the effectiveness of the Stobbs bill to define midemeanors under the Jones law, the Moore bill to authorize the waiver of right of trial by a jury and another Christopherson bill to define petty offenses under the United States code, all of which were passed yesterday.

The entire program was radically modified from the original recommendation of Chairman Wickersham and his commission.

After opponents to the commission bill failed 225 to 167 to send the measure back to the committee, the administration followers aided by many democratic dries passed the measure on a record vote of 218 to 117. It now goes to the senate, with the other three measures.

Chairman Graham of the house judiciary committee became the target of a personal attack as a wet when he dramatically declared on the floor he opposed the bill because he thought it was useless and that court congestion should be relieved through the appointment of additional federal judges and not by a revision of the judicial procedure. However, shortly before the final vote was taken he said the measure should be given a trial and that if it did not obtain the desired results it could be changed by a later congress.

His statement came after the house had amended the measure to permit juryless handling of all petty offenses before United States commissioners and to allow a defendant to appeal for either a trial by jury or a judge, and fixing a limitation on the amount of fees to be collected by commissioners for pleas of not guilty.

Representative Michener, republican, Michigan, a dry member of the committee, precipitated the prohibition controversy and the attack on Graham when he charged the Pennsylvanian had governed the time of the proponents of the measure. He was joined by Representative Moore, republican, Ohio, a dry, who declared members of the committee "had a right to expect that the chairman in good faith would write a report and stand by it." The committee report recommended passage.

Graham replied that he had met the time of opponents in denouncing the measure, and added that "no gentleman of proper instincts will question my decision." He added that every member of the committee knew his position.

Representative McKeown, democrat, Oklahoma, a dry, said the Pennsylvanian had tried to delay action on the legislation.

Michener contended it was time to lay the prohibition question aside and give the president and the attorney general the legislation they asked.

The opposition was led by a group of dry democratic members on the judiciary committee, who declared the measure would hinder enforcement by cluttering up the procedure. Some contended it to be unconstitutional.

Representative LaGuardia, republican, a wet, conducted a vigorous fight against the measure on constitutional grounds. He defended Graham's stand against the bill.

There were 163 republicans, 54 democrats and one farmer-labor voting for the bill, and 172 democrats and 45 republicans voting against it.

CLOSE OF ASSEMBLY OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 4.—(AP)—Marked by an important constitutional change giving women a voice in the affairs of the Presbyterian church, the 142nd General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. was brought to a close today.

Next year the General Assembly will meet at Pittsburgh as the guest of the Shady Side Presbyterian church, the pastorate of Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, the new moderator. The vote in favor of Pittsburgh was unanimous.

This year's meeting was in session eight days. It officially wrote into the constitution an overture making women eligible for ordination as ruling elders in the local churches, presbyteries and synods. Two days after the change had been made the presbyterian church at Wauwatosa, Wis., elected a woman elder, the first to be ordained.

NAVY AVIATOR CLIMBED TO ALTITUDE OF 42,000 FEET

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Lieut. Apollo Soucek, navy pilot, climbed to an indicated altitude of more than 42,000 feet today in an attempt to set a new world's airplane altitude record.

Two barographs must be checked by the bureau of standards and it will be several days before an accurate reading will be known. To beat the present record, Soucek must have climbed to 42,122 feet.

He indicated that he would try for the record again if the barograph checks showed he had not set a record. He was in the air for two hours and 7 minutes, reaching temperatures as low as 60 degrees below zero.

A $28 A WEEK MAN WON $29,000 ON ENGLISH DERBY

OMAHA, June 4.—(AP)—Joseph W. Zaloudek, a $28 a week grocery warehouse man quit work today.

Informed that he had won $24,000 when Diolite finished third in the English Derby at Epsom Downs, Zaloudek turned white, trembled as though he were ill, then promptly left the warehouse. He won the money on a $1 ticket in the Army and Navy Veterans charity sweepstakes of Quebec, Canada.

Zaloudek who has a wife and three children, bought the dollar ticket from "a bird who drifted into the warehouse," and was scolded by his wife for gambling.

PAUSE IN THE PASSIVE RESISTANCE IN INDIA

BOMBAY, India, June 4.—(AP)—India's intermittent fever of discontent swung back today to its quiet phase following 24 hours of bitter clashes between police and followers of Mahatma Gandhi's program of passive resistance to British authority.

Fro mthe Punjab to Madras there was a paucity of either news or events. Only in Delhi was a suspicious incident reported, burning of the National Bank of India and several shops, with a damage of about $550,000. The fire was in the Chandi Chowk, principal street, where some days ago serious rioting occurred. Its cause was not made known.

ROOFED HIS BARN WITH OLD AUTO LICENSE PLATES

HIGHLAND, N. Y., June 4.—(AP)—The proper disposal of used razor blades may remain a perplexing problem, but Joseph Spoonhower, of Ruby Hamlet, has a practical solution for making away with discarded automobile license plates.

Spoonhower's barn is roofed in an artistic design of varicgated colors—hundreds of old licenses plates he has collected in the several years.

The plates, he declares, make a durable, watertight roof and will outlast wooden shingles.

CONGRATULATIONS UPON 200TH ANNIVERSARY OF MASONRY

LONDON, June 4.—(AP)—The Duke of Connaught, grand master of English Freemasons, today cabled the American grand lodge his congratulations upon its 200th anniversary.

"On the eve of the 200th anniversary of the first grand lodge recognition of American Freemasonry, by constituting a provincial grand lodge for New England," the message said, "I wish to congratulate all our brethren in the United States on the great Masonic progress they have made.

"I reiterate my fraternal good wishes and sincere desire for their continued happiness and prosperity. It remains my earnest hope that the tenets of our order may assist still further to strengthen the bond of friendship and good will which so happily exists between our two nations.

"I shall continue to watch with sympathy every endeavor on both sides of the Atlantic to promote these feelings by the development of Freemasonry in its purest, highest forms."

PARACHUTE JUMPER WAS HURT IN PLANE CRASH

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 4.—(AP)—Henry J. "Buddy" Bushmeyer, professional parachute jumper, and Clifford Muchmore, agent for American Eagle planes here, were critically injured tonight when their plane crashed near the Long Island motor parkway.

The accident occured half way between Roosevelt field and Hicksville. Witnesses said the biplane in which the two men were riding went into a flat spin at a height of 1,500 feet.

Bushmeyer, who has made more than 500 successful parachute jumps, had no parachute with him tonight, the first time he has had vital need for one. He was taken to the Army hospital at Mitchel field, suffering a broken leg, a punctured lung and possible internal injuries. Muchmore suffered a fractured skull and severe cuts.

INJURED IN MONOPLANE NEAR HAMDEN AIRPORT

HAMDEN, June 4.—(AP)—C. Maurice Peabody, Jr., 22, of Maplewood, N. J., was injured today when his two-seater open monoplane cracked up near the Hamden airport.

The youth, a dentistry student and son of a Maplewood dentist, was taken to a New Haven hospital. X-ray pictures were being examined tonight to determine the extent of his injuries.

The plane fell from a height of 300 feet and nosed over after one of its wings had struck the ground. Airport officials said the ship side-slipped and came in on a cross wind about 300 feet off the field.

THREE INSANE HOSPITAL FUGITIVES STILL AT LARGE

IONIA, Mich., June 4.—(AP)—Ten of the 13 criminally insane inmates of the Michigan state hospital here who forced their way to freedom yesterday were once more in custody tonight and posses directed their efforts to recapturing the three still at large.

The three men still at large are Roy A. Wynkoop, Henry Vaden and Gerald Badgley. Sheriff's officials believe they may have stolen an automobile during the night and escaped from this section of the state. Approximately 150 men made up today's searching parties.

GRAF ZEPPELIN MAY NOT LAND AT SEVILLE

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 4.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin notified the Zeppelin works here at 7 a. m. E. S. T., that she was not certain she would land at Seville because of bad weather and was heading for Lisbon. If the airship did land at Seville, it was added, the landing would not be made before 6 p. m., tomorrow Spanish time, or 1 p. m. E. S. T.

TO CALL SPECIAL MEETING TO CLARIFY AUDIT OF BOOKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 4. — The voters of the town of Windham today faced the prospects of being called in special meeting for the third time to clarify and make effective their demand for an audit of all town books.

As a result of the conference held in the chamber of commerce offices Tuesday night with the selectmen, the special committee to select auditors, manufacturers, merchants and chamber directors in attendance, a petition for another town meeting is being prepared and presented to the selectmen within a few days. The meeting will be for the purpose of confirming the action of the special committee regarding the selection of an accountant and determine if this committee be authorized to sign the contract, instead of the selectmen, who refuse to do so.

A second meeting on this matter became necessary when the minutes of the first meeting were found to be contrary to the full intent and purpose of the vote. This vote was made clear at the second meeting and the special committee of three proceeded to select a certified public accountant to audit the town books, pursuant to authority given it by the meeting. A tentative contract was drawn up by this committee with Walter A. Musgrave of Danielson and Hartford, but this contract the selectmen have not as yet signed, for the main reason that the cost of the work as submitted by Musgrave was not the lowest received. The claim of the special committee is that of the eight of nine certified public accountants considered, all of the accountants stated that to have a real audit such as proposed could not be done for less than $10,000. This was the sum appropriated by the town meeting to have the work done. While two of the proposals were for $7,500 and $3,000, the committee selected Musgrave on a secret ballot which proved to be unanimous. Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett vouched for Mr. Musgrave, stating that the committee could not get a better man.

Town Counsel Arthur T. Kelley stated that he did not advise for or against the signing of the contract but merely called the selectmen's attention to the apparent flaws in the contract.

First Selectman William A. Buck stated that the selectmen are interested only in saving the town's money in this particular case. They had received proposals from accountants ranging from $3,500 up and it was their firm belief that the services of a certified public accountant could be secured at a lower figure than the $10,000 stipulaed in the Musgrave contract. They stood squarely for a certified public accountant, fully qualified, at the lowest figure for their service, and contented that the special committee did not act in accordance with this thought in their selection.

CORONER STARTS INQUEST IN DEATH OF BLANCHARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 4.—An inquest into the death of Joseph Blanchard, 21, son of Mrs. Marie Blanchard of 40 Temple street, was opened here today by County Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson. As the first step toward determining what was the nature of the injuries which caused the death of the youth in St. Joseph's hospital Tuesday night, Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason performed an autopsy at the hospital morgue this forenoon. At the conclusion of the examination Dr. Mason said that the cause of death had not been determined fully but that specimens would be sent to the Brady laboratories, Yale university, New Haven.

The three young men, Arthur Roberts, 21, of 16 Pleasant street; Napoleon Arton, 16, of 113 Crescent street, and Philip L. St. Hilaire, 22, of 16 Ives street, who are being held on technical charges of manslaughter in connection with the case, were released from police headquarters this afternoon until Friday morning when Coroner Bill will formally open his inquest. The death of Blanchard, provided it is linked with a "beating" he is alleged to have suffered at the hands of the trio on the night of Saturday, March 1, had its origin with Blanchard's abuse of a new derby hat owned by St. Hilaire.

While the statements of the three young men concerning the incidents on the night of March 1 vary in some particulars, the blame for starting all the trouble is placed on Blanchard who was described as having had drinks and being in a fighting mood. It is claimed that Blanchard was to blame for an encounter with Roberts near the Horseshoe bridge in lower village. The four then came to Blanchard's home on Temple street, the latter being accompanied into the house by Arton and St. Hilaire. St. Hilaire claims that he was struck by Blanchard and that Arton came to his defense and struck Blanchard a final blow. Arton admits striking Blanchard but claims it was in self-defense. On complaint of Mrs. Blanchard the trio were arraigned in police court after the March 1 fracas and were each fined $5 and costs on a charge of assault.

She told Medical Examiner Mason following the death of her son that he had not been feeling well since the assault. Although he was able to work in New London during the past month, after loafing about eight weeks, he was continually vomiting and expectorating blood as if he were injured internally, according to the mother.

Frank Nycek of this city, who has a charge of liquor transportation pending in the U. S. district court at New Haven, was arraigned in police court this morning and charged with driving a car while under the influence of liquor. Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a fine of $100 and costs. When Nycek was arrested by federal and state police on lower Main street Sunday night, a gallon of moonshine was found in his car.

Major Joseph R. Morrison, commander of the First battalion; Captain Ellison S. Smith and Lieutenants Edward A. Morrison and Arthur J. Caisse of Company C, 169th Infantry, C. N. G., will attend the officers' regimental school in Hartford Saturday evening.

WEDDING

Sullivan—Scanlon

Miss Lillian Anna Scanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Scanlon of Barker street, Hartford, and John Leo Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan of 116 Prospect street, were married in St. Augustine's church, Hartford, at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The bride was attended by Miss Catherine F. Scanlon, her sister, and Walter K. Sullivan, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a pretty gown of white chiffon with a tulle veil fastened with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor wore tea rose chiffon with hat to match and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with about 30 guests present. The couple are on a wedding trip in Canada, returning after June 14 to their new home at 550 Franklin avenue, Hartford. Guests came from Hartford, Boston, Mass. and this city.

Sebastian Muscarella, 22, of Waterford, and Mrs. Mary Korpacz, 37, of Providence, R. I., who were nabbed by federal, county and local police here about 1 o'clock this morning when detected bootlegging 40 gallons of alcohol, were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Earl Matheweson in Norwich this afternoon. They were charged with transportation of liquor and their cases assigned under bond fo rthe next term of the U. S. district court.

As a final gesture of love and goodwill, the "Old Natchaugers" who will attend the old school banquet Friday evening, June 20, during Community Reunion week, will present a beautif[illegible] silver symbol of the high scho[illegible] to be placed at Windham [illegible]ol as a permanent memo[illegible] inspiration. The presentati[illegible] symbol will be made by Dea[illegible] L. Cross of Yale Graduate [illegible]haug '80) and the symbo[illegible]ented to the care of form[illegible] of Principal Frank H. Beede [illegible] "Beede-ites" will accept the tr[illegible]ough Professor Horace J. Fento[illegible] Natchaug '94, Yale '99) late of the faculty of the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis, and now a resident of Spring hill, Mansfield. Principal Edgert A. Case will acknowledge receipt of the gift on behalf of Windham high school.

Allen B. Lincoln, in charge of the arrangements, announces that those eligible to the old school banquet are all former pupils and teachers of Natchaug high, Willimantic First District high, whether graduates or not, and all graduates and former teachers of Windham high school prior to July, 1910, when Mr. Case became principal. An invitation is extended to former pupils and teachers of the Old Stone school and of the Porter B. Peck school, also of John D. Wheeler in the first district. Anyone eligible may bring husband or wife or companion.

FUNERAL

Joseph L. Demers

Leaving from the home, 410 Valley street, the funeral of Joseph L. Demers was held this morning with a requiem high mass solemnized in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. J. J. Papillon, Rev. Hormisdas C. Belec, deacon, and Rev. E. A. Mathieu, sub-deacon. Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau presided at the organ for special singing by the choir. The remains were escorted to the sanctuary rails by a delegation from the Sacred Heart society, Dieudonne Riquier, banner bearer. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the officiating priests read a committal prayer. The bearers were: Pierre Roy, Frederick Roy, Louis Delorme, George Lavigne, Gilbert Lafontaine and Arthur Marrotte. The Hurteau corporation had charge of the arrangements.

Arrangements are practically completed for the services to be held in the state armory Sunday night, June 15, of Community Reunion week. The committee, consisting of John P. Carr, chairman, Albert V. Caufield, William S. Johnston, Pierre J. Laramee, Walter H. Parkhurst and Albert B. Smith, has arranged a program suitable for the occasion and comprising noteworthy features. Maurice E. Wallen of West Hartford, a former local boy, will be heard in songs. Rev. Felix J. O'Neill of Stafford Springs, a native of this city, will read an original poem; members of the Calvary Baptist church will sing and there will be addresses by Rev Ashley D. Leavitt of Brookline, former pastor of the First Congregational church and Rabbi Morris Silverman of Hartford. Additional attractions will be announced later.

DANIELSON

TRUDEAU'S FINES FOR LIQUOR VIOLATIONS AMOUNT TO $500

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 4.—No statistics were available here today as to how much money, if any, Walter C. Trudeau of Goodyear ever made out of the illicit liquor business, but it was impressively demonstrated in the town court that it cost him plenty to get caught at it.

For keeping with intent to sell, one of the counts against him, he was fined $200 by Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis. For manufacturing intoxicants he was fined another $200, and for an actual sale charged against him an additional $100 was assessed, and then a sentence of six months in jail added for good measure, with costs of $10.45. Execution of the jail sentence was suspended, and Trudeau paid the heavy charges taxed against him.

Another case disposed of at today's session of the court was that of Alton Bassett of Foster, R. I., charged with reckless driving. He was fined $10 and costs of $10.74. He paid the costs, but the fine was remitted.

Miss Nellie Y. Scofield, 69, died yesterday at the Christian Science home at Concord, N. H., where she had been living for the past year and a half. Miss Scofield was born in Danielson, May 17, 1861, and lived many years of her life here before going to live in Malden and later in Pawtucket. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Hattie R. Bailey of School street, and two brothers, Charles H. Scofield of Boston and William E. Scofield of Malden.

William E. Sweet of Nashua, N. H., left here this afternoon, having rounded out his first visit to Danielson in 55 years, a stay of two days. Mr. Sweet naturally noted a great many changes and commented especially on the few people now here that he knew prior to his departure. Among his few remaining old-time friends remaining here is Kent A. Darbie.

Mr. Sweet recalled with interest that back in 1859, his father purchased the farm now occupied by Anthony Wollow at the Killingly-Plainfield line on the state highway to Wauregan. The purchase price was $2,300. A general farming and cattle business was carried on. Sixteen years later, and this is how Mr. Sweet came to leave this territory, there was talk of building a mill on the Colonel Elisha Dyer property, and work on a dam actually started. It is still known as the Dyer dam.

The elder Mr. Sweet, whose farm adjoined the Dyer property, saw visions of a village growing up around the plant that was projected, and held out for what in those days was a fancy price for his farm, and got it—$10,000. The plan to build the mill was abandoned when difficulties were encountered with quicksands, and the village that was to have sprouted up about it never came into existence. Land values went back in that area to something like they were before the mill plan was heard of, and in all the 55 years that have since elapsed the Sweet farm, though it has changed hands several times, never has brought much more than half what Mr. Sweet sold it for, though it might today.

The $50,000 bond issue authorized by the special borough meeting last evening for funding the borough's debt and providing necessary money for carrying on the sidewalk construction program will be retired at the rate of $5,000 annually, beginning in 1931, and with the final payment due in 1955. The bonds are to be dated June 2, 1930, and shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding 4 1-2 per cent per annum. They are to be issued in such form containing such recitals as the warden and court of burgesses may determine.

The Merchants National bank of Boston has been designated to certify the issue and to act as disbursing agent in the payment of principal and interest. The bonds are to be signed by the warden and attested by the clerk, and are to be sold by the warden and court of burgesses.

Reports filed by Tax Collector James F. Walsh show that he received $[illegible] in collections during April and $141,643.47, during the month of May, a total of $163,476.23. Of these sums, $24,124.66 received during April was on the list of 1929, and $140,762.87 received during May was on the 1929 list. The remainder of the total collected represents overdue taxes from other years.

Collector Walsh's showing is the most excellent one, and in keeping with the fine record he has made during the years since he has filled the tax collector's office.

There is an interesting display of mechanical drawings at A. F. Meech's, the work of six Killingly high school students—Francis Hammett, Eugene Shippee, Charles Dayton, of the senior class, and Eldridge Parker, Morrison Ennis and Anthony Szmnouskas of the junior class. Last fall, Supt. W. E. Parker said to these boys, who contemplate taking engineering courses after completing their high school work, that he would be willing to give his time against theirs, in a purely voluntary arrangement all aside from the regular high school work, if they cared to take a course in mechanical drawing. They agreed that the idea was an exceedingly good one, and so there began Saturday morning sessions, from 9 to 12, at the high school, even vacation periods were not allowed to interrupt the work.

Out of that zealous application to an objective and the experienced instruction of Mr. Parker has come a set of plans that are remarkably fine, and well worth the attention of any citizen interested in what the schools are doing.

About a score of the plans are on display, but the boys made many more.

Advocacy was heard today of a plan for placing overhead traffic lights in Main street to control traffic at Main and Water, Main and Academy, Main and Reynolds and Main and Westcott road. Traffic, practically always very heavy through Danielson's business section, is even more so as the tourist season swells in volume. The kind of lights suggested are such as are in use in many cities in southern New England, holding alternately main line and side street traffic and letting at least one line flow along easily. It is a very common occurrence here now for traffic running out of side streets to be held up over long. It is felt that the lights would correct this condition.

Prudent people do not pay 9 per cent interest on any debt if they can avoid it. Then why pay it on taxes? Pay your Killingly overdue taxes now and avoid the extra charge.—adv.

Miss Madelyn Cronin of Academy street was among those to receive the M A degree from Columbia university at the 175th commencement exercises yesterday. Miss Cronin has been a student in the Teachers' college for the past academic year, following her graduation from Mt. St. Vincent college on the Hudson in June of 1929. Miss Cronin, a graduate of Killingly high school five years ago, will be a member of the faculty of Plainfield high school, where her sister, Miss Helen Cronin, also is a teacher, when the next school year begins in September.

BODY OF MRS. L. T. JONES FOUND; SUICIDE THEORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, June 4—The mystery surrounding the disappearance Monday evening of Mrs. Jane Kennedy Jones, 37, wife of L. Thomas Jones, prominent Putnam business man, was tragically unfolded late this afternoon with the finding of her body in a small growth of pine trees at the state park at Priest Island about one mile south of the city.

Mrs. Jones had been missing from home on Church street since Monday night and her whereabouts remained a complete mystery until Dr. Thomas Mansfield, a Boston physician, who accompanied by his fiancee, Miss Florence Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Smith of this city, while strolling about the state park now known as Quinebaug Pines, accidentally walked into the lifeless form, which was lying prostrate on the ground with a black coat carelessly strewn about the lower part of the body.

Miss Smith became horrified at the gruesome sight and Dr. Manafield escorted her to her home on School street and immediately reported the fact to Patrolman Benoni Durand of the local police, who, accompanied by Capt. A. J. Dubreuil, hurried to the lonely spot on the outskirts of the city, and, after viewing the body, recognized it to be that of Mrs. Jones. There were no indications to show that Mrs. Jones had passed through any period of violence and the only post-mortem changes observed in her features were red blotches about her mouth. Her eyes were sunk into the sockets, below which were dark blue circles which indicated that life had been extinct for at least a day. She was attired in a gingham dress of red and white and wore a close-fitting black hat and a black coat. In her hand she was clutching a leather purse containing a roll of currency to the amount of $200. Before the arrival of Dr. F. A. Morrell, medical examiner, who viewed the body and gave permission for its removal, Patrolman Durand found a wad of paper on which was printed the word Barbital, a sleep-producing drug. The compound was made up of a certain amount of Diethyl-Barbituric acid, which would cause instant death if a sufficient quantity were consumed.

The bottle, which bore the label, was later found in the vicinity of the body and was empty. The police also found close to the body a cake of chalk-like substance, believed to be a poison. These were turned over to Dr Morrell for examination, who later termed them the cause of Mrs. Jones' death. He stated that he had not definitely decided the cause of death but found suicide the only motive.

Mrs. Jones was in ill health for some time, suffering from a nervous disease. The members of her family feared for her safety when she did not return Monday evening and Tuesday they began a private search for her. Her sudden disappearance was closely guarded and it was not until this morning that the news began to be made known about the city when police were asked to assist in the search. A resident of lower Park street, interviewed this afternoon said he observed a strange lady answering the description of Mrs. Jones walking in the general direction of Priest Island Monday evening. He said that other than the fact that here was a new face in that vicinity, he noticed nothing strange or unconventional about her.

The sad and untimely death of Mrs Jones proved a shocking blow to her many friends and acquaintances in this city, where she was widely known and was held in high esteem. Mrs Jones was born in Dayville Oct. 7, 1893, the daughter of William L. and Alice Turner Kennedy. She lived about all of her life in Putnam. Surviving her besides her husband and two sons, William and L. Thomas, Jr., are two sisters, Mrs. J. Wallace Smith of Putnam, Mrs. Harold Covill of Boston, and a brother, Lorenzo N. Kennedy of Los Angeles.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM ASKS FOR BIDS ON WATER SYSTEM BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 4—The city of Putnam, through its common council is to advertise for bids for the purchase of $65,000 worth of gold bonds, which are to be floated to meet the cost of the reconstruction work of the municipal water system, part of which is now underway. At the June meeting held last evening the council voted that the bonds to the value of $65,000 authorized by a vote of the city at a special meeting on July 30th, 1929, to be issued under authority of the special act of the legislature of the state approved on April 7, 1927 entitled "An act authorizing the City of Putnam to issue bonds," be issued in coupon form and bear interest at the rate of four and one half percent annually, payable semi-annually on May 1 and November 1. The bonds when issued will bear formal date November 1, 1927 and will be payable as to both principal and interest at the First National bank of Boston. They will be certificates in the denomination of $1,000 and will be payable $10,000 November 1 on each of the years of 1942 to 1947, inclusive and $5,000 on November 1, 1948 as consecutively numbered.

With the passing of the vote last night the city treasurer was formally authorized and directed to advertise for bids for the bonds at not less than par and accrued interest. Accrued interest is mentioned in the resolution passed, because of the fact that the three year water controversy which was not settled until last year, delayed the issuance of the certificates. All bids for the purchase of the bonds are to be received by the finance committee of the council and will be publicly opened on the afternoon of July 1 at three o'clock. The committee according to the method of ratification of the bill reserves the right to reject all or any bids. An unanimous vote was passed on this matter.

The city is anxious to dispose of the bond issue by floating it as quickly as possible in order to secure the necessary funds to continue the reconstruction work of the water system. The money it was said, would arrive here by July 1, and in conjunction with its forthcoming, Ralph E. Thurston, chairman of the board of water commissioners was authorized and directed by a vote of the council to secure bids on the excavation of pipe lines, pipe and labor cost. Mr. Thurston announced that the bids would be received and publicly opened at three o'clock on July 1, the lowest bidder to be favored with the contract for the work and to be authorized to proceed as quickly as possible.

Chief Thurston in discussing the plans for the pipe laying project was somewhat skeptical as to going ahead with the technical work without formal instructions from the governing body. He stated that he did not wish to make any binding acts in behalf of the city until such time as the money was received.

In commenting on the progress being made by iron workers erecting the one million gallon standpipe on Oak hill, Chief Thurston said, that the 15th course of steel is already in position and riveted and the 16th course would be started Wednesday. He said that he expected that the last rivet would be driven before Saturday night at the cessation of the day's activities. A roof will then be placed over the top of the huge cylinder. With this detail complete the tank will be ready for painting and lastly, will be ready for water and testing.

The chief inferred that it will be a long time before any water will be rushed into the new tank inasmuch as the lengthy delay in laying the new pipe lines, the major part of the reconstruction activities, will prevent this important part of the work. Mr. Thurston said that he notified Engineer Symonds of Boston, the city's consulting engineer in this work, to have complete plans for the piping work prepared in order that the water commission may secure bids on the project as soon as the money for the work arrives, intimating that the city may not be in a position to meet the bonds at four and one half per cent interest at par value, the chief said that he was skeptical about letting the contract for the work until he was absolutely sure that every last detail relating to the financial part of the proposition had been attended to. The council through Alderman Robert T. Chadwick, resented Chief Thurston's remarks and assured him that all responsibilities would be cared for, directing him to carry out the work of advertising for bids on the work. Mr. Chadwick asserted that the First National bank of Boston through its experts had investigated the matter and were satisfied.

A vote was passed authorizing the fire committee to consult with Chief Thurston and follow whatever recommendations he might advance in the purchase of 500 feet of new hose for the fire department.

The council granted nine building permits, which provide for the erecting of a number of new structures in various parts of the city.

As the result of Chief Thurston's recommendation and strong plea that the city purchase additional personal equipment for the firemen, the council authorized the fire committee to take steps to secure prices for the re-equipping of the fire companies with new boots, rubber coats, helmets and gloves.

The report of the police department showed there to have been 33 arrests made during the moth of May, the majority of which were for intoxication. After bills for the current month were voted to be paid, a motion was entertained for an adjournment.

Alderman-at-Large Warren S. Ames, presided at the session in the absence of Mayor Charles A. Richard, whose weakened physical condition, the result of a long illness of pneumonia, forced him to refrain from the strains of his municipal duties.

FAREWELL BANQUET GIVEN REV. ENGLISH BY LEGION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 4—Forty members of the Anslem Mayotte post, No. 13, American Legion and American Legion auxilliary attended a banquet Tuesday evening at Arnold's sea grill tendered in honor of Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Congregational church, who is to become pastor of a Congregational church in Manchester, N. H., this month. Mrs. English was seated beside her husband at the head table and at the conclusion of the programme, the departing clergyman and his wife received the farewell messages of their Legionnaire associates.

As a token of esteem and in recognition of the long list of services performed for the post by Mr. English, Commander Arthur C. Keith in behalf of the members of the post presented Mr. English a set of gold cuff links on which was the emblem of the American Legion.

In a brief speech of acceptance Mr. English, in behalf of Mrs. English and himself heartily thanked the post members for their expression and reviewed the work of the post during the five years he was associated with it. He termed the local post as being one of the important ones in the Connecticut organization of the American Legion and pointed out that it is efficiently and effectively serving its purpose in the community, especially in its work of aiding disabled and needy veterans and their families.

Joseph Bove rendered a half hour of versatile entertainment with his numerous recitations the most delightful of which was his conception of "Jake Morse running for alderman of the 5th Ward."

In concluding his remarks Rev. Mr. English said that when in Manchester he would make his home at 478 Bay street. He said that although he was saying "good bye" to his many friends in this community he hoped that it would not be applied in the full sense of the word. He extended a cordial invitation to the Legionnaires to visit with him whenever touring that part of New Hampshire, closing with the phrase, "there will always be a welcome sign on our door mat."

This afternoon at two o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Mary Ellen Reynolds, who died Sunday was held from her home on Fremont street. Rev. Henry H. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist church officiated at the service, which was largely attended. Burial was in the family plot in the cemetery at Washington, R. I.

REFUSES TO PAY FINE AND INSISTS ON JAIL SENTENCE

A North Woodstock man was found guilty of a minor offense in city court this morning and a fine of $30 and costs was imposed by Judge M. H. Geissler. The defendant had the money but he refused to pay on grounds that the only alternative of the state was to commit him to the county jail, "and he liked to spend at least a month of every year in jail." A friend implored the court to accept his check for the fine, but the prisoner became indignant and threatened to sever their friendship should the Good Samaritan spoil his opportunity of securing a month's vacation at the expense of the county. He was persistent and after a few minutes of argument the court ordered the helping hand to withdraw and the guilty one began his month's sojourn in Brooklyn.

The weekly luncheon and meeting of the Putnam Rotary club was held at noon today at the Putnam Inn. President Subbo Nickoloff presided. During the executive session Rev. James F. English, past president of the club submitted a comprehensive review of the letter received from Retiring District Governor Hodge, which told in detail the work of the local club during the past year. The review of Rev. Mr. English indicated that the Putnam club figured highly in the district Rotary organization.

D. A. R. HOLDS DELIGHTFUL PARTY AT GRAND VIEW

A very delightful lawn party was held Wednesday afternoon by Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., at the beautiful home on Grand View of Mrs. Genevieve A. Letters. There were 12 tables of bridge in play and prizes were awarded for contract to Mrs. Daisy Holden; auction, to Miss Sarah Crosby of Thompson, and whist, to Mrs. W. H. Richardson of Mechanic street. Second highest prizes were awarded to Mrs. Arthur F. Hughes, Mrs. Milo Warren and Miss Alice Carpenter.

The latter part of the afternoon the ladies were invited to play croquet, ring-passing, spilling the beans and balloon hobble on the spacious lower lawn. Miss Anna Sampson won the bean prize and Mrs. Jessie McIntyre the balloon hobble. Refreshments of punch and wafers were served by the hostess, who received many expressions of thanks for the wonderful afternoon spent in such a delightful way.

SOCONY LEADERSHIP

Last Year Socony introduced Socony Special plus Ethyl — by every test the finest motor fuel.

And now SOCONY LEADS AGAIN

11,000 MEN

are attending school for you

SOCONY believes that automobile lubrication is a job only for trained men. Fifty-three schools have been established in Socony territory where men are scientifically trained in lubrication, pass rigid tests and demonstrate their ability in actual practice before they are allowed to lubricate your car.

Every necessary tool has been placed in the hands of the graduates from the Socony schools—many of these tools designed by the car manufacturers themselves. Every kind of lubricant is made available to these experts—and as many as seven different kinds may be required for a single car.

Charts of 36 leading makes of cars—prepared by Socony engineers after consultation with the car manufacturers—are provided. The charts show every lubrication point and indicate the kind of lubricant to use at each point. The possibility of skipping points or using the wrong lubricant is entirely eliminated.

Planned more than a year ago, developed by Socony lubrication engineers, this service is available today—insuring absolutely perfect lubrication for your car.

Socony Certified Lubrication Service takes no more time, costs no more than you pay for untrained service that is NOT certified. It is the only service that gives guaranteed, scientific lubrication by men who have been specially trained for this sole purpose.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK

S O C O N Y
Certified
LUBRICATION SERVICE

What is it?

A service performed for you by men scientifically trained in schools over a period of 16 weeks in the expert lubrication of cars.

These men work from special charts—prepared by Socony engineers with the cooperation of the car manufacturers—showing every point to be lubricated and indicating the exact kind of lubricant to use at each point, as recommended by the car manufacturers.

They have the proper tools, they use Socony lubricants—best in the world.

What it means to you

Socony Certified Lubrication Service assures proper lubrication for your car.

The use of the chart of your own car assures you that not a single lubrication point has been missed and that the proper lubricant has been used at each lubrication point.

Where can you get it?

Socony Certified Lubrication Service is available at Socony Stations displaying this sign. More and more stations will be commissioned to render this service as their operators prove they are qualified.

School in session at Norwich. This is one of the fifty-three Schools of Lubrication established throughout Socony territory. A class composed of Socony station employees is receiving instruction in the proper method of car lubrication.

THE SLOW AND FAST DRIVERS

Connecticut has not placed a speed limit upon those using the highways. It requires drivers to so control their speed that safety will follow, leaving it to their judgment as to how fast the conditions in various sections warrant. It is apparent that what would be manifestly too fast in certain localities would be perfectly safe in others.

The state hasn't said that drivers must maintain a certain speed as some states have. Warnings have been given from time to time that slow drivers can be quite as much of a menace as fast ones, but not for the same reason. The slow driver is not going to crash into the fellow ahead, he isn't going to be numbered among those cutting in and out, he isn't going to try to pass on hills or at curves. He is invariably tending to the business of driving safely and his danger to others lies in driving so slow that he holds back many others and forces them to circle him in order to get over the road, though not necessarily at a dangerous speed. It is in this passing that many of the accidents occur.

There probably never will be a time when all drivers will proceed with sufficient speed to satisfy the fellow behind. Even when the car ahead is going at 35 or 40 miles an hour, there are always those who insist upon being the leader, who are not content to see another car ahead. Thus it will never be possible to entirely overcome the practice of passing, through forcing the so-called slow drivers to greater speed. There will always be the speeders, the chance-takers, and there will always be those who regard a reasonable speed as in the interests of safety.

Nevertheless, the conference on street and highway safety at Washington has gone on record as advocating a uniform code that will make it unlawful for a person to drive at such a slow speed as to block the reasonable flow of traffic.

If this is put into operation, it will be placing the responsibility upon the driver to say what is a reasonable flow of traffic in the interest of safety, quite the same as the judgment which Connecticut expects drivers to exert in determining what speed is safe. There are many of the drivers that can be reasonably urged to make greater speed, but there are also plenty more who can be urged to slow down. Too much speed invariably plays a part in accidents, as well as too little. Slow drivers need to remember they are on the highway and the racers need to realize that highways are not speedways.

COURTESY TO VISITORS

In the city of Portland, Me., recognition is going to be given to the fact that strangers do not intentionally violate traffic laws. Evidently the authorities there have been impressed by the experiences they have had and come to realize the injustice of treating those who have had no opportunity to become acquainted with the requirements of the city, admittedly different from other cities because every community has to meet its own peculiar conditions, the same as residents whose violations are invariably deliberate.

Portland takes the view that inasmuch as some attention must be paid to all violators, in justice to residents who obey requirements, it is going to do this by giving what are referred to as courtesy cards to the strangers. These will be attached to doors of the machines and on them there will be a brief explanation of requirements as well as a safety alphabet from which they will expect compliance in future instances. The persistent violator can hardly be expected to be treated any differently than the residents.

This is in response to a recognition that many of the offenders have no idea that they are transgressing the local laws. Tourists certainly find different regulations in every city. A word of correction, a warning as to what not to do, a kind suggestion when such cases are discovered, is insufficient to end them.

ve no idea that Portland is serious trouble through the of this policy. Rather does it appear to be a rational method of meeting the situation and certainly one that is bound to make a favorable impression upon visitors. There are many traffic regulations which are puzzling even to those who really know what they mean. Under such circumstances it is too much to expect that a driver entering a city for the first time is going to be able to obey them to the letter, however much he may desire to. The unintentional violations may well be overlooked. The courtesy card seems a good way of doing it. It is much better than bringing them in and fining them.

IOWA DECLARES ITSELF

Under ordinary circumstances, interest in the senatorial primary in Iowa would not extend far beyond its boundaries. It would be looked upon as a state matter without having a bearing upon national affairs. But this year Iowa has staged a primary which has done the unexpected. It is in the center of the corn belt, where the corn grows tall, and where the farm problem is much discussed. Also it is a state which understands the benefits of protection and, while this has a particular bearing upon agriculture, it, nevertheless, involves all that has been done in the way of tariff revision.

Iowa experienced a stiff campaign this year for the republican nomination, preliminary to the election day contest for the seat now held by Senator Steck, democrat, who, it will be remembered, got into office because of the opposition manifested toward Senator Brookhart, republican in name but insurgent in practice, when the latter was refused his seat and his democratic opponent was seated by the senate back in 1926.

This year, republicans were asked to make their choice between Congressman Dickinson and Governor Hamill. It was a royal fight, but special interest outside Iowa was aroused because Congressman Dickinson stood for the policies of President Hoover and backed the tariff action for the relief of agriculture. Governor Hammill took a stand against the tariff revision, but by the two to one vote which was received by the congressman, who has already voted for the tariff revision, it is impossible to regard his success in the primary as anything less than a favorable expression on what the congressman has done for agriculture in the tariff and in particular does it disclose that Iowa is not against the president because of his attitude relative to the debenture. Rather must it be regarded as a demonstration of the feeling in the western states toward the administration, and against those who have been trying to block the administration and agricultural advantages.

Iowa, of course, had its own issues, but from the national standpoint it is impossible to overlook the verdict of that state on that important question.

DO YOU SWIM?

If thoughts haven't been centered upon swimming very generally for the last few weeks, the weatherman has apparently decided to change the situation by providing the incentive. Swimming is not only one of the ways of obtaining relief on a hot day, but it is an ideal sport and a health builder. Health Commissioner Wynne of New York city points out that it is a muscle builder and a nerve restorer and there is no doubt but what he will find plenty who will support him in his contention.

There have already been several instances this season where drownings have occurred because of inability to swim.

There are also numerous instances where free instructions are offered to children that they may learn how to take care of themselves in the water in case of an emergency by knowing how to swim. That many have taken advantage of these offers is to be expected. It is unfortunate that every child who is physically able isn't taught to swim.

Knowing how to swim doesn't remove all the danger of going into the water. It gives valuable protection but there are many things which need to be observed. For instance, Dr. Wynne points out a number of rules for healthful swimming, in which he says:

Always wait two hours after eating before going in swimming.

Never eat anything immediately after leaving the water.

If tired or perspiring, do not enter the water.

Fifteen minutes is long enough for an average swim.

Always take a shower, or bath, without soap, after a dip in the surf.

Number of daily swims must be limited to reaction and weather conditions.

People with poor circulation should swim only under doctor's orders.

Between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. are the hours best for swimming.

Plunge into water so that the entire body is wet at once.

Avoid chilling after a swim; don a beach robe after a dip.

These rules apply to swimmers, but we have no doubt that Dr. Wynne would also include in his advice the wisdom of knowing how to swim. The benefits which he attaches to it indicate that it is a desirable attainment. Can you swim?

PHILIPPINE LEGISLATION

It seems improbable that congress will take action on the Philippine bills at this session. The desire is to get through, heat is urging adjournment and there are many measures which are due for action at this time.

The majority bill is a step in favor of giving independence to the islands and the result of the senate coalition. The minority report, which is presented by Senator Bingham, as chairman of the committee, opposes any such move and represents the administration attitude toward the islands.

According to Washington views, the purpose of the majority report at this time is to create a discussion regarding the independence move. That such will follow is to be expected, for it is to be realized that the islands are not ready for independence now and will not be in five years. It may be a question whether they will ever be able to maintain a separate government and meet all the difficulties that are sure to arise if an experiment of that character is undertaken.

The move for independence is not a new one, but it has gained added strength at this time because of the support given to it by the agricultural interests which desire the islands to become foreign territory in order that there may be removed the competition with products grown here. The desire is to have a tariff placed upon island products, which cannot be done as long as they are American territory. Thus, their purpose is a selfish one. They are not so much interested in the welfare of the islands as in placing a handicap on them. They care not what happens to them so long as they are no longer able to enter their products free.

THE WORLD AT FIFTEEN

"My family," Ernestine stated resignedly, "has been going into executive session over my carelessness, and you'd think it was the president's cabinet getting ready to declare war. As bad as that. Especially father.

"Although, of course, I am fair-minded, and looking at the situation quite impersonally I will admit he had some excuse for getting all wrought up, especially as the basement window Tod had to kick in to get into my house for me was directly over dad's work bench, where he has been putting together a clipper ship for ages. He had got as far as the sails and Tod, being naturally impulsive, never looked but just leaped. Dad said all he had to do now was to buy some sulphur and make matches out of what was left after Tod's golf shoes got through.

"Why, the reason we had to break a window was that my door key had vanished and wasn't where I expected it to be. The folks pointed out that it rarely is, but that's exaggeration, because I'm positive I haven't had to have more than five new keys made since school opened. That's what they get so mad about. But I ask you, if you have your door key in your pocket when you leave home in the morning and absolutely never touch it all day, and it's right there, and when you go to use it at dinner time it isn't there—is that your fault? That's what they call carelessness!

"I simply had to get into the house to get Tod's mustache. The last rehearsal of the school play was at my house and a lot of things got left there. Tod is very temperamental and he can't do his part justice nor get into the proper mood unless he has his mustache on. It's a marvelous play this year, sort of Ethel Barrymorish, if you get what I mean. Why, I can remember when the school plays were perfectly foolish, childish things, but each year they've got better, and this one has two damns and five actual kisses in it.

"Miss Bitters, the English teacher, who is rehearsing us, did consider making Tom say oh-fudge or oh-heck instead of really swearing—but Tom is two yards across the shoulders, six feet tall and roars when he talks, so somehow it fell through. Up to this year whenever it was necessary for the hero to kiss the heroine he gave her a regulation stage affair—a clinch and a kiss in the air over her shoulder farthest from the audience.

"But Peter White declared there was no color to a scene like that, and he talked Miss Bitters right down. When he is supposed to kiss Margery I'll say he does a thorough job—and, oh boy, has that lad got technique! Only I guess all that practice sort of went to his head, because he took me home one night after rehearsal and tried to keep on rehearsing. He didn't get very far, because I've got a hand and I can slap. And I slapped. I have no intention whatever of being practiced on even when it's in the cause of art, as Peter tried to explain to me.

"It is particularly annoying to have all this fuss about my so-called carelessness just now, for I have been trying to persuade mother to let me wear her two large diamond rings the night of the play, but she just scoffs at me. I'm supposed to be a girl from Newport and I need them. I think if I work on her a little longer and am very careful to agree with everything she says I'll win out in the end. This idiotic complex my parents have about my being careless—"

Ernestine shot upright in her chair and an expression of pure horror overspread her face. She got to her feet with a singular effect of extreme age and tribulation. "Wouldn't you know it?" she wailed as she departed hastily for home. "Mother told me to turn off the gas and take the pumpkin pie out of the oven in fifteen minutes after she left the house—and that was two hours ago. I believe I can smell the pie burning clear over here!"—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Who Tells You What To Eat

By Dr. Augustin V. Wendell, Newark, N. J.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Dietary rules cannot be laid down for the whole human race, because people differ greatly in their food requirements. So it is never safe to apply random advice, however logical and sane it sounds, to oneself in an attempt at self-diagnosis. Let me cite a few instances which illustrate my point.

About thirty years ago a learned friend of the writer, after reading a then very popular treatise on the deleterious effects of uric acid on the human organism, was so impressed that he abandoned the use of meat in order to escape gout and the various other vicious effects which were predicted in the book. Although he found himself losing in endurance on a lacto-vegetarian diet he held on resolutely to his theory. Sometime later he saw a notice in one of the metropolitan papers of uric acid crystals having been found in the tissues of the nose of a man. As his own nose was decidedly large the fear of a similar contingency drove him to select a diet containing practically no purins. He lived chiefly on peanuts for a number of years and developed a "monotony dyspepsia." Then one day he read a statistical study of gout in the United States which convinced him that this disease is very rare in this country. So he returned to a normal balanced diet and since then has been enjoying the good things.

I can see the reader smiling at the credulity of this man, so here is a more recent case. A very small spare woman came to the writer for a digestive complaint. Examination disclosed a severe dilatation of the stomach. Three months before while listening to a health talk given over the radio she heard the speaker say that constipation would surely be benefitted by drinking eighty ounces of water daily! She has not entirely recovered from the effects of her water cure, which was not suited to her case.

Now the fashion happens to be intestinal auto-intoxication. There is indeed such a thing. Every physician knows that only too well; some are very serious cases too. But not every case of coated tongue, bad breath, premature fatigue, weakness, irritable humor, mental confusion, sluggishness and general aging is due to intestinal auto-intoxication. The disorder known under this name usually clears quickly on proper treatment. If the symptoms persist the sufferer should return to his medical attendant at frequent intervals for a revision of diagnosis. Such toxic symptoms may be caused by disease in parts of the body other than the intestine. Or recovery may require merely the elimination of a single article of food instead of a whole group of food-stuffs. Then again, some persons develop what is known as "monotony dyspepsia," when kept for any length of time on a very restricted diet.

It is pitiful to see the debilitating effects of prolonged futile efforts to relieve the symptoms mentioned above which sometimes follow deletion of all animal foods or all starchy foods, etc. The vital depression resulting fro mthe lack of a balanced ration ends in a state of subnutrition, which lowers resistance to acute infections, especially of the respiratory tract. Pneumonia in such a patient is always a critical affair.

The moral then is that the attempt to make diet control various actual or possible ailments is a delicate technical problem, the solution of which should not be undertaken by the sufferer without consulting the physician.

Little Talks on Thrift

Hardest Part Of Thrift Is Found In Laying Aside

It is worthy of note that in the experiences of thrifty men and women the hardest dollar to save is the first one. And with each succeeding dollar laid away there is less of hardship and more of joy in the experience.

Those who have this experience realize that at last they are on the high road to success. They have learned the happiness that comes with earned possessions.

Persons who are leading thriftless lives today should bear these thoughts in mind. To deny one's self certain pleasures and indulgences is not an inviting prospect to them. They feel that they should get the maximum amount of pleasure out of life from day to day, and the thought of knuckling down to a more prosaic existence does not appeal to them.

To save the first dollar, therefore, is to them a task requiring much moral courage. But the second dollar is laid away with a slightly less sacrificial feeling. By the time the first hundred has made its appearance, the practice of thrift has become something of a fixed habit and as they go on accumulating more and more, the joy of possession increases.

Each of us has his duties to society, to the members of his family and to his friends; but duty to one's self is none the less important, and the fulfillment of it is just as commendable.

Do not refrain from the practices of thrift because you feel that it will mean hardship and privation. The first few steps may be difficult. But after that it becomes the greatest dividend payer in happiness and peace of mind that can be found.

Make up your mind to save no matter how small the amounts must be.

After the processes of accumulation have actually begun you will find yourself forever through with the old slipshod ways and spendthrift habits.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

How Peter Rabbit Was Surprised

Who doth in haste conclusions reach
Hath much to learn and naught to teach.
—Mother West Wind.

Peter Rabbit had not been over by the Smiling Pool for two or three days. He had quite forgotten how his old friend, Miner the Mole, as he supposed, had startled him by pushing up the earth beneath him as he dug a tunnel. He was reminded of it when he came to a little ridge of earth. He saw at once that it was freshly pushed up.

"Hello! My old friend, Miner the Mole, is still at work here," said Peter. "He must have been working around here ever since I was here before. It seems to me he has been making his tunnels unusually crooked. Also, these little ridges have a way of stopping every so often, which isn't like his usual way. I suppose that means that, for some reason or other, he went so deep at these places that the surface wasn't pushed up when he dug his tunnel. Miner is a funny fellow. I don't mind going down into the ground once in a while, especially in times of danger; but how any one can want to live under ground I don't see."

Peter hopped around to see what Miner the Mole had been doing and he found several places where Miner had come to the surface. He found several little hills of dirt that Miner had pushed out as he cleared his tunnels. Anyway, this is what Peter supposed. Peter dug down into one of these little hills and just below the surface he found a little tunnel, just as he had expected to. Finally he had satisfied his curiosity so far as these tunnels were concerned and hopped over to sit under some big ferns close to the water's edge near where the Laughing Brook enters the Smiling Pool.

Peter had not been sitting there long when he caught the sound of a faint splash. Instantly he pricked his ears up. These long ears of his stood straight up and he stared very hard in the direction from which that little splash had come. Once more he heard it. Then he saw a small person swimming. At first Peter couldn't see very clearly, for there were some grasses in the way. He thought it might be Jerry Muskrat, but almost at once decided that it couldn't be Jerry, but that it might be one of Jerry's children. Whoever it was, it wasn't big enough to be Jerry Muskrat.

Peter sat perfectly still. In a moment he got a better view of the little swimmer. Could you have seen Peter then, you would have thought that his eyes were going to pop right out of his head. His lower jaw hung down as he stared and stared.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Peter at last. "It's Miner himself! It's Miner the Mole! Now, what under the sun is he doing in the water? I didn't suppose that Miner could swim; yet there he is apparently swimming without any trouble at all and evidently enjoying it. Well, there is something new every day."

"What's new now?" inquired a voice over Peter's head.

Peter looked up to see Redwing the Blackbird on the tip of an alder branch.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Peter at last

"Miner the Mole is in swimming," replied Peter. "Did you know that Miner could swim?"

"I didn't know anything about it," replied Redwing. "I have never seen him swim, but for all I know, he may be the best swimmer in the Smiling Pool."

"Well, if you have never seen him swim, look right over there," replied Peter.

But just as Peter spoke the little swimmer disappeared behind a tussock of grass and, although Redwing flew over there to look for him, he wasn't to be seen.

CHILD TRAINING

Managing Philip

Janet T. Van Osdel

For some minutes Mrs. Perkins watched five-year-old Philip and his "gang" in their occupation of her bit of front lawn on which she was bravely trying to grow a respectable crop of grass. There were three small boys besides Philip. Two of them had wagons and one had a kiddie-car. Philip had a tricycle.

One after another, with a great deal of noise and shouting, they would bring their various means of locomotion to the middle of the grass-plot and draw up with a flourish, sometimes with such a grand one that the rider took a header among his fellows. After a few moments, with an even greater commotion, they would ride off again.

At last Mrs. Perkins opened one of her porch windows and called, "Won't you boys keep off my lawn, please?"

"We can't, Mrs. Perkins," answered Philip in his deliberate fashion.

"What did you say, Philip?" asked Mrs. Perkins.

"I said," repeated Philip, slowly and in a louder voice, "we can't stay off your lawn, Mrs. Perkins."

"Why can't you?" asked Mrs. Perkins.

"Because this is the station for our elevated trains—right here in the middle of this lawn. And our trains have got to come into the station. And you can't move an elevated station, can you?"

"I've heard of its being done," answered Mrs. Perkins. "But I never heard of an elevated station being put in the middle of the lawn in front of a person's house."

A look of doubt crept into Philip's round face.

"Didn't you?" he asked. "Where would they put elevated stations?"

"They'd be more likely to put an elevated station where they could have walks leading to it and something besides grass for the trains to run on."

"Where'd be a place most like that 'round here?" asked Philip.

"I should think the end of the walk between the two houses would be about the best place," suggested Mrs. Perkins. "The trains could run smoothly along that walk into the station instead of bumping over the grass."

Philip's chubby face cleared, and in a moment was wreathed in a smile.

"Thank you, Mrs. Perkins," he said. "C'mon, kids, we're going to move the elevated station!"

"Well!" exclaimed Philip's mother from the next porch, "I've been listening in and wondering how long you'd stand Philip's impudence. You should have come out and punished him."

"Philip wasn't impudent, Mrs. Liddick," replied Mrs. Perkins. "That elevated station he was talking about was as real to him as the one down the street is to us. Those wagons and the tricycle and the kiddie-car were real trains to him. For the minute it did seem impossible for him to move his station from the lawn."

"Well, I'm glad you take it that way," sighed Mrs. Liddick. "You're the first neighbor I've had that could get along with that child!"

"It is a question of understanding him, I think, Mrs. Liddick," answered Mrs. Perkins. "If one can look into a child's mind and can think his thoughts with him, a clearer conception is formed of his behavior than is otherwise possible, and he becomes a great deal easier to manage.

Concentration

Catherine, age five, was invited to a little friend's house for dinner. Catherine's mother very carefully told the little girl everything she should and should not do. "And be sure," her mother cautioned, knowing her fondness for pastry, "not to ask for a second piece of cake."

When Catherine came home her mother asked her all about the visit. "And did you have only one piece of cake, like I told you?" she inquired.

"Oh, no," replied Catherine. "I remembered what you said, so I didn't eat any cake at all. I ate two pieces of pie instead."

A Study in Art

Tommy's mother was an art enthusiast and her chief concern in life was that her nine-year-old son should be likewise. In single file, Tommy leading, they climbed to the lookout tower on a high hill. At the top Tommy's father smoked in silence. Motivated by the verdant ranges merging into blue mist in the panorama before them, Tommy's mother exclaimed:

"Oh, Tommy! If you were an artist what would you wish to do now?"

"I'd fix that darned wobbly step on this tower," Tommy answered nonchalantly.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 4—Back in '68 General Logan, national commander of the G. A. R., issued the order that created Decoration day, May 30, when comrades' graves should be decked with flowers.

The custom was borrowed from Germany.

As a national ceremonial of remembrance, this day of days for the boys of the '60's centered in Washington, at Arlington cemetery. Rarely have presidents failed to take the journey across the Potomac to join the aging veterans in their observance. It was good politics if nothing else.

Modern Methods

Up to this year arrangements for the Arlington ceremony have been strictly the business of the local posts of the G. A. R., financed by popular subscription.

Because of the great age of the remaining veterans, however, 1930 saw a corporation formed among veterans of later wars to take over the task, and congress was asked to make a small appropriation.

A grand army man of more than 90 years heads the corporation. Next in order is a Spanish war veteran. But the active workers are World war men, mere youngsters beside the gallant but tottering rear guard of Grant's mighty host.

What is involved in the new arrangement is the definite undertaking of younger veterans to keep Decoration day, Memorial day as it has now become, alive beyond the time when the last of the G. A. R. shall have marched on; to keep as the day reserved in the heart of the nation for the veterans who have all but held their last muster.

"We inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of departed comrades," General Logan said in that long ago order establishing the day of remembrance.

It will be kept up longer than that by the sons and grandsons of the G. A. R.

Going

There is physical evidence in Washington of the passing of the G. A. R. During the coming summer, the dingy old brick building on Pennsylvania avenue, once almost the hub of Washington political life, will be pulled down to make way for new grandeurs in public buildings. It is G. A. R. hall where local posts had rooms for decades; where night and day saw great activities in the time when the boys in blue were many and young.

Washington always has had a large share of these aging veterans. Many once held government jobs as rewards for their services. Even now a handful of them with nearly nine decades of life behind them still figure on congressional payrolls.

There are 14 house doorkeepers and half a dozen in the senate.

One man of more than 90 and several far up in their 80's still daily usher in and out of the galleries, with friendly smiles, Mr. and Mrs. American people and their offspring.

David H. Wilson

DANIEL BOONE

As an early pioneer and hunter he was one of the first to explore the forests of Kentucky. He erected a fort in that vicinity after several people had settled there. At one time he gave a warning that saved Kentucky when the British governor of Detroit was planning to wipe out the settlement. His policy for wilderness traveling was—"Be sure you're right—then go ahead."

Thoughtful consideration and attention to details, which is so comforting in such circumstances, is afforded in our service.

A list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Tuesday by the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. The department advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of these drivers operating motor vehicles.

Eastern Connecticut drivers whose licenses have been suspended include: Danielson, Alde Paquin; Dayville, John A. Smalley; Jewett City, Leon Jasak.

OBITUARY

Ralph Robbins Carrier

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, June 4. — Ralph Robbins Carrier, 80, an old and respected resident of Colchester, died at his home on South Main street at 8:15 o'clock tonight, after a short illness. Death was attributed to the infirmities of age. He had been about the house as usual up to a few weeks ago, being unusually active for one of his years.

Mr. Carrier was born in Manchester, Conn., Jan. 11, 1850, the son of Richard W., and Lucretia Watrous Carrier. In his early youth his parents moved to Colchester where he attended the local public schools. For many years he was in the meat business here, but for the past few years had retired from active work. Although he refrained from holding public office he had been prominently identified with democratic party activities here for many years. He was endowed with a home-loving and cordial nature which had won for him a large circle of friends in this and surrounding towns who extend their sincere sympathy to the family. Mr. Carrier is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ella Tolhurst of Washington street, Hartford; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Gregory of Watertown, Conn., and Miss Cora Carrier, teacher in the Southwest school, Hartford, and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Anna McCarthy

Mrs. Anna McCarthy of Bridgeport died in Preston, Wednesday morning, after a long illness. Mrs. McCarthy was born in Ireland and made her home in Bridgeport for a number of years. She was 73 years of age.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Thomas J. Shahan and was taken to Bridgeport, where funeral services will be held. The burial is to be in St. Michael's cemetery, that city.

FUNERALS

John Bentley

The funeral of John Bentley of Bozrah was held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager, No. 70 Franklin street, with many relatives and friends present. Rev. George H. Strouse of the Bozrah church conducted the service and the burial was at Gardner cemetery, Bozrah. Rev. Mr. Strouse read the committal service at the grave, and the bearers were Peter Lapple, Alfred Abell, Edward A. Bishop, Frank Lathrop, Charles Cole, William Church and Adelbert Farnham. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes.

WEDDING

Preston-Wheeler.

At 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Wheeler of the Road district, Stonington, their daughter, Miss Linda Williams Wheeler, became the bride of Frank W. Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Preston of Springfield.

The bride was attired in white satin faced crepe and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Phyllis Hanks of Old Mystic was bridesmaid. Donald G. Wheeler of Hudson Falls, N. Y., a brother of the bride, was best man. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. G. Ragan of Mystic. After a reception the bride and bridegroom left for Maine. The bride received many beautiful gifts from relatives and friends. At the conclusion of the honeymoon they will make their home in Hudson Falls, N. Y.

The bride is a graduate of the Baldwin school at Bryn Mawr, Pa., and spent one year at Wellesley college. The bridegroom is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, class of 1925, receiving the degree of mechanical engineer, which is his present vocation.

Guests were present from Springfield, Providence, Hudson Falls, N. Y., Norwich and New London, Westerly and Mystic.

A number from here have driven down to see the new Avery Memorial arch at the Colonel Ledyard cemetery, Groton, received from Mrs. Frederick Bill, sister of the late Elizabeth Miner Avery who presented the arch to cemetery in memory of her parents, Erasmus D. Avery and Sarah Avery.

DELIVERS STIRRING MESSAGE FOR EPISCOPAL LAYMEN'S BANQUET

Rev. Robert W. Patton, D. D., of New York, field director of the National Council of the Episcopal church and author of its nationwide campaign, imparted a message that stirred the more than 200 persons attending the eighth annual Laymen's banquet of the New London archdeaconry, which was held Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock at Norwich inn. Of the large gathering there were persons from the different towns and cities in the archdeaconry and also representative leaders of the diocese.

After one verse of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by those present and grace by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown of Trinity Episcopal church seats were taken at tables in the large banquet hall for the splendid supper, which was served by the hotel management. At each table floral decorations were in sight, these arranged by women of the Episcopal churches of Norwich and Yantic under the direction of Miss Mary Richards. The menu comprised:

Fruit Cocktail
Olives Radishes
Cream of Corn
Butter Crackers
Chicken a la King in Patties
Mashed Potatoes Peas
French Vanilla Ice Cream
Homemade Cake
Coffee

Musical Program.

During the banquet hour, at which Sidney W. Bard of Trinity church, Brooklyn, acted as toastmaster, there was spirited community singing led by Fred J. Prothero, accompanied by Geer's orchestra, which also provided a concert program. A feature of the entertainment program were a number of selections by the American Church Institute quintette composed of young Negro men, who have been attendants at the southern Negro schools under supervision of the Episcopal church. Their numbers, which included Negro spirituals and plantation songs, were finely rendered and received most enthusiastic applause from a pleased audience.

In introducing Dr. Patton Toastmaster Bard pointed out that it was the general opinion that the men do not participate in the affairs of the church, but it is evident that each year the gatherings become larger and larger. The reason for the large attendance here tonight, he said, was probably due to the fact that there was an incentive in meeting at a new place, which had been widely advertised and of which the Norwich people were proud, and well they might be; also that a number of those present had had an opportunity to hear Dr. Patton, a forceful and eloquent speaker, at the recent Episcopal convention and wanted to hear him again.

Missionary Speaker Heard.

Upon arising Dr. Patton was greeted with a thunderous ovation and in his introductory remarks, which were in a humorous vein, he was accorded great applause at the conclusion of his story about the milk punch, an incident that occurred during the course of his mission work which took him throughout the United States.

In endeavoring to tell of the transformation of the Episcopal church from its chaotic condition 25 years ago and the clear and sound way the church is now beginning to administer its affairs, Dr. Patton said that had a meeting of this kind been well advertised before hand 25 years ago there wouldn't be a corporal's guard present to listen to the missionary speaker describe the missionary work and the life of the church.

The church at that time did not have a plan of work, did not have a national commission and there was no central body, he said. Only a comparatively few people in the diocese contributed to the program of the church, but all this has changed and the average man has come to realize that we have a national church interest and the church has a world wide policy, this transformation having occurred in the past 15 years for the first time in the history of the church.

How the transformation of the church came about was explained in detail by the speaker, who was the first man to be appointed a field secretary to represent the church in its missionary work in the United States, and was also one of the first to participate in the church's work in the education of the Negroes in the states. When we can show the average man the kind of work the church is trying to do, he said, we will have little trouble in securing their assistance and their contributions will be so large that the church will have a surplus to work with.

My job as field secretary, the speaker said, was to acquaint the people with what the board of missions was and learn why the people were not paying attention to it, return to headquarters and submit my report. I was also entrusted with the job of instilling in the minds of the people a clear and conscientious idea of what the work was all about.

Work In The South.

One of the great enterprises the church is interested in is the educational work in the south among the Negro population, he said. They have made wonderful progress in the south, but they still need yours and my help. We in the north must take the Negro by the hand and walk with him as a brother to the cross. I believe the Negro people in the south in the past 15 years have made more progress, morally and spiritually than any other section of the United States.

In announcing that the Episcopal church was leading the procession of all great religious bodies engaged in the teaching of industry and agriculture among the Negroes in the United States, Dr. Patton stated that at the recent convention it was voted to erect a building at the Voorhees Normal school at Denmark, S. C., as a memorial to Connecticut, and he hoped that when they were approached for contributions for this worthwhile thing they would generously contribute towards it. In conclusion Dr. Patton spoke very highly of the Negro race, among other things saying that they were the most religious people in the United States.

Voorhees School Principal

J. E. Blanton, principal of the Voorhees school, was introduced and briefly outlined what is being done at this school for those attending and told of the rapid growth of the institution, which was started 32 years ago with two teachers and 14 children and now has 32 teachers and a membership of 636 children.

Archdeacon Nield of Hartford and Archdeacon Brown of Norwich were then heard in brief remarks, after which a motion was made by Charles E. Gilbert and passed that this committee have charge of arrangements for the laymen's banquet in 1931: W. Wells Lymon of Montville; Sidney P. Marland, Danielson; E. Allen Bidwell, Norwich; A. C. Woodruff, New London, and J. Dyer Potter, Putnam, the chairman to be named later. A vote of thanks was also passed to the committee in charge, the officers of local committee, comprising: Walter E. Gilbert, chairman; E. Allen Bidwell, treasurer, and W. J. Banfield secretary.

CHICAGO WOMAN SPEAKS FOR HOME BUREAU PICNIC

The second annual picnic of the home demonstration group of the New London County Farm bureau, at Mohegan park, Tuesday, included women from practically every town in New London county as well as visitors from Tolland and Windham counties. The picnic was an all day event, starting at about 10:30 in the morning. The day's programme included boating, and other outdoor sports and at noon, lunches were enjoyed in the pavilion. Mrs. Mabel Buckingham was the leader for the community singing.

During the early afternoon Miss Ruth T. Russell, the home demonstration agent, introduced as the speaker, Dr. Caroline Hedger of the Elizabeth MacCormick Foundation of Chicago. Dr. Hedger spoke on The Health of the Homemaker, and her appearance here was looked upon as a special privilege as this is the only place in Connecticut in which she is to speak.

In part Dr. Hedger spoke as follows: "I believe that health is a growth to a permanent old age, said the speaker. You young ones do not know what that means but when you get old like me, you will find that you do not have quite so much reserve. You old ones do not want to spend the last years of your life sitting around twiddling your thumbs. You want to be efficient as long as you are here.

"A person who has a good coat of tan and freckles has a good complexion. Of course some of the light blondes cannot tan, but the majority of people should have a good coat of tan with some freckles. Stand up straight, shoulders back, chin in. Don't stoop. If you are tall, be proud of it. Carry the weight that looks best on you. Do not be afraid of being too fat. Vitality—this thing that boys call "pep"—the sense of power, something that is in you that makes you know you can meet life on its own terms.

"If you have aches and pains there is something wrong. If you have a headache, there must be some reason for it. Get at these wrongs, cure them and have an unconscious body. You cannot be well and worry. It upsets indigestion; it upsets your general health. Worry will never get you anywhere. Oftentimes worry causes a lack of sleep. A person must sleep to have good health.

"You should know that your eyes are right. I am very suspicious of eye strain. Eye strain can keep you out of the field of health. You cannot buy health out of a bottle or out of a box. The fundamentals of right living are not so difficult. I know what it is to be really well. I enjoy it and you would enjoy it if you would live for it."

Assisting in the arrangements for the picnic were the members of the home economic committee of the farm bureau: Mrs. E. J. Graham of Lebanon; Mrs. E. M. Woods of Stonington; Miss Marjorie Brewster of Griswold and Mrs. H. R. Whitman of Waterford.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER HEARS ANNUAL REPORTS

The annual meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, Inc., was held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Masonic Temple with the regent, Mrs. A. M. Van Wagenen in charge and opening with the Star Spangled Banner, led by Mrs. George L. Ingalls, with Miss Annie E. Vaughn at the piano. After the salute to the flag, led by Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler, and the Lord's prayer, the minutes of the last meeting by Mrs. Adams P. Carroll were read and approved and the following recommendations from the board were approved by the meeting:

For the meetings of the next chapter year to be in the parlors of the Wauregan house and the October meeting to be a pilgrimage to New London to attend the state meeting there, Wednesday, Oct. 1.

Mrs. Edith Huntington Wilson reported on the meeting with the selectmen in the interests of the old first burying ground at Norwich Town, and Mrs. Wilbur S. Ailing read a letter expressing the chapter's appreciation to Mrs. A. S. Comstock for her faithful work for seven years as treasurer.

Mrs. Van Wagenen announced two events; the annual Ellsworth home meeting, Tuesday, June 10, basket lunch at noon, and the unveiling of a tablet at Forest Park Hartford, June 23 at 1 o'clock, to which state chapters are invited.

Mrs. A. S. Comstock gave the annual treasurer's report, showing total receipts $5,726.06, disbursements $3,522.67, balance in current fund $202.39, balance in building fund $43,694.41. A vote of thanks was passed to E. Allen Bidwell, auditor.

Other reports were given as follows: Corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. S. Ailing; registrar, Mrs. H. W. Gallup, 173 members; historian, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn; conservation and research, Mrs. C. C. Gildersleeve, read by Mrs. Carroll; Revolutionary soldiers' graves, Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, reporting 13 star flags placed in graves of Revolutionary soldiers in nearby towns and 20 French flags at the graves of the unknown French soldiers and one to the known French soldier, Dominick Tuzaen, a son-in-law of Col. John Durkee. Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers has served 25 years on this committee and has made a complete list of all cemeteries and of the soldiers buried there.

Besides these there were the following reports: Museum and Revolutionary relics, Mrs. W. Tyler Browne; ways and means, Mrs. Richard P. Gregson; patriotic education, Mrs. Frank I. Royce, chairman, report read by Mrs. L. A. Wheeler, $5 given to Boy Scouts; box valued at $25 sent to Ellis Island; $5 ti aKts Duncan's school, Grant, Ala.; $5 to American Indian's Institute, Wichita, Kan.; box sent to Hindman school; $9.46 for lantern slides for use in night schools and eighth grade; $5 prize to night school pupil bringing in most students between October and December; the prize winner to have perfect attendance record; $50 to American International college at Springfield; $25 for girls housemaking classes operating under Mrs. Robert W. Otis; better films committee, Mrs. E. J. Jones, reported a trailer shown at the Palace theatre in each holiday in the year; programme, Mrs. A. J. Sinay, chairman, report given by Mrs. George L. Ingalls; magazines, Mrs. Roy D. Judd, chairman, read by the secretary; membership, Mrs. H. R. Kind chairman, six new applications received in the year; music, Miss Annie E. Vaughn.

Miss Florence S. M. Crofut of Hartford, who was to have spoken upon Americanism in Law and in Literature was unable to be present.

SANITARY CODE NAMES PUBLIC HEALTH NUISANCES

With the advent of the spring season community thoughts turn toward beautifying the surroundings and it is not uncommon to find a clean-up campaign in progress at this time, says the weekly health bulletin of the state department of health.

This is good propaganda as it focuses the attention on community cleanliness and stimulates activity toward this end. Some people in the community need no such reminder of their responsibility toward their neighbors, but in others the consciousness for cleanliness has not been developed and until this happens there needs must be a periodic awakening of a community to its responsibilities one to another.

Long ago the state sanitary code recognized the necessity for formulating sanitary rules and regulations to govern community conditions relative to the public health. Interpretation of what ceases to be a private sanitary problem and becomes a public health nuisance is vested in the local health officer whose enforcement of health measures for the public good is upheld by the county health officer who by statute is an attorney-at-law.

Chapter two of the sanitary code, regulation 101, declares the following conditions as constituting public health nuisances:

Insanitary bakeries, restaurants and places where food is prepared, served or stored. Spoiled or diseased meats for sale. Barnyard accumulations of manure as breeding places for flies. Discharge of wastes into public places. Unscreened privies. Leakage of wastes during transportation. Stagnant water as breeding places for mosquitoes. Rendering plants or trades that affect the public health. Dilapidated buildings that menace life.

Such problems as the sanitation of public dumps, vacant lots, camp grounds, school houses and fairgrounds are also dealt with in this chapter which includes special rules and regulations for public eating places. This is in line with the recognition of the spread of disease through human contact and the possibility of food and food utensils as important mediums for the exchange of disease germs.

MISS VIOLA CHARON BRIDE OF M. J. BISHOP, OF BRISTOL

At St. Mary's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, Miss Viola Charon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Charon of Main street became the bride of Mathias J. Bishop, of Bristol, Conn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bishop, of Charlottetown, N. B., Canada. Rev. A. A. Jalbert solemnized the marriage and was celebrant of the nuptial high mass. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played by the organist, Miss N. V. Milner as the bridal party entered the church. Mendelssohn's wedding march was the recessional. The bride's sister, Miss Blanche Charon, was maid of honor and the best man was Fred Lussier. The bride who wore a princess gown of white satin trimmed with tulle and Spanish lace, had a long veil of tulle and lace, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. A princess gown of peach tint georgette was worn by the bridesmaid, with picture hat to match. Her arm bouquet was of pink roses. After the church ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop left on a wedding trip to Charlo, New Brunswick and upon their return will reside in their newly furnished home on Jacobs street, Bristol, Conn. They will be at home to friends June 25th. Wedding guests, included relatives and friends from Hartford, Bristol, New York, Norwich, Taftville and Baltic. Several showers were given in honor of Mrs. Bishop, previous to her marriage. She received many beautiful gifts, including, cut glass, china, silver, linen and several substantial checks.

TOWNSPEOPLE REGRET FATHER O'MEARA'S GOING

The announcement that Rev. Father James A. O'Meara, pastor of Uncasville Catholic church, has been appointed to St. Patrick's church, Waterbury, by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, D. D., bishop of the Hartford diocese, was the topic of interest here Wednesday. His going is regretted by all the members of his parish. Father O'Meara has been a loyal and devoted pastor for the past six years, having the interest of the church at heart, and working in every possible way for the upbuilding of the parish. His sermons have been most helpful to his people and his sympathetic work among the sick and afflicted has been appreciated by all. The people of his parish and friends throughout the community will greatly miss him, although all congratulate him on his advancement to his large Waterbury parish. Their prayers and best wishes will follow him wherever he may be.

Seriously Injured

Eugene Chapman of Gay Hill, Uncasville, employed at the Palmer Bros., quilt factory, New London, met with a serious accident Tuesday morning while operating a Garnet machine at the Washington street plant. He got caught in a machine which cards cotton and sustained serious injuries. He was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, New London, where he was treated for a compound fracture of the right leg, fractured jaw, a possible fractured skull and three badly crushed fingers. The hospital officials expected to operate on his jaw Wednesday morning.

Motorists Fined

Harry Zlotenick of 198 Lake View avenue, Clinton, New Jersey, arrested by State Trooper Donald Brown of the Groton barracks for reckless driving, was tried before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church and was fined $25.00 and costs.

Agnes Allard, of 376 Main street, Norwich, arrested by State Trooper Cass of the Groton barracks for driving a car without having an operator's license, when tried before Justice Church, was fined $10.00 and costs.

Textilers Vs. Robertsons

Coach Murphy's Textilers will play the Robertson Co., this (Thursday) evening on the Gair diamond. This will be the fifth game that these two teams have played in the Montville's Industrial Twilight league and the second time that the two teams have opposed each other.

Mrs. Ernest Mathack was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital Tuesday evening with a fractured knee cap. The car in which she was riding with her husband driving, figured in a head-on collision on the Boston Post road at Waterford.

Robert Fisher of Dannielson was a business caller in Uncasville Wednesday.

A large number of Thames lodge members attended the meeting and initiation Wednesday evening.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church is to hold a meeting this (Thursday) afternoon with Mrs. A. J. Huggard, of Quaker Hill.

Misses Bertha and Eva Barre attended a party Wednesday evening for Roger Vashon at Jewett City.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barre of Pequot has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Mecteau of Fall River, Mass., and Leon Mecteau of Jewett City.

James Pappas was one of 87 admitted to citizenship at the naturalization session in Norwich Tuesday.

Auburn (Me.) housewives can now obtain from the Auburn chamber of commerce printed notices to place beside their doorbells, instructing agents not to ring their bell. The card reads: "Agents and salesmen, don't ring this bell. This means you." Housewives had complained of the continuous ringing of the doorbells. The Merchants' association took the matter up and had the cards printed on celluloid, to withstand the weather.

POETRY

Then Laugh

Build for yourself a strong box
Fashion each part with care;
When it's strong as your hand can make it,
Put all your troubles there.
Hide there all thought of your failures
And each bitter cup that you quaff;
Lock all your heartaches within it,
Then sit on the lid and laugh.

Tell no one else its contents,
Never its secrets share;
When you've put in your care and worry
Keep them forever there.
Hide them from sight so completely
That the world will never dream half
Fasten the strong box securely—
Then sit on the lid and laugh.

—By Bertha Adams Backus.

Take De Birds, Fo' Instance

Take de birds fo' instance,
Dey sing de livelong day;
They sing when dey am lonesome,
Dey sing when dey am gay.

Don't nuffin' evah stop 'em,
Dey's optimists fo' fair;
Dey nevah loses courage
Nor gives up in despair.

Now dat's de very reason
I claim dat people, too,
Should always try a-singin'
When evah dey feels blue.

When Trouble comes to fret you,
When friends hah proved untrue,
Des' try to smile an' bear it
And sing a glad song, too.

A glad song an' a brave one
When you get misfortune's cup,
Don't let nuffin' skeer you—
Des' keep yo' singin' up.

—Florida Times-Union.

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Hoggson & Pettis Mfg. Co., New Haven

This business was started in New Haven in the summer of 1849 by Samuel J. Hoggson, lately arrived from Scotland where he learned his trade.

Mr. Hoggson rented a room for his work in a building on the east side of Union street between Chapel and Court streets which is now part of the "railroad cut." He was an expert engraver, letter cutter and die sinker, and soon had all he could do in this line of work.

Mr. Hoggson was a great student and very versatile. He was a chemist of no mean ability and made many discoveries and took out many patents, some processes being used in the business and others disposed of. For instance, the first patent on "celluloid" was his. He was also an expert taxidermist.

In those days the rubber industry was in its infancy, but even then, as now, engraving and die sinking was a necessity in the development of that industry. Since New Haven in those early times was the center of that infant industry, Mr. Hoggson's talent and ability was in constant demand.

Work for the rubber trade has been one of the principal specialties of the form from that day to this. They take pride in the fact that they have furnished equipment for practically every rubber factory which has been started in this country and Canada in the past 75 years and some in other parts of the world.

Mr. Hoggson employed apprentices, teaching a number of boys his trade, who later were able to fill important positions. Two established business grew to an extent where even larger quarters were necessary, although it had already been moved once or twice along the same side of Union street to the building on the corner of Court street. The firm was incorporated in 1882 as the Hoggson & Pettis Mfg. Co. In 1883 the building now standing next to the "cut" on the south side of Court street was built and later enlarged.

In 1905 the railroad company made plans to widen and straighten their way through the city and part of the firm's property was required. In 1906 after the railroad took possession of the property, other quarters were found on Park street where the Harrison court apartment now stands. In December 1912, fire damaged that building so it became necessary to again move. In January 1913 the business moved to Brewery street where it is now located in larger and better quarters with more up-to-date equipment than ever before.

As members of the firm or in its employ are three men who served as apprentices under Mr. Hoggson and Hoggson & Pettis. Ten men have been with the company from 25 to over 50 years.

The present officers are: George P. Stehan, president; Harry B. Kennedy, treasurer; Carl A. Stephan, secretary and general manager.

PLAINTIFF TESTIFIES IN CHAMPLIN-STOKES SUIT

When the session of Washington County Superior court closed Wednesday afternoon, in the $5,000 suit brought by Jeduthan R. Champlin of South Kingstown, R. I., against J. G. Phelps Stokes of New York, for services, supplies and material furnished in the reclamation project at the Indian Cedar Swamp, South Charlestown, R. I., the plaintiff was still on the witness stand being cross-examined. When court resumes session this (Thursday) morning Mr. Champlin will continue his testimony. The project is one on which Capt. Cruickshank, formerly of the English Army and an Elm street resident of Westerly at one time was engaged, before he left for California to take up a larger engineering project.

Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, K. T., Francis M. Johnson, commander, on Wednesday evening held its June conclave in the Masonic hall. Much routine business was transacted, previous to the annual adjournment for the summer months.

OBITUARY

Henry Breevoort Kane

Henry Breevoort Kane, 64, of New York, with summer home on Central street, Narragansett, R. I., died at his South County summer home Tuesday night. He was born in New York Feb. 18, 1866. He came to Narragansett with his family 45 years ago and since that time had been actively identified with the social and political life of the Rhode Island resort. He had been ill all winter at his New York home. He served in the general assembly in 1903-05 and 1915-17 and in the senate during the sessions of 1917 and 1918, and at one time was mentioned as a possible candidate for congress from the 2nd R. I. district. He was president of the Narragansett town council and moderator many times. He was an official of the Point Judith Country club as well as the Narragansett Casino, also member of a number of geographical and social clubs the world over. He was an attendant at St. Peter's-by-the-Sea, the Episcopal church of Narragansett. He was a member of Holland lodge, No. 8, F. and A. M., of New York city, Hope lodge No. 25, F. and A. I., the Providence bodies of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite Masons of the Rhode Island Consistory. A brother of Mr. Kane arrived from New York in Narragansett Wednesday evening to arrange for taking the body to New York.

At the annual meeting of Narragansett Commandery, No. 21, K. of C., held in Columbus hall Tuesday evening, Theodore A. Cote, grand knight of Narragansett council was re-elected. It was decided to hold a dance at Wequetequock Casino. Past Grand Knight Russell Lenihan and Edward J. Butler, Michael Vacca, James Salimeno and Arthur Gervasini were named on the committee. Ten candidates will be initiated at a state meeting to be held in K. of C. hall, Providence, June 15. Other local officers elected were: Deputy grand knight, Michael J. Healy; recording secretary, James W. McCormick; financial secretary, Edward J. Purtill; treasurer, John H. McGuire; chancellor, William Bray; warden, Richard Pignataro; inside guard, Fiore Pignataro; outside guard, William Healy and Charles Buomonto. Rev. J. P. Cassagne, F. M., again will serve as chaplin. The trustees are Cornelius L. Murphy, James P. McMahon and James Donahue.

REV. LEO WESTON GOING TO DANBURY R. C. CHURCH

Rev. Leo Weston, for the past two and a half years curate at St. Michael's church here, has been transferred to St. Peter's church at Danbury, Conn., according to an announcement made Wednesday. Fr. Weston will leave for his new post today or Friday. Rev. William Brewer of St. John's church, Stamford, Conn., has been appointed to take Fr. Weston's place here according to information given out by the pastor, Rev. J. F. X. Quinn. Fr. Brewer will be here for Sunday's services, it is expected. Fr. Weston has a host of friends who regret to see him leave. He has been an especially well liked and popular curate.

Lions Nominate Ticket

Wednesday noon Frank G. Ahern was nominated by the directors of Westerly Lions club to serve as president of the club for the coming year, at the weekly luncheon. WEISGRABER ALLOWS STONINGTON BUT THREE HITS AS ACADEMY WINS, 6 TO 1

(Special to The Bulletin)

STONINGTON, June 4. — With Suzy Weisgraber pitching in all his old-time brilliance, Norwich Free Academy scored a 6 to 1 victory over Stonington high here today and closed its league season with five victories and three defeats, assured of a tie for second place with Chapman Tech. Weisgraber allowed but three hits and struck out eight, and walked one. Godomski, the Stonington captain and his opponent, also struck out eight and passed but one but was wicked for twelve hits, the majority of them coming in the late innings.

Academy Gets Three in Seventh

The Academy was held in check up to the seventh inning. They had scored one in the second and added another in the sixth before Stonington scored its only run in the last half of the sixth to make the game quite an even matter, at 2 to 1. However, in the seventh, the Wildcats started to hit, tallying three times and annexing one more in the eighth.

Alex Arico, Ed Flather, Capt. Chubby Gibbs and Jerry Fitzgerald each collected two of the N. F. A. bingles while Goyette had two-thirds of the Stonington safeties.

Weisgraber opened the second and was safe when Duhaime booted his grounder. He stole second and third and came in when Goyette threw over third trying to catch him at that station. Bob Geer followed with a three-bagger but was doubled off third on an attempted squeeze play. In the sixth, Breen led off and was safe on another error by Duhaime. He took second on a passed ball, went to third on an infield out and scored on a sacrifice fly by Pepin.

Stonington Scores

Stonington saved itself from a shutout in the other half of this stanza. With two gone, Duhaime and Hanley were safe on successive boots by Fitzgerald. Goyette then hit one into left field and Duhaime scored while Hanley was being run down between second and third.

The Academy, thinking matters were a little too close for comfort, made the game safe on their next time at bat. Fitzgerald and Arico singled and both scored on Flather's three-bagger to right. Flather scored on an infield out. In the eighth Weisgraber was again safe on an error by Duhaime. Gibbs ran for him and stole second, continuing on to third when the ball got away into centerfield. Pepin then produced a single to center that moved Gibbs across.

Wildcat Scratches

In the ninth, Stonington filled the bases with two out on a couple of errors and a fielder's choice, giving the Norwich fans a bit of a scare but everything finished all right when Gunther grounded to Breen and he stepped on third.

Every one of the starters, except Fontaine, came through with a hit.

Bob Geer, who started in left, again looked good. He weighed in with a triple his first time up but hurt his leg sliding into third and retired in favor of Crowell in the sixth.

This makes 14 victories and four defeats for the Academy.

Twelve errors were made but many of them could be chalked up as excusable due to the poor condition of the field.

The Academy's next game is with New Haven Hillhouse high, Saturday, at the campus. This is rated as one of the objective games of the year, and a win will help offset the two Bulkeley defeats. Boots Greene will do the pitching.

PROMINENT TENNIS PLAYER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

NEW YORK, June 4—(AP)—The death of Dr. George King of New York, nationally known tennis star and a member of the country's "first ten" in 1926, became known today. He was 28.

Dr. King died this morning at Presbyterian hospital. He had been ill for nearly two months following a kidney operation and for the last three days had been sinking rapidly.

A graduate of Columbia university, where he first achieved renown as a tennis player, Dr. King was a practicing physician in New York. He is survived by a widow and two small children.

FIVE AMERICANS ENRICHED IN ENGLISH DERBY

NEW YORK, June 4—(AP)—Five Americans were among the six winners of the $444,000 in prizes of the Canadian Army and Navy Veterans sweepstakes on the Epsom Derby.

E. P. Dougherty, 23 year old New York broker's clerk, won one of the two $149,000 first prizes with his ticket on Blenheim, the Derby winner. Wilfred Leblanc, of Hull, Que., held the other.

Mrs. A. Matzmmger of Reading Pa., and L. L. Smith, railroad brakeman of Guthrie, Okla., split $98,000 as winners of second prize.

J. W. Zaloudek, Omaha, Neb., laborer, and Robert I. Lynn, 39 year old Portland, Me., tailor, divide the third prize of $48,000.

The winners, those that could be reached, accepted the news in various ways.

Zaloudek who said his wife had nagged him for gambling when he bought the ticket, almost fainted when told he had won $24,000. Leblanc, a bachelor, smoked a cigaret, something he seldom does, and opined that he might retire from his $22 a week job as carpenter and "lead the life of Riley."

Smith was "out on the line" and could not be reached but Mrs. Smith was almost speechless when she was told of her good fortune. They have two children.

Lynn doesn't believe $24,000 "is enough to retire on in these days" but plans to invest the money where it will bring in a good income. He is married and has one daughter.

Young Dougherty, whose meagre salary helps support an invalid father, was on vacation in Easton, Pa., apparently blissfully unaware that he had won $149,000.

Mrs. Matzmmger was not immediately reached.

SCHMELING NOT SO HOT AGAINST SPARRING PARTNERS

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 4—(AP)—The hired help, belted miserable and bloody by Max Schmeling for the past two weeks, staged an insurrection today and wound up with most of the honors in seven rounds of boxing with the German challenger for the heavyweight championship.

Tired and drawn, the clouting Teuton made a desperate effort to continue the slaughter of hapless sparring partners that has marked his daily work-outs in preparation for the fifteen round duel with Jack Sharkey in the Yankee stadium, June 12. The effort was too much, however, and though Max left his mark as usual on the countenances of his assistants, he could not stow them away with his punishing right hand. They wound up as fresh as he was and it was immediately decided to rest Schmeling for the next two days. He will complete his heavy training with boxing drills next Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Heading the attack for the second team, Lou Barba, a New York heavyweight, came out to hit Schmeling with left jabs, Sharkey's favorite weapon, as well as left hooks to the head and side. Lou added a short right cross for good measure and Max looked none too good when it landed.

Barbar was the first man in two days to finish his designated two rounds in complete possession of his faculties.

N. B. A. TO RECOGNIZE WINNER AS CHAMPION

CINCINNATI, June 4—(AP)—Stanley M. Isaacs, president of the National Boxing association tonight announced that the N. B. A. would recognize the winner of the Jack-Sharkey-Max Schmeling heavyweight boxing bout in New York June 12, as world's champion.

There had been some doubt as to what action the N. B. A. would take. Efforts were made last winter to draw out Jack Dempsey, former champion, on his feelings toward reentering the ring. At that time Isaacs said the winner would not be recognized if Dempsey still wanted to fight. Dempsey never gave the N. B. A. a definite answer.

Isaacs said Thomas E. Donohue of New London, Conn., chairman of the championship committee, had been in communication with the other members, and that a decision was reached to recognize the winner of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

18-YEAR-OLD GIRL WINS EASTERN CROWN

BROOKLINE, Mass., June 4—(AP)—Playing skillful but careful golf, Frances Williams, 18-year-old daughter of a Pottstown, Pa., professional, today won the Women's Eastern Golf association championship with a 54-hole card of 234, 11 strokes better than that of her closest opponent, Mrs. John L. Anderson, of Garden City, L. I.

The young girl, who took up the game at the age of six, went over the sturdy course of the Country club in 81, the best performance of the three days' play. While stroking for the title left undefended by Maureen Orcutt, of New York, when she sailed for England with the American Curtis cup forces, Miss Williams indicated that she possessed all of the qualifications of a coming champion.

BULKELEY CLINCHES TITLE BY BEATING WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY June 4.—Bulkeley high of New London clinched the pennant in the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island interscholastic league here today by defeating Westerly high, 6 to 2, in ten innings. Tucker did the mound work for Westerly and Dayton and Callahan were the Bulkeley hurlers. Bulkeley scored one each in the second and fifth, while Westerly came back with two in the eighth to knot the count, only to have the visitors score four times in their half of the tenth to win out.

SHARKEY PUTS IN DAY OF ROUTINE TRAINING

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 4—(AP)—Jack Sharkey followed the usual routine of boxing here today, going through five rounds of shadow boxing. His weight was a bit under 200 pounds after working out in the hot sun in the outdoor arena. The Boston sailor wore a bandage over the small scratch he received on his left leg last night while leaving the garage but the injury did not slow up his foot work.

Minneapolis Signs Barrett

MINNEAPOLIS, June 4.—(AP)—Purchase of William J. Barrett, outfielder and infielder, from the Washington American league club was announced here today by the Minneapolis association baseball club.

Hardigs Accept Challenge

The Hardigs accept the challenge of the L. H. Majestics for a game to be played at the Hollyhock diamond on Saturday, June 7, at 2:30 p. m.

Say, you folks who crab about your hard luck, listen to this one.

Yesterday, as you are well aware, was no day for raccoon coats and red flannels, but it was the day on which the Academy was scheduled and did play Stonington, at the seaside village.

A party of the faithful that included Bert and Jim and two others whose names remain a mystery left for Stonington in what was once a rattling good car.

They bowled merrily over the highway, enjoying the beautiful scenery, the sparkling sun on the water and inhaling great gulps of the ozone. Not a care did they have.

All was right as rain until Mystic was reached. Here Old Man Hard-Luck stepped into their path and attached himself to their party. And what's more he stuck with them.

Engrossed in the discussion of baseball the driver failed to notice a red signal light and went merrily by it. A shrill whistle ended the baseball discussion and matters of law were in order.

After a brief but one-sided discussion of traffic laws, etc., in which the town of Stonington was enriched to the amount of $3 the party started on for the ball game.

As was previously mentioned it was a hot day and hot days are to worm tires what salt and vinegar are to ice cream. Just no good at all. When almost to the ball grounds there was a "BANG." Everybody ducked and Bert made a grab for his money. It was only a tire.

Old Man Hard Luck was still a passenger. The tire was changed under the broiling sun, which greatly added to the joviality of all concerned. Once again on their way the party rolled into the game only a few innings late.

The game wasn't so hot, according to the party, which was due largely to the way they looked at it. Even Jim neglected to tell somebody to put it in the basket. The game over, the party started merrily, that is as merrily as could be expected, for home.

A few miles of the return journey had been accomplished when "Bang" another tire gave up the ghost. In due course and with much grumbling the offending tire was put back in ridable shape.

When Hallville was reached and the smoke of Norwich's factories could be seen in the distance there was another "Bang." Nobody ducked this time, the banging had become a habit. They swore.

With all repairing equipment exhausted and no garage in sight the party decided that the best means of locomotion was that with which they had been endowed at birth.

So over the burning tarvia roads and into the city they walked, a perspiring and wilting quartette of fans.

And you think you have hard luck.

BUSH BOXED WELL AGAINST SCHMELING IN WORKOUT

The fans who are picking Squire Sharkey to take Max Schmeling on the night of June 12th will get a lot of satisfaction out of the knowledge that Frankie Bush, former Norwich boy, had little or no trouble in standing off the German challenger in the workout Tuesday afternoon. Dave Egan, writing in a Boston paper has the following to say:

"It is very true that the only resemblance Shaw, Lackner and Torriani bear to the eminent Squire Sharkey is that they have two hands and two feet, but their hands are palsied and their feet mismated. Even against such a collection, Schmeling looked like a savage right-hand puncher.

He boxed another round with a brisk young light-heavyweight from South Manchester, Conn., one Frankie Bush, whom I seem to remember as a sparboy at one of Jack Dempsey's camps. Bush used his feet and his left hand to good advantage and stood off Herr Maximilian with little or no trouble.

Those who go for the Squire in a large way pointed to the fest of Mr. Frankie Bush in popping left hands into his bogie with a regularity which may be described as astonishing, while those who fancy the chances of the Black Uhlan giggled with glee as he was hacking and hitting and hammering Shaw, Lackner and Torriani with rollicking rights that left each of the three bruised and bleeding."

LEFTY DUGAS AND JOE FABER HITTING THE BALL HARD

Lefty Dugas and Joe Faber, local products of the sandlots, now with the Wichita and Omaha teams of the Western league, respectively, are pounding the old apple to all corners of the lots, according to reports that drift into Norwich. Last week Lefty batted for an average of .322, getting seven singles and three triples. Then on Monday he had a field day in a double header with Oklahoma City, getting six hits in eight times at bat. In the first game he was up three times and got a triple. In the second game he was up five times and hit safely each time, his hits being a home run, three doubles and a single. Dugas is now fourth hitter in the league.

Joe Faber in seven games last week hit for an average of .357, getting a home run, three doubles and eight singles. Faber, who was batting in sixth position on the club, has been moved up to second place.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE WINS CLOSE GAME FROM HOLY CROSS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 4—(AP)—A brilliant Providence college nine wrested the college baseball supremacy of the east from Holy Cross here today, by collecting a 6 to 5 decision in one of the greatest diamond tilts ever staged in this city. The victory was the 14th of the year for the Friars, and marked their initial victory over the Crusaders. The score:

Providence Col.	001 040 001	6 12 4
Holy Cross	000 002 021	5 9 0

Quirk, Quinton and Harraghy; Sims, Friedrich, and Desautels.

Columbia Downs Tigers

PRINCETON, N. J., June 4—(AP)—Columbia went into fourth place in the Eastern intercollegiate Baseball league today, defeating Princeton 8 to 7. The defeat assured the Tigers of cellar position in the final standings.

BLENHEIM, A LONG SHOT, WINS FAMOUS ENGLISH TURF CLASSIC AT EPSOM DOWNS

(By Frank H. King, Associated Press Press Staff Writer)

EPSOM, England, June 4—(AP)—Blenheim, owned by the Indian potentate, the Aga Khan, who is the religious leader of a sect of Mohammedans and a lavish patron of the European turf, won the 151st running of the Derby today with Iliad second and Diolite, the favorite, third.

Jockey Harry Wragg rode Blenheim to victory in a field of 17 with the betting 15 to 1 against.

The Scout II, the American hope, was fifteenth and didn't even get into the picture of the finish. He lost ground in the half-mile uphill climb at the start and never recovered. Jockey Joe Childs said the American colt simply wasn't good enough. Neither was Diolite, the horse of illustrious lineage which on form had all but won the British classic before the race.

Blenheim burst into the lead on the home stretch, winning by a length after running the favorites off their feet.

It was a great Derby day. The king and queen were there; also the Prince of Wales, Princess Mary and more than a half million others—dukes, dustmen, cockneys, gypsies, American tourists, bishops, beggars, babies and bookmakers, the nobility and rabble of turfdom milling over Epsom Downs in a gigantic spectacle like a thousand American county fairs woven into a single panorama.

A muggy haze dimmed the view of the start across the teeming slopes from the grandstands. Gray wraiths of fretting horseflesh reared, backed and plunged at the tapes. Then came the start and the vast concourse hushed.

Up the long stretch of rising ground at the horizon moved a splotch of color, first in mass formation, then a phalanx and then a stretching string of colts, the favorites in the lead.

Showing the way were Diolite and Rustom Pasha with Trews on their left and Ballyferis, Silver Flare and Tetragem on their right and a little behind with Grand Salute, Sponger and Seer at their heels. Already there was daylight between this pack and the trailers, one of which was the Scout II.

Crowds, massed on the hilltop, hid all but the horses' necks and the jockeys' heads as the field sped toward Tattenham corner, where Derbies are won and lost.

Blenheim was improving his position but not until halfway down the stretch did he look like a possible winner. Diolite hugged the rails. Now Iliad pushed into the first three and the names of Diolite, Iliad and Blenheim were shouted hoarsely by frantic fans who felt their favorite was about to win.

But it was Blenheim, still picking up speed and gaining ground, and nosed ahead as the horses pounded toward the finish. He flashed past the stands well in front and finished a length ahead.

Almost before the galloping field shot past the post, a hatless, brown-skinned figure wearing heavy, horn-rimmed glasses and the conventional funeral mourning garb of the modish English racegoer, appeared on the track. It was the Aga Khan, hurrying to lead his winner in. The multitudes cheered, a few because they had won money at handsome odds and others in spite of their losses.

"I didn't have a single shilling on the colt," confessed the beaming eastern potentate.

H. C. Reeves, the insurance agent of Leighton Buzzard who rides a tricycle and who sold his Calcutta sweepstake ticket on Diolite for $100,000, wasn't so foolish after all, the thousands who had backed the favorite agreed.

Blenheim's time of two minutes 38 1-5 seconds for the mile and a half course was the slowest turned in by a Derby winner in four years.

The Aga Khan never before had won the Derby and it was the less highly regarded of his two entries that galloped to glory today. His Rustom Pasha, second favorite in the betting, failed to finish in the first ten.

CARNERA GOES AGAINST K. O. CHRISTNER TONIGHT

DETROIT, June 4.— (AP) —Primo Carnera will make his first start against first class competition in the United States tomorrow night at Floyd Fitzsimmons' State Fairgrounds arena here in a ten-round bout with K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio.

The Italian will outweigh Christner by nearly 30 pounds, scaling over 275, compared with the Akron fighter's 197. He is almost eight inches taller and has a ten-inch advantage in reach, but Christner is expected to give him a battle, having showed well against leaders among the heavyweights.

Stevenson Must Explain

CHICAGO, June 4.—(AP)—Ed Stevenson, manager of Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight boxer, today was ordered by the Illinois state athletic commission to appear before it tomorrow morning and explain why he refused to sign up for a fight between Von Porat and William Stribling in the Chicago Stadium, June 16.

Stevenson, before Von Porat knocked out Jack Gagnon a week ago, had agreed to terms for a bout with any opponent Stadium officials might name.

Hillcrests After Games

The Hillcrest Juniors have organized for the season and would like to arrange games with any 13-year-old team in Norwich and vicinity. The lineup is: Lf, Curran; cf, Fontaine; rf, Sylvestre; ss, Sevigny; 3b, Couture; 2b, Lavasseur; 1b, Smith; c, Boenig and LaFrancois; p, Roscoe and Caplet.

Send all communications to Emile Blais, Merchants avenue, Taftville, Conn.

West Hartford Wins Tennis Title

BRISTOL, June 4.—(AP)—West Hartford won the Central Connecticut High School Tennis league championship today, when South Manchester defeated Bristol, 3 to 2. As a result, Bristol, tied with West Hartford, goes into a tie for second place with South Manchester.

Canzoneri Beats Glick

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri, battling his way back to the top of the lightweights, won the ten-round decision over Joe Glick, New York puncher, in the feature bout at Ebbetts field tonight. Canzoneri weighed 132 pounds and Glick 127.

The Tigers Win Easily

The Roath street beat the Sixth street Bullets 7 to 0 Wednesday afternoon. Joe Burke hit a home run. The lineup was: R. Barry, c; J. Burke, p; H. Cubanski, 1b; T. Hynds, 2b; Dunlon, 3b.

Attention Silver Snakes!

The Shooting Stars challenge the Silver Snakes for a game on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Second Flats in Thamesville. If challenge is accepted answer through The Bulletin.

SENATORS RALLY IN 10TH TO BEAT OUT TIGERS

DETROIT, June 4—(AP)—Washington scored three runs in the tenth to pull a slugging match out of the fire, 11 to 8, after the Tigers overcame a six run handicap and tied the score in the ninth today.

Eight pitchers saw service in the game, five for Detroit. Earl Whitehill pitched the last two innings for the Tigers and is charged with the defeat, his second in two days, during which he has pitched less than four innings. Hogsett, Herring, Page and Sullivan were other Detroit hurlers. Fred Marberry started for the Senators but was relieved by Myles Thomas in the seventh. Braxton went in in the eighth and got credit for the win.

Mark Koenig, acquired last week on a trade with the Yanks, played his first game at shortstop for Detroit. The score:

ATHLETICS MAKE IT TWO STRAIGHT FROM BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, June 4—(AP)—The Athletics made it two straight for the series today, defeating the Browns 4 to 3.

After pitching impressively for four innings, Sam Gray gave the Athletics a run in each the fifth and sixth and two in the seventh, and was charged with his ninth defeat of the season. Gray, formerly ace of the Browns' pitching staff, has not won a game this year. Jack Quinn pitched the ninth for the visitors, but credit for the victory went to Earnshaw. The score:

WARRENVILLE

Bert Howlett, of Fiskdale, Mass., visited his parents here one day last week. His father, Albert Howlett, returned with him to Fiskdale to spend several days.

Mrs. Ellen Mathewson and Will Whitehouse spent Memorial day with Mrs. Mathewson's daughter in North Grosvenordale.

A well filled hall enjoyed the Memorial day program. Music was furnished by Williams' band of Willimantic. Rev. Frederick C. Williams led in prayer. The program of the Warrenville school was introduced by Joseph Vostinak. The upper grades sang "Duke Street," "By-gone Days," Allegiance" and "America," with gestures which were especially beautiful. Frederick Verney and Eleanor Arnold gave recitations and Lovilla Zeller gave a monolog. A very pleasing dialog, "Civil War Heroines" was given by Emily Vostinak, Florence Lang, Gladys Bassett, Lovilla Zeller, Margery Inowye and Elizabeth Metsac. The primary grades received a good deal of applause after their song, "I Pledge Allegiance." The programe closed with the song "Faith of Our Fathers," by the upper grades.

The speakers were Hon. George Sisson from Hartford, Rev. E. B. Verney and Rev. H. A. Coolidge. The congregation stood, to honor Ashford's Civil War veteran, Charles Chism.

Mrs. Ella Clark and Miss Louise Clark of Hartford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Eastman of Hartford spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barlow.

Ernest Blank and son of Needham Heights and Mrs. Toby and Miss Jessica Toby and a friend of Kingston, Mass., visited Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Verney over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Chaffin and Miss Emma Chaffin of Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Spalding of Phillipstown, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Lombard of Guilford, Conn., were guests of Gilbert Mathewson Memorial Day.

Miss Winona Young, with a friend from New York, has been spending several days with her mother at Mt. Hope, before she leaves for California.

Mrs. Grace Albee has sold her farm to Miss Daniels, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Miss Daniels and her mother have moved into the house.

Mrs. Marshall Lawton returned Saturday from a visit with her daughter in Hartford.

Frank Bebbington and Tony Brecka spent Friday at Rocky Point.

Miss Susie Chebro of Manchester spent the week end with her parents here.

The Karhan family of New York have been at their summer place.

The Louks family held a reunion at their former home here and several members of the family attended church Sunday.

Ralph Durkee of Worcester visited O. P. Durkee Friday.

William Keller and a friend from Brooklyn, N. Y., spent Memorial Day with Mrs. Esther Reynolds.

Rev. E. B. Verney preached another in the series of sermons on "Our Creed," Sunday morning at the Baptist church.

The Ocean county grand jury at Toms River, N. J., indicted Lester Underdown, Claude Carmichael and Madison Chappel, marines stationed at the Lakehurst naval air station, and Mrs. Hattie Evans for the murder of Robert Evans and Albert Duffy, May 16, last.

MORRIS HAS BETTER OF HUDLIN IN PITCHING DUEL

CLEVELAND, June 4—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox evened the series with Cleveland today when Big Ed Morris outlasted Willis Hudlin in a ten inning pitching duel, Boston winning 5 to 4. Both scored two runs in the first but the Indians added two in the second and fourth. The Sox got to Hudlin for one each in the fifth and seventh and finally added the winning tally in the tenth when Scarritt's single scored Reeves from second. The score:

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR IN DULLEST SESSION OF THE MARKET SINCE JAN. 20

NEW YORK, June 4—(AP)—Stock prices moved hesitatingly higher today, going against the trend of commodities in the dullest five hours of trading since Jan. 20.

The small degree of success enjoyed by the bulls was largely traceable to the existence of an over-sold condition resulting from yesterday's reaction to the unfavorable reports from the steel industry. Short covering appeared on a rally in the oil shares early in the day and quotations worked laboriously upward under the leadership of the petroleum shares, selected specialties and a few industrials. Profit-taking reduced the gains, but the more prominent shares closed firm. Gains of 2 to 3 points or better were made by a dozen or so miscellaneous shares.

Bar silver took another tumble, reaching new lows both here and in London. Wheat weakened, dropping more than 2 cents on varied government weather reports, including rains in Nebraska and favorable conditions in the southwest. Corn was easy, 5-8 to 1 1-4 lower.

News from the steel trade was a little more optimistic. The weekly reviews said that improvement in operating ratios could hardly be expected before August or September, but noted several favorable factors. Chief among them was an increase of 50 cents a ton in the price of heavy melting steel scrap at Pittsburgh, the first rise since mid-February.

Time money was quoted at 2 3-4 to 3 per cent for the 30-day maturity by some dealers.

Aside from technical considerations, there little to stimulate an advance in stock prices and trading became stagnant on the rise as it has turned on declines in recent weeks. Speculators for the advance managed to lift a few stocks, including Armour of Delaware preferred, McKeesport Tin Plate, Madison Square Garden, Wheeling and Lake Erie and Foster Wheeler, to new 1930 highs. On the other hand, Pere Marquette, Lehn and Fink, Bayuk Cigar, Curtiss Wright "A", Firestone preferred, Pullman and American Encaustic Tiling touched new lows.

U. S. Steel broke below 170 under the mild selling operations of the forenoon, rallied a couple of points from its low on the appearance of the trade reviews, and closed fractionally higher. General Electric was supported for a net gain of more than a point. Most of the buying was reported to have come from a single operator, but the report went the rounds that the directors might declare an extra dividend of 25 cents at their meeting late this week. Westinghouse Electric, General Motors, Atchison, Radio Keith Orpheum, Loew's, United Aircraft, North American, Western Union, Standard Gas and Electric, and Stone and Webster progressed moderately. Coca Cola, Columbian Carbon, International Salt and National Cash Register were up about 3. J. I. Case railed 9 net.

Houston Oil, with a gain of more than 5 points, led the petroleum group. Standard Oil of New Jersey moved up through $6, but failed to hold its top. Simms, Sinclair, Sun, Pierce preferred and Standard of Kansas were other favorites.

European exchanges firmed, sterling cables and the French franc improving slightly. Shanghai made another new low as bar silver slumped.

4—Original stories or letters only will be used.

Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Two Boys

A boy I know,
Whose name is Joe,
Just plays for the sake of teasing;
But another boy,
They call him Roy—
He plays for the sake of pleasing.

Friends by the score
Has Roy, and more—
The boy who plays to please you;
But Puss and Bess,
And all the rest,
Are sure to run
From poor Joe's fun—
The boy who plays to tease you.

Lament of a Little Girl

My brother Will, he used to be
The nicest kind of girl.
He wore a little dress like me,
And had his hair in curl.
We played with dolls and tea-sets then,
And every kind of toy;
But all those good old times are gone—
Will turned into a boy.

Mamma made him little suits,
With pockets all complete,
And cut off all his yellow curls,
And packed them up so neat;
And Will, he was so pleased, I believe
He almost jumped with joy;
But I must own I didn't like
Will turned into a boy.

And now he plays with horrid taps
I don't know how to spin;
And marbles that I try to shoot,
But never hit or win;
And leap-frog—I can't give a "back"
Like Charley, Frank, or Roy—
Oh, no one knows how bad I feel,
Since Will has turned a boy.

I have to wear frocks just the same,
And now they're mostly white;
I have to sit and just be good,
While Will may climb and fight,
But I must keep my dresses nice,
And wear my hair in curl;
And worse, oh worst thing of all—
I have to stay a girl.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKE

With the coming of warm weather, the trees have once again leaved out. Trees are very much like folks. They sleep nights and feed and drink. They breathe through a kind of lungs the same life-giving oxygen, and throw of carbon dioxide. They tear their clothes, and have to mend them. In a crowd, they jostle each other, like rude boys, and the big fellows usually conquer the weaker ones. They get cuts and bruises and broken limbs and there is a long catalogue of tree diseases, most of them catching, like the measles and whooping cough.

In winter, trees put on their warmest coats—a fashion set by the woodchuck and the bear—and just sleep and wait for spring. In the warm weather a tree goes to sleep at sundown and wakes up in the morning. If the sky is overcast, the tree is drowsy; if rain sets in, it goes right off to sleep. The only days that really count in a tree's calender are the clear ones.

The closing of the leaflets reduces evaporation (which is a cooling process) and enables the tree to save much of its bodily heat. For a similar reason a kitten tucks its feet snugly under its body and curls its tail around before it takes a nap. All young and tender foliage tends thus to "cuddle down" when it is sleepy. But older and stiffer leaves can sleep sitting erect, as grown-up folks will often do.

Day and night, rain or shine, trees keep breathing as steadily as you do. Should you stop, you would smother and die. Just as soon and just as truly would the trees. All living creatures need to breathe; it is the process that keeps the living tissues in order.

The constant tearing down and building up of cells is the one condition upon which life exists. In order that there may always be nutrition at hand to rebuild the cells and that the tree may grow in stature and strength from year to year, food must be taken in, elaborated, and stored away. It is to serve this end that the tree wakes from its winter sleep. It is for this that it rests by night and wakes so early in the morning.

Before July is gone, the amount of water taken up by the roots has perceptibly diminished. The food supply is proportionately lessened. The whole leaf system must be readjusted to the cutting off of supplies. The leaves cautiously begin to close the door through which water was wont freely to escape. As the sap-flow from the roots grows gradually weaker, the making of starch dwindles. Cooler weather warns the tree that the tender shoots need thickened bark, and that the buds must be sealed up warm and tight.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

In the Olden Days.

Dear Uncle Jed: One fine May day a man was setting ready to go planting corn in the field. He met an old man who had lived on his farm for 50 years. They greeted each other cordially and then began to talk about planting. During their conversation the old man said: "How do you suppose it was in the olden days? I can already imagine people walking to and from their gardens with guns always ready for an attack from the Indians."

I could not hear the rest because mother called me in the house to help her with the housework while they were talking.

During my work in the house thoughts were still lodging in my head about the olden days in Connecticut.

That night with the same thought in my head I went to sleep. Now what do you suppose?

I found myself traveling along a country road in old Connecticut times.

As I go on my travels I do not see the automobiles rushing past me nor air planes flying in the air, nor trolley cars rushing by. As I keep going farther and farther I do not see the beautiful houses nor state roads.

Instead I see poor little log houses, and little paths leading through the woods. As I am nearing the little village we do not see the beautiful gates and flowers surrounding the houses but we see a little town of houses without gates and flowers, but people going to the fields planting corn and watching their flocks of sheep.

Now I asked one of these poor people if I could visit them and they answered, "Yes."

As I entered I was greeted in a pleasant and cordial manner and asked to be seated on a little wooden chair.

As I looked around I saw a very wide space in a chimney. It was about 22 feet wide. At the bottom are hanging two huge kettles in which was boiling water. This is the fireplace. The house is two stories and had five little rooms. The kitchen is the place where the mother and her daughters get the meals and it is used as a living room. The other rooms are used for spinning. There stands a spinning wheel where the mother and her daughters do the spinning. The rooms upstairs are the bedrooms. While I was sitting at the poor farm house there was a rap at the door. The mother opened it and two men walked in and were asked to be seated. During their conversation one of the men said "There was a man put in prison and is going to get a whipping for stealing chickens."

"And Mr. Jones had five sheep stolen last night, now he and his son are out after the mischief-maker," said the other man. For quite a while the visitors sat and then they went away.

When Sunday came all the people were going to church. The people dressed in their best clothes and men also had their guns and swords with them in case they were attacked by the Indians. The sermon takes two hours. After the sermon we all thanked the minister and went home to our little dwellings and we are happy for the good Sunday.

Now as I was going home I told my friends about the life of these early Connecticut people. And I am very glad that I knew and saw the life of these people.

During my pleasant dream I felt a little tickle on my forehead and when I opened my eyes instead of telling my friends about gold old Connecticut, I found myself sitting up in my good old bed. Don't things happen queer, Uncle Jed.

Nimbler's Adventure.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I hope you will like my story. This story is about a deer named Nimble and his first visit to a carrot patch.

There was once a little deer named Nimble. He was so small that it was impossible for him to run fast. Wherever he went his mother went with him because she was afraid he would go away and wouldn't be able to find his way back.

While they were wandering around one day they came to Farmer Green's carrot patch.

"What are carrots, mother?" asked Nimble.

"Just wait until you get inside the fence and taste one. You won't be able to leave that patch until you've had your fill," said Nimble's mother.

"But maybe I won't like them," said Nimble.

"There won't be any question about that because every deer loves carrots," said the mother.

"Well let's go in now because you has aroused my curiosity about these carrots and their delicious taste."

Nimble went into the field and crossed the patch looking for the biggest carrot he could find and started to eat it.

"Well, I must say, these carrots are fine and it proves that mothers know what is best for children," said Nimble.

Nimble ate every carrot that his little stomach could hold and went back to the same patch every day and he soon grew to be as big as his mother.

A Story About Drums.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide-Awakes about the drum. Years ago among the savage tribes drums were used on every occasion. They called the tribes together for battle. They beat the time for the dances and the singers and they played an important part in religious ceremonies.

Among the ancient nations we find several kinds of drums. The Egyptians used a small hand drum and the Hebrews had a short sort of a tambourine; the Chinese used a large drum made like our base drum.

All drums fall into three classes: First, those made of single skin stretched over a frame which is open at the bottom like a tambourine; second, a single skin on a closed vessel like the kettle-drum; third, two skins, one at each end of a cylinder like the base drum.

The kettle-drums are the most important today. Vellum or calf skin is stretched over a hollow hemisphere of metal. This skin is held in place by a ring which can be tightened or loosened by means of screws, thus making the pitch higher or lower.

The base drum and the snare drum do not produce sounds of definite pitch. The booming thud of the big drum is chiefly employed to mark rhythm or emphasize climaxes. The snare drum, so-called because catgut strings or snares are stretched across the head to make the sound more brilliant, finds its chief use in military bands.

There are also three kinds of drumsticks, one with sponge tips for soft strokes, one with leather tips for medium strokes and one with wooden tips for loud, sudden tones.

A Trip To The Moon

Dear Uncle Jed: Let's take an imaginary trip to the moon. It would be so much fun. We'll have to fly faster then one hundred miles an hour, you know? Let's increase our speed and go as fast as a ray of light can travel. Now into our imaginary flying machine and away we go. At first we cannot see anything, because of the moisture on the window. Now, it is clear and we are about two miles from the earth. We look at the thermometer and we are surprised to find that the temperature is way below the freezing point. Yet it looks so warm in the sun. Now we are on the moon. It looks something like the earth, only there is nothing growing on it. As we look out we see something like a giant moon. It is old mother earth. We find the earth is much bigger then the moon. Well, we must go back to the earth now. In about two hours, we are home again. Well, good bye for the present, but sometime will take a trip to the sun and stars.

A Black And White Calf

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you and the Wide Awakes a number of times before, but this time I am going to tell you about my little calf. She was born April 23rd, 1930. She is black and white, I call her Beauty. She is very fond of me as I feed her milk twice a day. She also eats grain from my hand. I am glad I can live on a farm and have my own little pets to care for and feed. I think many of the Wide Awakes would like to live on a farm too. I hope you will enjoy my story.

The Story of Paper.

Dear Uncle Jed: Since I began writing to you I have become very interested and am writing again. My story will be about paper and how it is made. We should be interested as not a day goes by without a use for paper presents itself. First we go to a forest with the lumbermen, where the spruce is found, as spruce is best suited for making paper. The trees selected are about four inches in diameter. The length is about 4 1-2 feet. After they have been cut the are either sledged or floated down a river to a paper mill. (The mills are about all situated on rivers.) The logs are packed in large stacks near the mill. After drying in the air they are placed on an endless belt and carried to the mill. There they are then put into a pulping machine which makes it into pulp. (The finer grades of paper are made of rags.) This pulp is put in a vat and a chemical is added to separate the tiny fibres of wood. After it has stood in the chemical a few hours it is removed, put through rollers that press it out the proper thickness. It has to dry three days. It is then rolled out the needed size. After this, it is taken to the building to be lined. When this job is done the paper is packed and sent to the stores.

I always like to read the Wide Awake Circle, especially Uncle Jed's talk.

A May Basket.

Dear Uncle Jed: I enjoy writing to the Wide Awakes very much so here goes:

As May is a month to hang May baskets, our class decided to hang our teacher a May basket. Everybody chipped in until we had four dollars. Our basket was made by hand. The colors were blue and gold, our class colors. We filled the basket. It weighed over twenty pounds. At nine o'clock all of us got together, went to his house and all hid. Then one boy put down the basket and rang the door bell. He came out to see what was the matter. Imagine his surprise when he saw the basket. He then began to look for us. He found some and ran after the rest until he caught all of us. Then we went in to his house. There we told stories and jokes and had refreshments.

Eleven o'clock the party broke up and we all went home with happy hearts.

A Transformation.

Dear Uncle Jed: My letter to you this week tells how a surprising transformation can be made. The materials for the making of this transformation are: First a pickle jar, and then a bottle of glue or some home-made paste, scissors, and colored tissue paper of several shades.

The tissue paper can be obtained without any cost. Get a collection of Christmas cards that have been sent to you or you friends and slit the envelopes completely open and remove the lining. Cut the paper into triangular shapes with a base of five-eighths of an inch and an altitude of one inch. Paste varying shades beside each other until the vase is covered. Then measure the ridge at the top of the jar and cut a strip of paper wide and long enough to go around the edge.

Allow the vase 30 minutes to dry, and then apply a coating of varnish or brushing lacquer. This coating renders it washable.

When this is completed it is a very pretty vase, especially pretty when plenty of red, gold and black is used in it. It is not only pretty but inexpensive and I hope some of the Wide Awakes will try this transformation.

How I Learned to Swim.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a while, so I thought it was about time to write to you. One day as I was walking home from school, a big truck loaded with different things came by me and dropped a piece of cork. I picked it up and gave it to the man who stopped at a nearby store. He told me I could have it. I took it home and asked my grandmother if she would make me a pair of water wings. She sewed some cloth around two balls and put a piece in the middle which I could lay my chest onto when I was swimming. The next day was a fine day so I got my water wings and called some friends to go swimming. The water was warm. I threw them into the deep water and jumped in. I did this over and over. Then I tried without them. In a few days I could swim as well as my friends. I gave my water wings to a boy who could not swim. It will soon be time to swim again.

My Pet Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have many pets. One of them is a black pussy. I like to play with him. Sometimes she comes to bed with me and I don't know it until I awake. A few weeks ago she got up in the attic and got between the ceiling and the floor. She came out after a day to get something to eat. We let her go back every time. After a while she came out with one kitten. When we went up we saw two more.

The New Road.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the new cement road near our house. The road is all ripped up. We get lots of bumps when we are going over it. The dust flies in the house and it is hard to keep anything clean. Men are laying rails and bedding for the cement. As soon as they get through cementing in the borough they will start cementing near our house. There is much racket made by derricks, steamrollers and other machines.

Hen Hatched a Duck.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to you. I hope you will enjoy it. Mother had a duck egg given to her. We were excited when the hen was set on the egg, and waited patiently to claim the duck for our pet. And when it did hatch there it was with its downy yellow feathers, a small head, wide bill and tiny yellow webbed feet. We kept it in a small box. It grew so fond of my mother that he cried when she wasn't around. He soon grew into a big duck and stayed in the coop.

I often wish he was a baby duck again.

POLICE FINED ALCOHOL AT VARRIEUR HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 4.— Captain Frank McLean, police officers and County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler invaded the home of Mrs. Mary Varrieur, just over the Horseshoe bridge on Bricktop road about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in search of liquor which led to the uncovering of one gallon of alcohol underneath an ice-box set on a side veranda. A capping machine, several cans of malt, bottles of coloring extract, two gallons of distilled water and bottle caps were also seized as contraband. Mrs. Varrieur was arrested on charges of sale of liquor and reputation and released under bonds of $1,000 for future appearance in police court. Among frequenters of the place who were disturbed by the arrival of the police, was a brother of the woman, Joseph Gadue, who was arrested on a charge of intoxication. Equipped with a search warrant the raiders also visited the home of Emil Gladue at 221 Main street but found that he had removed to Manchester, N. H. Officers participating in the raid were: Roderick Lariviere and Deputy Sheriff Ernest Holland.

Nurses Graduated

Graduation exercises at St. Joseph's Training School for Nurses were held in the chapel of the hospital at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The address to the class of five graduates was delivered by Dr. Francis A. Duch, who also presented the diplomas on behalf of the pastor, Rev. Henry E. Quinn, who was absent from the city. The graduates, all of the three-year course, are the Misses Anna M. Curtin, of Oakdale; Mildred Hughes, of Willimantic; Helen K. O'Connell, Uncasville; Joseph K. Wiernasz, Middletown; Helen M. Woodward, South Windham.

The alumni prize of ten dollars in gold for excellency in study was awarded to Miss Curtin. The exercises were held in the presence of a good sized gathering of relatives, friends and nurses. This evening at 7 o'clock the graduates were guests at the brilliant annual alumni banquet held in the Nathan Hale hotel. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Michael J. Thompson. Miss Elizabeth Negle is president of the Alumni association and Miss Marguerite Ryan was chairman of the banquet committee.

Pride—still impels the achievement of the Best

"Copper Fastened"

"SEE that vessel laying over yonder?" said an old shipbuilder beaming with pride. "Well, sir, the man I built her for was going to be satisfied to have her fastened with iron. 'No, sir,' said I. 'If I build her she's going to be doweled and copper fastened.' 'What's it to you? It's my vessel,' said he. 'What's it to me? It's my self-respect; it's my pride in my trade,' said I. 'It's my reputation for building only the best that can be built.'"

Conscientious pride in the achievement of the best still lives. It is the spirit upon which in 1874 at Manchester, New Hampshire, Roger G. Sullivan laid the foundation of 7-20-4—now the largest strictly hand-made cigar industry in the World. It is the same spirit that today—after fifty-six years of public confidence—refuses to lower its standard of workmanship and tobaccos at the sacrifice of the finest cigar Quality.

JEWETT CITY

T. R. DAWLEY, JR. BURIED—PROMINENT NEW YORK MAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 4—The body of Thomas Robinson Dawley, Jr., of New York, was brought to Rixtown cemetery, Griswold, Wednesday, for burial. Two sons, Thomas and Bradley, accompanied the body. Thomas Dawley's father, Thomas, was a prominent man in Griswold when he was postmaster in Pachaug, in 1895. He was also a manufacturer of flypaper and was proficient in printing and lithographing, conducting an establishment in Pachaug. He owned the large house still known as the Tom Dawley place, near the Lester Memorial fountain and the old stone house adjacent to it. The younger man was born in New York, but lived in Pachaug in his younger days and was once a teacher in the Boardman district. After his marriage, he lived in Pachaug in the little house opposite Grange hall. His four children, Grace, Antoinetta, Thomas and Bradley were born in this town. Last summer with his daughter Antoinetta, he visited Griswold and Preston. The old family homestead formerly the Gustafson farm now owned by Edward Hansee, was the Robinson Dawley family home originally. Mr. Dawley visited this farm and was very anxious to buy the place. His daughter also wanted to buy the old stone house in Pachaug and fit it for a summer home with the furniture from the former homes if it could be located. Mrs. Mary Sweet of Jewett City and Mrs. Charles Sweetser of Lisbon are among the nearest relatives here. Other members of the Dawley family are also relatives. Mrs. Lucy Richardson of Preston was an aunt. People in this town and Preston will be particularly interested in the following from a New York paper. Mrs. Sweet owns the bok of which Mr. Dawley was the author, and which was given to her by the writer.

"Thomas Robinson Dawley, Jr., 63, author, publicist and war correspondent in the Spanish-American war, died of heart disease Sunday morning at St. Vincent's hospital. He had lived at 255 West Twenty-second street for ten years. He is survived by a son, Thomas Robinson Dawley 2d, who conducts a school of music at 120 West Forty-eighth street, and two daughters, Mrs. Antoinetta Long of Evanston, Ill., and Mrs. John R. Pierce of Celina, Ohio. Services were held Tuesday at the funeral chapel at 224 Eighth avenue. Mr. Dawley's career as a newspaper correspondent in the past years of the nineteenth century, included many thrilling adventures in Central America and Cuba. Shortly before the Spanish-American war he was imprisoned in Morro Castle in Cuba for his activities as a correspondent and, after escaping several firing squads, he was expelled from the island. He later returned to serve under General Shafter, and was instrumental in bringing about the capitulation of Santiago, through his knowledge of the country. Mr. Dawley was a close friend of President Roosevelt and at the opening of the World war assisted Colonel Roosevelt in recruiting a battalion of infantry and two squadrons of cavalry for the expeditionary force. The project, however, was rejected by President Wilson. Born in New York in 1862 Mr. Dawley was descended from early settlers in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. He entered the printing establishment of his father at an early age and after several years in Europe engaged in newspaper work in New Orleans. He spent four years in Guatemala studying the politics, situation in Central America and investigated the arrest and imprisonment of the Bishop of Peten, a small isolating province of Guatemala. While in that country he married Miss Rosalie Janes of New Orleans and returned to this country to devote several years to teaching. He re-entered newspaper work as a correspondent for Harper's Weekly a few years before the Spanish-American war. At the close of the war he founded the first daily newspaper in Cuba but he was arrested soon after and his newspaper was seized by the authorities. On his return to the United States Mr. Dawley was sent to Spain by the Century Magazine and a few years later, in 1904, he was sent to Santo Domingo by President Roosevelt for special investigations. In 1907 he made a study of the employment of women and children in the textile mills of the south as a special agent of the bureau of labor. The results of his studies were published in a book, "The Child That Toileth Not," in which he pointed out that the situation was not as bad as had been anticipated.

In the World war Mr. Dawley served as a adjudicator of claims in the war risk bureau for a brief period. Soon afterward he returned to the location of his earlier activities in Guatemala. He arrived at the beginning of a revolution and participated in the overthrow of Estrada Cabrera. He was then appointed official publicist by the Herrera government and was founder of the Casa del Ninos for the protection and instruction of poor children. Mr. Dawley had been living in retirement in New York for ten years. He occasionally wrote magazine articles.

Held Birthday Meeting

The Woman's Mission Circle of the Baptist church was delightfully entertained at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Mary Brewster Tuesday afternoon. Thirty were present, twelve of whom participated in the program which the hostess had prepared as a birthday party, using news of the work of missionaries whose birthdays corresponded to those of the readers. "Happy Birthday" was sung at the close of the program. Each reader held a candle as she read and then placed it on the top of a birthday cake. Candle-decorated cards were given each one present on which the hope was expressed that she would remember her birthday friend, whose name was later given her to be placed at the top of her card, with letters, a birthday card and frequent prayer. Tea and fancy cookies were served by the hostess and a birthday cake was cut. By a pleasant coincidence, the day was really the birthday of Miss Belle Gay and she was remembered with a bouquet and congratulations by the president. Mrs. A. M. Brown conducted a very impressive devotional service emphasizing the thought of "continuing" which was planned by Miss Martha Thornton of Danbury, recording secretary of the Baptist Woman's Missionary society of Connecticut. At the close Mrs. G. H. Prior sang a consecration hymn. Mrs. Brown reported for the recent meeting of the New England district at Portland, Me. The affair proved a delightful close to a successful year's work.

The Tadpole Tigers defeated the Jewett City Panthers in a recent ball game on the R. G. S. grounds 16 to 3. The lineup of the victors was: Catcher, Walter B.; pitcher, Michael S.; 1b, Stanley K.; 2b, Peter S.; ss, Paul K.; 3b, Michael Stenfeski, lf; Wiley K.; cf, Michael K.; rf, Peter Rys.

Auction at Harry Remick's of antique and modern furniture Thursday. —adv.

Saturday morning when the mercury dropped to 33 degrees the Bishop's section was hardest hit. P. J. Malady lost several hundred tomato plants and a large garden of string beans. Arvine Dawley, also in the Bishop section, lost 700 tomato plants.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Work on the construction of the cement state highway to be built between Willimantic and Storrs this summer began last week at the Windham-Mansfield line. The residence of Judge L. J. Storrs is being moved farther up the hill to allow for the elimination of the bad curve. The road was closed for two and a half days last week while the house was being carried along the highway. It was opened Memorial day, the house being then at the roadside to be carried into the field. A service house for the road workers has been erected between Mansfield Center and the foot of Spring hill.

A pleasant surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. George S. Clark at their home on Wormwood hill, Monday evening, by friends from this village.

Articles of clothing and bedding for the relief of sufferers from the New Hampshire fires may be left at the library in the care of the Mansfield Center branch of the Red Cross, through whom the call is being made. Mrs. Edwin G. Clark is chairman.

Mrs. Rollin Birdsall and two youngest children of Derby have been visiting Mrs. Birdsall's father and sister this week.

Horace J. Fenton gave the Memorial day address at the services held at Spring Hill cemetery Friday afternoon.

WOMAN DRIVER CITES EASY FLORIDA AUTO LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 4.— Woodie Riley, colored, of 20 High street, and Lakeland, Fla., was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman George Bruhns, charged with violations of the state motor vehicle law, passing an automatic danger signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets, and driving without either license or registration. The woman, who put up a bond of $25 for her presentation in the police court tomorrow, said that in Florida, where she resides the greater part of the time, neither registration nor license is compulsory for drivers.

Other drivers who failed to comply with the city's traffic laws were: Charles M. Dean, 80 Ferry street; William C. Smith, 248 Connecticut avenue; Esther Burch, 45 Jay street, and Willis F. Austin, Uncasville. All of the drivers deposited cash bonds of $3 for their appearance in court tomorrow.

Sailors Free With Money

Today was pay day in the navy and with several craft in the harbor the streets were flooded with the blue-jackets who were given shore liberty. The number of sailors about the streets and at various places of amusement tonight was greater than at any time since the fleet that was in southern waters several weeks returned last month.

Two men, one with a police court record, were arrested this afternoon when they became intoxicated and indulged in a fight on Potter street, but a short distance from the rear of police headquarters. A crowd collected, attracting the attention of Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who arrested the disturbers of the peace. Both were locked up, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace and will be given a hearing in court tomorrow.

ONE STEAMER TO NEW YORK NOW INSTEAD OF TWO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 4. — There will be no change in the summer schedule of the New London line service this summer. Heretofore two boats to New York have been operated but this year but one boat, the New Hampshire, will do the transporting of passengers and freight. The same schedule as now prevails will be followed, the steamer leaving New London at midnight and arriving here at 7 o'clock p. m., (daylight saving time). Because of the decrease in the amount of freight that the steamer is carrying several clerks on the pier have been laid off.

The New Haven railroad this week had oil spread upon the surface of the road-bed between Fort Neck and Millstone, the application being for the purpose of preventing the growth of grass.

Miss Thelma Douglass, teacher at Nathan Hale grammar school, is confined to her home by illness.

United States Coast Guard destroyer Monaghan, stationed at section base, No. 4, a long time and recently transferred to base 5 at Boston, went to that port today.

Yale Shell Case Nolled

Carlyle D. Hazall, 636 Dixwell avenue, New Haven, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, the specific charge being the operation of an over-length truck. The case was nolled. Hazall was driving to New London yesterday with a truck that carried a shell for the use of Yale crews at Gales Ferry. While the truck was being driven through the streets, the shell extended well from the rear and State Police Officer Peter Busch, who noted the violation of the law, arrested the driver.

Mary Garvey and Marguerita Devine, recently awarded scholarships at St. Mary's school for essays in Irish history, will deliver their essays before members of Father Joynt branch, Ancient Order of Hibernians, and auxiliary, Joynt branch, at a joint meeting tomorrow night in Moose hall. The children will be presented by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan, principal of the school.

The auxiliary will provide music and refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Philip Z. Hankey, of Montauk avenue, was hostess at a luncheon for 14 at Lighthouse Inn today.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Holmes, of Washington, D. C., are guests at Lighthouse Inn until their new home on Great Neck road, Waterford, is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberts Mead, of Lighthouse Inn, have returned from New York, where they went to meet their son, Frank Mead, and family on their arrival from London. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mead and family will arrive in London Sunday for a visit with Miss Stella B. Mead and Mrs. Anna L. M. Lee, of Hillside road.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Mangore Brown, 31 Summer street. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the license of Roy Hart, 40 Montauk avenue.

Taxpayers Mean Business

The New London Taxpayers' league, recently organized, has opened an office in the Alling building, State street. Secretary Robert L. Tate is in charge and is maintaining hours, 2 to 4 o'clock daily, except Sundays.

Mrs. Marian Simmons, 167 Huntington street; Patrolman Walter O'Neill, 28 Ashcraft road; Mrs. Laurence S. Chappell, 29 West street; Mrs. Joseph Burr and infant son, Pleasure Beach, Waterford; Mrs. Michael DeBlasi and infant daughter, 78 School street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

MISSING HUSBAND LOCATED WEDNESDAY

Fred S. Groves, 550 Seneca avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was sought last night by the police at the request of Mrs. Groves, was found early today in a rooming house, 10 Green street. This forenoon Groves was taken to the police station, where he assured Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield that he would properly support his wife and family. Mrs. Groves came to New London last night with her babe of seven months, which is one of seven children, in search of her husband. The latter came to this city Memorial day to work in a State street restaurant. When Mrs. Groves' funds were diminishing and not having received any letter from her husband, she decided to make a search for him. Mrs. Groves and the infant were given shelter for the night at the B. P. Learned mission and about 1 o'clock this morning Groves was found by Patrolman Frank Linehan.

Too Economical with Rims

Joseph Main, Groton, was arrested in that town yesterday by State Police Officer Donald Brown, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, and will be presented in the Groton town court next Monday. Main was arrested when detected driving an automobile truck, the tires of which were worn to such an extent that the rims were disfiguring the roadbed.

Blame Bay State Driver

Mrs. Ernest Metsack, of Uncasville, who was painfully injured last night when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband in Waterford was struck by a car driven by Samuel Goldstein, of Mattepan, Mass., sustained a fractured knee-cap. She was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Goldstein was arrested by State Police Officer Erick Swanson, charged with reckless driving, and will be presented in the Waterford town court next Monday. The automobiles were proceeding in opposite directions and when at Station 6, Goldstein is alleged to have driven from behind a car in an effort to pass it. In doing so, the auto crashed head-on with the Metsack auto.

Fred J. Lovell, Norwich, on parole from the State hospital, Norwich, was arrested by Special Agent John Anderson, of the New Haven railroad last night for his own good. Lovell acted queerly at the station. Lovell was at the depot about 1 o'clock and was of the opinion that an electrical storm was prevailing. When he went to Officer Anderson and requested to be taken where he could not see the lightning or hear the thunder, he was locked up. This morning Lovell's brother took charge of the unfortunate man who will probably be returned to the hospital.

Sarah J. Graham, of Stonington, has quit-claimed to Mary A. Phillips, this city, several building lots on Phillips street, the deed having been filed for record at the office of the city clerk today.

OBITUARY

William Pickett

William Pickett, 74, formerly of New London, died yesterday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Gordon R. J. Bourque, also a former resident of New London and Mr. Pickett's only survivor. Mr. Pickett was employed many years by the F. H. & A. H. Chappell Co.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Percy C. Eggleston, of Vauxhall street, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Virginia Eggleston, to Joseph C. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Smith, of Brookline, Mass. The wedding will take place Aug. 16.

Alexander Gray, colored and a member of the United States coast guard, stationed at section base 4, State pier, and Peter Pijeaux, colored and a former member of the coast guard service, were in the police court this morning, as a result of their street fight yesterday. Gray was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and Pijeaux was charged with assault. The case was continued to Saturday. Gray's bond was fixed at $1,000, which he could not furnish, and was remanded to jail. Pijeaux's bond was fixed at $250 and he procured a surety.

Carl Strickland, United States coast guard, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law on two counts, driving without a license and failing to grant right of way. On the first count a fine of $5 and costs was imposed and for the second count, Strickland paid a fine of $10 and costs. Strickland was arrested on Main street last night by State Police Officer William Elmer MacKenzie. The officer was driving on his motorcycle on Church street and at Main street came to a stop to permit a string of automobiles to pass on Main street. When the officer started the cycle in motion and made a left turn, Strickland attempted to pass the officer, in spite of the fact that the motorcycle had reached a point in the middle of the latter highway. MacKenzie was forced to come to a stop to avoid a crash.

Samuel S. Sachs, 10 Kenboro street, Roxbury, Mass.; Marcy Spinnato, 30 Montauk avenue; James P. Hayes, 28 William street, Norwich, and Samuel E. Thiddeau, Stonington, were charged with violation of the city's traffic rules and as none of the drivers appeared in court their respective bonds of $3 were declared forfeited.

Horseplay at Wedding Censured

Samuel Jusseck, Adelaide street, was charged with breach of the peace. He was given suspension of judgment, but not until he was given sound advice as to his future conduct. Jusseck, who was arrested by State Police Officer James Dygert early this morning, was the driver of one of several automobiles that participated in a wedding parade Monday. On the rear of the car that Jusseck drove was a huge placard bearing words in large letters of an obscene nature.

RADIO PROGRAMMES

Bread Theatre

No matter whether you're a banker or a bookkeeper, if you can solve the mystery of the Masked Strangler's real identity in "Temple Tower" before the end of the picture, your talents have been wasted. You should have been a detective.

This, at least, is the opinion of Donald Gallaher, director of "Temple Tower," the Fox Movietone mystery thriller, which opens at the Breed theatre today for three days.

"The detective mind," says Gallaher, "is primarily an analytical one. A person born with this type of mental equipment can weigh the various conflicting factors in a case, determine which of them is most reliable and in general can determine false evidence from true.

When "Temple Tower" commences its local showings, it will afford every film fan an opportunity to analyze his or her abilities in the detective field. The Stranger's identity is cleverly concealed throughout the story's action and in the film's exhibition elsewhere, few patrons have been able to discover the secret until the end of the picture.

Kenneth MacKenna plays the leading role of "Bulldog Drummond" in this unique offering, an adaptation of H. C. McNeile's latest mystery novel. Marceline Day and Henry B. Walthall are prominent in the supporting cast.

Palace Theatre

Spine-tingling and hair-raising is the double-feature program which is now being presented and which will be continued through Friday at the Palace theatre. "Sweethearts and Wives" starring Billie Dove, Clive Brook, Sidney Blackmer and Leila Hyams, a thrilling mystery tale all about a stolen necklace and "The Melody Man" with Alice Day, William Collier, Jr., and John St. Polis are the two pictures which are billed on the program.

Someone has stolen a diamond necklace, someone has committed murder, someone is looking for grounds for divorce, someone is traveling with a man who is not her husband, someone is lost and his motor powerless because he has run out of gas and lots of people are doing lots of other interesting and exciting things in "Sweethearts and Wives." The setting for this remarkable production has been laid in a remote inn in the south of France and it is a splendid background for the amazing incidents which have been woven together to make a plot so entertaining.

Scene from "Courage" A Warner Bros Production

LEON JANNEY AS BILL with his pet goat Jerry

"The Melody Man" shows the struggle between youth and old age and the plot is centered about a musician of the modern jazz age and one who is devoted to the old masters. The older man confesses to a crime committed during his youth while at the apex of his career and his confession was brought out because he could no longer stand the strain of hearing his most famous composition which was written at that time. All the stars in this picture show remarkable ability and aptitude.

On Saturday the Palace will present "Courage" the age old battle of woman against woman starring Belle Bennett, Marian Nixon, Richard Tucker and a large supporting cast.

The Popularity Contest is still the most talked of event in town and everyone is hurrying to get in as many votes as possible for the most popular girl in town. Each admission entitles you to five vote so the more you go the oftener you can vote. Make it a point to attend each new bill and bring the family. Boost your favorite lady every time you get a chance. That trip to Atlantic City is a great thing to look forward to and it wont be long now.

Broadway Theatre

One man—one poor peasant—arrayed against the legions of the Kaiser's army—condemned to death, betrayed by a stolen identification disc — launched a curse that echoed to the very walls of time—and the monarchy of the haughty Hohenzollerns drooped and died! One insignificant man—an atom—yet he had the strength to defy the high command of the Imperial army, and start a feud among the officers that ended in absolute ruin—for he was Grischa, Sergeant Grischa of the Czar's armies, and his brief life history as related by Arnold Zweig in "The Case of Sergeant Grischa" proved to be the literary bombshell of 1929, and in film form, the outstanding dramatic triumph of the present season now showing at the cool Broadway. Chester Morris is Grischa, in his most engrossing character; Betty Compson, the lovely Babka, Russian refugee, who sheltered the escaped prisoner in his flight from the stockade; Alec B. Francis and Gustave von Seyffertitz are the warring generals of the German imperial staff, and the other characters are in equally competent hands. The surrounding short subjects include the Fox movietone news, and for laughing purposes, a Bert Roach comedy, "The Stronger Sex," Herman Timberg in "I Came First," and selected Vitaphone varieties. The length of the feature makes it necessary to open and close the evening program with "Grischa" with the featurettes shown about 8:35. This program concludes with tomorrow's showings, and is followed on Saturday with Clara Bow's latest mirth-riot, "True to the Navy," a rollicking salty comedy of a red-headed soda-jerker with a sweetheart in every porthole.

The Church that Grew-In Responsible Liberty was the theme of the Sunday morning sermon, one in a series in observance of the anniversary of Pentecost, delivered by Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, at the Methodist Episcopal church. A trio, Miss Grace A. Chapman, D. E. Povey and C. E. Colver sang Praise Ye, at the offertory.

Banners for attendance and offering at the church school session were awarded the classes of Mrs. Courtland E. Colver and the Men's class in the adult department. In the primary departments, Mrs. Emil A. Gunnakey's class secured both banners and Miss Gertrude D. Allen's class that for offering.

The Epworth league evening meeting was conducted by Mrs. C. E. Colver, topic, Measuring the Worth of a Friendship. The girls' choir sang, Melody of Love, at the offertory. The topic was continued by Rev. Mr. Critchlow.

Notices for the week included the meeting of the Norwich district Woman's Home Missionary society Thursday, at the Methodist church in Norwich Town.

Miss Harriet Bishop Brown, of Hartford spent Thursday night and Friday with Miss Alice Satterlee and called on friends in the village, her former home.

Mrs. H. H. Pike returned to New York Sunday evening, following a few weeks' stay with her mother, Mrs. George H. Wright. Mrs. Wright, who has been ill for some time, is gaining.

Miss Em Beth Bennett spent the holiday and week end with Miss Elizabeth Smith, of Norwich, at the summer home of her family in Niantic.

H. N. Hartwell and Sons, Inc., of Boston, Mass., who leased the coaling plant of the New Haven railroad at Allyn's Point recently, has begun the transportation of coal to mills in this section of Connecticut and Rhode Island by auto truck. The coal is delivered, as to the New Haven road, by barges to Allyn's Point. The new roadway across the former Allyn farm at the Point was built by the New Haven road for the accommodation of the auto-trucks of the new firm.

Library attendants during the opening days of the past month included Mrs. Joseph P. DeRusha, Mrs. C. Alton Chapman and Miss Caroline B. Freeman.

Mrs. Joab B. Rogers entertained her niece, Mrs. J. Wilbur Norton, with Mr. Norton and their daughter, Nancy Lee, of Hartford, over the holiday. Mr. Norton, with his family, left Saturday to visit his parents in Madison.

Dr. William H. Bayles and family, of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent the holiday and week end at their summer cottage.

A program in observance of Memorial Day was given by the pupils of the village school, under the direction of their teachers, Miss Gertrude Weinstein and Mrs. Iva B. Hurlbutt, Thursday afternoon, as follows: Song, Star Spangled Banner, school; paper, History of Memorial Day, Janice Wightman; Memorial Talk, Rev. Harold H. Critchlow; Poem, A Flag on Every School House, Edith Hartung; Battle Hymn of the Republic, school; Story of the Battle Hymn, Miss Weinstein; poem, Scatter Songs, Enid Latimer; songs, Here Comes The Flag, primary children; America, school; Salute to the Flag. Following the program the children marched to the village cemetery and placed geranium plants on the graves of the soldiers.

Mrs. Chester E. Dimick, diocesan president of the Girls' Friendly society, was in Wallingford the past week in attendance at the closing banquet of the society at St. Paul's church, also at West Haven for the closing banquet at Christ church.

You can ideally modify the harsh "edge" of French dressing if you add

A dash of Sugar

THERE is no reason for French dressing making you wince when you eat it on your favorite salads. A dash of sugar added to the salt, pepper and vinegar or lemon juice, blends these ingredients with the oil into a dressing that is simply delicious.

Try this dressing, flavored with sugar, on lettuce, cabbage, asparagus and tomato salads and see how much more you will enjoy these important foods. This dressing is also delicious on fruit salads or combinations of fish and vegetables.

In cooking vegetables, a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt improves their flavor in a most surprising manner. For example, try this seasoning on carrots, string beans, peas, spinach and tomatoes and you will take new pleasure in eating these foods which have vitamins, mineral salts and roughage. TRAMPLING ART FOR PROFITS

FOR all its virtues, modern industrialism can run amuck under the spur of greed for profits. Witness, the ruin threatening the Art of Music.

300 musicians in Hollywood supply all the "music" offered in thousands of theatres. Can such a tiny reservoir of talent nurture artistic progress?

The true function of the machine is to increase the value of the product fed into it—not to debase it. Therefore mechanical music, as a substitute for Living Music, is a spurious form of progress—Like a loom converting good wool into shoddy.

The grind organ, however operated, is a grind organ still. For music is an emotional art, a form of social intercourse, and hence dependent upon human contact.

Who profits by the elimination of genuine music from the theatre? Not the music-loving public! Not the musician!

If you agree that theatre patrons are entitled to real music—in addition to talking and sound motion pictures, for the price they pay—HELP SAVE THE ART FROM RUIN, by joining with millions of others in the Music Defense League. When the public's voice is heard, all must be served!

American Federation of Musicians, 1440 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The members of the N. S. M. met Monday evening at the home of Miss Ruth Grimshaw of North Third avenue, with the leader, Miss Dorothy Hunt in charge. During the evening sewing was done and games were played, after which delicious refreshments of ice cream, cake and wafers were served by Mrs. Thomas Grimshaw. The next meeting of the club is to be at the home of Miss Hazel LaRochelle.

The monthly business meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse on Norwich avenue.

The first June meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening at the society's rooms on Providence street. Miss Helen Breault, the president, had charge of the business session.

The scholars at the Taftville Congregational church school have begun the rehearsal of their Children's day program. The teachers comprise the committee which will have charge of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. James Duff of Plainfield, N. J., and Arthur Derosier of New London have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Duff and family of North A street.

Mrs. William J. Malone presided at the monthly business meeting of the ladies auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians, held Tuesday evening.

When the members of the American Legion auxiliary met Wednesday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building, the president, Miss Aurette Fournier, presided.

NORWICH TOWN

Wolf Cubs To Have Hike

Wolf Cub Pack, connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church, held a meeting Saturday morning with an attendance of 20, in charge of the cubmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. The pack was inspected by Assistant Cubmaster Clayton Rose. Following the Wolf Cub howl and the opening ceremony the pack discussed a hike to be held in the near future. After a story and song period the pack marched to Huntington Green in charge of Assistant Rose for a game period.

Mrs. Dorothy Rogers was selected by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Potter, to act as directress for the new Queen Esther circle.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL VOTES SUMMER RECESS

The regular meeting of Connecticut Council of Catholic Women was held Wednesday evening in their new rooms on Broadway with the president, Miss Mary H. Maloney, presiding. Miss Margaret Counihan made a very favorable report on the recent card party held in T. A. B. hall and interesting report was made by Mrs. P. T. Connell on the quarterly meeting of the Connecticut council held at Bridgeport on May 19.

It was voted to dispense with meetings during the summer months, the next regular meeting being set for the first Wednesday in October.

Check for Firemen's Fund

A check for $25 from Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur E. Baldwin of Taftville was received by Chief Henry R. Taft of the local fire department, the check to be added to the firemen's pension fund. Accompanying the check was a letter of appreciation of the splendid services of the firemen in extinguishing a fire which gutted their home and store near Taft's station, April 19. The check has been turned over to City Treasurer Charles S. Avery to be added to the fund.

Planking Caught Fire

A few minutes after 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the planking at the city dock, Rose place, off Franklin square, caught fire from a carelessly thrown cigarette. Two pails of water were used to extinguish the fire by the fire department, which responded to a telephone call.

For Burial in Stamford

The body of Thomas Mooney who died in Norwich Wednesday was taken to Stamford for funeral services and burial by Undertakers Corcoran and Lynn.

TWO DEBATE ELECTRIC SERVICE BEFORE WOMEN VOTERS' MEETING

An animated discussion upon the subject of Regulation of Public Utilities in Connecticut made an interesting feature for the closing afternoon session of the ninth annual meeting of the New London County League of Women Voters which was held Wednesday at Norwich Inn.

The two speakers, who were introduced by Miss Edna L. Tyler of New London, the retiring county chairman, were Professor Albert Levitt of Redding and President Samuel Ferguson of the Hartford Electric Light company.

The meeting was held at 2 o'clock in the lounge and followed the luncheon at 1 o'clock at which there was an attendance of 117.

Professor Levitt, who spoke first, made his remarks particularly applicable to the Hartford company because, he said, the Hartford man was here to answer for himself.

Stating that the idea of regulation through the public utilities commission was to get the best possible service at the least possible cost to the consumers, he attacked the method by which the Hartford company made its rate and also called into question the big dividend returns which the company makes.

Using a room with one light as an illustration, Professor Levitt figured out that the annual bill for electricity would be $2.80 if the room were 10x10 feet, $6 if the dimensions were 50x100 and $50 if 100x200, this because of the 1,000 square foot basis applied by the company in charging according to the number of square feet in a house.

The rate which Professor Levitt used for his illustration was the yearly flat rate of 96 cents per 100 square feet of floor surface plus a meter rate of four cents per kilowatt hour, but with the provision that 1,000 square feet is the minimum charge.

He claimed that this method was analogous to a situation where a girl engaged to wash dishes in a family at a given rate should demand higher wages if the owner added any more rooms to his house, although she had no more dishes to wash in consequence of these conditions. Electric rates are supposed to be reasonable, he said, and he claimed that this was an unreasonable method of arriving at the rate and therefore an illegal rate.

Speaking of the financial returns to the electric light companies, Professor Levitt said that the United States supreme court had ruled that from six to eight percent was a fair and legal return, but he charged that the Connecticut public utilities commission had never had the figures and had never made a valuation of the Hartford Electric Light company so as to know what return the company was getting on its capital. He went on to quote from reports made for 1928 by the companies to the public utilities commission, in which he said the Hartford Electric Light company showed 21 million fixed capital, $2,057,000 net income, the Union Electric company $748,000 fixed capital, $104,000 net income and Manchester Electric company, $575,000 fixed capital and $126,000 net income. This was ten percent for the Hartford company, 14 percent for the Union Electric and 24 percent for the Manchester company.

As to dividends, Professor Levitt said that the Union company had paid ten percent in 1927 and 15 percent in 1928, the Hartford company had paid eleven and ten and a half percent, the Manchester company had paid 40 percent and the Stamford company had paid 35 percent. This meant, he declared, that somebody was paying more than he ought to pay and that somebody ought to be curbed and controlled. It is for the public utilities commission to do this controlling, but he said the reason why the commission doesn't exercise control is because the commission is appointed by the governor who is president of the Plainfield company and a director in the Connecticut Light and Power company in which Henry Roraback is chairman of the board.

In conclusion Professor Levitt advised the women to use their votes to put into power people who have the interests of the people at heart instead of the interests of the electric light companies.

Hartford Man Answers

President Ferguson countered by stating that it was the possibility of making good showings in dividends which was the incentive for the company to give liberal service and rates which are looked upon with favor all over the country. Good dividends have been earned, he said, by lowering rates which have now got to 25 percent below pre-war prices and if the dividends were cut in two it would amount to less than half a cent per kilowatt for the consumer. By the use of a graduated charge the company is able to provide service for a fully electrified home within the bounds of the ordinary family budget, which could not be done with a fixed low rate.

Mr. Ferguson said that he felt that too much emphasis had been put upon earnings as affecting rates and he thought that recent high prices in the market for stock of holding companies in public utilities had had much to do with the complaints against public utility companies.

In part Mr. Ferguson spoke as follows:

What the public needs is not so much a reduced price for the use of a little light as it is to be able to obtain a much lower price for liberal use. And this objective conforms so perfectly with the elements entering into the cost of service that all companies should make it effective as soon as possible.

I have here a list of 100 customers taken at random from among those who have electric ranges in their homes and are consequently in the class of those who wish to make liberal use of electricity in the home. The rate they pay for current varies naturally with the amount used but I think you will be surprised to learn that the average figure is as low as 3.6 per kw-hr. for all electricity used in their homes for light, refrigeration, cooking, etc., and that many earn a rate well below 3 cents per kw-hr.

In conclusion Mr. Ferguson advised that co-operative methods which have accomplished so much are not to be put too lightly aside by demanding so much in taking the last bent of earnings, which before this have resulted in so much of service to the consumers.

Honor Roll Speaker

After Professor Levitt had made a response in rebuttal and both speakers had answered several questions, there were brief remarks by Miss Katherine Ludington of Lyme, who is one of the Connecticut representatives on the national honor roll.

The meeting came to an end with a rising vote of thanks to the speakers.

Morning Session

In the morning meeting which opened at 11 o'clock, reports of the league presidents of the county were given as follows: Colchester, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch; East Lyme, Miss Effie Haynes; Groton, Mrs. Charles Cavanaugh; Lebanon, Mrs. Edward Graham; Montville, Mrs. Ralph Meicer; Mystic, Mrs. Thomas Farnsworth; New London, Mrs. O. E. Clark; Norwich, Mrs. William J. Shields; Old Lyme, Mrs. Horatio Bigelow, Jr.; Sprague, Mrs. W. H. Turner, and Stonington, Miss Louise Trumbull.

Committees Report

The reports of the standing committees were given as follows:

Child welfare, Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson; education, Mrs. William G. Park; efficiency in government, Miss Edna L. Tyler; international co-operation, Mrs. William Porter White; living costs, Mrs. Guy Radway; social hygiene, Mrs. Harry B. Hunt, and publicity, Mrs. O. E. Clark.

County Chairman's Report

Miss Edna Tyler, chairman, in her address covered the work of the league since its organization. In part she stated, "It seems a very short four years ago since you picked me for your county chairman. Your friendship and the wonderful co-operation you have given me have made them very happy ones.

"We were only six leagues at our convention four years ago—New London, Niantic, Montville, Groton, Sprague and Lebanon. Mystic joined us in that summer, Norwich and Stonington in 1927. Colchester signed up in March, 1929, and now we welcome the Old Lyme league to her first county convention.

The county membership is 525, practically the same as it was at the close of the fiscal year last fall. When all the dilatory members have paid up, we should show a substantial increase.

"Our finances are in perfect order, with the money to complete the county total of $2,300 all pledged and most of it paid in."

In closing she mentioned the fact that the county board has gone on record as indorsing one of the league members, Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of Norwich, to fill one of the two vacant places for county commissionership.

The minutes and the report of the recording secretary were read by Mrs. Edward Case of Baltic.

The report of the treasurer was read by Mrs. O. E. Clark of New London, that of the finance chairman by Miss Louise Trumbull, Stonington, that of the organization chairman by Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan of Norwich, and that of the corresponding secretary by Mrs. Clifton Topping, New London.

The report of the nominating committee was given by Mrs. Effie Haynes, chairman.

Election Of Officers

The committee report was accepted and the following were elected:

Chairman, Mrs. Thomas M. Shields, Norwich; vice chairman in charge of organization, Mrs. John Conway of Baltic; vice chairman in charge of membership, Mrs. Laura Turner of Lebanon; vice chairman in charge of finance, Miss Louise Trumbull of Stonington; vice chairman in charge of program, Mrs. Carl Cutler of Mystic; recording secretary, Mrs. C. E. Case of Baltic; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ralph E. Knox of Norwich; treasurer, Mrs. O. E. Clark of New London; county director, Mrs. Effie Topping, New London.

In the morning session resolutions of sympathy were passed upon the death of Mrs. Albert W. Avery, formerly president of the league in Montville.

NEW COMMON COUNCIL TO ORGANIZE TONIGHT

The new court of common council will hold its organization meeting this (Thursday) evening, according to announcement made Wednesday by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. The election has somewhat altered the complexion of the council, which now consists of three republican aldermen, one democratic alderman, and seven republican councilmen and one democratic councilman, the democrats having succeeded in electing two members of the council.

Mayor Robbins, re-elected Monday on the republican ticket, is now entering the third year of his administration of the city as its mayor. Appointments to be made at tonight's organization meeting will probably include that of Herbert B. Wightman as street commissioner for another two years, and Henry R. Taft, as fire chief, and Dennis J. Brennan as deputy chief of the fire department. John Kukla will be re-named superintendent of cemeteries, and Edmund W. Perkins will be re-named corporation counsel.

It is expected that Alderman Amiel C. Broccofske will be named chairman of the board of fire commissioners, and that Alderman F. Russell Smith will be named chairman of the board of police commissioners. Alderman Laurence E. Millea will probably be named chairman of the amusement committee.

MAIL FROM ZEPPELIN IS RECEIVED HERE

The long awaited mail carried by the Graf Zeppelin was received here the first of the month, having been received in Lakehurst the previous day. This mail left Lakehurst May 8 on a steamer to Germany and postage was paid by the new U. S. Zeppelin stamps. In Germany it was placed on the Zeppelin, which then flew to Seville, Spain, to Pernambuco, Brazil, and then on to Lakehurst, N. J., completing the round trip in about three weeks. In a window of the Mohican store are exhibited a few of the letters received in Norwich, some of which were carried the whole round trip from Lakehurst to Lakehurst, another was posted at Seville, Spain, with a pair of 10 peseta stamps for postage, another posted at Friedrichshafen, Germany, has a 2 mark and a pair of 4 mark Zeppelin stamps for postage, while a third, posted in Brazil, is carried by a 10,000 reis stamp and a 300 reis stamp for good measure.

WOMAN AND MAN HELD FOR U. S. DISTRICT COURT

Presented on liquor law charges before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Mary Korpacz, of Providence, R. I., and this city, and Sebastian Muscarella, 22, of Bayonet street extension, Waterford, were each held in bonds of $1,000 for trial in the U. S. district court. The accused were arrested late Tuesday night in Willimantic when 40 gallons of alcohol were found in the coupe in which they were. Unable to furnish bonds, both accused were taken to the Norwich jail. The woman's husband is now serving six months in the local jail on a liquor law charge.

SUE THEIR SON-IN-LAW FOR $3,000 DAMAGES

George Grimshaw and wife, Sarah A. Grimshaw, of this city, have brought suit against their son-in-law, Albert Mulholland, of No. 136 Prospect street, seeking damages of $3,000 and equitable relief. A controversy over a summer cottage on Atlantic avenue, Groton Long Point, is the basis of the suit.

According to the Groton town records, Mulholland is the owner of the property. The plaintiffs allege that they paid $325 for the lot with the agreement that they should own the lot but that the defendant has refused to carry out his part of the agreement. The plaintiffs also allege that they paid $1,600 for erecting a house on the premises and spent $300 in furnishing and decorating the house.

Mulholland, it is claimed, without their knowledge or consent, mortgaged the property for $600 to one named Jacob of Occum. The plaintiffs claim ownership of the property and ask a court order directing Mulholland to turn over the property to them and to account for rents, etc.

POLISH AMERICAN REPUBLICAN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Polish-American Republican club was held at their club rooms Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: John Stankiewicz, Jr., president; S. Poreda, vice president; S. Banas, recording secretary; J. Bronejko, financial secretary; S. Mioduszewski, treasurer. House committee; A. Pidrych, H. S. Kiecolt, J. Kosienski and J. Bronejko. Delegate at large, H. S. Kiecolt.

This club has been very active and has created a great amount of interest among the Polish people in political and civic affairs.

Its program for the ensuing year carries double the amount of work, consisting of a baseball team, known as the Royals who represent the club in the Twilight league, also a woman's auxiliary.

The Polish American Republican club welcomes to its membership all persons of Polish descent who are citizens as well as those whose intentions are such as to become citizens of this country.

NORWICH FOUNDERS INSIST UPON RE-CLAIMING OLD BURYING GROUND

The 29th annual meeting of the Society of Founders of Norwich was held Wednesday evening at the home of the president, B. P. Bishop, 183 Broadway, with an attendance of about 30 and the greatest part of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of the efforts which the society has been making for about two years to have the selectmen determine the location and boundaries of the old first burying ground of the town on the plot adjacent to the Mason monument at Norwich Town.

The matter was discussed at considerable length and it was finally voted to authorize the board of managers to proceed in all suitable ways to bring the matter to an ultimate conclusion with the selectmen in order that the cemetery may be reclaimed and preserved as town property. There was considerable criticism of what was described as dilatory tactics and indifference on the part of the selectmen and the town counsel, but it was agreed that progress had been made in getting the selectmen to acknowledge that they had been convinced there was a cemetery in this location. This acts as a cloud upon the title in case of conveyances by those owners who now claim the cemetery property, and it was brought out that it would be to the advantage of the Houghton and Mara interests to have this alleged cloud to their titles cleared off.

The meeting was unanimous that there should be no let-up in the attempt to regain the cemetery and for that reason passed the vote of authority for the board of managers to proceed with the effort.

A vote of thanks to the Norwich society in New York was passed for its support of the effort to reclaim the old burying ground and it was voted to send a copy of The Bulletin containing the report of the meeting to all non-resident members of whom there are 45.

The registrar reported a present membership of 100 and there was a report of progress regarding the marker for the Brewster place on Laurel Hill road.

The following officers were elected: President, B. P. Bishop; vice president, Charles L. Stewart; secretary, Herbert W. Gallup; treasurer, Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins; registrar, Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers; manager, (three years), Henry G. Peck.

Mr. Peck succeeds the late Oliver L. Johnson on the board of managers and Mr. Gallup succeeds Gilbert S. Raymond as secretary. All the others are re-elections.

After the meeting ice cream and macaroons were served.

Woman Sues for Divorce

Charging intolerable cruelty, Sophie Habareck of New London has brought suit in the superior court for a divorce from Bonislaw Habareck, also of New London. Claimant asks custody of two children, and also alimony. The couple married in May, 1916.

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM FORMER NORWICH WOMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WORCESTER, June 4.—Mary Bryda, of Norwich, Conn., left her husband, Szczepan Bryda, of Webster, at New Bedford ten years ago and went to Cleveland, O., with another man, according to the husband's testimony in probate court here yesterday at a hearing on his libel for divorce. Judge Harry H. Atwood indicated he would grant a decree when he had been able to ascertain that the probate court of New Bedford had never found that the wife was living apart from her husband for justifiable cause.

The marriage of the couple was at New Bedford, Nov. 23, 1912, and they lived together there and at Northbridge, Easthampton and Webster. The date of the alleged desertion was given as July 10, 1920. The husband said his wife left him several times, but after the Cleveland trip he refused to take her back into his home.

He said she had him arrested in New Bedford and he was ordered to pay $5 a week toward the support of their child, which has since died. Counsel for the husband said he talked recently with Mrs. Bryda, and found that she did not object to her husband being granted a divorce.

BISHOP CANNON WALKED OUT ON LOBBY COMMITTEE

The Bishop Remained Before the Committee Just Long Enough to Inform the Members That He Was No Longer a Voluntary Witness—Would Answer No More Questions Unless Subpoenaed—Senator Walsh Termed the Incident As "Plain Contempt of the Senate"—Committee Will Await the Return of Chairman Caraway to Determine What to Do About the Defiant Bishop.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Left talking among themselves today by Bishop James Cannon, members of the senate lobby committee awaited the return of Chairman Caraway to determine what they should do about the defiant churchman.

Calling back over his shoulder that he would be in his office if the committee wanted to subpoena him, Bishop Cannon walked out of the committee room while Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, was asking him questions.

The bishop remained with the committee only long enough to tell it that he was no longer a voluntary witness and that he would answer no more questions whatever unless subpoenaed. He previously had refused to tell the committee of his 1928 activities against Alfred E. Smith's candidacy.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, indignantly replied that the bishop was not excused but even as he spoke the defiant witness picked up his lone crutch and stalked from the room amid applause and hisses.

Walsh later termed the incident "plain contempt of the senate" but beyond that he did not indicate what recommendation he would make to the lobby committee for future action.

Senator Walsh adjourned the committee until next Wednesday with the understanding that Chairman Caraway would not return until Tuesday. However, it was reported tonight that Senator Caraway was on his way to the city. The committee chairman has taken the position in public statements that Bishop Cannon need not testify.

When Cannon made his dramatic exit Walsh and Blaine were the only members of the committee of five present. A few minutes later, however, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, entered and joined in the laughter as he looked across the table at the empty witness chair. It was the first time a quorum had been present.

Refusing to quit because of the lack of a witness, Senator Walsh read into the record reports made by the Virginia anti-Smith democrats. After going through the records, Walsh said they did not show the receipt of any money from E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, who has testified he contributed $65,300 to Cannon for the anti-Smith campaign.

Later, however, Walsh produced a report made by the headquarters committee of anti-Smith democrats which showed Cannon had received $17,000 from Jameson. He said the records did not disclose any entry of $5,000 paid by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church to Cannon for distribution of one of his prohibition speeches.

The little southern Methodist bishop issued his ultimatum to the committee as soon as it convened today. Taking his seat, he pulled a prepared statement from his pocket which assailed the investigation and gave notice he was no longer a voluntary witness.

Cannon said in the statement the committee was not investigating any other organizations which opposed or favored the "wet Tammany candidate in 1928" and charged that his examination was "an effort to single out and hold up to the country the anti-Smith democrats and myself in particular as the only persons whose activities in the campaign required investigation."

"I believe," he added, "the proposed investigation to be a part of the effort for many months of wet and Roman Catholic elements, and of those who worship party regularity, toward preventing a recurrence of the Asheville conference in 1928."

Asserting that he resented "to the limit the implication and the purposes of this action," the bishop concluded:

"In view of these things I must respectfully state that having answered all questions addressed to me by the committee on which I volunteered to appear as a witness I shall now withdraw as a voluntary witness. If the committee desires to subpoena me, that is its right."

The bishop began picking up his hat and brief case as Senator Walsh, a Catholic, shot back:

"I feel called upon to say that the committee does not take that view of the matter at all."

Walsh told Cannon as the bishop continued his preparations for departure, that, if he knew of any individuals or organizations that had engaged in lobbying, the committee would "prosecute the inquiry to the limit."

The Montanan added that he understood "perfectly well" that the bishop's statement was made "for the purpose of defying this committee."

"It is made," Cannon replied, as he started for the door, "for the purpose of showing I am not on the stand any longer as a voluntary witness."

"You are here and we will not discuss that," Walsh replied, "if you care to refuse to answer—"

"I shall retire from the committee unless a subpoena is issued," Cannon broke in.

"You may take your own course," Walsh replied, "but we have not excused you and Senator Blaine is prepared to interrogate you."

"Very well," the bishop responded. "I shall retire until I am subpoenaed."

Blaine shouted to the retreating bishop that he desired to place in the records telegrams exchanged between Cannon and Chairman Caraway.

"That is in the record," the bishop said over his shoulder. "And I also want to subscribe to every word that my colleague, 'Senator Walsh, has said," Blaine returned.

"I am at my office whenever a subpoena is issued," Cannon retorted. He was near the door.

"This committee," Blaine returned, "is to investigate any organization, respecting any lobby activities, called to its attention."

But the bishop already had left the room.

CLERICAL APPOINTMENTS OF CATHOLIC CLERGY

HARTFORD, Conn., June 5.—(AP)—Announcement has been made of several changes in clerical appointments among the Catholic clergy in the state. The Rev. James A. O'Meara will go from St. John's church, Montville, to St. Patrick's church, Waterbury, as pastor. Rev. Thomas F. Lynch will go as pastor to St. John's church in Montville, from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, New Hartford. Father Lynch's place in New Hartford will be filled by the Rev. Hyles P. Galvin, who will go from St. Patrick's church, Norwich.

The Rev. Jerome T. Cook will leave St. Rose's church, New Haven, to go as assistant to St. John's church, Stamford, the Rev. William Brewer, formerly at St. John's, Stamford, will go as assistant to St. Michael's church, Westerly. The Rev. Leo F. Weston will leave St. Michael's, Westerly, to go as assistant to St. Peter's church, Danbury. The Rev. James F. Donaher will be assistant at St. Margaret's church, Waterbury.

EXTRA SENATE SESSION FOR TREATY ASSURED

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Dispute over the procedure for consideration of the London naval treaty was ended today when Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, announced finally that it would be taken up by the senate in the special session proposed by President Hoover.

Watson's announcement was made after talks with President Hoover and Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee. It ended the discussion which started yesterday for disposing of the treaty in the regular session.

After the Watson announcement, Borah and Secretary Stimson were invited to the white house for a conference. Borah declined to say to what extent the treaty had been discussed, but said it would be disposed of at either the regular or a special session.

"So far as I am concerned," he remarked, "it is just as hot at the present session as it will be at a special session."

DENVER, Colo., June 5—(AP)—Dennis J. Phillips, Jr., Denver and Gato, Colo., mining man, was blown to bits tonight when a case of dynamite exploded in his automobile. His wife and daughter, Kay, reported with him, were found later safe. They had not been with him.

FIVE CHOSEN FOR SACRED COLLEGE OF CARDINALS

VATICAN CITY, June 5—(AP)—Five prelates were named in Osservatore Romano today as chosen by Pope Pius to fill vacancies in the Sacred College of Cardinals.

The western hemisphere had one representative in Monsignor Silveira Cintra, coadjutor of Rio Janeiro.

Three of the five will become cardinals of the Curia resident in Rome and carrying on administrative work of the church. They are Monsignor Marchetti Selvaggiani, secretary of the Congregation for the Propagation of Faith; Monsignor Giulio Serafini, secretary of the Congregation of the council, and Monsignor Raffaello Carlo Rossi, assessor of the Consistorial congregation. They will fill executive positions in the various governing bodies of the church which are now vacant.

France will have a new cardinal in Bishop Lienart of Lille to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Cardinal Lucon of Rheims.

Three of the five being Italians will bring the Italian cardinals up to 30 while the non-Italians will number 32.

THREE NEW FOREST FIRES NORTHEAST OF PORT ARTHUR

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., June 5.—(AP)—Aided by heavy rains, forest rangers in areas north and west of Lake Superior today subjugated timber fires which have burned for more than a week.

In the areas around Port Arthur at the Lakehead and at Sioux lookout, 150 miles northwest, drenching downpours had halted the most threatening fires. Blazes in other sections were, for the most part, under full control.

Three new fires were reported today on the east side of Lake Nipigon, 150 miles northeast of Port Arthur, and forestry men were sent to the scene. No rain has fallen in the fire-ridden section along the Canadian Pacific Railway line between Dryden and Dyment, but calm weather has aided fire fighters and no immediate danger is reported.

MARRIED AFTER RECEIVING THEIR NAVAL COMMISSIONS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 5—(AP)—Among Naval Academy graduates who were married after receiving their commissions today were the following:

Ensign William F. Wesanen of East Douglas, Mass., and Evelyn A. Kostens of Baltimore.

Ensign J. Louis Breault of Attleboro, Mass., and Helen Grayson of Milford, Mass.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

HAMBURG, Germany, June 5—(AP)—The maritime court decreed loss of his master's certificate for Captain Ernest Zipplitt, commander of the German steamer Falke, which last year attempted to deliver arms and ammunition to a group of Venezuelan revolutionists.

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., June 5—(AP)—Ambassador Dawes, in his customary vigorous style, tonight addressed a dinner given by the Masters and Fellows of Trinity college during which he paid tribute to the American Gold Star mothers and made caustic reference to American social seekers in Great Britain.

MADRID, June 5—(AP)—The Infante Alfonso of Orleans, cousin of King Alfonso, who this afternoon completed his voyage on the Graf Zeppelin, tonight asked the Associated Press to send his warmest thanks to President Hoover, who received him so cordially and to the people of the United States, for their courtesies and interest in him.

GRAF TAKES OFF FROM SEVILLE FOR HOME BASE

SEVILLE, Spain, June 5.—(AP)— A bedraggled Graf Zeppelin and a wobbly, storm-shaken group of passengers made port here between storms today and in half an hour whirred away toward Friedrichshafen, seventh and last stop of their historic tri-continent voyage of nearly 18,000 miles.

After flying around for several hours over southern Spain Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Graf's master, directed the huge craft to its depot, discharged passengers, literally snatched supplies from the ground and made off for home in just 31 minutes, demonstrating the express nature of the passenger craft.

It was a pale, haggard party of air adventurers that arrived, after being tossed about in storm after storm during the last night of their journey here. They had little sleep last night, but gamely asserted that the experience was worth their discomfort.

Dr. Eckener said the airship stood the terrific weather splendidly. It showed no sign of damage. The German skipper posed in a cabin window but did not go aground.

TESTIMONY OF FRAUD IN RECENT PENN. PRIMARY

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 5.—(AP)—Testimony indicating fraud at the recent primary was presented in court today when attorneys for Francis Shunk Brown formally opened their fight on the vote cast in Luzerne county in the contest for the republican nomination for governor. Brown was a candidate against Gifford Pinchot. A score of men and women testified under oath that they had not voted on election day, although the official voting list showed ballots had been cast for them.

One of the witnesses said that her mother died last April but the voting list showed ballot No. 208 had been voted for her. A trained nurse appeared in court to testify that another resident of the district under investigation was a patient in Wilkesbarre General hospital on election day, although the voting list credited him with casting a ballot.

As a result of the disclosures Gilbert VanKirk, judge of election, was ordered to appear in court.

FIREMEN FOUND BODIES OF THREE UNIDENTIFIED MEN

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Firemen searching the ruins of an untenanted six story warehouse in West 27th street, which burned early today, found the bodies of three unidentified men.

One of the bodies was found on the third floor near a stairway and the others on the ground floor. How the men happened to be in the warehouse was unexplained.

The fire caused the sounding of five alarms and threw a screen of heavy smoke over the midtown wholesale section and as far north as Times square, making occupancy of the neighborhood uncomfortable. Thousands of persons were attracted to the scene.

The brick warehouse, occupied by the Meridian Oil Engine company, formerly had been used by a paint company and its interior was soaked with oil and paint.

FORMER GOV. COX OF OHIO FOR REPEAL OF DRY LAW

COLUMBUS, O., June 5.—(AP)—Former Governor James M. Cox of Dayton, democratic presidential nominee in 1920, declared for repeal of the federal prohibition amendment here tonight.

Addressing a state-wide gathering of democrats at a "victory dinner" in his capacity as chairman, Cox said: "The people will never change the existing order by bringing back the saloon, nor will private interests ever again be permitted to become selfishly allied on any side of the issue.

"With this understanding, I unhesitatingly favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. As between the old saloon order, with its brewery controlled politics, and what not, and the present set-up I would prefer the latter. But we all prefer not being compelled to choose between these two extremes. Both are impossible."

JEROME F. COLLINS AND SECRETARY BOUND OVER

NEW HAVEN, June 5.—(AP)— Jerome Fiske Collins and his secretary, Miss Catherine L. Calcom, charged with fraud and conspiracy in stock sales of the Summit Mortgage company were bound over to the superior court by Judge Stanley Dunn in city court. Bonds for Collins were set at $10,000 and for Miss Balcom at $500.

INCREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, June 5. — (AP) — Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending June 4, were announced by the federal reserve board today at $4,101,000,000, representing an increase of $79,000,000 compared with the preceding week.

DIED OF HEART ATTACK WHILE BOARDING HIS SHIP

HAMBURG, Germany, June 5—(AP)—Captain Schwamberger of the Hamburg-American liner Hamburg, known to thousands of American tourists, died of a heart attack today while he was boarding his vessel. He was 72 years old.

Judge Rebuked Watch And Ward Society

In Revoking the One Month Sentence In the Dunsten Book Shop Case.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 5—(AP)—The Dunster House Book Shop case came to an unusual conclusion today with the court adopting the prosecuting officer's plea for revocation of a one-month sentence imposed upon James A. Delacey, proprietor of the book shop, for sale of an indecent book. A $500 fine was allowed to stand.

District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell launched an attack on the Watch and Ward society rivaling his criticism of that organization when Delacey was convicted last December. He charged that the society had "procured" the sale of a book considered as one which would tend to corrupt the morals of youth through "an elderly and mature man", who "pursued" Delacey until the purchase was made.

When Delacey apepared for sentence today Bushnell moved for revocation of a stay of sentence granted when appeal was taken to the supreme court. He then moved for revocation of the jail sentence itself. Bushnell declared that the decision of the supreme court was a foregone conclusion and that when the decision came down "the Watch and Ward society issued a statement proclaiming that the opinion of the supreme court vindicated their solicitation of this defendant to commit a crime.

"This is the most brazen piece of affrontery that has yet appeared in these proceedings," he continued. "Every lawyer and most laymen know that the supreme court decides legal issues and is not at all concerned with the Watch and Ward society. Yet these people have not had the decency, the manliness or the courage to come forward and acknowledge that they made a mistake. If they had done so those members of the public who are just as much interested in keeping pornographic literature out of the hands of their children as are any members of the Watch and Ward might wel have taken a more charitable view towards this organization."

Bushnell said that if Delacey had been guilty of sale of an improper book to a young person he would recommend a jail sentence, but that this was not the case.

"The Watch and War dsociety," he continued, "purposely sent an elderly, mature man to pursue this defendant and procure the sale. This proves that they knew the defendant is not the type who would sell to a youthful person." The district attorney said he did not believe the ends of justice required a jail sentence and that Judge Frederic Fosdick, who sat on the case originally, felt as he did about it.

Judge James H. Sisk accepted the recommendation of the district attorney, remitted the jail sentence and imposed the fine.

Herbert Parker, former Massachusetts attorney general, who represented Delacey, said he considered the disposal of the case "one of the most courageous and honest" he ever saw in a court room. Of the Watch and Ward society, he said: "Oh, I never considered them except as something to be kicked out of the road as one passes by."

EXPERIENCES OF U. S. GOLD STAR MOTHERS IN FRANCE

RHEIMS, France, June 5—(AP)—The American Gold Star mothers and wives who are visiting France seem to resist every strain of their pathetic pilgrimage, even accidents.

Mrs. D. J. Smith of Billings, Mont., fell down a flight of stairs here today but was resting quietly tonight. She was supposed to have two broken ribs, but the physicians in charge deferred an X-ray examination and are not yet certain if that is the case.

A motor car bearing a group of mothers had an accident just outside Rheims today, but the occupants escaped unscathed.

All in all, considering the advanced age of most of those who have come to visit the graves of their soldier sons, it is felt that the tours of the various contingents have been remarkably free of any trouble.

Meanwhile the fifth group of American women arrived in Paris this afternoon with not even a mild case of illness. The dean of the party was Mrs. J. R. Umstead of Los Angeles, 81 years old. She said that she never felt better and had not missed a single meal while on the water.

The 130 pilgrims in this group will start their tour of the battlefield cemeteries tomorrow.

SAYS PLANE ACCIDENT DUE TO DELIBERATE TAIL SPIN

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 5.—(AP)— Nassau county police today began an investigation of the crash of an airplane yesterday in which Henry J. (Buddy) Bushmeyer was fatally injured and Clifford Muchmore was seriously hurt.

It was learned that Bushmeyer told doctors and nurses at the hospital where he was taken that Muchmore deliberately put the plane into a tail spin at 2,000 feet and was unable to again get it under control. This is a violation of department of commerce regulations and, officials said, also would make Muchmore liable to a prosecution for manslaughter.

Muchmore, suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries, is in Glen Cove hospital. He is expected to recover. No charges have been filed.

Bushmeyer, a professional parachute jumper, was not wearing a chute on his last ride.

25,000 JEWS IN PROTEST PARADE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)— About 25,000 New York Jews today paraded down Fifth avenue, in a protest demonstration against the British government's suspension of Jewish immigration into Palestine.

The paraders bore numerous placards, labelled variously "Open the Doors of Palestine for Jews," "Jews of America Demand a Square Deal in Palestine," and "England Fulfill the Mandate or Withdraw from Palestine."

They gathered at Madison Square Garden to begin the march there. Rabbi Stephen S. Wise told them it would have been better "for England to have denied us at the outset, than to have granted our wishes and now to have betrayed us."

F. P. McEvoy Named Judge Superior Court

Waterbury Man to [illegible] Late Judge M[illegible] Who Died Last Sun[illegible]

HARTFORD, J[illegible] (AP)—Francis P. McEvoy, of W[illegible] was named a judge of the s[illegible] court today by Gov. Trumbull [illegible] Judge L. F. Waldo Marvin, [illegible] Hartford, who died Sunday.

Mr. McEvoy, a brother-in-law of former Mayor Francis P. Guilfoile, of Waterbury, with whom he has been associated in the practice of law, has been active in democratic politics for many years. He is one of the few Roman Catholics ever to be named to the superior court bench and the first since James Henry Webb, of Hamden, former Yale Law school professor, who was on the bench from November, 1914 until his death April 19, 1924.

Gov. Trumbull notified Mr. McEvoy, of his appointment this afternoon after summoning him to the capitol by telephone. The governor announced his selection immediately after he had interviewed the Waterbury man and stated: "I have always felt that both parties should be represented on the bench. The oposite party should be represented, at least in a minority. Mr. McEvoy is capable and has all the qualifications of a good judge. It seems the logical thing that a democrat should be succeeded by a man of the same party and Mr. McEvoy seems a logical successor."

Judge McEvoy, because of the pressing need for judges throughout the state as the close of the court year approaches, is expected to begin his duties immediately after he receives his certificate of appointment from the governor and takes the judicial oath.

WATERBURY, June 5—(AP)—Attorney Frank P. McEvoy, appointed by Gov. John H. Trumbull today as judge of the superior court, is a brother-in-law of ex-Mayor Francis P. Guilfoile of this city. He was born in this city November 12, 1878, the son of Finton and Mary (Lawlor) McEvoy, was educated in the local grammar and high schools and St. Francis Xavier college in New York.

He was graduated from Yale Law school in 1907 and was admitted to the bar that year. He immediately began the practice of law, and in 1908 became associated with his brother-in-law, Attorney Guilfoile, an association which has continued since. He is a member of the statute revision commission, appointed by the legislature in 1927, and a member of the Waterbury charter commission appointed by the 1929 legislature to investigate the city government here. Aside from these posts he has never held public office. He is interested in Boy Scout work and is a communicant of the Blessed Sacrament Roman Catholic church.

SHIFT IN THE SCENE OF HOSTILITIES IN INDIA

BOMBAY, June 5—(AP)—Hostile episodes on the northwestern frontier have taken the spotlight from nationalist salt raiers in troubled India.

A warlike Lashkar (tribal force) consisting of Afridis and Zakka Khels tonight was advancing on the key city of Peshawar, and while authorities here felt that troops of the northwestern area would be adequate to deal with this advance, there was some consternation here nevertheless.

The Peshawar region has been in a troubled state for some time, and the crisis arose on the night of May 28th when Narj Khwar, an outpost, was fired upon.

On the same day some 3,000 Kuki Khel Afridis, carrying a red standard, assembled at Mardan, where they were joined on May 30 by contingents from the Malikdin Khel Kamber and other Kuki Khels.

The combined sections, marching with eight standards, set out that same day—May 30—and on June 1 were reported to have reached a point in the Bara valley about 18 miles from the Pehsawar district border.

They they held a Jirga (council) for several days, discussing whether to advance nearer Peshawar, and as a result split into two parties. The moderates stayed there, but the Lashkar, or hostile elements continued to advance and since has been joined by thousands of Zakka Khels.

PRESIDENT OF CUBA CUTS HIS OWN SALARY IN HALF

HAVANA, Cuba, June 5.— (AP) — President Gerardo Machado as the nation's chief executive today took the initiative in reducing Cuba's national budget by appearing before the cabinet and voluntarily cutting his salary to less than one-half its former figure.

The president's salary, by token of this cut, will in the future be $1,000 a month, or $12,000 a year, instead of $25,000 a year.

Salaries of other government officials also were reduced to enable Secretary of the Treasury Mario Ruiz Mesa to keep within the $76,000,000 budget announced this morning, but the reductions were in no instance in proportion to that visited on President Machado by himself.

As a result of the reforms in the budget adopted today expenses of the government for the coming fiscal year are reduced approximately $12,000,000.

NEGRO SUCCEEDED IN ELUDING POSSE

DENISON, Texas, June 5.—(AP) — About 20 officers and civilians late today believed they had cornered a Negro who a few hours earlier had threatened to kidnap the baby of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Elliott near Belts. Guards were stationed around a thicket a few miles from the Elliott home.

Later, however, the posse disbanded when it became apparent the Negro had escaped.

MERIDEN WOMAN KILLED WHEN PITCHED OUT OF AUTO

MERIDEN, June 5—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Stone, 31, of this city, was almost instantly killed tonight when pitched out of an automobile by the force of a collision. Earl Thompson, driver of the car, the woman's husband and several others in the car escaped serious injury. The other driver, Ernest Bellante, of this city, was held on a charge of misconduct of a motor vehicle.

TARIFF BILL FOR FOURTH TIME BACK IN CONFERENCE

Vice President Curtis Upheld Four Democratic Points of Order, Which Automatically Returned the Measure to Conference—House Rejected, 181 to 140, a Minority Proposal to Instruct House Managers to Accept the Senate Free Listing of Hides, Leathers and Shoes—Both Houses Have Reappointed Their Conferees.

WASHINGTON, June 5—(AP)—The tariff bill ran up against four insurmountable barriers in the senate today, but hurdled a fifth in the house and tonight was back in conference for the fourth time awaiting correction of its rate sections.

After Vice-President Curtis had upheld four democratic points of order against the conference rates on cheese, watch jewels, rayons and a provision relating to temporary free entry of cattle from Mexico and Canada for pasturage, the house defeated, 181 to 140, a minority proposal to instruct house managers to accept the senate's free listing of hides, leathers, and shoes.

The decision on the points of order automatically returned the bill to conference. Both houses reappointed their conferees and Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the senate conference committee, said he would call a meeting tomorrow in the hope that the corrections could be made and the bill reported to the senate late tomorrow or Monday, Saturday usually is an off-day.

While the vice-president's decision was no surprise to republican leaders, the move in the house for free hides and shoes came unexpectedly, immediately after that branch agreed to another conference with the senate. Representative Garner of Texas, the minority leader and a tariff conferee, made the instruction motion which lost by 41 on a record vote.

The senate had kept the three leather commodities on the free list after failing in four attempts to write a scale of duties acceptable to all sides. The conference agreement carries the house rates of 10 per cent on hides, from 12 1-2 to 20 per cent on leathers, and 20 per cent on shoes, all now on the free list.

Loud cheers and yells greeted Speaker Longworth's announcement of the vote, the first record ballot to be taken in that branch of these controverted levies.

Seven democrats joined 174 republicans against the Garner proposal while 30 republicans, combined with 110 democrats for it.

Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, whose point of order against the flexible provision last week necessitated returning the bill to conference for a rewriting of this clause, made the points against watch jewels and cheese, while Senator Hayden, democrat, Arizona, won his point on the cattle pasturage item.

Barkley was prepared to contend the conferees had gone beyond the senate and house rates on rayon, but did not make this point. However, the vice president, believing it was to be made, had studied the question and sustained the point as if it had been made. While not going into detail on this rate, Mr. Curtiss said the conferees clearly had violated their authority.

The chair was in doubt as to another point affecting watches not designed for wear on the person, but said inasmuch as the bill was going back to conference, "it would seem that the amendment objected to might well be made more definite and certain."

He overruled one point touching the watch paragraph, and refused to pass upon another relating to frozen cherries.

Ruling on cheese, the chair held that the conference duty on this product made from sheep milk and feta white cheese was higher than that in either the senate or house bill.

By inserting the word "unset" in the watch jewel section, the conferees were held to have raised the bill rate of 16 per cent considerably.

Senator Hayden's point against the cattle section claimed the conferees had violated their authority in laying down two rules, one providing for free entry of cattle for pasturage for eight months from Canada and the other providing free entry for three months for Mexico.

ARGUMENTS MADE IN THE PARKER-SMITH CASE

NEW HAVEN, June 5.—(AP)— Arguments were made before the supreme court of errors today in the appeals of three officers found recreant in their trust in handling the affairs of the Parker-Smith company, now in a receivership.

These men, John H. Parker, president; Paul M. Smith, treasurer, and Clarence V. Smith, secretary, face long prison sentences, and their hope for new trials rests in this court of last resort, on the contention of their attorneys that the law of embezzlement does not apply to them. On the other hand the state argued that the law does reach officers of a corporation who may have done wrongful acts in behalf of the corporation.

The appellants seek a new trial, and the points raised in their pleadings were 110. The three men who were sole officers of the company were convicted on 31 out of 35 counts in an information and $126,400 was claimed as the amount of the embezzlements under the first 26 counts. The other counts had to do with handling of mortgages.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH THE DEATH OF ROY KRAMER

TOPEKA, Kas., June 5.—(AP)—L. H. Kimmel, 48, president, and Virgil Pointer, 38, "handy man" of the Kaw Packing company, Topeka, late today were charged with murder in connection with the death of Roy Kramer, 47, vice president of the concern, which originally was attributed to an accident.

Charges of murder in the first degree were filed by J. Glenn Logan, county attorney, against the two men after the "handy man" in an alleged confession stated he had slain the company official at the suggestion of the president who promised "things would be a lot easier for him."

MAN AND GIRL FOUND SHOT DEAD ON ABANDONED FARM

ROCHESTER, Mich., June 5.—(AP)—Discovery of the bodies of two persons shot to death on an abandoned farm near here, brought to an end a five-day search for Marjorie Clemons, 13, and Henry Clouse, 46-year-old boarder in the Clemons' home here, who failed to return from an automobile ride upon which they started last Saturday. They had been dead several days.

The girl had been shot in the back of the head and Clouse through the mouth, apparently with a .22 calibre rifle which lay near Clouse.

Although Oakland county authorities have not completed their investigation, members of the searching party which found the bodies, said Clouse evidently had shot his companion, then turned the gun on himself. He had expressed affection for the girl several times.

FIVE PROSTRATIONS FROM HEAT IN BOSTON

BOSTON, June 5—(AP)—Torrid temperatures again held New England in their grip today with two deaths occurring in this city and a maximum of 96 degrees in Springfield breaking records there for the season.

The Boston heat fatalities were Michael Buckley, 52, and Miss Mary Deely, 55. Five prostrations were also reported and the thermometer registered 95.3 degrees. At no time during the day did the temperature fall below 71 degrees, although a shift in the wind brought some relief in the evening.

Four prostrations occurred in Worcester and schools were ordered closed at 2 p. m. The temperature touched 98 for the hottest day of the year.

REBELS AND BANDITS OVERRUN NORTHEAST CHINA

SHANGHAI, June 5—(AP)—The Nationalist government armies retreated today in Hunan and in Shantung provinces before victorious rebel onslaughts on widely separated battlefields. INQUEST IN BLANCHARD DEATH OPENS THIS MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 5—Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson will open an inquest at 10 o'clock Friday morning at police headquarters, into the death of Joseph Blanchard, at which time it is expected that a report of the specimen sent to Yale laboratory at New Haven by Medical Examiner Dr. Louis L. Mason, will be available. The specimens were taken during the autopsy performed Wednesday. It was said that Blanchard was found to have been suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull. The youth died at the hospital Tuesday night, presumably from injuries sustained on the night of March 1, when he figured in a fistic encounter with members of a trio comprising, Napoleon Arton, Arthur Roberts and Phillippe Leo St. Hilaire, local young men. Due to the absence from the city of Dr. Mason and lack of knowledge at present of the cause of death, some difficulty was experienced today by Undertaker Aime J. Martineau in securing a death certificate so that funeral arrangements could be completed. Permission was finally secured from Coroner Bill and the funeral will be held Friday morning.

The case of Mrs. Mary L. Varrieur of Brickton road, who is alleged to have sold liquor to Joseph Blanchard, deceased, and the three youths now being held on manslaughter charges in connection with his death, was continued until next Monday morning in police court today. The woman was arraigned on three counts, keeping with intent to sell, actual sale and reputation. She is at liberty under bonds of $1,000. She was represented in court today by Attorney Arthur T. Kelley.

FUNERALS

Miss Catherine Doyle

A solemn high mass of requiem was sung in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock this morning for Miss Catherine Doyle. Rev. Henry E. Quinn was celebrant, Rev. Michael J. Thompson, deacon and Rev. Francis A. Duch, subdeacon. Miss L. Monica McKeon was heard in impressive solos, uniting with William A. Costello in singing Abide With Me as a recessional. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance presided at the organ. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where a prayer was conducted over the grave by Rev. Father Quinn of the local church and Rev. John Quinn of Westerly, R. I. The bearers were, Michael Sullivan, Jeremiah Haggerty, Patrick Minahan and Michael Hurlihee. Arrangements were by Killourey Brothers.

Mrs. Julia A. Hawkins

Services for Mrs. Julia Ann Hawkins were held at the home, 115 Bolivia street, this afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. David Winslow Lovett of the Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in the Hillside cemetery, Spring Hill, Mansfield. The bearers were, George Boyen, Harry Larkin, Bernard Larkin and Russell A. Andrews. Arrangements were in charge of the J. C. Lincoln company.

Answering to the glamor of the carnival tent, Chester Witham, 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Whitman of 311 Brook street, New Britain, pedaled a bicycle under a scorching sun in this city Wednesday, seeking employment with Coleman Bros. shows, playing a week's stand here under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. The boy was refused a job and he started homeward late in the afternoon but on West Main street the front tire of the bicycle blew out, causing the wheel to get out of control. Young Witham fell heavily to the street. He was taken to the Willimantic General hospital by officers Arthur Hurley and Roderick Lariviere. Dr. S. J. Turcotte found the youth to be suffering from a sprained ankle. Witham's disastrous trip ended early this morning when his parents came for him in an automobile.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM OLD RESIDENT RECEIVED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 5—Relative to Community Reunion week later this month, an interesting letter has been received by Allen B. Lincoln, vice-chairman of the week, from Rev. Edward P. Armstrong who came from Mansfield to enter Natchaug and completed the college-preparatory course in June, 1871. He is a brother-in-law of Colonel J. Dwight Chaffee of this city and also of the late N. D. Bishop, superintendent of schools in Norwich. He is now living in retirement at State College, Pa. His letter, dated May 28, follows: "My dear old-time friend:—Your cordial letter of the 27th May, arrived this a. m. on my 78th anniversary. Still I have not discovered that I am old, except that my hearing is crippled, too much so for my continuance in the pastorate. The pulpit I can still fill with acceptance; but last year, (Sept. 1, 1929) I thought it wise to retire, when I had completed 50 years service in Congregational churches.

"Your cordial invitation to be present at the festivities of the Community Reunion stirs many delightful memories from their hiding places. Sixty-three years ago a callow youth drove 'the old gray mare' into Willimantic to begin his course in the new high school, Natchaug. With some trepidation he found a seat and looked into the grave, kindly face of Principal Corbin. Only a few months elapsed before Mr. Corbin accepted a promotion to higher fields of service and was succeeded by Principal Fuller, he of the fair white hands. Blushing but smiling, the principal firmly insisted that too much time was spent by some of us in playing checkers in the back room of the corner store. How sweetly and firmly his control of the school was sustained by the smiling, blushing Miss Nellie Blood, who held us firmly to our school duties and proper conduct.

"Somehow, or other that farmer-boy from Mansfield Center passed the final examinations, taking the entire class with him. That first class to graduate from Natchaug marks an era in this high school. How gladly woul I be present at the reunion in June to meet all the members of that historic class. It would be an historic event, for every meber of that reknowned class would be present after 59 years—I repeat it, every member: for I was it! However, it is impossible for me, Natchaug's first graduating class, to attend. But as an original "Natchauger" I send a cordial greeting and hearty well-wishing for you all. May the remaining years in each of your lives, be they few or many, be blessed with the guidance and mercies of the Highest, the Lover of Man, who said, 'I came that ye might have life', and have it 'more abundantly'—real life—the broadest life!"

As ever your friend and fellow alumnus,

E. P. ARMSTRONG.

Opposition by the town of Windham, residents of the town and the chamber of commerce led to the denying of a petition of the Central Vermont Railway, Inc., to install automatic flash-light signals at the South Windham crossing, replacing the flagman protection. This opposition was assigned as reasons for denial of the petition in a ruling issued by the commission Wednesday.

The June meeting of the Willimantic Ministers' Union will be held next Monday afternoon on the lawn of the home of Rev. Harold H. Critchlow at Gales Ferry, with Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield Center in charge of the meeting and a social hour to follow. The ladies will be invited to attend and it is expected that over 40 will make the trip. Rev. Mr. Critchlow was pastor of the local Methodist church for three years, until April of this year.

Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps will observe its decoration day June 21, when a program will be carried out with Mrs. Ida Williams in charge.

Representative committees comprising 50 men and women of various parish organizations, have been selected for the annual lawn fete to be staged by St. Mary's parish. Joseph F. Gaudreau is general chairman, Rev. H. C. Belec, general manager, Miss Louise Pepin, secretary and Napoleon Bacon, treasurer. The fete will be held on the school playgrounds August 6, 8 and 9.

John Desrosiers of 22 West street, Hartford, formerly of this city, received a sentence of three to seven years in the state prison upon his plea of guilty to robbery and escape in the superior criminal court at Waterbury Wednesday. The sentence was imposed on the robbery count, that on the escape charge being suspended. Desrosiers made a sensational escape last January when the jail bus drew to a stop in front of the Waterbury courthouse. He was arrested recently in Ohio.

The Hebron Community band made its bow to the public in a concert at the town hall of that place presented under direction of A. E. Lyman of Columbia. The program was heartily received by a large audience.

The foundation for the new grammar school at Storrs will be completed this week after which the laying of the brick walls will be started at once. The structure will be one story high and include four class rooms and an assembly hall.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hurley have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Greene and Mrs. James D. Courtney of Hartford, formerly of this city.

Stafford Springs

Frank W. Furness, of Westerly, R. I., pleaded guilty in the borough court Wednesday afternoon to the charge of speeding and paid a fine of $10 with costs of $11.36. Salvatore Lomagro, of 670 Farmington avenue, Hartford, paid a fine of $1 and costs for operating an automobile without carrying his registration certificate with him. In the borough court Thursday morning, Al E. Siderowf, of 1544 Stanley street, New Britain, charged with speeding, had his case nolled on payment of costs. Siderowf was coming down the upper end of East Main street, about 6 o'clock Sunday evening, and as he approached the East street intersection two cars came out into East Main street. State Trooper Griffin happened along at the time and as there was considerable traffic at this point and Siderowf was going at a pretty good clip, the officer gave him a ticket to appear in court. The accused stated in court that there were no signs to indicate an intersecting highway and the first he knew of there being such was when the cars turned the corner into East Main street. Officer Griffin made an examination of the intersection Thursday morning and stated that there were no signs indicating the intersecting highway. This is considered a particularly dangerous corner and it is expected that an effort will be made to have signs erected which will warn of the intersection.

Tobacco Survey in County

The preliminary report of the tobacco survey conducted in Connecticut by the state department of agriculture indicates that so far as Stafford is concerned the growing of the weed is practically nil. There is, however, considerable tobacco acreage in Tolland county, especially in the town of Ellington. The report indicates that there is a slight increase in the planting of broadleaf in Tolland county this year and a slight decrease in Havana seed. The number of growers this year has increased to 117, which is 15 more than a year ago. There is also an increase of 83 acres of tobacco for both types. The broadleaf harvested in 1929 which was not damaged by hail, averaged 1,653 pounds per acre and brought 31.6 cents per pound in the market. The slightly damaged crop yielded 1,457 pounds to the acre and was 28.7 cents per pound. Havana seed in Tolland county, whether damaged or not, yielded about 1,500 pounds to the acre and the undamaged crop brought 26.1 cents per pound and the damaged crop was worth only 6.3 cents per pound.

COLCHESTER

GAME WAS EXCITING IN SPITE OF ACCIDENTS

One of the fastest and most exciting ball games so far this season was played on the local park diamond Wednesday afternoon between the Colchester Shamrocks team and the Colchester Merchants, the score being 3-3 at the end of the seventh inning, when the game was called on account of darkness. The lineups: Merchants—Gregory, p; Cohen, c; Deitch, 1b; Lazinsk, 2b; Mintz, 3b; Riley, ss; Dember, rf; Vechinski, lf; Smuckler, cf. Shamrocks—Polakevich, p; Welch, c; Saban, 1b; Fedus, 2b; Stebbins, ss; Lester, 3b; Solomon, rf; Woynar, cf; Rogers, rf. Umpire, Murray.

The Merchants' team held a slight lead up to the last inning, when Fedus, the Shamrocks' star second baseman, brought in the run which tied the score. Smuckler, the Merchants' star center fielder, and Fedus, the Shamrocks' second baseman, made several brilliant plays. Smuckler was hit in the head by a pitched ball and Rogers injured his left leg badly in sliding to third. William Fedus, a spectator, sustained a broken nose when he was hit by a bat which slipped out of Sol Cohen's hands. All three of the injured men received medical treatment and were about the street Thursday, receiving the sympathy of friends.

Louis R. Chapman, Harold Darling and Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Clark, Jr., of Salem, called on friends here Thursday.

Mrs. Frederick Kopp will be leader, Sunday evening, of the Young People's C. E. meeting and will take for her topic, "Prayer in the Life of Leaders." Miss Virginia Kopp will be leader of the Junior C. E. meeting at 5 p. m. Sunday.

The members of the Junior Golden Rule Missionary society held a meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of their leader, Mrs. Tompkins. Plans were made for an exhibit of their handiwork to be held the latter part of next week. A large treasure chest is also being filled with beads, scrapbooks, toys and trinkets to be sent to missionary headquarters in the Philippines.

The Eastern Star minstrel show, which was to have been given at Westchester this (Friday) evening, has been cancelled, due to the death of Mrs. Edgar A. Carrier, a faithful and active Eastern Star member.

MEMBERS ENTHUSIASTIC AFTER NORWICH MEETING

Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch, president of the local Women Voters' league, with the local recording secretary, Mrs. John M. Riley, and Mrs. J. Dember, Mrs. H. H. Tompkins and Miss A. G. Willard, attended the ninth annual convention of the New London County League of Women Voters, held at Norwich Inn Wednesday. The reports of the different league chairmen about the county were interesting and the fine luncheon was voted the most delicious ever served. All who attended became even more firmly convinced than ever that one cannot afford to be a non-member. Miss Ludington urged the members to become better informed on all subjects of interest to good, intelligent citizens.

The "Where Next" bridge club was entertained, Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Chauncey G. Markham, in Westchester center. Four tables were in play, prizes being won by Miss Marion A. Bock and Mrs. Ina Griswold.

A Few Bottles of Bon-Tone Made a Different Man of Me

"I am anxious to tell everyone what Bon-Tone has done for me and they can call on me at any time," says Mr. Charles Healey of 58 Spring St., Hartford. "For five years past, everything I ate would sour and ferment and form gas that bloated me terribly as well as causing a sharp, stabbing pain in my left side. Often the gas would get up around my heart and make it palpitate. My liver was inactive and my tongue was coated, and I had a bitter taste in my mouth mornings. My appetite became so poor, I had to force myself to eat. Nights I would roll and toss about and didn't sleep well at all. A few bottles of Bon-Tone have made a different man of me. I sleep the whole night through now, and feel rested in the morning. Now, when meal time comes I am really hungry and can get a good hearty meal and no suffering afterward. Constipation has been corrected, and altogether I feel fine in every way. I would never have believed any medicine could do so much good in so short a time."

DANIELSON

REV. J. R. JONES TO DELIVER BACCALAUREATE, ADDRESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 5.—The public is invited to attend, no cards of admission being required, the annual baccalaureate service in the auditorium of Killingly high school, Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock. Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's church, will deliver the address.

Class day exercises will be held next Thursday afternoon and the graduation exercises next Thursday evening, both in the school auditorium. Admission to the class day exercises will be by ticket; graduation exercises will be open to the public.

At the class day exercises the address of welcome will be delivered by Theodore Francis Hammett. Honor essays, Education for Citizenship, Objectives of High School Education, and Athletics in School Life will be given respectively by Alfred Sheldon Earle, Madeline Teresa Fournier and Henrietta Thompson.

Betsey Ricewasser will give the class history, the prophecy will be by Ruth Pilling Mellor and Clark Brayden Wood, the class will by Mildred Pilling Meech, the presentation of the gift by Charles Samuel Dayton and the acceptance thereof by Philip Wildman.

Rev. Frank E. Haggard of Hartford will deliver the address at the graduation exercises in the evening, when the annual award of the Killingly Woman's club scholarship will be made to some member of the graduating class whose identity will remain a secret until the time for making the award is at hand.

FUNERALS

Francis Plantier

This morning the funeral of Francis Plantier was held from the home in Wauregan with funeral services at the Sacred Heart church in that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Among those attending were delegations from the Union St. Jean Baptiste and the Foresters. Rev. Fr. Quinn conducted the committal service at the grave in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Edmond Garnier, Marcel Jette and C. Messier, representing the Union St. Jean Baptiste, and Arthur Messier, Joseph Sabourin and Denis Rondeau, representing the Foresters. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Freda E. Moody

Relatives and numbers of friends gathered at the church in Westminster this afternoon to attend the funeral services for Mrs. Freda E. Moody. Rev. H. E. Small of Canterbury Green was the officiating clergyman. There were many beautiful floral pieces and attracting particular attention was the floral decoration of the church, children of the nearby school having assembled and arranged quantities of pretty wild flowers in most effective manner. Burial was in the Westminster cemetery. The bearers were Malve Olsen, H. E. McCloud, Alex Helstrom and H. A. Ricks. During the service a choir sang There Is No Night There, and The Old Rugged Cross. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

The executive committee of the Killingly High School Alumni association has issued announcements relative to activities of Commencement week. Monday evening next, the annual alumni baseball game with the school team will be played, at 7, William Reddy is in charge of the Alumni team, and the promise is that it will be good. Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, at the Westfield Congregational church the annual alumni banquet will be held, with the members of the class of 1930 as guests. This is expected to be a delightful gathering.

The annual reception and dance arranged by the alumni for the graduating class is to be held at Wildwood Park Friday evening of next week.

An undercurrent of public opinion relative to the recently authorized bond issue of the borough of Danielson continues to make itself felt, and it is critical. The principal contention is that there should be some provision in any agreement made under which the bonds as a whole might be retired in any given year after a certain period of years, rather than at the rate of $2,000 yearly for twenty-five years beginning with 1931. The argument is advanced that the borough might find itself situated so favorably financially that it could retire in some given future year all that remained of its outstanding bonded indebtedness, and thereby save interest charges that would have to be paid under the slower yearly retirement process. Whether or not any action will be taken along the lines suggested was not clear today. The entire matter is one that has not claimed general attention of the citizens, and only 40 of them were in the meeting that authorized the bond issue, and of these only 22 voted, for or against. In various circles here today discussions of the bond issue were going on. What may come of these deliberations was not forecasted.

Under a newly given authorization the borough empowers and instructs the court of burgesses to build new sidewalks or reconstruct walks wherever the court finds it necessary, upon either or both sides of the following streets: Water street, from Franklin to Cottage; Hutchins, Winter, Spring, Oak, Academy, L'Homme, School, Maple, Franklin streets, from Main street to the railroad crossing. Furnace, Hawkins, Reynolds, Dyer, Cottage and Mechanic streets. For this work the sum of $10,000 has been appropriated, an addition to sums already appropriated for sidewalk construction. Construction of sidewalks are now underway between Franklin and Cottage streets along the easterly side of Water street. Property owners, who are benefited, will pay half the cost, the borough the other half, as in other such construction undertaken here during the past year.

Mrs. Joseph Farron of North Main street is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

A youth, Albert Trahan, 17 years old and resident off Mechanic street, was before Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis in the town court this morning to answer to a charge that he used his widowed mother's name to endorse a check for $14 and obtain the money. The case was continued until Saturday.

The outdoor bathing season has opened with a rush, and many a bathing suit has been retrieved from winter quarters during the past few days.

For using obscene language in a manner to disturb nearby residents, three mill workers who are employed nights were each fined one dollar and costs in the town court this morning.

L. E. Young of Mechanic street is numbered among the several Danielson patients now at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

Of interest to numbers hereabouts is the announcement that closing exercises at the Rectory school in Pomfret will be held Monday and Tuesday of next week.

In a general way, members of the senior class of Killingly high school will largely have completed their courses when school closes Friday afternoon of this week. Of course there will be sessions during the early days of next week, but the baccalaureate service next Sunday evening will really mark the beginning of commencement week.

Thomas Day, student of osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., is here with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Thomas, of Maple street. Mr. Day is a graduate of Killingly high school in the class of 1929.

Incident to published mention that Masonry has been established in the United States 200 years, it was recalled by Masons here today that Moriah lodge of Danielson is among the oldest in this section of New England, dating back far over 100 years.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer at the Danielson barracks, and State Officers Henry Mayo and Lionel Poirier, stationed here, were at department headquarters in Hartford today, making a periodical visitation.

Danielson's newly organized Twilight league, with three teams representing mills of Powdrell and Alexander, one St. James' team, a Danielson town team and a Dayville team will get into action next week, with a promise of plenty of action and good sport for the fans.

Frank Barber, owner of the Casino alleys here, will be among the eastern Connecticut fans in New York next Thursday evening to see the world's championship heavyweight battle between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling.

Did He Know?

Imagine the naiveness of a stranger here calling Chief John McFarland aside to inquire confidentially as to where a drink might be purchased, and announcing that if he were in Providence he easily could get a pint. The chief's answer was: "There's a bus leaving for Providence in five minutes."

Appropriate exercises were held at the Baptist church this afternoon to mark the close of the private kindergarten that has been conducted there since last fall, with upwards of a dozen little children in attendance. The school has been successfully directed.

Like various other pretty customs of a generation ago, the June box party appears to have practically gone into the discard. Very few such parties have been held in Danielson the past few years, and none reported to date during the current month.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill will be in Willimantic Friday morning at 10 o'clock to conduct an inquest in the death of Joseph Blanchard, 21, of that city, who was beaten by companions a number of weeks ago in a brawl and who died last Sunday evening.

PUTNAM

R. D. BANIGAN OFFERS $8,000 FOR GOVERNMENT SITE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 5.—On May 27 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the treasury building in Washington, one lone bid submitted for the purchase of the government-owned tract of land on South Main and Grove streets was publicly opened. It was from Richard D. Banigan of Danielson, whose offer for the property was $8,000. Unless the postoffice department decides that Mr. Banigan's bid is too low, he will perhaps receive the beautiful tract of land, which adjoins the Warner home, on South Main street. The bid of Mr. Banigan was accompanied by a check for $400. In the event the land is transferred to him he will pay for the remainder in three, six or nine months installments as specified by the government in its call for bids.

The price offered by the Danielson oil man is considered a fair one by those who know Putnam real estate values, and it is believed that he will be the next owner of the site which was originally acquired by the postoffice department for a federal building. The offer of Mr. Banigan is of interest to Putnam people and particularly to those residing in the vicinity of the site. Mr. Banigan is the lessee of the G. U. Miller filling station on Woodstock avenue, and is also the owner of a filling station in Danielson.

What he proposes to do with the land in the event the treasury department approves of the sale is not known. When asked if he might erect a filling station on the site, he said that he had not decided anything as yet and until approached on the subject said that he had not even thought of such a plan.

The South Main and Grove streets tract of land was purchased by the government in 1912 for a price of $8,500. It was purchased from the late George A. Hammond. Whether the government will be content to dispose of the land at once, sustaining a $500 loss on the transaction to enhance the Putnam postoffice fund, is not known as there has been no official information received which would disclose its plans. The amount of the available funds set aside by congress for the proposed Putnam postoffice totals $119,000, and in the event of the acceptance of Mr. Banigan's offer the amount will subsequently be increased to $127,000.

Arthur Ross, a member of the class of 1931, at the final meeting of the 1930 organization of the Putnam High School Athletic association, was named to head the student body society during the coming school year beginning in September. During the year's last session held yesterday morning minor business matters were disposed of followed by the election of officers. Other officers elected were: Allard Melbert, Pomfret, vice-president; Beatrice Green, Pomfret, secretary; Ulysses Labossiere, treasurer; Norman Bonneville, assistant treasurer.

Thirty-three pupils at the Howe Marot school for girls in Thompson received their diplomas at graduation exercises held Wednesday afternoon at the school campus. The Marot junior college senior class also took part in the closing exercises of commencement, which were largely attended.

A delightful afternoon's entertainment was provided for the members of the Putnam Teachers' club Tuesday afternoon on the occasion of its final social gathering of the present school year. The climax of a long automobile trek which was cleverly arranged by the social committee, consisting of Miss Rosa LaFrance, Miss Elenor Murphy and Miss Marjorie McGillicuddy, was most surprising to the faculty members and their wives and husbands, who attended. The scheme was known only to the three committee members. Nine cars of anxious members started out from Putnam high school in the late afternoon in a game of follow the leaders, which took the procession through the principal streets of the city to the Israel Putnam school, where the participants were to find additional guiding information. Tacked up in a conspicuous place within the school, was a large placard directing the drivers to Grove street and Killingly avenue to the Country club road and from there to Pomfret and South Woodstock, where still further information was gleaned from a poster which directed them to the Paco lodge in Danielson, where an excellent chicken supper was served and enjoyed by all. In the course of the dinner a game was started, each diner punching a board which was passed around the table. A nominating committee consisting of Gertrude Warner, Jeannette Jacques and Margaret MacConnell, announced the officers of the club for the ensuing year to be as follows: Abbie H. Keith, Putnam high school, exalted ruler; Francis H. Curran, Putnam high school, chancellor of the exchequer; Ethel Strahan, Israel Putnam school, artful dodger; Sarah Barber, Mary Millard, and Angelina O'Flynn comprise the hospitality committee.

A death in Pomfret today was that of Lizzie M. Baker, 63, who died at her home today following a prolonged illness. Mrs. Baker was a lifelong resident of Pomfret, having been born there on Jan. 13, 1867, the daughter of Benjamin and Lucinda Cotter Baker.

Through daily appeals to its radio audience, a Springfield broadcasting station has enlisted the cooperation of many Putnam people in the saving of pieces of tin foil in which foodstuffs and other household products are received. The foil is sent to the radio station and in turn is forwarded to a general committee in Springfield and Northampton, Mass., which prepares it for sale. The proceeds derived from the sale of the wrapping product are devoted to the community fund being raised for the treatment and cure of crippled children from all over New England, who are patients at the Shriners hospital in Springfield. The announcer at the station on Wednesday commented on the valuable assistance contributed by a number of residents of the city of Putnam, Conn. who had responded to the call to provide sunshine for the innumerable unfortunate children who are eagerly watching the progress of the tin foil collection which they hope will in one way or another aid in restoring to them the use of their crippled arms and legs.

The street department continued its work today of oiling a number of the municipal-maintained streets on the east side of the city today.

A continuance until Monday was granted in the case of Aime Salvas, Woodstock man arrested last Friday evening when a liquor raid was staged at his home at the Harrisville golf links. Salvas was to have been given a hearing in justice court in Woodstock Wednesday.

At the annual meeting of the Women's club of the Congregational church Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Howard H. Sheriffs of Gilman street was elected president. Other officers elected were: Miss Alice Smith, vice-president; Mrs. George Twigg, secretary; Miss Harriet Brown, treasurer.

The 16th course of steel to be banded to the new one million gallon steel tank being erected on Oak hill was being hoisted into position for riveting today. The 16th is the final course and it is expected that work will be completed Saturday night.

The city ordinance committee has disapproved of the application of the Cargill Trust company for a restricted parking area in front of their new banking home on Main street which would be reserved for the use of their customers.

The condition of Leodore Mayer of High street, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, was reported today as unchanged. Mayer sustained a fracture of the skull Sunday afternoon, when a motorcycle which he was riding went out of control on Hospital hill and darted through a fence and into a swamp on the side of the highway, not stopping until it had smashed through and mowed down a growth of young pine trees on the Aldeman property.

The straw vote poll taken recently on the prohibition situation included Putnam in its distribution of ballots by state. The poll showed that 381 ballots bearing Putnam postmarks were received. The "wets" or those favoring repeal of the 18th amendment eked out a substantial lead, they being credited with 160 votes, with 122 going for continued enforcement and 99 for modification. The result of the poll's analysis announced by the Digest has considerable significance, since 32 per cent of Putnam's vote went dry, which, incidentally, was the largest "dry" contribution of any town in the state.

P. J. Ryan of Woodstock avenue underwent an operation of a major nature at St. Vincent's hospital Monday. A report received today was to the effect that he was considerably improved.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

There were two big frosts at the end of last week which killed the grape leaves and small grapes, and also killed beans, corn and tomato plants.

Mrs. Charles Barber of Jewett City spent Tuesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood in Eastern Voluntown. While there she and the lady that works for Mrs. Bitgood took a walk down to the place that Mrs. Barber owns. She intends to sell or rent it.

Charles and Joel Barber of Jewett City were callers Tuesday afternoon.

Charles Barber is building a garage for Herbert Phillips at Campbell Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington and three children and Mrs. Harry Leonard of Oneco, called at Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's Sunday evening.

Albert Dawley and three grandchildren, Maurice, Harrington and Amy Graveline and Lila Bitgood called at Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's Sunday.

Frank Remington from the Hawaiian Islands, is visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington, in Oneco. He has been in the army four years.

Callers at Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington's Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway and little girl of Rhode Island, besides a few others from Oneco.

Ethel Congdon is home from New York for a ten days' vacation. She is Mr. and Mrs. James Congdon's daughter.

Fred Britgood of Danielson and his daughter and son-in-law and little grandchild of New Bedford were callers at William Bitgood's Saturday. Mr. Bitgood said if his mother lives to see August she will be 100 years old. She lives with Mr. Bitgood. Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood have known her many years. She married William Bitgood's cousin, Joseph Bitgood. He is dead.

Mrs. William Bitgood received word yesterday of the death of Mrs. William Hartley. She used to do Mrs. Bitgood's washing and she also made Mrs. Bitgood a nice little basket to keep her clothespins in and she made Mr. Bitgood a bushel basket.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley called on Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fenner Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Fenner is quite lame since she had the German measels. It settled in her knees.

Lila Bitgood, Mrs. Dawley's granddaughter, has gone to her home in Pachaug. She has been staying with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley, for a while.

Mrs. Bitgood heard of Manford Maulborn's death recently. They found him dead in the hen coop. He wasn't well. They thought he had a poor spell as he had been having them once in a while.

Robbie Bitgood of Pachaug spent Sunday with his cousin, Otis Remington, in Oneco.

LOSING WEIGHT? MAYBE IT'S WORMS

MYSTERIOUS loss of weight may mean that your little one is harboring worms which are robbing her of nourishment. Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

BUILD THE VOLUNTOWN CUTOFF

Because of the condition of the bridge between Pawcatuck and Westerly, new attention is being directed to the bottleneck situation which prevails there. All highway traffic into Connecticut over the Boston post road must go through that narrow and crooked section. All traffic from Connecticut into Rhode Island is likewise obliged to go over that route along the shore. The situation is one which is being used to secure improved conditions there, and at the same time there is being urged the desirability of an auxiliary route through Westerly, involving the construction of a new bridge at another point.

While this situation is getting consideration, there should not be overlooked the fact that there is an opportunity for the opening up of another route, one that would eliminate Westerly entirely and mean the saving in mileage by those motorists heading for points north in Rhode Island or those going to New London or points west in Connecticut. This would involve the construction of a new road in Rhode Island from the Nooseneck road to the Connecticut line, on the highway leading to Voluntown, and by the building of that needed stretch in Connecticut between Preston City and Voluntown and beyond the latter to the state line to join the Rhode Island road.

When Highway Commissioner Macdonald spoke here recently he was asked as to plans for such construction but indicated that it was not contemplated and that Rhode Island was not considering the necessary cooperation. That was before the Westerly situation came to the front. Now it seems that a considerable outlay is faced there. That being so, an additional excuse for opening up the route that would open up a new part of both states and give traffic the benefit of the hypotenuse of a triangle is offered.

By such a route traffic west would go through Norwich and thence to New London, or by the Essex turnpike and the Old Lyme road to the Connecticut river by which a further saving in mileage would be effected and much traffic avoided. It would help to divert traffic in a way that would be a decided relief to congested highways. It is a connecting route that must come sooner or later and it would be advantageous from many angles if it could be put on the programme for early action.

THE STOBBS MODIFICATION

Because there was no leeway permitted judges to deal with mild violations of the Jones law, an effort is being made in congress through the Stobbs bill to make a distinction between the casual or slight offender and the habitual offender. In other words, instead of making it impossible for the judge to impose a light fine or imprisonment for a small violation of the law and a heavier penalty for the serious case he was allowed no discretion. It was a case of penalizing all violators alike, regardless of the circumstances. The Stobbs bill sets forth what the slight cases are and in the house of representatives it has received a favorable vote. Further efforts to have the amount made five instead of one gallon manufactured, transported or sold before the penalty under the law would be imposed were defeated.

Thus, while there appeared to be a victory for modification in the provision of the Stobbs bill which was adopted, the attempt to further modify failed.

Evidently the purpose of the Stobbs bill is much the same as that change which was made in the state of Michigan. There, in the enactment of the dry law, the possession of a half pint of liquor was enough to constitute a felony and, in the case of a fourth offender, a life sentence had to be imposed.

When such a situation came to light and such a sentence was actually imposed it was not long before steps were taken to have the state legislature change the law so that a liquor violation would not be a felony. After making a study of the Jones law and seeing the situation by which a minor offender could be given the maximum sentence, the lower house of congress recognizes the need of drawing the line between a minor and a major violation. What action the senate will take upon the bill is not indicated but there is opportunity for the same reasoning to apply in the senate as prevailed in the house. While the wets may look upon it as a victory, the drys may insist that it is simply a straightening out of a situation which needed attention. It is a change which makes possible a more reasonable enforcement of the law.

ITALY AND FRANCE

One of the bothersome situations at the London conference was that which was shown to exist between France and Italy. Those countries are carefully watching each other. Italy is desirous of having a navy that will compare with France's and it made demands which France could not accept. The way was left open for further consideration and now Italy has come forward with the offer to suspend its construction programme for 1930 provided France will do the same thing until it is found out how the further discussion is going to result.

Italy has indicated that it was going to build up its navy until it approximated the French navy. It even stated that it would be satisfied to have a navy no larger than the French navy, regardless of what that was. It didn't insist upon a big navy so long as it was on a par with France. Now it comes forth with its new proposition. It is not receding from its desire for parity but it is opening the way to curbing naval construction in both countries. It sees where it will be possible to save money by deferring this year's programme, provided France will do the same. Evidently it considers that this would leave the two countries relatively the same, as it considers such an appeal to France is a fair one.

With the proposition before it, France must indicate its attitude. It is recognized that France has not agreed to sanction a navy for Italy that would be as large as its own, but there is no telling what may be agreed upon as the result of a naval discussion between the countries. Italy doesn't want anything more in the way of an increase until these conversations have taken place and its plan is one that cannot fail to make a favorable impression until France presents a substantial reason for deciding otherwise.

It is possible to look upon this as a move for limitation, an effort to check the naval competition which other nations have sought to end. It at least puts the question up to France in what must be regarded as a favorable light by the disinterested. Interest will now center upon France to see what its reaction will be.

CABLING THE HIGHWAYS

Evidences are to be seen in many parts of the state of the work that is being done by the highway department for the better protection of the highway users. This year much attention is being given to the replacement of wooden fences along embankments by the setting of new posts and placing steel cable thereon with the expectation that it will prevent cars which crash into them because of skidding or lack of control from going through and down offsets.

Fences have done much in this way in the past but fences lose their power of resistance as they age and while they have been the means of preventing much more serious accidents they have not always done so. Furthermore, they are being expected to meet the onslaught of what in many instances are powerful battering rams. When cars going 30 to 40 miles an hour crash into them, rotten fences are not going to furnish very effective resistance.

Many of the wooden fences are old and simply serve as warnings of dangerous places as they line the highways by day and night, their white paint standing out conspicuously. When a car bumps into a rail fence it may break the joists or the post in that particular spot and go through, but when it strikes a fence made of cable the resistance caries over a much greater distance. The chances of breaking the cable are far less favorable than in the case of the wooden fence.

It is not to be expected that auto drivers will slam into the new cable fences just to see how effective they will be. That isn't the purpose of erecting them. The hope is that they will serve to keep the wild driver or the driver who accidentally loses control from participating in as serious an accident as might otherwise be the case if such protection was not provided. The cable should fill the bill.

TIME FOR ACTION

Those who are maneuvering to have action on the naval treaty delayed until the regular session next winter are spending far more time in their efforts than would be required to debate it at length and dispose of it. They are not finding the president disposed to yield to their efforts. Instead of getting down to business and giving the senate a chance to express itself, they are trying to figure out how they can balk such action, even to making a fizzle of the special session which the president has declared he would call immediately after the adjournment of the present session.

Quite in contrast to them are those senators who are pointing out that there will be an opportunity for the senate to get the treaty out of the way at the regular session if the members will apply themselves to the task and make the most of the time that is available.

There has been advanced no convincing reason for postponing action. Their aim is to let what is believed to be a minority have its own way and in the months that will intervene between this session and the one next December try and trump up a lot of opposition which doesn't exist now and will not in all probability exist then.

It is one of those instances where the tail is doing its best to wag the dog, for no good reason. There are those who are declaring that the treaty doesn't represent all that the president desired. Probably it doesn't and if they had participated in the conference they would have realized how difficult it would have been for any of the nations to get everything it wanted. As long as the nations have gotten together on a compromise agreement, one that will be advantageous, one that means another step toward better international understanding, one that will not deny adequate defense, prompt action is called for.

The man on the corner says: Cheer up, four weeks from today you can celebrate the Fourth.

When New York's police commissioner declares he isn't going to be rash, he may figure he can make the first page by results instead of rashness.

The drowning of boys in upset canoes is being told in the day's news. An important preventive is to keep out of canoes. Another is to learn how to swim.

A NIGHT OFF

"My dear," cried Mrs. Walters, running into Mrs. Bennett's apartment right after breakfast, "what do you think Joe asked me last night? He wants a night off once a week to play bridge with his old friends, like he used to do before we were married."

"What an idea!" replied Mrs. Bennett pleasantly. "Why didn't I ever think to ask Henry if he'd like a night off once a week?"

"You don't mean," gasped Mrs. Walters, "that you would allow it?"

"Of course," said Mrs. Bennett. "Why, didn't you?"

"Rather not!" said Mrs. Walters decisively. "I told him his place was right here at home with his wife now that he's married, and was he angry? He didn't speak to me all evening."

Mrs. Walters said much more during the course of her morning visit, but Mrs. Bennett's mind was wholly taken up with the subject of her neighbor's initial expostulation. And so that night when Mr. Bennett came in and kissed her and hung around the kitchen watching her prepare supper Mrs. Bennett maneuvered to ask sweetly, apropo of nothing in particular:

"Henry, did it ever occur to you to take a night off to play bridge with your old cronies?" Mr. Bennett looked surprised at the question, then abashed. He hemmed and hawed and finally admitted sheepishly that he had, but wouldn't think of going—not for the world—and leave his little wife alone. No, no; not he!

"But I want you to!" said Mrs. Bennett. "Don't think of me. I'll be quite all right. And I insist on your doing it." She didn't have to urge very much. Mr. Bennett readily warmed to the subject. "I think I'll make it this very night," he said. "Down at the alumni club. Let's see, I'll call Bill and Ed and Orville. What a rubber of bridge we used to play in the good old days!" The good old days didn't date much farther back than a year, but Mr. Bennett was in a mood for mellow reminiscence.

"Hello," he said, getting old Bill on the telephone, "what do you say to a game of bridge at the club tonight? Yeh—stag party." There was ominous silence and then Billy's reply.

"Couldn't think of it, old man. Mary's gone shopping and I'm alone here playing with the baby. But," he added, trying not to be 100 per cent wet blanket, "you come over here some night and bring the missus and see our baby. Cutest thing you ever saw." Not interested in the subject of babies just then, Mr. Bennett cut the conversation short. Disappointed but not despondent, he next called good old Ed, whose marriage dated back no farther than three months, and put the question to him squarely as man to man.

"Awfully sorry," said Ed, turning him down as completely as friend Bill had done. "Dorothy cleaned the china cupboard today and put off washing the dishes until I was home to help her." He laughed. "You should see me this minute—yeh, apron and everything. But say, why don't you two come over here some night and see all our wedding presents?"

Mr. Bennett was somewhat disgusted by now at the confirmed domesticity of his two old friends, but there was still Orville. Thank heaven, he wasn't married. Good old Orville would go with him. He called the Orville number and was greeted by the maid's voice.

"Mr. Orville isn't at home," she said. "No, he won't be back all evening. He's gone to the theater—with his fiancee and her mother." His fiancee. Well, that was something new. So Orville had fallen, too. Mr. Bennett jammed down the receiver and savagely sought his house slippers and his easy chair.

"Why, what's the matter?" exclaimed Mrs. Bennett, coming into the living room. "Aren't you going out?" Mr. Bennett emitted a grunt.

"No," he said, turning the page of his evening paper; "all the fellows are dated up for the evening. Why the sorry expression?" he demanded in an aggrieved voice as his wife showed signs of disappointment. "You act as though you were actually trying to get rid of me!"

Mrs. Bennett's eyes sparkled as she ran to Mrs. Walters as soon as Mr. Bennett left home next morning.

"My dear," she said "It worked—marvelously." Mrs. Walters demanded to know what and how immediately.

"I was so afraid," detailed Mrs. Bennett, "that Henry really did want a night a week away from me and last night when I tried to send him out he refused to budge. He was actually insulted when I mentioned it."

"I'm so relieved," said Mrs. Walters happily. "I—I think I'll offer Joe the night off the minute he gets home."—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Acute Osteomyelitis

By Walter M. Brickner, M. D.
New York.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Acute osteomyelitis is an infection of a bone, often of several bones simultaneously of childhood. The infection is by pus-forming bacteria that enter the system and, carried through the blood, are deposited in one or more of the long bones. Often the affection is preceded a few days by a mild injury, which probably produces an area of diminished resistance.

At first the child complains only of pain, which the parent or grandparent dismisses as that hoary and absurd thing called "growing pain" (growth is a natural process and causes no pain). Soon, however—and these are the precious hours in which the delay may prove fatal—the parent himself notices what a physician would earlier have detected, that there are some swelling and redness at the painful area and that the child is feverish. Often the disease attacks the tibia (the large bone of the leg) and when it starts, as it frequently does, near one end of the bone, the swelling appears to the parent to involve the knee or the ankle and he thinks it is "rheumatism." ("Rheumatism" and "neuritis" are common and often incorrect lay explanations for all sorts of pain).

Don't neglect a child's complaint of pain. Send for your doctor. He is, or should be, trained to recognize an osteomyelitis or to determine, at any rate, whether surgical consultation is necessary. As in appendicitis, so in acute osteomyelitis, early diagnosis and prompt operation are essential to save life. The bone must be opened and the pus drained.

You will readily note that there are two specific but very different reasons for taking your child or yourself to the doctor. One is for a periodic check-up, and each birthday is a good time. That examination is to avoid weaknesses or diseases which develop slowly and should be stopped in their early stages. The other is in the emergency when sudden pain calls for attention. By having a good doctor available for these two needs, and letting him know that you expect him to keep you well, you can safely and fearlessly live all the rest of the time on the top levels of health.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 5—Undoubtedly Senator Tom Schall of Minnesota has contributed to the Congressional Record not only the most pungent but the longest personal campaign speech of the 1930 series.

He did not, of course, put it in the Record himself. That is never done in the senate although house members do have to be perfectly frank about it sometimes and insert their own speeches delivered elsewhere than in the house.

In the senate the custom is to let some other senator get permission to insert the outside speeches of a colleague.

And Schall's remarkable effort, the whole 30,000 words and up of it, appears in the Record Appendix "Remarks of Hon. William E. Borah of

Half the Night

The speech was delivered in part—unquestionably in very small part—by the blind senator over WCCO's radio facilities in April. It was clearly intended only for Minnesota consumption.

It would have taken half the night or more to have put it all on the air. But the senator notified his hearers, addressed as "my friends and my enemies out there in space," that he would see to it that the entire speech was published, which he did, kindness of Borah and the Record.

Glancing over the printed speech, the Bystander's attention was caught by this bit:

"There is little inspiration in speaking to this microphone. I like to feel the warm, breathing, human audience before me, where I can meet friend and enemy face to face; where, if there is a query as to any statement or proposition it can be stated."

That is a rather remarkable glimpse of what stimulus an actual audience is to even a blind speaker.

Again, Schall noted that he could not, as do men with sight who face a microphone, follow notes in his talk. It had to come from his memory and with whispered warnings in his ear at intervals by the radio station authorities as the moments of his allotted time fled.

Having tried radio talking himself on occasion with benefit of sight, manuscript repeatedly timed in reading in advance, and all that, the Bystander can appreciate some thing of the difficulties under which a sightless orator must labor.

The I's

Time was when folks not favorably inclined toward the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt used to comment adversely on his frequent use of the first person, singular, in public addresses.

Senator Schall's speech outdoes any Rooseveltian document the Bystander ever saw in that respect. It is fairly spattered with that capital "I." A single one of the twelve pages of the Record the speech took up yielded some of 'em by actual count.

Probably that is justified in a speech of the sort, a report to the speaker's constituency on the eve of a primary election. At any rate, they're there.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mrs. Higbee Explains Accident

Mr. Editor: Yesterday's edition of The Bulletin contains (in the Willimantic news) a statement concerning an accident for which I was arrested, that is not true. At no time was the question of damages an issue. The right of way was in dispute and on that charge (failure to grant), a bumptious S. P. arrested the one in the right of it, and swallowed, hook, line and sinker, the story of the guilty party. If Officer Hill had any perception of the matter, he could not have helped seeing and knowing the two bent left front fenders were proof of the fact that I was on the right side of the road, and, even had I been on the opposite side, Mrs. Albert Sonnichsen had not the right of way.

The code of the motor vehicle department says: "No operator or driver entering upon a public highway, from a private way, shall have right of way." Mrs. Sonnichsen dashed out of her driveway (which is entirely concealed by brush on her land) directly in front of me, jeopardizing four lives by her extreme carelessness. We had no heated argument over the matter; I advised her to "look it up."

Officer Charles Hill and another officer (Bulkeley, I think) came to investigate.

Such unfair treatment by an officer, who must have known if he knew anything at all, that it would have been an impossibility for the two left front fenders to have been smashed, otherwise than on the right side of the road. He would not listen to any reasoning from me. Both officers allowed Albert Sonnichsen to insult and abuse me by his vile talk; neither made any effort to stop him. He was not present at the time of the accident.

Officer Charles Hill is an incompetent, not fitted to grace the position of a minion of the law, and his decision against me was egregiously false. My assault on Sonnichsen was in defense, and cannot be considered in law anything but that. Officer Hill's deduction caused me great annoyance, but if the matter can be used to protect someone else who has an unavoidable accident, I shall be glad to do my part as a citizen, in helping to protect those who are unjustly made the victims, in their contact with such bullies.

Charges are being sent to the chief of police today.

Very truly yours,
LILLIAN M. HIGBEE.
Willimantic, June 5, 1930.

Stories That Recall Others

Force of Habit

What force of habit will do is illustrated by the experience of a police officer who is in the habit of wearing his badge inside his coat lapel when off duty or for plain clothes duty. The opening of his coat to show the badge admits him any place where an admittance fee is charged.

One Sunday the officer was dozing slightly in church. When the collection plate came around and was handed to him in his on-the-aisle seat by the collector, he suddenly aroused himself, looked at the plate, pulled back his coat lapel and showed his badge.

Buffalo Bill Preferred

Warren accompanied his parents on a visit to his grandmother's house. After dinner, he wished to go outside to play with Shep, a big dog belonging to the family next door. However when his grandmother asked him whether he would like her to tell him some stories he eagerly agreed.

"Now," said his grandmother, "do you want me to tell you about Little Red Riding Hood or Cinderella, of the Gingerbread Man?"

Warren moved uneasily in his chair and then replied: "Well, grandma, if you don't know any stories about Buffalo Bill, I think I'd rather play with Shep."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

First Study from Air of Old Spanish Main.

To make the most comprehensive geographical and photographic study ever undertaken of the east coast aerial routes between North and South America, a National Geographic society survey party is flying over the old Spanish Main in one of the largest flying boats in America.

From dozens of bases along the way the party will make inland flights to cover areas contiguous to the route, and to gather geographic and meteorological data that will be valusble aids to navigation in the future when the air will hum with the aerial traffic between the two continents. Probably the most important detailed survey will be of the Orinoco and Amazon deltas, vast regions of low-lying islands, and plains, traversed by a network of sluggish streams. These large areas are difficult of access by the ordinary means of travel, and have never been adequately studied from the air.

The survey party includes Frederick Simpich, editorial staff writer; Jacob Gayer, staff photographer; and Captain Albert W. Stevens, internationally known aerial photographer, in addition to two pilots and two mechanicians.

With the rapid development of air traffic to South America the route over the Spanish Main is looked upon by the National Geographic society as one of the future great airways of the world. The direct flying time for powerful planes between Washington and Buenos Aires is seven days but so thoroughly will the expedition comb the territory with its camera lenses and trained observers that six weeks will be spent on the flight.

The journey, which is being made in the "Argentina," largest type flying boat ever built in America and belonging to the New York Rio and Buenos Aires lines, will be over or near water for practically the entire way. The first leg was along the Atlantic coast to Miami. From there a short hop was made to Havana. The route then continues over islands of the West Indies with landings probably at Santiago de Cuba, Port-au-Prince, San Pedro de Macoris (Dominican Republic), San Juan, St. Thomas, St. John's (Antigua), Port Castries (St. Lucia), and Port of Spain, Trinidad.

After stops at the three capitals of te Guianas—Georgetown, Paramaribo, and Cayenne—the plane will fly to Para, Brazil.

From there the flight will be continued with stops at Sao Luis, Amarracao, Camocin, Fortaleza, Natal, Recife (Pernambuco), Maceio, Aracaju, Bahia, Sao Jorge dos Ilheos, Caravellas, Victoria, Campos, Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Sao Paulo, Florianopolis, Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

After arriving in Buenos Aires, the photographers of the party will change to a smaller plane of the same company capable of high altitude work, and will fly westward to the Andes where they will make aerial photographs of Aconcagua, highest mountain in the Western Hemisphere. This peak reaches an altitude of 23,080 feet.

Since the days of Dr. Alexander Bell's experiments with man-lifting kites and the early flights of the Wright brothers, the National Geographic society has lent its assistance and encouragement to the development of aerial navigation. It is believed that the geographical and meteorological fruits of the present survey will assist in more closely associating the two Americas by placing air-travel and transportation between the two continents on a scientifically safe basis.

The "Argentina" has a wing spread of 100 feet. It weighs 10,449 pounds empty and 17,600 pounds with a capacity load. It is capable of carrying 32 passengers and of a speed of 127 miles per hour.

BRICKS GET YEARS' WEAR QUICKLY IN NEW MACHINE

NEW YORK—(AP)—The "rattler," a type of shaking machine that the keen minds of the inquisition appear to have overlooked, now receives official scientific rating.

The American Society for Testing Materials announces adoption of a contrivance for testing the strength of paving bricks.

Rattlers are just barrel-shaped containers, containing stones or other hard objects. The substances to be tested are put in and the rattler is whirled a few hundred times.

Then the material under test is removed and exhibits to its critics the same results as would be produced by several years of hard wear.

For paving bricks the rattler officially adopted contains small cast iron spheres. It is whirled at 30 revolutions a minute for 1,800 turns.

SWAY OF SKYSCRAPER MEASURED WITH CAMERA

COLUMBUS, Ohio—(AP)—When the wind blows skyscrapers sway.

The swing of a 555-foot skyscraper here has been scientifically measured and pictured by what the experimenters call a "sway-photom."

It consists of a steel rod, to which a small light is attached, suspended from the wall at the thirty-seventh floor, and a camara attached rigidly to the floor.

The camera moves with the building but the light remains stationary.

GEOLOGICAL TIME CLOCK MADE OF ROCK AND BONE

URBANA, Ill.—(AP)—A geological time clock showing the world's history for one billion, two hundred and sixty million years has been erected at the Illinois State Museum here.

It shows the layers of rock in the order of their formation. With the rocks are bones and shells of animals and the fossilized plants.

In a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, A. R. Crook, chief of the museum, says: "To the visitor this exhibit speaks with telling effect."

FIVE ACRES OF LAND SLIPPING INTO PACIFIC

SAN PEDRO, Cal. —(AP)— Geologists, puzzled by the phenomenon of a five-acre section of the city slipping slowly into the Pacific ocean, have condemned it.

The section has been almost abandoned since the first fissure appeared April 23, 1929.

At the widest point the earth crack is 6.30 feet across and the area has dropped 2.59 feet below the land of which it was a formerly a part. Geologists reported that "a tremblor of moderate intensity might start the block into disastrous motion."

"I have used a good deal of your medicine and always find it gives wonderful help. I was feeling so weak and miserable that I had to lie down very often and I could hardly do my housework. I read in the paper how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped other women who were in the same condition so I said I will try it for myself. I am very much better now and I recommend this medicine."—Mrs. J. W. Albertson.

WEDDINGS

Berberick—Fitzgerald

At the rectory of St. Mary's Memorial church Wednesday morning, at 7:30 o'clock, Rev. George J. Donahue united in marriage Frederick C. Berberick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berberick of No. 49 Sherman street, and Miss Mary E. Fitzgerald of No. 22 Hobart avenue, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Fitzgerald. The attendants were Miss Emma Berberick, sister of the groom, and Richard Fitzgerald, cousin of the bride. The bride's gown was of blue chiffon with hat to match and she carried an arm bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in orchid chiffon and carried pink roses.

After the wedding ceremony there was a reception and breakfast at the home of the bride and later in the day the couple left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., Atlantic City and other cities. They will return in about two weeks and will reside in a newly furnished apartment on Sachem street. The bride and groom are well known and popular with their many friends who extend them hearty good wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

Jensen—Anderson

Roger Oliver Jensen of 37 Sunnyside avenue and Esther Matilda Anderton of 5 Carver avenue were married Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage of the Greeneville Congregational church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor. The couple was attended. Mr. and Mrs. Jensen are to live on Carver avenue, following their return from a honeymoon trip.

Thomas McGuigan, 16, of Chicago, was rescued from drowning in Lake Michigan twice in one week.

REV. MYLES P. GALVIN TO BE PASTOR AT NEW HARTFORD

To succeed Rev. Thomas Lynch, advanced to Montville, Rev. Myles Paul Galvin, senior assistant priest at St. Patrick's church, Norwich, has been given his first parish by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, D. D., bishop of the Hartford diocese. The coming 4th of July, Father Galvin would have rounded out 17 years with the Norwich church. Monday next he will go to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, New Hartford.

This is in Litchfield county, about four or five miles from Winsted, the parish numbering perhaps 600 souls. The church and other parish property is in fine condition, there is a convent, and a parish school of 100 children, taught by four Sisters of the Order of St. Joseph. Altogether, the parish is very desirable and one in which Rev. Father Galvin can find ample scope for his ability and varied lines of activity.

There is scarcely a family in the

REV. MYLES P. GALVIN

Norwich parish which is not personally interested in the promotion of their well known curate, who has been so long associated with the over 4,000 parishioners in their sorrows and their joys. While he has been on duty with but two pastors, the late Rev. John H. Broderick and the present rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, Father Galvin has remained through the coming and going of seven different curates. In illness and absence and death, he has served with conspicuous ability as administrator of parish affairs; has had experience as superintendent of the parish school, has led in the lighter side of parish life in various amusement projects and the like, has been chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, —he is a member of White Cross council—and in a score of ways has been brought into close relationships with the people of the parish. He has been the sage counsellor to thousands, the fearless preacher who has set the duty of the people before them in a logical and convincing way; in his spiritual ministrations has become known to the patients and charges of the public institutions, has gone into countless households with help and consolation in times of affliction and sorrow and stress. All this was done so quietly that the fact which made the deepest impression upon his people was the devotion of the priest to his work and his modesty and humility which were commensurate with his zeal. In the Sunday school, in particular, Father Galvin has had a marked influence and for years it has been his work to teach and train the large class of altar boys.

His real generalship was demonstrated, when, on the return from Rome of the rector of St. Patrick's who brought back to his parish the honor of the Monsignor's rank, Father Galvin planned and carried to remarkable success the great public reception given Monsignor May.

Father Galvin was born in Waterbury. After graduation from St. Thomas' parish school there he went to St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, where he studied for five years, then spent three years of study and training at St. John's seminary, Brighton, Mass. At Brighton he won his A.B. degree. From St. John's he was sent by his bishop to St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, and after a year's study there was recalled to St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, to serve as prefect of discipline. He was ordained by Bishop Nilan at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, June 24, 1913, and as stated was assigned to the Norwich parish the following July 4.

WILL PASS SENTENCE IN HUBER ARSON CASE

CITY DEPARTMENT HEADS NAMED; STANDING COMMITTEES APPOINTED

With all members present the new court of common council held its organization meeting Thursday evening at the council chamber, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, who was re-elected Monday, for another two year term, calling the meeting to order shortly after 8 o'clock. City Sheriff Charles H. Raynes conducted the newly elected aldermen, F. Russell Smith, republican, and Laurence E. Millea, democrat, into the council chamber and they were sworn in by Mayor Robbins. The newly elected and re-elected councilmen, Daniel C. Leone, republican, John H. Sherman, republican, Edwin M. Hanks, republican and Maurice W. Meyer, democrat, were then escorted to the chamber and sworn in by the mayor.

Mayor Counsels Prudence

After all members of the council were seated, Mayor Robbin addressed the aldermen and councilmen as follows:

Gentlemen of the Council:

Three of you sit for the first time to join in carrying on the affairs of our city, while nine of you have already seen prior service. Eight of the twelve before me were members of last year's council, familiar to my eye and reassuring to my heart. I congratulate all the newly elected members, particularly those who are to participate in the deliberations of civic problems as a new experience. Those two, whom on Monday we designated as democrats, have now, like the rest of us, become plain councilmen. I wish particularly to have you feel welcome and at ease with assurances that the council is a real brotherhood, and that the effort of every member is to render sincere service to the public in general and not to any particular political division.

We meet here upon an equal basis and I have yet to find the difference in the aim of an honest member of any political party. I believe that I owe to a considerable extent my presence here tonight to the belief of this doctrine by my democratic friends. If we begin our work with this understanding, no reason is apparent why our relations should not be harmonious and productive.

This current year and in fact the next several years to come, are burdened with unusually heavy expenses the result of installment payments upon improvements made years ago and passed on to us to enjoy and pay for. It is not an agreeable time to be a servant of the city. "No" must be said to many desired things. Expenditures must be closely watched or we will surely face prohibitive taxes with resultant disastrous effects to industries, labor and home owners. We should strive to be economical without being close, and progressive without being extravagant.

It consequently is of great importance that considerable thought be given by you to the selection of capable men to conduct the several city departments.

Committee Appointments

Mayor Robbins, at the close of his address, announced the appointments of department committees as follows:

Committee on finance—The mayor, Alderman Brosofske, Councilman Sharp.

Committee on public works—Alderman Looby, Councilman Leone, Councilman Sharp.

Committee on fire department—Alderman Brosofske, Councilman Panek, Councilman Bruckner.

Board of police commissioners—Alderman Smith, Councilman Stelzner, Councilman Sherman.

Amusement committee—Alderman Millea, Councilman Hanks, Councilman Meyer.

Auditing committee—Alderman Millea, Councilman Hanks, Councilman Meyer.

After a brief recess the council received and accepted an invitation to attend the Flag day exercises to be held by Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E. at the Elks home, Sunday evening, June 15. The council voted to attend the exercises in a body.

The council, by resolution, adopted the same rules of order as in effect in past years, authorized the city clerk to procure necessary stationery and to have the names of the department committees printed, referred all unfinished business to the new committees, and set the hours for the holding of regular meetings at the same time as in the past. The council also adopted a resolution awarding the printing of the council journal to the Pullen Press and the printing of the appendix to the journal to The Bulletin company.

Corporation Counsel

Alderman Maurice Looby moved that Edmund W. Perkins be re-elected corporation counsel. The clerk was authorized to cast one ballot in favor of Attorney Perkins' election and he was declared unanimously elected. City Sheriff Raynes was delegated to inform Attorney Perkins of his re-election and Mr. Perkins thanked the council for the honor conferred on him. He stated that he will serve the city to the best of his ability and will, at all times, be ready and willing to cooperate with and aid the members of the council.

Chief of Fire Department

Henry R. Taft was re-elected chief of the fire department, fire marshal, superintendent of the fire alarm system and building inspector and Dennis J. Brennan was re-elected deputy chief of the fire department. On motion of Alderman Looby, Charles S. Eaton was appointed city auditor after which Mayor Robbins announced his appointment of Councilman Sherman as the council's representative on the water board.

Street Commissioner

Alderman Looby nominated Herbert B. Wightman for re-appointment as street commissioner and he was unanimously re-appointed. John Kulda was re-appointed superintendent of cemeteries after which the following were appointed special constables:

Richard Marks, Fred W. Krohn, Irving H. Cruthers, H. S. Metcalf, Terrence Hogan, Fred P. Shea, John J. McGrath, George McFarland, Stephen Woods, Daniel J. Maher, George E. Elliott, Frank L. Tuttle, John J. Riley, Zilliwood K. Prescot, Herbert B. Wightman, Charles A. McIntyre, Ludislaw Supliski, Charles E. Ellis, John Kulda, John C. Donovan, Cesidio Leone, James P. Sheridan.

Mayor Robbins called attention to the annual city meeting to be held next Monday evening and expressed the wish that the members of the council as far as possible, would attend the meeting and be ready to answer questions that might be asked. At 9:15 o'clock the meeting adjourned until Thursday evening, June 12th.

NORWICH CENSUS DELAY DUE TO POOR WORK

Delay in the announcement of the census figures for Norwich has been largely due, according to Judge Otto B. Robinson, director for this district, to the poor work done by some of the Norwich enumerators, making it necessary to check over their returns very carefully.

This has now been very nearly completed and it can be expected that the Norwich census figures will be known before the week is out. Norwich, however, Judge Robinson said, is no worse off in this respect than New London and Great Britain, these being three of the larger cities of the state on which the figures have not yet been announced.

Some of the checking over has been made necessary because of people sending in names which they claimed had not been counted. All these had to be checked up but they have not been very productive of any great gains. In one Norwich instance where the names of 75 to 80 school children were sent in with the claim that they had not been counted, the checkup showed that all but two were already in the census enumeration.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE NOLLED AGAINST DRIVER

John Kos of Jewett City, driver of an automobile which crashed into a group of persons at Greeneville Wednesday night and slightly injured three Greeneville girls, was presented in the city court Thursday morning on a charge of reckless driving. His case was nolled by Judge Arthur F. Libby.

Kos claimed in court that he was driving down North Main street at a slow rate and when a machine operated by a Mr. Marion of Jewett City suddenly came out of Third street, he was forced off of the highway onto the sidewalk, striking the three girls. He claimed that he then brought the car to an almost immediate stop.

The girls injured were Stasia Winniewski of 102 Roosevelt avenue, Miss Josephine Jankowski of 76 Fourth street and Miss Stella Przekop of 28 Eighth street. They were able to return to their homes following medical attention.

ACADEMY ALUMNI TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Announcement has been made that the annual meeting of the Alumni association of Norwich Free Academy will be held Monday evening, June 16, at 7:45 o'clock at Slater Memorial hall. A programme of vocal and musical selections has been arranged in conjunction with the business session. Refreshments will be served and dancing will be enjoyed after the meeting.

No special speaker has been secured for the meeting, but Howard C. Russ, president of the Norwich Society of New York, and Lieut. Howard Peckham, of West Point, N. Y., will be heard in brief remarks.

Attending Georgetown Commencement

Among the Norwich people who will attend the commencement exercises at Georgetown university will be Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah R. Dugan, of 15 Tannar avenue, who left for Washington, D. C., Thursday by automobile. Mr. Dugan, a graduate of Georgetown, is vice-president of the Connecticut Alumni association of the university. Among the stops that will be made by Mr. and Mrs. Dugan on their return trip will be at Gettysburg, Pa., and Atlantic City.

TAXPAYERS HAVE PLAN TO KEEP TAX DOWN

After Ex-Mayor H. M. Leroy, president of the Norwich Taxpayers' association, had conferred Wednesday with Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and the board of directors of the association had discussed the appropriations which have been published in the call for the annual city meeting, a plan was evolved which will be proposed to the association's meeting this (Friday) evening by which there will be a great reduction in the rate that would be called for if the city meeting voted everything that was asked for.

The Taxpayers' association directors approved the regular appropriations asked for in the call, but whittled down the "extras" to such an extent that the total of what they recommend will call for a rate of a fraction over 14 mills. If all the extras asked for are voted by the city meeting the rate will be over 21 mills.

Recommendations upon the "extras" will be made to the association meeting as follows:

Bath street curb cut-off, $1,500, approved. This is to take something off the curbs on both sides of the street between the Chapman property on one side and the Hilton property on the other, thus straightening and widening this part of the street.

Church street improvement, $4,500, approved. To take off high crown of street, thus gaining about six feet in width, making two-way traffic possible, with parking on one side only.

Broad street cut-off, $3,000, can be deferred. This is to provide for cutting off a high bank on the northerly side of the street easterly from Centennial square, thus widening the highway as it approaches Grove street.

Asylum street improvement, Starr to Newton street, $30,000, disapproved. There has been no estimate by the city engineer on this work, but it is urged by the West End Community association. The directors recommend that the street can be treated the same as was done with Hickory street and Hamilton avenue by the street department in the line of regular repairs and that this could be done for about $3,000.

For firemen's vacations, $2,255. The directors are in favor of vacations for the firemen, but not at extra expense to the taxpayers, and advise that this ought to come out of the regular appropriations for the department. Attention was called to the statement that when the two-platoon system was put into effect in the fire department it was said this system would bring no extra expense.

Three sewer matters, $2,000 Avery street, $800 Elizabeth street, and $1,000 Palmer street catch basin, approved.

Christmas lighting, $1,000; disapproved as "extra" and recommended that it be paid for by the gas and electric department.

Three items totaling $222,500 as follows: Mae Richmond note, dated Nov. 3, 1920, $14,500; Fairview reservoir bonds, payable April 2, 1931, $65,000; court house bonds, payable April 2, 1951, $143,000, to be taken care of by a new bond issue.

Yantic street filling, $5,000, disapproved, because directors believe this could be done by the street department by the use of ordinary suitable filling material in the regular line of work.

ORGANIZE SCOUT TROOP AT COUNTY HOME

At the New London County Home, Wednesday, a troop of Boy Scouts was organized with Frederick H. Wyant as scoutmaster and Grant W. Tennison as assistant scoutmaster. The latter is junior assistant of Troop 12 of Park Congregational church. Sixteen boys joined the troop and also took part in an interesting programme of Scout work that was held on Wednesday.

If the present movement is successful, there is a possibility that a Girl Scout troop will be formed at the home.

FUNERALS

Henry T. Gorman

At 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning, the funeral of Henry T. Gorman was held at his home, 305 1-2 Washington street, with a very large attendance of relatives and friends. There was a solemn high mass at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock, Rev. John J. Reilly, celebrant; Rev. Myles P. Galvin, deacon, and Rev. Henry T. Murphy, sub-deacon. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and at the offertory Mr. LaFontaine sang Pie Jesu. As a waiting hymn, Roderick F. Sullivan sang Jesus, Lover of My Soul, and at the recessional the choir sang Lead, Kindly Light. The soloist of the mass was Mrs. Bernard F. Coyle. The interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Monsignor Michael H. May conducted the committal service.

There was a very large attendance at the church. The state highway department was represented by a delegation of 30, headed by State Highway Commissioner John H. Macdonald who was accompanied by his staff and supervisors. Former Highway Commissioner C. J. Bennett was also present. Out of town mourners were present from Willimantic, Hartford, New London, New York and other cities, and there was a wealth of very beautiful flowers. The bearers were: Michael J. Cosgoran, Homer Mossey, Daniel Devine, Albert Hornchild, John Smith and Benjamin Green, all connected with the state highway department. State and local police directed traffic at the church and at the cemetery and John J. Morley was in charge of the ushering at the cemetery. Hourigan Brothers had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Oliva Blais

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of Oliva Blais was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Zoel Gaucher in Baltic, Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock and at 9 o'clock there was a solemn high mass of requiem at Immaculate Conception church. Rev. A. A. Jalbert was celebrant of the mass. Rev. William O'Brien was deacon and Rev. Ludovic Paradis was sub-deacon. Miss Nellie Milner presided at the organ and the boys' choir sang.

The interment was at St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, and Rev. Father Jalbert was in charge of the committal service. The bearers were: George LaCroix, Arthur Roy, Joseph Sevigny, Arthur Morin, Joseph Chamberland and Euclide Bienvenu. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker G. G. Grant had charge of the funeral arrangements.

John N. Santelle

The funeral of John N. Santelle was held Thursday morning at 9:15 o'clock at his home at Trading Cove and at 10 o'clock there was a mass of requiem at St. Patrick's church. Rev. Myles P. Galvin was the celebrant, Rev. John J. Reilly was the deacon and the sub-deacon was Rev. Terrance Finnegan. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and rendered Chopin's Funeral March at the processional. At the offertory Mr. LaFontaine and Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis and Mr. Sullivan sang Jesus, Lover of My Soul as the waiting hymn.

The bearers were: Edward Frechette, Mr. Vasington, Herbert Lapre, Lucian Couture, Victor Deloge and William Lavelle and the burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery, Monsignor Michael H. May conducted the committal service. There was a wealth of very beautiful floral tributes. Mourners were present from Albany, N. Y., New London, Moosup, Taftville, and other places. Undertakers Dougherty Bros., of Taftville, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George A. Avery

Mary A. Maine, widow of Deacon George A. Avery of North Stonington, died Wednesday at Plainfield, after an illness of a few days at the age of 86 years. She was born in North Stonington and lived there many years after her marriage, then coming to Norwich and afterwards moved to Plainfield for about 23 years.

Mrs. Avery was always of a cheerful disposition and loved her home which she took pride to keep in excellent condition. She leaves many relatives and friends to mourn the great loss by her passing on. She was a member and devout supporter of the Plainfield Congregational church.

Sister Mary Evangelista

Sister Mary Evangelista, 59, known in the world as Fredericka Schneider, died quite suddenly at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning at the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic. She began her religious life as a nun in New Haven, 41 years ago, when she was only 18 years of age. For the past 20 years she has been at the Baltic Academy and at the time of her death was assistant to the Reverend Mother, with whom she came to Baltic.

Sister Evangelista was born in New Haven and attended the high school there. She is survived by a brother, Rev. Fr. Nicholas Schneider, of Meriden.

During her score of years at the Baltic convent the greatly revered Sister had influenced and helped develop the lives of many hundreds of pupils who had come under her charge. To them, the news of her death, at the very height of her busy and useful career, will come with sincere sorrow and the same grief will be felt by the members of the Baltic parish, who held the gentle and accomplished nun in such high regard and strong affection. In the community of the Sisters, also, the passing of their associate will be mourned, while they will recall the saintliness of her life and her devotion to the duties of her calling, also her mental gifts and attainments which made her such a valued member of the religious community.

Patients Dismissed at Hospital

The following were the patients discharged at the Backus hospital Thursday:

May Caulfield, 76 Union street; Mrs. Alfred T. Kennedy and infant son, Moosup; Mrs. Francis Monohan, and infant daughter, 20 Fifth street; Kathleen Malouin, Versailles; Robert Stajkand, Slater avenue, Jewett City; Mrs. William J. Lafleur and infant son, 44 West Thames street.

laboratory and she is to teach literature next year at Stratford high school.

Miss Litch majored at college in home economics and will receive the B. S. degree. During her college years she has been active in the Science club, riflery and track.

SALVATION ARMY APPEAL CONTINUING ANOTHER WEEK

Ernest O. Rodier, chairman of the Salvation Army appeal, in answer to the solicitation of the Salvation Army advisory committee, consisting of prominent citizens friendly to the organization, has agreed to continue the appeal for another week. The advisory committee feels that the Salvation Army services in Norwich are of sufficient value and importance that special efforts must be made to raise the minimum quota of $3,600 while the organization needs to tide it over during the year.

R. D. Butler, of the Boston headquarters, in charge of the appeal in Norwich, commenting upon the slowness with which the contributions are being received, said: "With several local plants working only part time, the Salvation Army finds itself short of a source of contributions, which in former years greatly helped to raise the maintenance fund. The men and women who work in the factories always feel sympathy for the poor and outcast, and are ever ready to give as much as they can spare to the Salvation Army. While the contributions from the factories came in small denominations, their large number totaled up into a considerable sum. This year it seems that this source of contributions has largely fallen off, as the contributors find the need for the support of their own families. I feel with the advisory committee that this year in particular we must raise our quota—as, this year, more than ever before, Norwich needs the services of the Salvation Army.

"Many citizens consider the Salvation Army as an organization which collects and dispenses charity. While it is true that the Salvation Army worker, by the very nature and form of his service rendered, is a messenger of charity, it is more than true that the Salvation Army performs a specific service, that of salvaging life, of reclaiming many sinners against society and against their Maker—a service which by far outweighs its charitable work. The sincere self-sacrifice, patience and sympathy, which the Salvation Army worker puts into the work of reclamation of the character of the unfortunates who stray from the straight path cannot be appraised in value of money. The Salvation Army performs this service quietly, without blowing its horn about it, and with a thought of saving the public the unpleasant knowledge and contact with this phase of the work.

"I found the people of Norwich very kind and courteous to me in all my contact with them, and I want to assure them that the donations to the Salvation Army are the best kind of investment for the welfare of the Norwich community."

CHUBBY GIBBS VIRTUALLY ASSURED OF ACADEMY BATTING CHAMPIONSHIP

Two games remain on the Academy schedule—one with New Haven Hillhouse at the campus Saturday, and the other with Naugatuck the following week end—and it seems a certainty that Capt. Chubby Gibbs, capable shortstop, has the batting crown of the Wildcat team. Possessing the fine mark of .489, there is only one boy on the squad with a possible chance of overhauling the local leader and he, Mickey Breen, is batting for .401, another good average.

Gibbs still has the majority of the individual leads. He has banged out the most hits, 34, with the most total bases, 52 and batted in the most runs, 27, has stolen the most bases, 15, and collected three sacrifice hits for the position of front runner in that department of play. Gibbs has two triples as against one for three other members of the team and is tied with Hack Pepin for homers.

Alec Arico has scored 29 runs, the best mark on the team and he has also been to bat the most times, 78. Mickey Breen has walloped out seven doubles.

Eighteen boys enter into the averages and of these only five are batting on or over the .300 mark. Pop Richards has been to bat once and hit safely that time for a mark of 1.000, while Walter Navick has .333 and Bob Geer, the team's new "find," is going along at a .300 gait. The team average is .299, which when carried out is .2993.

Alec Arico made an 18-point gain in the last three starts and is now only five points short of the promised land. Two other regulars, Bud Fontaine and Butsy Weisgraber, are also in the .290's and one good day will pull them up and over. Both, however, lost much ground in the last three games. Fontaine at present is about 19 points below his 1929 mark which was .367.

ACADEMY AND HILLHOUSE EACH HAVE A VICTORY

The game Saturday at the Academy campus between the Academy and Hillhouse high of New Haven will be their rubber meeting in recent years. The two schools have met on the diamond twice in the last ten years and each has gained a victory.

In 1927, Haynes of Hillhouse cut-pitched Lloyd Jarvis and gained a 3 to 1 victory to inflict only one of the three defeats of the season on the Red and White. In 1928, however, it was a different story when the Wildcats clinched a state championship by trimming the New Haveners in the closing game of the season, 9 to 1. Jarvis pitched that game and one of those who opposed him was Tommy Flynn, who is expected to get the call tomorrow.

Flynn is rated as one of the best pitchers in Connecticut and was one of those mainly responsible for the sensational 13-game winning streak run up by this team this campaign. He may be a help-mate, however, in Johnny Mack, who is said to be almost as good.

The Academy has a real desire to win this game and gain a .50-.50 break in its objective games for the year. They lost the two to Bulkeley but won from Harding high and now are pointing for Hillhouse. This game, the second last on the schedule, is expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the season.

Greenaville Wins

Greenaville school defeated the St. Patrick's nine by a score of 15 to 5 on the Academy campus Thursday afternoon.

Mulkins was the star for the winners with three doubles and two triples. The winning lineup was: Catcher, Pop; pitcher, Mulkins; first base, Stanton; second base, Quinley; third base, B. Blacky; shortstop, Malovidere; left field, T. Treckles; center field, Marshinak; right field, J. Ryne.

The score by innings:

MANY NOTED PLAYERS MUST QUALIFY FOR OPEN

NEW YORK, June 5—(AP)—Announcement today by the United States Golf association of assignments for qualifying play over 20 courses for the United States open golf championship, showed practically all the well known golfers, not otherwise qualified, seeking the right to play at the Interlachen club, Minneapolis, July 10, 11, 12.

The first 30 players in the 1929 championship and some players from the United States playing in foreign competition are automatically qualified.

In the Metropolitan district Johnny Farrell and Cyril Walker, former open champions, must qualify. Two former British amateur champions, Jess Sweetser and Phil Perkins, will try their luck, as will Maurice McCarthy and Eugene Homans, Eddie Held, Canadian amateur champion, is entered.

Other well known pros in the Metropolitan district who must fight for the right to play at Interlachen are John Golden, Bobby Cruickshank, Phil and Mike Turnesa. Bill Mehlhorn, although entered from Pensacola, Fla., will play with his former New York colleagues.

Ed Dudley, Ryder cup player of last year, is assigned to the Philadelphia district.

John Goodman, the man who beat Bobby Jones in the last amateur championship, is among the amateurs who will play in the Omaha district, and W. Lawson Little, Jr., the man who beat the man who beat Jones, will play at the Presidio, San Francisco.

In the Chicago district, Jack Westland, French amateur champion, George Dawson and Keefe Carter are among the well known amateurs entered.

Sam Perry, southern amateur and intercollegiate champion, will play at Atlanta.

In the Pittsburgh district, Carl F. Kauffman, public links champion and Watts Gunn, former Walker cup player and runner-up in the amateur championship, are among the amateurs entered.

Only one amateur is entered in the Richmond district but Roland Hancock, a pro, who had a great chance to win the 1928 championship, will try there for another chance.

Al Watrous, frequently a contender, will qualify, if possible, at Detroit.

Jimmy Thomson, nephew of Jock White, former British open champion and a promising young player in his own right, is assigned to Denver for the qualifying round.

Lester Bolstad, former big ten champion, will play at St. Paul.

VON ELM REACHES FINALS IN FRENCH AMATEURS

LA BOULIE, France, June 5—(AP)—George Von Elm won his way to the 36 hole final of the French amateur golf championship today, but he had to stage a sensational recovery to take hi ssemi-final battle from Andre Gobert, one up, 19 holes. The Detroiter was three down when only four holes remained to be played.

The former amateur champion of the United States squared the match at the 15th and won with a birdie three at the 19th. Gobert, former tennis champion of France, became wild from the tee in his closing play.

Von Elm won his quarter-final match from another American, defeating Raleigh Allen, Asheville, N. C., four and three.

The American will be opposed in the final championship test by R. G. Morrison, England, who won the other semi-final match from Lew Orrell, Saint Germain.

Von Elm was off in front when he won the first hole from Gobert, but the Frenchman squared the match at the second and forged ahead with a sensational two at the third. Von Elm took this hole back at the fifth with a three, but lost the lead again when he had a bad six at the seventh. When the eighth and ninth were halved in fours, the visitor started the second nine, one down.

Gobert increased his advantage by winning the tenth with a three and after three holes were halved, he won the 14th with another three to send George three down. The blonde shotmaker from overseas then started. He won the 15th with a three and the 16th with a four, and was only one down. The 17th was halved and Von Elm then squared the match at the 18th and moved on to win at the extra hole.

The cards:

Vont Elm out	454	534	444—39
Gobert out	542	544	544—37
Von Elm in	454	343	454—36—75
Gobert in	354	234	555—37—74

Extra hole Von Elm 3, Gobert 4.

CARNERA KAYOES CHRISTNER IN 4TH

DETROIT, June 5.—(AP)—Before 18,000 fans who paid $75,000 for the privilege of watching him perform, Primo Carnera, giant Italian, knocked out Meyer (KO) Christner of Akron, O., in the fourth round of their 10-round bout here tonight.

The fourth round had gone only one minute and twenty seconds when Carnera landed a terrific left hook to the point of the jaw and Christner went down and out. Carnera worked up to the grand finale most systematically after losing the first round by a wide margin on points.

He made plenty of play for that bad left eye of Christner's and at the close of the third round had it puffing. He sank in a brace of left jabs to start the fourth round and the blood flowed so copiously that Christner could barely see. The finishing touch was then merely a matter of course.

Christner put up a game struggle all the way but the odds were against him in most every way. Carnera entered the ring at 258 pounds and Christner at 201. The Italian made exceptional good use of his extra inches of reach, time and again holding Christner off at arm's length with one hand while he peppered him with the other.

The man from Italy was extremely calm throughout the mill. He absorbed a number of tough blows, wincing on several occasions but was right back at his opponent half smiling and anxious to do battle.

Christner, who was expected to make his greatest play for Carnera's mid-riffs and solar plexus, aimed most of his blows higher. He used both hands, but favored his left, which also was unexpected.

The fine showing of Christner in the first round caused the immense throng to go little short of wild but it calmed down in the second and succeeding rounds when Carnera showed to better advantage.

In putting Christner down for the long count Carnera accomplished something that outstanding heavyweights of the country have tried and failed to do. In fact it was the knockout of the Akronite's career. When he fell to the mat it was with a heavy thud and he lay there well after the final count of Referee Slim McClelland.

HEARD FROM THE CLUB PORCH

The Old Timers foursome is just leaving the 13th green after the last putt has been holed and the friendly enemies are intently studying the card as they wend their way to the locker rooms. They've been playing syndicates and paying off time is at hand. In case any of you non-golfing readers do not know what syndicates are I'll say they are the joy of the good golfer and the invention of the devil to the duffer. In brief — the player who wins the hole collects a stipulated sum from the others in the four-some. We, on the porch, bear part of the argument.

First O. T.: Well, not so bad, not so bad, I guess I'll get lunch money out of this, thanks to you gentlemen.

Second O. T.: Say, how do you get that way. As I can figure it you owe Jim 20 cents, I owe you 50 cents, Dick owes me 30c and Doc here is even so we're all square. How about it, Dick?

Dick: Well, maybe you're right but let's check over the score again. Now the first hole was halved, the second was mine, the third was Charlie's when we let him take his drive over. That was a bad error, the hole should have been halved.

Charlie: Listen, you big hearted Scotchman, you just let me have that over 'cause you didn't want to help me look for the ball. I noticed you made me play the ball outa the woods when there was a carry-over on this last hole.

First O. T.: Now as I figure it I won seven holes all together. Now that's $2.10 I have coming to me. Now there's eleven holes I owe for so that's a dollar ten I gotta pay out which leaves me one buck to the good. Am I right?

Second O. T.: All right, I won five holes and Dick here won three and Charlie won two and was presented with the other. Now you figure it from there, Charlie.

Charlie: What do you think I am, an adding machine or Mr. Einstein? Figure out yourselves. I know I'm ahead money.

Chorus: How do you get that way?

Charlie: Well, you see, I expected to pay out $1.50 cents and all it cost me was 30 cents, so I figure I'm a buck and a half ahead.

First O. T.: To avoid further argument let's tear up the card. Anybody that figures that way oughta give up the game.

And the foursome passes on leaving in its wake a shower of bits of pasteboard that were once a score card.

TEXTILERS GET REVENGE ON BOX CO. TEAM

The Textilers got revenge on the Robertson Paper Box Co. Thursday evening at the Gair diamond at Uncasville by easily defeating them by a score of 12 to 6. This was the second time that these two teams had met in the Montville Industrial Twilight league play and by the Textilers winning this game, it makes them tied for second place in the standing of the league, with the Boxmen.

Ski, Moss and Lasiewicz led the Textilers in hitting. Ski had two hits in three trips to the plate and also pitched wonderful ball, fanning nine men. Moss also collected two hits, batting twice and he stole three bases. Lasiewicz had a two-bagger. Russell, Wylie and Moss figured in a classy double play in the fifth inning. The score:

PALMER FANS SEVENTEEN AS WHEELER BEATS FITCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NORTH STONINGTON, June 5—Palmer pitched Wheeler high school of North Stonington to a win over Robert Fitch of Groton here this afternoon by a 4 to 1 score. The local hurler did a fine job on the slab, sending 17 of the Groton boys to the bench by the strikeout route and only allowed two bingles. One of the hits, a two bagger, which went for a home run because of errors, was the only tally made by Robert Fitch.

The locale bunched several of their ten hits made off Barwell, in the fifth and sixth innings, scoring one run in the former and three in the latter. Each team made four mistakes in the field.

Wheler will play its final game of the season with the Alumni on June 21. The score:

AL CHASE HAS LOW NET IN SENIOR TOURNEY

STAMFORD, June 5.—(AP)—The annual one-day tournament of the Connecticut State Seniors Golf association was held at the Greenwich Country club, here today, with 48 entrants.

The winners were: Class A, low gross, George E. Barber, Race Brook, 98; low net, S. C. Kelley, Woodway, 105-26-79.

Class B, low gross, N. R. Bronson, Waterbury, 84; low net, A. H. Chase, Norwich, 88-12-76.

Class C, low gross, E. Tredennick, Highland, 87; low net, C. R. Blakeslee, Race Brook, 92-19-73.

Class D, low gross, W. Chandler, Wampanoag, 95; first low net, H. E. Moseley, 101-19-82; tied for second low net, D. B. Goddings, Race Brook, 101-19-82, and J. H. Hinsdale, Highland, 98-16-82.

Coonel Goes to Jersey City

BOSTON, June 5—(AP)—Johnny Cooney, southpaw pitcher of the Boston Braves, today was sold to the Jersey City club of the International league. Due to trouble with his salary wing, Cooney had been of little use to the tribe during the past four years. At one time the Boston club had been offered $50,000 for him.

SHYMA CARD FOR WEDNESDAY NIGHT PROMISES PLENTY OF TORRID ACTION

For the fan who likes his boxers rough and tough and who delights in hearing padded gloves smack against heaving bodies and who gets a thrill out of seeing the claret trickle from battered bugles, the boxing show under the auspices of the Shyma club at the J. B. Martin field on next Wednesday night is recommended. From where ye sports editor sits it looks like everybody was going to have an enjoyable evening. The card does not show the names of any nationally known stars but even the stars do not give any better show than the other boys at times.

Topping the card is the eight-round star bout between Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson and Joe Emmons, the Waterbury slugger. Brouillard is well known to local fans as a hard fighting boy who is fast mounting the ladder of pugilistic success. Emmons on the other hand is known only by reputation and reports of his activities in the western part of the state. Emmons has been knocking the boys of his division kicking and has been seeking a bout with Brouillard for some time. Emmons' claim to a bout with the Danielson Dynamiter is his victory over Eddie Moore who holds a verdict over Brouillard and also a win over Tony Travers.

Supporting the main bout is a six-round semi-final between Joe Russo of Westerly and Joe Preston of Worcester. Here are two boys who never showed much boxing ability but now they can hit. A bout between them is simply a toe-to-toe slugging match from round to round. It is safe to say that this bout, although scheduled for six rounds, will terminate early. While it lasts it will be worth seeing.

The only bout between boys of the light classes will be the one between Young Lavigne of the Sub Base and Young Granada of Tampa, Fla. This should furnish plenty of fast action as both Lavigne and Granada are clever boys with a willingness to mix it at times. The Tampa lad seems to have the edge on Lavigne through his experience and his knockout victory over Nick Cristi at the Kaplan-Medill show in Hartford last week. Lavigne is clever in his own right and has always given the boys plenty for their money.

The other six-rounder is between Julio Rossi of Westerly and Ted Blanc of Montville at 138 pounds. Local fans know what this boy will be as they saw these boys battle at the last show in which Rossi won by a scant point.

For the two four-round prelims Dutchie Franks of Colchester and Phil Gingerella of Westerly meet in one and Bernie Corcoran of Taftville and King Grabb of Westerly meet in the opener. The opener is bound to furnish amusement if not thrills for neither boy has boxed in a professional ring before.

INDIANS ON WARPATH SLAUGHTER RED SOX

CLEVELAND, June 5—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians went on a batting rampage today to take a two to one lead in their series with the Boston Red Sox, by a score of 17 to 7.

The Indians' 23 hits included Eddie Morgan's eighth home run of the season. Milton Gaston was driven to the showers by a six hit barrage in the first inning, and before George Smith was able to ring up three outs the locals had scored nine runs. Dick Porter led the Cleveland attack with 4 hits in 5 times at bat. Clint Brown, young right hander, held Boston to nine hits, including Todt's home run. The score:

BROWNS TALLY FIVE IN NINTH TO BEST ATHLETICS

ST. LOUIS, June 5—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns staged a five run rally in the ninth inning today to nose out the Philadelphia Athletics 6 to 5.

Until the ninth Walberg had pitched effectively, allowing only one run. In the final stanza, after the Browns had put over a run, Walberg left the game with the bases filled and for the third day in succession Jack Quinn went in as a relief pitcher. Unlike the two previous days, Quinn failed to baffle the Browns and was charged with the defeat.

"General" Al Crowder went the distance for the Browns. The score:

TIGERS GIVE SENATORS ANOTHER SETBACK, 6 TO 2

DETROIT, June 5.—(AP)—The Tigers made it 2 to 1 in their current series with the Senators by taking the third of a four-game series here today, 6 to 2.

he Bengals went on a hitting spree in the second, batting out four hits at the expense of Sad Sam Jones, one of them a triple by Stone, to net four runs that put the game on ice.

Jones remained in the box until the sixth, when he retired in favor of Burke, a left-hander. He held the Tigers to one hit in three innings.

Vic Sorrell held forth for Detroit throughout. He was touched for ten hits, but kept them well scattered. One of the blows was a homer by Goslin in the fourth.

GIANTS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF REDS SERIES

NEW YORK, June 5—(AP)—The Giants made a clean sweep of their three games with the Cincinnati Reds by winning the final game today, 7 to 4. It was New York's fifth straight victory.

Joe Genewich hurled well for the Giants, granting only six hits, while the home team bunched its 13 blows off Jake May at opportune moments. Harry Heilmann drove in three of the four Cincinnati runs, two with a homer in the third inning. The other counter was scored on a wild pitch.

Terry and Lindstrom led the Giant batting with three hits apiece. Critz hit a homer for New York.

COLLARD PITCHES BRILLIANT GAME FOR THE PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, June 5—(AP)—The Phillies today made it three victories out of four games with St. Louis, winning the final of the series easily by 10 to 4.

Earl Collard scored his fourth straight victory on the mound. He held the Cards to two hits and no runs until two were out in the ninth, when he was rapped for five hits, including home runs by Hafey and Watkins, four runs resulting.

Chuck Klein delivered his fourteenth home run of the season in the second, to start the Phillies off. After the third inning they kept up a steady fire on Lindsey, and punished Haid in his one inning.

FAST DOUBLE PLAY STOPS PIRATES' RALLY

BROOKLYN, June 5—(AP)—Glenn Wright, star Brooklyn shortstop, returned to action today to take the key position in a fast double play that ended the final game of the series with the Pittsburgh Pirates in a 6 to 5 victory for Brooklyn and in a scuffle at the home plate as the Pirates protested the umpire's decision on the play.

Brooklyn went into the ninth with a one run lead but the Pirates put two men on base. After one man had been retired, Paul Waner grounded to Flowers, whose throw to Wright forced Mosolf at second. Hemsley tried to score from second on the out and Wright just caught him at the plate.

Hemsley dashed at Umpire Ted McGrew and jostled him about while Manager Jewel Ens and Coach Max Carey joined in the protest, which lasted until a special policeman came on the field and escorted the umpires to their dressing rooms. The score:

WESTERLY

ELKS' LODGE OF SORROW HELD FOR HENRY B. KANE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 5.—A lodge of sorrow was held Thursday evening by Westerly lodge, No. 478, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks for a deported member, Henry B. Kane. The lodge met Tuesday night at his home on Central avenue, Narragansett, R. I.

Twenty-four Hour Ordinances

With the passing of a Westerly traffic town ordinance at two separate meetings of Westerly town council, the new regulations were put into effect Wednesday morning. Pamphlets containing the revamped rules are being printed and will be ready for distribution shortly. New signs, about five inches wide and two feet long, have been placed about the town, which tell whether or not parking is permitted and if so for how long a period. The signs are white, with black lettering, and they replace the old circular discs which extended out about a foot from the poles on which they were placed. The new rules will be in effect at all times instead of from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. as was the case with the old rules. The new regulations are intended and expected to relieve the congestion which has been prevalent throughout the center of the town.

UNION

Natwithstanding the rain and showers of Thursday afternoon, an abundance of beautiful wild flowers had been gathered for Memorial day. These were tied into many sprays by helpers who had arrived at the hall early Friday morning. The line formed in front of the hall at 11 a. m. The teachers and pupils, a few World war veterans, townspeople and friends, with their arms filled with fragrant blossoms, started on the march to the three cemeteries led by Frank's Junior band. This band is composed of thirty or more Boy Scouts from Monson, Mass., who are having their musical training with Frank A. Lasbury of Stafford. On the return from the cemeteries a brief service was held at the Soldiers' monument before disbanding for dinner. The band, teachers and a few others were served in the hall and many had picnic lunches in groups about the grounds. Later the scouts entertained with music, marches and interesting exercises on the church lawn. The afternoon service, held in the church, comprised a fine program of songs and recitations by the school children, interspersed with patriotic selections by the orchestra of six instruments. Roscius C. Newell of Three Rivers, Mass., responded to an invitation to speak and his remarks were a help and inspiration. The pastor, Rev. William Bragg, followed with a patriotic address and the services closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," led by the orchestra.

No More Piles

Quick Relief—No Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine should be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 890 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist, with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Before thinking of the pain and expense of an operation, get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee and Osgood with their guarantee of money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

In a champion it's Self-Reliance

in a cigarette it's Taste

KEEPING ONE'S HEAD — In the flush of the game or in the flush of victory — that's the measure of true sportsmanship.

KEEPING AROMA AND GOOD TASTE in every Chesterfield without loss or variation — that's the simple ABC of Chesterfield's ever-mounting popularity.

MILD, YES—BUT SOMETHING MORE—Chesterfield offers richness, aroma, satisfying flavor — all the result of fine tobaccos, skilfully blended and cross-blended, and all summed up in three words . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

Plans have been arranged to hold a reunion of Texas pioneer cattlemen each year at Stamford. This year's event is set for June 26-28.

PENDLETON HILL

The annual meeting of the Boys' 4-H club should have been held the first Wednesday in June, but was held the last Thursday evening in May. The 4-H girls wanted to hand the 4-H boys a May basket. Securing the cooperation of County Club Agent Randolph Whaples, he advanced the date for the June meeting to last Thursday in May.

The Boys' club called their meeting at eight as usual and the girls hung their May basket at nine. This basket was of red and purple trimmings, large and very beautiful. It represented the handiwork of Mrs. Frank Gennetti, Misses Kathryn Thompson and Anna Gray. All the girl club members had contributed to the filling of this basket, fruits of all kinds, candy and peanuts, all of which disappeared rapidly when attacked by the more than forty girls and boys who attended this meeting, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Birdsey G. Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer and brother Herbert, recently entertained a party of seventeen friends and relatives, celebrating Mrs. Miner's birthday as well as that of several others of the same family.

Mrs. Miner (nee Briggs) of East Greenwich, R. I., a bride of a few months, is a graduate of East Greenwich academy and Brown university. She finds herself in very congenial surroundings on the beautiful farm owned by the Miner boys, which is indeed a beautiful spot, under a high state of cultivation, thirty milking cows, and a large number of young stock; with all modern improvements and machinery, make this a place worth going to see. More than all this, two rooms in this house have the original paper, much more than a hundred years old. The paper is put on in blocks and is of very handsome design and color.

The noted author, Miss Agnes Best, whom all are proud to claim as a resident of this town, is at home in the Royal house at Wheeler Brook, which she now owns and where she is planning and planting a fine garden.

Michael Kavanagh has planted nearly a thousand trees of various kinds this spring. Among them are five hundred and fifty German plums or prune trees, apples, peaches and pears. Mr. Kavanagh reports the peach crop a failure, owing to the freeze of April 24, 25 and 26, but expects a crop of about two thousand quarts of strawberries. At present he is cutting much asparagus.

Mrs. Charles Palmer has had an unusual cactus display. A giant flowered pink cactus has been full of beautiful blossoms.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gilmour and daughter Effie Ellinor spent Memorial day at their summer home, here. Mrs. Gilmour attended Sunday morning services in the Hill.

ASHFORD

Mrs. Lucy D. Green, who is 94, from Providence, and her daughter, Annie, and three lady friends spent Saturday with Ella Green.

Murle Clark Bell and son and a lady friend called on her mother, Mrs. Netty Tanner at Hearthstone cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrow of New London were callers Sunday at Ella Green's.

Ines and Helen Whitmore, of Providence spent the week end at Hearthstone cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Brown spent one day last week in Willimantic.

Mary Szall, of Providence, with a party of friends, spent Saturday at her home here, "the Orchard House."

Mr. and Mrs. Edgerly and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby and two children and two friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Mahlar and niece, from New York spent Sunday here at the Edgerly summer home.

Auction Markets Aid Farms

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—(AP)—Two auction markets for fruits and vegetables in Cumberland county, New Jersey, had gross sales amounting to $426,000 in 1929. They have added about $63,000 in the last two years to the incomes of 100 growers.

Output of Missouri coal mines in 1929 increased 500,000 tons over 1928.

MYSTIC

The June meeting of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., was held in the Masonic temple Wednesday afternoon, the regent, Mrs. Estella Bradley Bailey, presiding. Mrs. Artis L. Stoddard, recording secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Edna Colby read the treasurer's report for Miss Elizabeth Burrows. Reports of the regent, Mrs. Bailey; Mrs. Elsie P. McGaughey, registrar; Mrs. Caroline N. Stark, historian; Mrs. Abbie Phillips, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ellen H. Costello, flower committee, and Mrs. Minnie B. Phillips, ways and means committee, were given. During the meeting it was voted to have the cemetery on the Ledyard road, just above Old Mystic, cleared of brush and put in order. An invitation was received by the members to attend the unveiling of a tablet at the tract of land given by the D. A. R. of the state at Barkhampsted, June 23. This tract was purchased by the state last year for the sum of $5,000. It was voted to send a card to each member, to ask her to be present at the annual meeting June 11, at the home of Mrs. Annie L. Cottrell. Mrs. Estella Bailey has been in the office of regent for two years, and in that time has missed but one meeting, has attended all state meetings, and the national meeting in Washington one year. She has been very faithful in her work with the chapter. By request of Mrs. Edna B. Colby, Mrs. Emily W. Williams gave a report on the Revolutionary soldiers buried in cemeteries in the eastern part of Groton, Stonington, North Stonington and Ledyard. Also as to graves which had headstones and markers. Some time ago, Mrs. Williams placed a number of bronze markers on many of these graves. Following the meeting, sandwiches, cakes and tea were served by the committee, Mrs. Artis Stoddard, chairman. Attending from out of town were Mrs. Abbie Mathews, of Westerly; Mrs. Mary P. Hyde, Mrs. Frances Broughton, Mrs. Carrie Hammond and Mrs. Fannie Pendleton, of Stonington.

Gift to St. Mark's Church

The parishioners of St. Mark's Episcopal church have been most happily surprised by the gift of a handsome dossel to hang back of the altar, Mrs. E. Campion Acheson, wife of the bishop of the diocese, interested herself in the matter and obtained this through a fund maintained by the Woman's auxiliary. It is a beautiful piece of dark red brocade and adds greatly to the appearance of the chancel.

A number of the men of St. Mark's church attended the banquet and get-together of the men of the New London Archdeaconry, at the new Norwich Inn, Norwich, Wednesday evening.

When the New London County League of Women Voters held a meeting at the new Norwich Inn Wednesday, those attending from the Mystic league were Mrs. Thomas W. Farnsworth, Mrs. Samuel Z. Chesebro, Mrs. David M. Bennett, Mrs. Edward Bull, Mrs. Frank Kahl, Mrs. E. Augustus Harrison, Mrs. Carl C. Cutler, Mrs. Justin W. Denison and Mrs. William W. Pinkerton.

The Parent-Teacher association of West Mystic grammar school held a whist in the school house, Tuesday evening, with 13 tables in play. High scores in bridge were made by Mrs. Walter T. Fish and Fred A. Godfrey. Second prizes went to Miss Maude Shaw and Harry C. Allyn. Prizes at straight whist were won by Mrs. Sophie Tyler and Alfred W. Butler. Mrs. Joseph Howson and Stanley Dodd. Ice cream and fancy cakes were served by the committee, Edgar H. Collington, Miss Mary Foley, Mrs. Thomas Farnsworth, Mrs. Coughlin and Mrs. Charles Gildersleeve.

The rhododendrons in Elm Grove cemetery are very beautiful at present. The geraniums in the beds at the entrance present a very pleasing appearance. J. F. Meyer, superintendent, and his men have worked hard to make this beautiful cemetery look even better than in former years.

Miss Edith Rathbun entertained at whist at her home in Quiambaug, Saturday, and turned the proceeds over to the local D. A. R. chapter.

Albert Neff, Jr., went to Northampton, Mass., Wednesday, to stay the remainder of the week, on business for the Corticelli company of New London, where he is employed.

The property owned by Russell Sparks, on Pearl street, is receiving improvements and renovation.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Henry E. Randall

A prayer service for Mrs. Ida Louise Randall, widow of Henry E. Randall, who died in Ashaway, Sunday, June 1, was held at her home in Ashaway, Wednesday at 1 o'clock. Public services were held at the local funeral home at 3 o'clock, Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, of Westerly, officiating. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic. Many relatives and friends were present, including a number from North Stonington, where Mrs. Randall was born and lived most of her life. The floral tributes were very beautiful.

HAMPTON

Mrs. Percy Crawford recently visited her sister in Redbank, N. J.

May 28th the meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held at the town hall. Miss Betsey Mitchell, of Hartford, social worker of the division of mental hygiene was the principal speaker. There were brief addresses by Miss Cook, art teacher in the schools, and Miss Dennehy, school nurse. The five teachers in town had a splendid exhibit of work done by their pupils. The town hall resembled an exhibition building at a fair, with so much meritorious work, effectively arranged. The costumes that are to be worn in the graduation play were made by the children and were on exhibition as were the curtains, pieces of furniture, and all stage settings. A large amount of regular work was also displayed. Woven rugs, bird houses, book ends, coat hangers, lamp shades, boats and numerous other articles were shown.

The townspeople feel that much worth-while work has been accomplished in the schools this year.

The Children's day concert will be Sunday, June 8th, at the Congregational church. The concert will take the place of the regular church services and Sunday school.

WILLIAMS' Root Beer EXTRACT

THE BACK TO THE LAND IDEA

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

One of my most thoughtful and far-sighted correspondents is much interested and somewhat perturbed anent the un-employment problem.

He lives in a big city. Out here in the rooral deestricks the difficulty is not so much to find work, as to discover people willing to work.

That is, willing to do the sort of work which the country life offers, at wages such as country incomes can afford.

The state highway between Albany, N. Y., and Pittsfield, Mass., near which I live, is populous with "hitch-hikers" who signal every passing car, no matter which way it is going or how full its seats may be. If you violate all the warnings of experience and good sense and take one aboard, you'll always hear that he's "looking for work,"—in one or the other of the cities.

Rare as a white blackbird is the one who will condescend to consider farm-work. And when you find the exception who will do the latter, inquiry speedily developes the fact that he is either incompetent or incapable. N-no, he never did no plowin'. N-no, he never weeded no onions. N-no, he can't milk. About all he's fit for, apparently, is to hunt stolen hens' nests or catch fish for the family breakfast. Also he demands anywhere from 62 1-2 to 88 cents an hour. And he wouldn't think of working over eight hours a day. And he'd expect Saturday afternoons off. And the free use of the car every time he wanted a fresh paper of cigarettes from the village store.

Bridgeport is not a really big city. But I note that the census-taker reports having found in that city 5,147 people who are able to work, who are looking for work, and yet are without work. That is a pretty tough state of things,—if it is exactly as represented. One may accept the figures as accurately stating the number who are not working, and yet wonder just how the census-taker found out that they were willing to work and looking for it. Of course they would all say they were, but no census-taker can have either the time or the opportunity to put their say-sos to actual test.

You see, there's a wide difference between being willing to work at jobs of your own selection, under conditions of your own choosing, for hours of your own limiting, at wages of your own dictation,—and being willing to work at anything which offers a chance to dodge the poor-house, till something better turns up.

My correspondent, who sees city conditions, wonders if, despite all the fun which has been poked at it, there may not be something worth considering in a back-to-the-land movement. There must be plenty of waste or unused land to offer the city unemployed occupation. Might it not be a good thing both for the congested cities and the idle hands in them, if these latter were "dumped,"—my correspondent's own word,—upon the country and set to digging for a living?

Theoretically, this sort of thing seems not only possible but promising and feasible. Unfortunately it doesn't work out in practice.

Over and over again farmer neighbors of mine, moved by a double motive, the need of help in farm-work and the desire to give a chance to needy people in the city, have imported specimens of the latter, both singly and by families. In every case which I have ever heard of the experiment has been a costly and discouraging failure.

There's a waif saying among woodworkers that you can't make a square peg fit a round hole. You're quite as little likely to make a city-minded man fit rural conditions.

It isn't every one who can succeed in city life. Where a dozen make good a hundred peter out. Yet it is easier to succeed in city business than it is in country work. There are plenty of people who would make great lawyers or prosperous merchants or solid bankers who couldn't earn their salt on a farm. This is just as true as it is that there are plenty of farmers who couldn't run a bank or a shoe-store.

Some of our friends in town, who are accustomed to look upon farmers as rather slow-witted, unbusinesslike, awkward and loutish, would find themselves sorely put to it to equal some of the accomplishments of those same farmers against adverse conditions and in the face of repeated setbacks.

One would hardly expect to win the Kentucky Derby with an ox-team. Why should he expect to do good plowing with a race-horse? The barn swallow can't sing like the canary. But he can catch and devour more pesky bugs in a minute than a canary could in a week.

The fundamental fallacy of this back-to-the-land movement is that it assumes anybody can do farm work. Which—isn't—so.

To succeed on the farm, the aspirant must be, first of all, farm-minded. He must have a hankering for the land; must feel a certain sense of exile when he is separated from it. He must actually like to work the soil; must find a sort of home-iness in it. Moreover, he must have in him a more or less developed aptitude for whatever branch of farm-work he takes up.

There are about 339 different kinds of farming, and the natural-born hen lover is much more apt to make good with poultry than the corn or potato-grower who can't tell one hen from another. No man is likely to make a really howling success at farming of whatever sort, unless he, first, has a natural turn for it; second, is willing to learn it from A to Z; third, is able to stick to it in the face of the world, the flesh and the devil.

Every once in a while we read of some farmer who has a bank account filled for him by his strawberry beds; or of one who is making money, hand over fist, from a truck-garden; or of one whose hens are simply shelling out eggs for him by the crateful. Many a discouraged city worker, reading, assumes that he could do just as well. He does not stop to reflect, first, that these tales are exceptional; or, second, that the men of whom they are told are also exceptional. Nor does he, ordinarily, admit for a moment that one must learn the farming trade as much as the watch-making or the automobile-repairing.

Most city people are accustomed to work for wages or salaries. The farmer works for a living. There's a bigger difference between these two things than your average city worker is likely to appreciate.

It is the inevitable tendency in human nature, when it is working for, say, 50 cents an hour, to do only 50 cents' worth of work per hour,—or even less if one can get away with it. The farmer must forget all about hours or wages, and think only of the work that needs doing. Moreover, he must do that work, not under conditions of his own selection, but when it needs doing and in the way it needs to be done. Which times and methods he must learn in the hard school of experience. Nature fits out no kindergarten for him to start from.

It's a hard life, at the best. It's not often a remunerative one. Yet it has its charms,—for those who are adapted to it.

One city feller asks if I think he could make money starting a poultry plant. Speaking like an honest Injun, I am compelled to answer no. I doubt if any but a trained and long experienced expert can make money from hens, these times. But if he'll start in with a few coops and a couple of dozen birds and learn their crotchets and coddle 'em and study 'em and raise their own feed for 'em, he'll have fresh eggs for breakfast and an occasional chicken-pie.

Another wants to know if I think he could make money raising berries. Again speaking, honest Injun, I am compelled to answer no. But if, instead of trying to make money, he is content to raise what he and his family want to eat and can, even a small farm will do the job for him. That is, it will if he tends up to it. It won't if he prefers fishing or ball-playing to tending the berry-patch.

It's the same with orcharding, or dairying, or truck-gardening, or any other form of farm activity. If a man's idea is to "make money" then farming is a mighty good thing for him to let severely alone. Unless he is an expert at it and has enough of both grit and gumption to get meat out of the eater, and sweetness out of the strong, a la Samson.

But if any willing worker is satisfied to get a simple but adequate living in return for hard and persistent work, is capable of learning and not ashamed to learn about even angle-worms and weeds, can get along without all life's frills and without envitiling over their lack,—then country living, even on a tucked-up id farm among the hills, has its compensations.

The inherent trouble with city people in the country is that they went city conveniences and city luxuries and seem aggrieved that country incomes can't supply them. They want their grapefruit for breakfast and aren't content with an apple from the cellar. They want running water, hot and cold, and aren't pleased that they must get the first from a tea-kettle and the last from the pump. They call for porterhouse steak and find fault with shank stew. They want to go window-shopping occasionally and to the movies semi-occasionally.

There's simply no use transplanting such people into the country, handing them hoes and telling them to hoe their own rows. You might just as wisely put Farmer Corntossel in charge of a city department store and expect him to make a go of it.—You laugh at the latter suggestion, but it's no whit more ridiculous than the former.

It is proverbially impossible to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. It is quite as impossible to make a country hound out of a city terrier merely by moving its kennel.

THE FARMER.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

WHITNEY PARTNER ONLY EXCHANGE ALTERNATE

NEW YORK —(AP)— Because his business partner is president of the New York Stock Exchange, Daniel G. Condon is the only alternate trader allowed to transact business on the floor.

Rules prohibit the 1,375 members from appointing alternates in their absence.

Richard G. Whitney, however, as president of the Exhange, must be frequently absent from the floor on speechmaking tours and other tasks.

WHAT ELMER HEWITT KNOWS ABOUT WRESTLING

Elmer Hewitt is a real sport and loves to see wrestling watches. When such matches were held at New London, also at Quaker Hill, he did not miss one. But he likes clean wrestling where a toe-hold is good and he can see a fellow get away. But throwing a man out of the ring into the fans' laps is not wrestling—that is just to see who is the stronger. Good Sport Hewitt always likes to see Smiling Bill Collins wrestle for he is clean and gives the fans the best he has in him. Takes it so easy, wiggles so out of holds. It seemed one night as though he got out of a thousand holds. He is the most popular wrestler that enters the ring. In New London or Quaker Hill, or anywhere they knew Smiling Bill, He was going to show Strong Boy Big Mike Passi some holds but since the sun crossed the line and it is too hot, in the summer, He lost his golden chance. But again this coming season the wrestling matches will be held in New London. Not long ago Sport Fan Hewitt with a part of friends went by automobile to Boston to see Gus Sonnenberg champion of the world, in the heavyweight class for the title against a French champion from across the pond. The French wrestler trained with elephants at Franklin zoo and sure was strong. The Noank fans got in Row E to see the world's champion in action. That was the main match. The first one on the card was our old friend, Strangler Lewis, who has a head lock that takes a good man to get free from. He had a count from Russia. Not so big as Lewis and he was outweighed 50 pounds. When the count came into the ring he was given a big hand by the fans. Instead of crawling through the ropes he jumped over the rope. The gong rang for action and Strangler Lewis tried a head-lock; but the count got out of it easy and quick as a mouse after a piece of cheese. Noank fans never saw a wrestler getting out of Lewis' famous head-locks as the count did, like as if he was in a circus, always smiling. The match was a good draw. Again the count jumped over the ropes to his dressing room and then after a short match the main affair came on. The Frenchman got a big cheer. He had a head-lock that about put Gus away for the count; but in some way he got out of these though he was weak. Gus' famous flying tackle was used in the middle section of the Frenchman for a fall for our champion and it was the first one. So coming back for the second fall Gus found that a French head-lock was nothing to be laughed at and the pride of that country got one of them holds that almost shook the ears off of the world's champion but he was pinned to the mat for a few seconds, making one fall each. The last fall was next with the heavyweight belt hanging in the air. Each wanted the last fall. "Do or die" were the words the Frenchman used; but he was a little afraid of that flying tackle of Gus Sonnenberg; still he was game as any wrestler. He stood it for a long while until Sonny shot over a flying tackle. That gave him the belt for a while longer. If it was straight wrestling, by all reports the French champion would be wearing the American belt. But flying tackles go in Massachusetts and many more states, but Noank fans sure got their money's worth and were ready for the long trip home, with Maxson Lyangworthy at the wheel.

The came to a town outside of Boston when a loud noise was heard by Sport Hewitt. He said, "Gee, is that a tire blowing out?" Billie Banks said "I am sick over that tire shooting to the wind!" Durwood Main did the changing that took 45 minutes. Then everybody was happy to start back to the fishing village, getting in late, just in time for some of them to change their clothes, all ready for fishing.

The story was told by Wrestling Sport Hewitt at the Aunt Sarah Peabody club before a crowd of members, where after the talk a dainty tea chowder was served by Cream of Wheat Cook Albert Banks and was enjoyed by everybody. A short music act was put on and it was "a good time had by everybody." For all enjoyed the talk by Good Sport Elmer Hewitt.

JEWETT CITY

A. G. POLLARD'S DEATH AT LOWELL WEDNESDAY

Word was received in the borough Thursday of the death of Arthur G. Pollard, 87, at his home June 4. He was a Mason of high degree and a leading business man of the city of Lowell, Mass. Mr. Pollard's brother-in-law, Rev. Myron D. Fuller, was a former pastor of Jewett City Baptist church. During that pastorate, Mr. Pollard was a frequent visitor in the parsonage in Sylvandale. A Providence paper said of him:

"Arthur G. Pollard, 87, died at his home in Lowell Wednesday night after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Pollard was a striking example of the New England self-made business man. He started his career in the counting room of a store there in 1861. Three years later he was a partner and in 1885 became the owner. His business grew until he erected a new department store on the site. It is known as one of the largest stores of its kind north of Boston. His business connections were so many that on his 80th birthday in 1923, his friends gave him a volume enumerating the numerous enterprises in which he was a factor. The volume showed that in addition to operating his store, he was chairman of the board of the Union Old Lowell National bank, president of the Stoney Brook railroad and of the Lowell Hosiery company and chairman of the investment committee of the Central Savings bank of Lowell. Mr. Pollard had also served as a trustee of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, president of the Lowell General hospital, chairman of the board of trustees of the Lowell Textile school and as a director or trustee of many other Lowell institutions. He was a 33rd degree Mason and was the oldest living past master of Ancient York lodge."

MEMORIAL CELEBRATION SOURCE OF PRIDE TO TOWN

Plainfield has taken a big step forward in inter-village goodwill, and fellowship. The Memorial day program honored the dead, civilian and military, in unity and in peace. A joint Memorial day committee included all the patriotic orders and represented the entire town. The day founded by the G. A. R. and continued in its observance through the ladies of the G. A. R. found added numbers, new inspiration and significance in the participation of the D. A. R.; the American Legion and its auxiliary. During the day the Plainfield and Goodyear bands united forces and played a great number of the finest of the old hymns. The town honor roll, Evergreen cemetery, Moosup Union cemetery, All Hallows' monument, Hammett, All Hallow's cemetery, Plainfield, Packer and St. John's cemeteries were visited during the morning. The clergy taking part were Rev. Fathers Philip L. Massicot and John Landry, Rev. Messrs. Higgins, Prentiss, Reese, Tingley and De Wolfe. The G. A. R. ladies and their section of the patriotic orders, had lunch at St. Paul's church, Plainfield. In the afternoon, the Legion section after a light lunch at Milner's hall, went to Oneco. The Oneco Methodist Episcopal church served lunch and the Legion had charge of the decoration of the graves in Oneco cemetery. The Ekonk cemetery was visited and the Legion Auxiliary decorated the graves of departed members in Wauregan and in Union cemetery. The Boy Scouts also decorated graves of members in Moosup, Wauregan and Plainfield. In the cemeteries, the Scouts distributed the wreaths. Those in charge were: Mrs. Grace C. Rouse, Mrs. Everett Ladd, Mrs. Frank G. Congdon, Mrs. Warner Smith, Mrs. Lena Carron, Mrs. Joseph Godchild, also Albert J. Robidoux, Lionel Gauthier, Duman Bennett, Miss Rose Beaudry, Albert DeForge, Edward Henderson and Rev. R. DeWolfe. W. C. C. Hill, Paul W. Roper and the Scouts secured the evergreen for the wreaths. Mr. Hill also was instrumental in finding the last resting places of veterans of former wars, which had not previously been reported.

All Hallows' Troop No. 1 was led by Scoutmaster Albert J. Robidoux, assisted by Lionel Gauthier; flag bearer, Raymond Cournoger; guards, Wilfred Jette and Earl LeClair; bugler, Isidore Messier. Mrs. Everett Ladd selected a group of girls to carry a great American flag. They were Laura Gallop, Lois Stetson, Hazel Congdon, Jeanette Loring, Charlotte Spalding, Grace Shippe, Mildred Walsh, and Hazel Edgerton. Color bearers for the auxiliary were Miss May Thomas and Mrs. Louis Cooney. The guards were Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts and Miss May Lyons. The chaplain, Mrs. Ernest Deforge, led their special service for the departed members of the auxiliary. George Krause accompanied the march of the women of the auxiliary with muffled drum. Mrs. Harry Bigonesse, Mrs. Jeremiah Doyle and Mrs. Mary Thornton were thus remembered. For the Legion, Oscar Bardard and Letendre DeForge were color bearers; Wilfred Melanson and Frank Morressette were color guards.

Trucks were furnished by George Despathy, C. D. Salisbury, Steinman Brothers, Paul Marcaurelle, Floyd Cranska, Edward Bellevance, Sliby Saad and Andrew Pember. The trucks were driven by Mr. Dupont, Albert Levallee, Alfred Bourque, Paul Broder, Horace Cleaveland, Paul Bellevance, Amedee Bourque and Andrew Pember.

A Practical Suggestion.

First Selectman Henry Bessette makes the suggestion that the committees of the various organizations meet once more before they are discharged, in order to conserve the good experiences of the day and to hear any suggestions regarding next year's celebration. The parade may be held in the different villages in turn and this year's experience augurs well for an increasing unity and goodwill in future years. This year the parade was from Union cemetery to All Hallows' monument.

The co-marshals were Richard Daggett and Ernest Deforge. The latter was also bugler for the day, sounding all calls and blowing taps in all the cemeteries and at All Hallows' monument. The sergeant-at-arms was Clarence Reed who had charge of the Legion firing squad. Commander John Cote and Albert Deforge were most helpful, tactful and sympathetic, in carrying out the plans of the day. It was a great source of pride to all, to have with them Jerry Hopkins, of the Civil war, who, with the ladies of the G. A. R. represented the original founders of the day.

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lyman, of Elizabeth, N. J., spent Memorial day and the week end with Mr. Lyman's mother, Mrs. Dwight A. Lyman.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arnold, of New York, spent the week end in Columbia, and on their return Sunday, was accompanied by Mrs. Philip Isham, who will stay in New York until today (Wednesday).

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stoltenfeldt and daughter of Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Smith, of Talcottville, and Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Little and daughter, of Willimantic, spent Memorial day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Lyman.

Rev. Charles Clark of Wellfleet, Mass., was the speaker at Columbia church, Sunday morning, on The Power of Love.

The first selectman of Columbia, Clair L. Robinson, has received a communication from the committee of the Community Reunion Week to be held in Willimantic, June 15th to 21st, cordially inviting the people of the town of Columbia to attend and participate. Special attention is called to the parade for Civic day, Wednesday, June 18th, in the afternoon.

Traffic through Columbia, over the holiday and week end, was very heavy, reaching its peak Sunday afternoon and early evening. Two minor accidents, one early Saturday evening and the other Sunday morning occurred at the intersection, no one being hurt in either case, although bumpers and windshields suffered in both cases.

men from New York entertained over the last week end at Lighthouse Inn found their chief pleasure on the golf links of the Shennecossett club at Eastern Point, deferring their dinner until 8 o'clock, that they might prolong their play.

CANTERBURY

The Ladies' society met with Mrs. Sarah B. Madley Tuesday afternoon and Thursday the W. C. T. U. also met at her home. It was Flower Mission and Medical Temperance day and members were requested to bring flowers, which were distributed to the sick of the community.

Miss Vera Cone has scarlet fever.

Ruth Wibberley has had the German measles the past week.

Several from here attended Pomona grange meeting at Hampton Saturday evening. A splendid program was given.

Miss Agnes Sweeney motored to her home in Plymouth, Mass., for Memorial day. On Sunday she visited Storrs and Columbia lake.

Miss Sarah Louise Hadley of Brooklyn, N. Y., is spending her vacation at her home here.

Mrs. Addie Bushnell is spending a few days with Mrs. Mary Rollinson, while Mrs. Maria Barstow is visiting her sister in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Olenick, Helen Olenick and Mary Kuzmenke and Miss Lucy Baldwin were in Putnam on Monday. Helen and Mary plan to enter the trade school there after graduation.

Mr. and Mrs. Priventara (Dominick Salpetro) are rejoicing in the birth of a daughter last Wednesday.

Malcolm Wibberley and his brother-in-law, Denniston Charlton, drove to Haddam Neck Tuesday to attend the Guernsey breeders' outing.

Miss Agnes Sweeney, Miss Esther Kimball and Mrs. Malcolm Wibberley attended the P. T. A. council at the Plainfield grammar school last Wednesday evening. The afternoon session was taken up with business and after supper there was music by the Kinder band and part of the operatta given recently was repeated. After an open discussion of various problems the meeting adjourned. Some of the state officers were present for the afternoon session but there was no speaker for the evening as was expected.

The June meeting of Canterbury P. T. A. is to be held in the town hall at 7 p. m., S. T., Tuesday evening, the 10th, unless this date conflicts with graduation, the date for which is still unsettled.

Malcolm Wibberley and children, Randolph, Maxwell and Elizabeth, were in Plainfield for Memorial day. Elizabeth stayed to visit her cousin, Betty Charlton, until Saturday.

Sunday next at 10:30 (S. T.) the Children's day program will be presented at the Congregational church on the green. At noon a dinner will be served the canvassers and in the afternoon they will go out to the members of the parish on a friendly canvass.

Last Sunday morning Rev. Harry E. Small preached an advent sermon to a good sized audience, with special music by the choir. The C. E. meeting was held in the evening by Webester Wainwright. Study of a missionary book was begun.

Monday afternoon the 4-H club met at the town hall with Mrs. Raymond E. Wing and Mr. Walford. Eighteen were present, eight new members being taken in. Randolph Wibberley, the president, presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Harry Kinne. It was voted to call the club the Canterbury Junior Poultry club and their goal for the year is "perfect attendance." As their leader Thomas Moore, cannot be present in the afternoon it was voted to meet at 7 p. m. on the first Monday of each month hereafter. Short talks were given: Althea Williams on "Sanitation," Arthur Hanson on "Dry Picking of Fowls" and Randolph Wibberley on "Raising Young Stock."

A memorial service Sunday afternoon at the Carey cemetery was largely attended, many former residents from out of town being present. After music by the band, Rev. Mr. St. John of the M. P. church offered prayer and the soldiers' graves were decorated by the school children. Nelson Carpenter recited Lincoln's Gettysburgh Speech, also a beautiful poem. Rev. Harry E. Small paid tribute to "the unknown soldier" and placed a bouquet in his memory. All joined in singing "America," after which the band played several selections, closing with "The Star Spangled Banner." In the band of 21 pieces there were eight children under 14. Two Hoxsie boys and two Bushnell boys, also Paul Huxsie and Mr. Bushnell came from Westbrook to help with the music and several from Plainfield were also among the players.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoxsie, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hoxsie and children, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoxsie and children and Mr. and Mrs. Bushnell and children of Westbrook were in town Sunday afternoon.

An angora goat show and sale will be held in Rocksprings, Tex., July 15, 16 and 17.

Concrete Roads
will end the Spring "Break-up"

FARM-TO-MARKET roads should be serviceable every day in the year. Concrete pavements will provide this year-round service, surely and economically.

The spring "break-up" of ordinary roads is dreaded by every farmer because it cuts him off from his market. This annual trouble can be ended by building concrete roads which are strong enough to withstand the freezing and thawing of Spring months.

Ask your county officials how to start a movement to build the concrete roads that your neighborhood needs. They will be glad to help you.

LONG LIST OF 2 TO 4 POINTS DECLINE IN THE LEADING STOCKS YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—The bear crowd took charge of the stock market today and went home leaving a long list of 2 to 4 point declines on the quotation table. Weakness of the coppers and the rails during the morning engendered a selling movement that dislodged stop loss orders, with the result that activity increased sharply, especially in the final hour. Short covering reduced most of the extreme losses.

Bankers' acceptances were again reduced 1-8 of one per cent, the second cut of that size in 24 hours. This announcement, however, was interpreted more unfavorably than otherwise, for it served to emphasize the extreme slowness of the demand for commercial credit.

Leading bank stocks on the New York market broke to new low levels for the year. Investment trusts and holding companies were reputedly sellers of these securities, whose decline was attributed to the low interest rates and the prospects of smaller earnings by the financial institutions. The stock of the First National Bank of New York fell 100 points.

Brokers' loan figures showed a gain of $79,000,000 to a total of $4,101,000,000.

The loan figures revealed a jump of $124,000,000 in loans for New York city member banks own accounts and a rise of $13,000,000 in loans for out-of-town banks, but the "loans for others" items declined $62,000,000.

Grain prices rallied, wheat advancing about a point on reports of hail damage in Kansas and bullish European crop news, particularly from France and Italy. Corn was up 1-4 to 3 1-4. Cotton improved 8 to 21 points net after small early declines, while sugar was firm.

Crude rubber futures made new lows for the second successive day under bearish pressure in this market as well as in London. Two American tire manufacturers announced 5 per cent cuts in the prices of popular lines.

Selling of stocks was well distributed during the afternoon liquidation U. S. Steel broke 3 points to a new low for the movement, but got back a point. Other popular industrials losing 1 to 3, were American Can, American Tobacco B, Anaconda Copper, Du-Pont, General Electric, Johns Manville, Radio, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Westinghouse, Goodrich and Goodyear.

Utilities down 2 to 4 points included American & Foreign Power, American Telephone, American Power & Light, Electric Power & Light, Consolidated Gas, Stone & Webster and Western Union.

Wabash railroad dropped 4 points to a new low. Pennsylvania lost a point and New York Central was off nearly 2.

The specialties, as usual, yielded more readily. J. I. Case, off 6 1-2 points at the lowest, finished 11 points lower. Auburn Auto, Columbian Carbon, Eastman Kodak, Foster Wheeler, Vacuum, Worthington Pump, Glidden and United Aircraft tumbled 2 to 7. Coty made a new low on the omission of the quarterly dividend of 50 cents.

Foreign exchanges firmed after early irregularity. Sterling had a small gain on the day while the Canadian dollar squeezed up to a small premium. Far Easterns improved with the better tone to the silver market.

ONE LETTUCE FOR SUMMER GROWING

There is only one lettuce on which it pays to take a chance during the hot summer months. This is the cos type usually known as romaine lettuce, a tall skinny lettuce of quite different character and shape of leaf from the usual leaf or head lettuce and their equal or superior in flavor.

The leaves are long, narrow and of upright growth, enclosing the heart leaves and automatically blanching them although not forming heads. It is the most heat resistant of all the lettuces and the one lettuce to put in for late planting. It is useless to try to grow head or leaf lettuce when the warm days set in as it will spin up to seed without pausing to develop anything worth while in the way of edible foliage.

The cos lettuce is considered the finest and most delicate flavored of all the lettuces by many connoisseurs. Its ease of growth is one of its most commendable features. The blanching of the leaves may be aided and hastened by tying the tips with raffia so that they may not be forced apart by winds or rains. Naturally they are closed.

It is the secret of successful quality lettuce growing for those who have tried to grow head lettuce and failed to obtain good heads.

It may be planted any time up to June 1. Express Cos is the earliest to come into season. It does not develop the length of leaf of some of the other varieties but is of the highest quality. One of the most popular is Trianon Cos because of its whiteness and vigorous growth. Paris White is much like Trianon but is later and of a larger growth.

These lettuces must be thinned rigorously in the rows so that each plant may have at least four inches of room to which to expand. They grow more closely than the head lettuces but this distance will have them touching in the rows. Give them extra rich soil and plenty of water as the hot weather sets in and they will spurt into the highest quality of lettuce in short order.

Those who have grown the cos lettuce have given up the ordinary leaf lettuce for late season crops.

LEVEL THE CORNFIELD

Farmers in the corn-borer area who plan to use the newly developed cornstalk shaver and the side-delivery rake in clean-up work next spring will do well to remember the requirements of this machinery when cultivating the corn crop this season, say the agricultural engineers of the United States department of agriculture. The last cultivation should be in the direction of planting to favor the best performance of the stalk shaver, and the field should be laid by with as little ridging of the rows as possible to make raking more satisfactory.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE TO MAGNIFY A PASTURE

If it were possible to magnify a pasture several hundred or thousand fold—and all the parasites in the same proportion—so that blades of grass would appear as tall bamboos and small forage plants as great jungle trees, it would be easier to convince livestock growers of the desirability of careful attention to sanitation and of the importance of competent watchfulness in combating the ravages of parasites that live in the pasture and attack the various kinds of livestock.

Such a magnified pasture would stand revealed as a place of life—and of death. Many of the livestock parasites are tenacious of life and are able to withstand the most unfavorable conditions. Yet the great proportion of them die without ever having the opportunity to attack an animal. However, many of these parasites have powers of reproduction and multiplication that seem marvelous. Thousands of immature forms will come from a single adult parasite. Many live through complicated life cycles and may have one or more intermediate hosts on which they live between their attacks on horses, cattle, sheep, or swine.

Unlike the jungle hunters, many of the pests in this magnified pasture would seem sluggish and inert—barely alive, perhaps. The stomach worm, that infests the sheep, for example, emerges from the ground and finds a resting place in a tiny curl in a blade of grass. There it remains while the grass develops. If no sheep bites off the grass the stomach worm in time dies. If a sheep crops the grass, the stomach worm enters and becomes active within the sheep's stomach, there with other stomach worms, and preys on the sheep, which is likely to become unthrifty and unprofitable.

Fortunately for the livestock growers, most of these parasites are able to live and reproduce only when they are able to attack domestic animals of the same or closely related species. The danger from parasite-infested pastures is by no means so great if it is possible to use this year's horse pasture for cattle or sheep next year and for hogs the third.

BLACK LOCUST, GOOD FOR POSTS AND POLES, IS PROFITABLE CROP

Black locust, because of its high rank as a durable wood for use in the ground, is in demand for fence posts, stakes, and poles, says the forest service, U. S. department of agriculture.

Black locust makes rapid growth on good soils and will grow on poor and dry soils. It is easily propagated. In good soils or in regions naturally favorable to the tree, plantings of black locusts have returned substantial net profits in periods of 16 to 20 years.

Its strong spreading root system makes black locust a valuable tree for checking soil erosion in gullies and on steep hillsides.

Black locust, however, has a serious enemy known as the locust borer and the menace of this insect should be carefully considered before choosing black locust as a tree to plant, the forest service says. Since the borer is a sun-loving insect, on good soils or in locations of more vigorous growth, where weeds, underbrush, or other trees produce sufficient shade on the trunks of the trees the borer causes little or no injury. No practicable control measure for treating infested forest plantations is known.

The increasing scarcity of chestnut for posts, poles, and stages has done much to stimulate interest in the possibilities of growing and in the planting of black locust, according to the forest service.

POULTRY LICE AND MITES

Poultry lice and mites are common to many poultry farms, and may frequently be found in small numbers. Under favorable conditions, they multiply and become troublesome, whereas if handled properly and promptly, they can be easily taken care of. Poultry lice are entirely different from poultry mites and consequently cannot be treated in the same way. Lice have biting mouth parts and live on scales of skin, spending their entire time on the birds' bodies; whereas red mites have sucking mouth parts and live on the birds' blood—but spend the day hiding in crevices around the roosts, roost supports, and other woodwork where the birds roost, from which they crawl onto the birds at night for the purpose of feeding on their blood.

Poultry lice are rarely found on healthy birds that have a reasonable opportunity to dust, but may frequently be found on birds that are sick or out of condition because the hen does nothing to combat the lice; or they may be found in large numbers on birds confined in houses where there is no opportunity for dusting, or where birds are severely crowded. Poultry lice can be most easily eradicated by using Blackleaf Forty. This should be applied about a half-hour before the birds go to roost, on top of the roosts, roost cross-arms, and whatever objects the birds may roost on at night. The material may be spread in a thin narrow strip by using a small oil can or by punching a small hole in the can in which the Blackleaf Forty is purchased. One pint (or 1 pound) should treat 200 feet of roosts. The only possible complication would be from using an excessively large amount of Blackleaf Forty in a tightly closed house, in which case the fumes could affect the birds. While individual birds may be treated by using equal parts of Mercurial Ointment and vaseline, mixed together, or by using ointment of ammoniated mercury, (applying a piece the size of a pea and rubbing well onto the skin among the fluff feathers under the vent), the Blackleaf Forty treatment is by far the most practical for general use.

As red mites go onto the birds only at night, they can be most readily eliminated by a contact application on the woodwork where they stay during the day. If all of the hens use the roosts at night, and are not allowed to roost elsewhere or stay on the nests, then treating the roosts would be sufficient. If all of the birds do not stay on the roosts at night, then every place in the house where the hens stay must be treated. For treatment, paint thoroughly with carbolineum, Fyler's red mite destroyer, or any good red mite paint. Treatment should be given in the morning, in order to allow time for the material to dry before the hens need the roosts at night. The roosts should be taken out and painted on all sides and on the ends. The roost supports and the woodwork around the roost supports should also be treated, as the red mites crawl deeply into the cracks and crevices of the wood during the day. Sufficient material should be used to reach the bottom of every opening. Careful treatment each spring and fall—and in some cases careful treatment once a year—is enough to hold the red mites in check.

QUALITY CUCUMBERS GROWN HOME

If you want cucumbers just to your liking, you will have to grow them yourself and pick them just at the right stage of their growth. In this manner you will be able to get the sweet, crisp cukes you desire. In the market you take a chance on their freshness and usually they are allowed to become too mature before marketing to have the finest quality. Often they have a bitter flavor.

All that is needed for a cucumber crop of quality is the space in which to let the vines ramble. If that is limited, they can be grown upright as vines just as you would grow morning glories. It is not necessary to allow them to ramble over valuable ground space if you are limited as to room. They need sun, rich porous soil and plenty of moisture.

The main task in getting cucumbers into successful operation is saving them from the horde of bugs that attack them as soon as they come through the ground. It is marvelous how the appearance of a cucumber seems to summon bugs into being you hadn't seen about the premises previously.

Wood ashes sprinkled over the seedlings immediately after they break through the ground are a deterrent and furnish fertilizer to the plant as well. The seedlings should be coated with some arsenical spray from the time they appear as the surest preventive. Another excellent scheme is to have frames with mosquito bar covers to set over the hill, heaping earth about the edges so the bugs can't crawl under the tent.

For the reason that the infant mortality due to bugs is great, it is an excellent practice to sow eight or ten seeds to a hill and then thin to three or four after they have grown large enough to stand off insect attack. As the first true leaves form the under surface should be sprayed with some nicotine compound as well as an arsenical spray. These can be applied in combination.

The early varieties are usually most practical for the home garden, giving a good crop of medium cukes for the table while the later types may be planted for the pickle supply. Try growing cucumbers as vines on the back porch.

The Steady, Silent Ones

The roar of the storm is fierce and loud,
It lashes and crashes and rips and tears;
The water is dashed against the pane,
The world is drenched by the sheets of rain,
But after the blustering, what is the gain,
What good has been wrought in the world's affairs?

The warm, sweet drizzle that comes along,
And quietly busies itself all day
Helps the sprouts to push through the softened ground,
Lures the buds outside for a peep around,
And never a roar or a fearful sound
Does the work that the loud storm never may.

It isn't the bluster, the noise that counts
In the fields or out with the busy throng;
The boasting man, like the storms that tear
And rip, and bellow, the world can spare—
The steady and silent ones must care
For the good old earth as it rolls along.

S. E. Kiser.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Hartford Special Machinery Co., Hartford.

The Hartford Special Machinery company was organized in 1912 by Ernest Walker Smith, Herbert Knox Smith and Joseph Merritt to build special machinery designed by the engineering office of Joseph Merritt and to build a general line of special machinery tools and fixtures. The start was made with twelve men in the old Wood building on Main street, Hartford, now the site of one of the Travelers Insurance company buildings. The Wood building had previously been the starting place for the Woodward & Rogers Mfg. Co., Dwight Slate Co., Fenn Machine Co., Pratt & Whitney Co. and other concerns, some of which now occupy prominent places in Hartford's industrial circles.

The newly organized company prospered from the start and after two years leased an additional floor. In 1915 the first unit of the present plant was built on land at the corner of Woodland street and Homestead avenue. Since that time three other additions have been made until at the present time the plant occupies more than 50,000 square feet of floor space and has a force of about 175 employes.

The product is divided into three general classes. First: The company will undertake to design and build special single purpose automatic machinery for doing any operation for which no existing standard machinery is available. In this connection, the company has made machinery ranging from machines for making peanut butter to machinery for stamping gold leaf designs on shoe leather. Second: If a concern has designed and built a special machine to perform some special operation on their product and desire additional machines made up in quantities, the Hartford Special Machinery company will go through the drawings and made a contract price on building the machinery. This part of the business is called "general contract machine work" and forms the bulk of the output. Third: In addition, gears, worms and cams of every description are made, sometimes in a lot of one for a breakdown or repair job and sometimes in a lot of one for a breakdown or repair job and sometimes in a lot of several thousand.

The present officers are: Joseph Merritt, president and treasurer; Herbert Knox Smith, vice president; Raymond J. Dunn, secretary.

LETTER BY COOLIDGE AUCTIONED FOR $21

CHICAGO—(AP)—The steadily increasing value of Lincoln letters and autographs as well as a sharp general interest in pennings of other American presidents was in evidence at Chicago's first auction of books and manuscripts in a quarter of a century.

A one-page letter, written at Springfield, June 3, 1849, and signed with the well known "A Lincoln," was bid up to $350. Another Lincoln letter brought $400.

A Coolidge typed and signed letter dated 1928 brought $21. An autographed copy of a Coolidge book realized the same, while a signed photograph went for $30.

Two Washington letters, one indited at Valley Forge and the other discussing the constitution, went for $300 each. Incidentally Parson Weem's Life of Washington, containing the original version of the famous cherry tree story, was disposed of for $21.

A one page Harding letter, sent from the white house in 1921, sold for $30; a Taft signature brought $13, while Roosevelt autographs ranged from $12 to $32.

Here are other presidential letters or autographs, with dates and prices: Wilson, 1912, $10; Cleveland, 1888, $21; Fillmore, 1849, $21; Jackson, 1821, $27; Van Buren, 1824, $28, and Jefferson, 1781, $32.

TABLET TO MARK PLACE WHERE SIDNEY LANIER DIED

TRYON, N. C.—(AP)—The memory of Sidney Lanier, southern poet, who came to the mountains of North Carolina in quest of health, will be perpetuated by placing a bronze tablet on the house near here, where he died September 7, 1881.

Mrs. H. L. Shiep, of Philadelphia, a relative and donor of the memorial will present the tablet.

Rev. Clarence Stuart McClellan, Jr., of Fletcher, N. C., founder of the "Open-air Westminster Abbey of Dixie," will be master of ceremonies.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Miner the Mole's Cousin

Who is too sure will find it meet
Of humble pie some day to eat.
—Old Mother Nature.

Of course, Peter Rabbit was curious. He was sure that he had seen Miner the Mole swimming in the shallow water at the upper end of the Smiling Pool. Then the swimmer had disappeared behind a tussock of grass. Redwing the Blackbird had flown over to look for him, but couldn't find him.

"You may be right, Peter, but I don't believe it," said Redwing. "You may have seen Miner the Mole swimming, but I'll believe it until I see him myself. I have spent several summers here at the Smiling Pool and in all that time I have never seen Miner the Mole swimming."

"I guess I know Miner the Mole when I see him!" exclaimed Peter indignantly.

"Perhaps, Peter, perhaps," replied Redwing. "But I suspect that this time you think you knew him when you didn't see him."

"Didn't see him!" exclaimed Peter. "Certainly, I saw him. He was right over where you went to look for him. I don't believe you used your eyes very well."

It was Redwing's turn to become indignant. "Please understand, Peter Rabbit," said he, "that my eyes are quite as good as your eyes and perhaps a little better. Let me repeat, I don't believe you saw Miner the Mole."

"All right, Redwing, all right!" exclaimed Peter, beginning to dance about excitedly. "Perhaps you'll believe it now. Who is that swimming out from behind that tussock? Tell me, Redwing, who is it?"

Redwing looked. "That?" said he. "Oh, that is Miner's cousin. I've seen him here many times. His name is Starnose."

Such a funny look as there was on Peter Rabbit's face. "Wha-wha-what did you say?" he stammered.

"I said," replied Redwing, "that that is Starnose the Mole, first cousin to Miner the Mole. Do you mean to tell me, Peter Rabbit, that you have never met Starnose?"

Now it was very hard for Peter to admit that there was any one around the Smiling Pool whom he didn't know. But Peter tries to be honest. He tries to be honest with other folks as well as with himself. "I-I didn't know that Miner had a cousin living around here," he confessed.

Redwing looked very much surprised. "Well, well, well!" he exclaimed. "Why, I've known Starnose ever since I began coming to the Smiling Pool. In fact, I know Starnose better than I do Miner, for I see him oftener. He doesn't keep himself hidden quite so much."

Meanwhile, Peter was staring very hard at the little swimmer and wishing with all his might that he would come over there. But Starnose, presently disappeared behind a tussock of grass and for some time did not reappear. Peter had about given up hope of seeing Starnose again when once more the little swimmer appeared and this time he headed straight for where Peter was sitting.

"There he comes," said Redwing. "When he gets over here I will introduce you. Of course, you know he won't be able to see you."

"Why not?" demanded Peter, looking very much surprised. "Is he blind?"

"W-e-l-l," replied Redwing slowly. "I suppose you might call him blind. He can tell light from darkness, but that's about all. Here he comes!"

STATE MOTOR INSPECTOR COMING TO CHECK UP IN NEW LONDON CASES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 5—An inspector of the state motor vehicle department will be in New London Tuesday morning next at the county court house at 10:45 o'clock when numerous cases of automobile violations will be heard. Among the drivers accused of violations are four from New London, as follows: Alemedan Gaustis, 15 Ashcroft road, driving while under the influence of liquor; Joseph M. Bekos, 19 Chappel street, fatal accident in Massachusetts; George Westley, 27 Hill street, driving while under the influence. Another New London case is that of Alexander J. Jordan, 28 Squire street, for conference. Charles C. Maxson, 64 Elm street, Stonington, is accused of driving while under the influence of liquor. Other cases are: Frank Conroy, 125 Thames street, Groton, evasion of responsibility; Warner V. Hollister, Westbrook, speeding and previous conviction for reckless driving; John Cronin, Westerly, conference; Albert Santacroce, 61 Poquonoc road, Groton, conference; Donald Avery, Groton, conference.

OAKDALE SCHOOL BOY IS AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

NEW LONDON, June 5—John Tracy, 12, of Oakdale, attending school in Montville, was seriously injured this morning and is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from an injury tht may develop a fracture of the skull. He, with several other children, was riding in a bus which was conveying the boys and girls to their school. In moving about the bus, the Tracy boy lost his balance and falling to the concrete pavement, landed on his head. When a physician was summoned to attend the injured youth it was evident that he was seriously hurt and he was carried to the hospital.

City Manager William A. Holt today received a complaint from Antone G. Joseph, 206 Connecticut avenue, that youths of the school age were nightly causing him annoyance. The complaint was delivered at police headquarters and one of the motorcycle officers was assigned to put a stop to the trouble that the complainant was experiencing.

Parked Overtime

Robert Hude, 474 Ocean avenue, was arrested this afternoon, charged with parking overtime on State street and in violation of the city's traffic ordinance.

Husband Starts Scrap

James Tonska, 42 Eastern avenue, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolmen Frank Philoppena and Carlos Stone, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow. Tonska went to his home shortly after 6 o'clock and was in an ugly frame of mind. A quarrel between himself and wife developed and when the exchange of words became serious, Mrs. Tonska made complaint to the police with the result that her husband was arrested.

Mrs. James Thatch, of Hadlyme and Mrs. Louis Bonarmarse and infant daughter, 48 Blinman street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

J. A. STANNERS CASHIER TO SUCCEED CARLOS BARRY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 5—The 149th annual meeting of the Union Bank and Trust company was held in the banking rooms of the institution today. At a meeting of the stockholders all of the directors were re-elected: Carlos Barry, Alfred Colt, Lucius E. Whiton, Benjamin L. Armstrong, Charles E. White, W. Kyle Sheffield, Laurence A. Chappell, Joseph A. Stanners and Mermon M. Hubbard. The following officers were elected: President, Alfred Colt; vice presidents, Louis E Whiton and Carlos Barry; cashier and trust officer, Joseph A. Stanners; assistant cashier, Edward Bull, Jr; assistant cashier, Malcolm M. Scott; assistant trust officer, John Masterton; attorney, Alfred Colt. In electing Mr. Stanners to cashier, he succeeds Carlos Barry, who has been cashier many years, but is incapacitated because of ill health and is now a patient at a Hartford sanitarium. President Colt will leave this month for Europe where he will remain several months.

Miss Florence L. Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Gardner, of 16 Prospect street, who will be graduated from Abbott academy, Andover, Mass., this month, was recently honored by election and admission to the "A" society of the academy. Membership to the society is limited to students who have won at least 300 points in athletics.

Mrs. Anthony Sousa, 120 Winthrop street, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from an injury to her shoulder, sustained by falling recently at her home.

MICHAEL VONG MISSING—SAID TO HAVE LEFT DEBTS

Michael Vong, for several months proprietor of a Bank street confectionery store, is missing from the city and the store has been closed by a series of attachments levied by Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin. Vong, it is reported owes many debts, including loans, for it is said that he owes rent for three months and that he borrowed $400 from one acquaintance and close to $2,000 in the aggregate from several of his fellow countrymen, Greek residents here. Vong purchased the business from Peter Lalaty and it is said that the latter still retains title in the fixtures.

An automobile driven by Clarence Denison, 495 Montauk avenue, struck and killed a dog on that thoroughfare today.

A Buick automobile, carrying Massachusetts registration, 548762 which had been parked at Ocean beach three days, was taken in charge by the police today. The car was taken to a garage to await its owner claiming it and paying the expense of storage.

National S. A. R. Chaplain

At a convention of the National Society Sons of the American Revolution, held yesterday at Ashbury Park, N. J., Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, this city, was unanimously elected chaplain-general.

Miss Beverly Chalker, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. L. T. Chalker, Ocean avenue, arrived at her home from Hollins college, Hollins, Va., to spend the summer with her parents.

WEDDING

Oates-Hoy

John Oates, Jr., son of John Oates, of Plainfield and Miss Thelma Hoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hoy, of Thames View, Waterford, were married last night at the residence of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George W. Borden, pastor of the Quaker Hill Baptist church and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Malcolm Hoy, brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Eva Oates, sister of the groom, attended the bride. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Oates left for Niagara Falls, and upon their return will reside at Plainfield.

Daniel Reddy and Charles Wilbur, laborers, were charged jointly with breach of the peace and intoxication. Reddy, who has a long police record, was sentenced to 60 days in jail, and Wilbur was fined $10 and costs. Reddy and Wilbur had been drinking freely yesterday and during the late afternoon they staged a fight on Potter street, close to the police garage. Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh arrested the pair.

Woodie Riley Fined

Woodie Riley, colored, residing in Lakeland, Fla., and 20 High street, this city, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing an automatic danger signal and driving without license or registration. She was fined $5 and costs. The woman, who was arrested yesterday by Patrolman George Bruhne at Bank and Howard streets, informed the court that in her home state neither license nor registration is required of drivers and that she presumed that the same condition existed in Connecticut.

Charles M. Dunn, 36 Perry street; William C. Smith, 243 Connecticut avenue; Esther Burch, 45 Jay street, and Willis P. Austin, Uncasville, were charged with violation of the city's parking laws. The quartet of drivers failed to appear and their respective bonds of $2 were forfeited.

A third case in which intoxication was alleged brought a fine of $10 and costs to the accused man. He was arrested last night on North Bank street.

The police of Madison today requested the New London police to be on the lookout for Moris Schwartz, wanted on a charge of taking an auto without permission of the owner. The car is a Ford roadster and carries Connecticut registration, A—6217.

New Pavilion Possible

There is a possibility that before another season one more dance pavilion will be in operation at Ocean Beach, for it is known that proprietors of New York music halls are negotiating for a site at Ridgewood park. Already the prospective promoters have been in New London and they are said to have practically decided on the location for the new pavilion, close to the bridge spanning Alewife cove with the park. If the site is leased, work on the construction of the pavilion will be started so that it will be ready for use early next summer.

Mrs. Albert Hale and infant son and Mrs. Jeremiah Sullivan, of Noank, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John H. Brown

Mrs. Frederica R. Brown, widow of John H. Brown, former highway commissioner of this city, died this afternoon at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, death ending a lingering illness. Mrs. Brown, who was of advanced years and formerly resided at 101 Hempstead street, is survived by a son, John F. Brown, of this city and two sisters, Mrs. Jane Root, of Pittsfield, Mass., and Mrs. John C. Crosby.

Patricia E. Gavan

Patricia E., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Gavan, 40 Franklin street, died today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Mrs. Russell Crandall

Mrs. Lydia H. Crandall, 87, widow of Russell Crandall, died this morning at her residence, 8 Fowler court, where she had been ill many months. She is survived by two sons, George S. Crandall and John C. Crandall. Mrs. Crandall was born in Salem, Conn., Aug. 1, 1842. She was a member of Niantic Baptist church. She had resided in New London practically her entire life.

STOLE CORNET AT BARRACKS; COMMITTED TO CHESHIRE

Richard Staplins, 20, of 24 Truman street, was in the police court today, charged with theft, and was committed to the reformatory at Cheshire.

Staplins was at the Salvation Army barracks, 43 Main street, yesterday, and watched an opportunity to steal a cornet owned by Captain Anderson. Several hours after the theft had been committed and Staplins had left the barracks, the theft was discovered. Captain Anderson reported his loss at police headquarters and Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin was assigned to the case. No clues were obtained until about 11 o'clock last night when Harold Staplins, 54 Vauxhall street, brother of Richard, went to police headquarters with the musical instrument and said that the latter, after stealing it, sold the cornet. This morning Officer Martin found the youthful thief and arrested him.

FUNERAL

William Pickett

The funeral of William Pickett, formerly of New London, who died at Lexington, Mass., Tuesday, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan. The bearers were John O'Connell, William Regan, Edward Pickett, Edward Hands, Timothy Denehey and Thomas Condon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

ANNONCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The story of a mother whose seven children, with the exception of one, turn against her in spite of her valiant efforts to give them everything that they want, is told in Warner Brothers' drama, "Courage," starring Belle Bennett; Marian Nixon, Richard Tucker and a host of others, which opens at the Palace theatre tomorrow where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week.

Those who remember Miss Bennet in "Stella Dallas" are aware of her unusual ability to portray the part of a mother and the leading character of "Courage" is a whimsical who is a whimsical person who is a spendthrift of love as well as money.

"Courage" is the story of a widowed mother of seven children who faces poverty by her own mismanagement. She moves her family from Iowa to Cambridge, Massachusetts, where she tries to give them an education and the best possible kind of a living. To do this she has to borrow money and when her children learn what she has done they turn from her in favor of a maiden aunt who does her best to poison their minds against their mother. She struggles hard to show them the error of their judgment and wine out only after many heartaches and sorrowful moments.

"The double-feature bill, combining "Sweethearts and Wives," a thrilling mystery story laid in a picturesque inn located in the south of France and "The Melody Man," which depicts a struggle between youth and old age will be presented at the Palace for the last times today.

Time flies and before you know it the popularity contest will be closing. Get to the Palace as soon as possible to cast your ballot for the girl whom you would like to see win that trip to Atlantic City and do not wish for the rest of your life that you had not put it off until it was too late.

Burton's Agency Re-Sells Another!

Within a short period of just a little over thirty days the Burton agency has again re-sold the Bachelor place at Norwich Town for R. C. Plaut, to Clara Hall Smith.

There is evidence of activity in real estate in Norwich judging from the way this agency has been able to handle this valuable piece of property so successfully twice within this short period.

Broadcast of Natural Bridge Shoes

Lovers of Negro folk songs and Negro spirituals of the deep south will shortly welcome a newcomer to the radio world—Lucille Turner, Lynchburg, Virginia, who will broadcast "The Southern Negro as I Have Known Him in Song and Story," over WJZ and associated stations every Friday night in June, through the courtesy of the Natural Bridge Shoe-makers.

Miss Turner comes by her sympathetic interest and understanding of Negro music quite directly and naturally. Born and raised in Brunswick county, Virginia, on a plantation, originally owned by her grandfather, William Henry Barrow, southern planter of the old school. Miss Turner was, during the early years of her life, surrounded by faithful old darkies, who in the days of slavery had belonged to her immediate family and relatives.

When you hear Lucille Turner's rendition of fascinating songs which are more native to America than any other music, you will sense a human, spiritual and musical understanding of the "Southern Darky," which enables her to depict his joys and sorrows with the utmost sympathy and fidelity. That Miss Turner loves the folk songs of the Negro race is movingly apparent to her audience.

Miss Turner was graduated from Sweet Briar college, Sweet Briar, Virginia, and from the Emerson College of Oratory, and the New England Conservatory of Music, of Boston.

She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Junior League Glee club, and the Little Theatre of Lynchburg, Va.

Natural Bridge shoes are sold by Tongren's Shoe Store. See adv.

Sparks Circus

Because more new features are being introduced by the Sparks circus this season than ever before in history, representatives have termed the 1930 tour a "season of novelty and innovations."

When this internationally known show comes to Norwich for afternoon and night performances on Friday, June 13, the program will open with the biggest and most magnificient spectacle ever traveled in America. Special scenery, brilliant electrical effects and gorgeous costumes are used in this extravaganza, which terminates by a ballet by several score of dancing girls.

Outstanding acts and troupes will participate in the lengthy program, among them being the Original Nelson Family of tumblers and risley artists; the Wright Duo, equilibrists. Aerial Walters, supreme bar performers; Guice Family of Equestrians, direct from Holland; Mlle. Rosina, queen of the wire, Franz Woska and his sensational groups of fighting lions and snarling tigers, and a contingent of premier clowns, headed by the one and only Paul Wenzel. Tents will be located at fair grounds. Seats may be secured circus day at Alexander and Co. candy store, 231 Main street. Same prices as at grounds.

Breed Theatre

Adapted from Elinor Glyn's sensational, romantic story, with Warner Baxter and Catherine Dale Owen in the leading roles, "Such Men Are Dangerous," Fox Movietone production, will be next week's feature at the Breed theatre.

"Such Men Are Dangerous" is heralded as one of the best pictures made since the screen began to talk and embraces all the required elements of solid entertainment, suspense, thrills, drama and comedy with more intriguing twists than Miss Glyn has heretofore offered.

Not since his splendid performance in "In Old Arizona" in which he portrayed the character of "The Cisco Kid," has Baxter been more delightfully cast. Catherine Dale Owen, acclaimed the most beautiful blonde of the films, recently supported John Gilbert in "His Glorious Night."

The cast includes such notables as Hedda Hopper, Albert Conti, Claude Allister and Bela Lugosi. It was directed by Kenneth Hawks.

Broadway Theatre

"All hands on deck! Liberty party ready? Shove off!" for the gayest, giddiest show leave you ever took when you meet the new Clara Bow in her latest whoopee frolic "True to the Navy." She's at the Broadway for four days beginning tomorrow, and red hair and all, she'll make you forget the heat, 'cause you won't be able to think of anything else but Clara. Did we say "the new" Clara Bow? New!—and how! Talk about "It"—you've never seen Clara, you've never seen "It" until you see this navy frolic of hers. She's lighter, oh, pounds lighter, but more deliciously curvy and lively than ever, and how she plays those homesick and lovesick gobs! She has a "special" on every ship, but when the whole fleet drops anchor at once, she's sunk! Leave it to Clara to find a way out without getting torpedoed—she does, and in doing it furnishes you with a gay hour and a half of thrills and laughs. Frederic March, Harry Green, Rex Bell, Sam Hardy and Jed Prouty are in the supporting cast together with the crew of the U. S. S. Mississippi and other ships of the fleet. The surrounding program is built for laughs, too, so if your week end looks blue, spend it at the cool Broadway. With today's showings, the engagement of that soul-stirring epic of the World war, "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," by Arnold Zweig, starring Chester Morris as the unfortunate Grischa, comes to an end.

Palace Theatre

Four thousand votes in the Palace Popularity contest will be awarded at the Palace theatre, this evening, when the young ladies of the contest make their appearance at the Palace. All the girls of the contest will be present to greet their friends and it is the best chance you have to help your favorite win the very valuable outfit from the leading merchants as well as the trip to Atlantic City. Be present and help your favorite win, your girl will be there.

The choir will meet Saturday night with the Misses Pendleton.

William B. Ward, of Norwich, spent Monday in Hebron, at the home of his son, Leslie F. Ward, and family.

CHARLES M. AMS DIES—TOWN'S BENEFACTOR

Funeral services were held for Charles M. Ams, 63, last week, at a funeral chapel in New York, Rev. Mr. Gardner officiated. Burial was in Woodlawn. He leaves his wife and two children, Max Ams, of Bridgeport, Mrs. Conrad Truhenbach, of Pelham, N. Y.; a brother, Emil Ams, of Pelham, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. Calvin Smith, of Boston. Mr. Ams purchased Amston in 1912, and has spent his summers there. He practically rebuilt Amston and removed the houses, re-making and widening the streets. He greatly improved the appearance of the village, besides setting out many shade trees and much shrubbery. He had always contributed freely to C. E. activities and helped the town in many other ways. He will be missed by both the Amston and Hebron people. He had been in poor health for the past few years. He was looking forward to living in the new house he had just built in Amston, when death occurred, suddenly, in Bridgeport.

At the Boy Scout meeting Friday, due to the many events of the day, not all members were present, it was voted, because of the graduation, that the next meeting be held Tuesday, June 10. The scoutmaster, Allan L. Carr, asked that he might be released from obligations during the time of St. Peter's summer school, 23rd of June to the 6th of July, and that request was granted. Competitive games were played during the latter part of the evening.

GREENEVILLE

WELL BABY CONFERENCE TO OPEN THIS AFTERNOON

Beginning Friday of this week there will be a Well Baby conference every Friday afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock at the Greeneville Congregational church. The clinic will be open to all children of the pre-school age. The Central avenue entrance to the church will be used.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rigby and son Charles Rigby, Jr., of Maiden, Mass., spent a few days recently at the home of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Eva Rigby of Eleventh street.

Newsies Win

The Bowen's Newsies defeated the Preston Highlanders by the score of 8 to 6 on the Preston ball field. The features of the game were the fine twirling of Banjo Kirby and the heavy hitting of Hymie Rapport. The lineup for the Newsies: Edward Quinn, c; Banjo Kirby, p; Clifford Sullivan, 1b; Charlie Quinn, 2b; Pine Quinn, 3b; Freddie Mopstick, ss; John Constitution, lf; William Martnicki, cf; John Barrows, rf.

Miss Margaret Delaney and Howard Ring have returned to their home on Prospect street after spending a few days at Hanover. While there they attended the funeral of their uncle, Mathew Delaney, which was held Tuesday at Hanover. Burial was from St. Joseph's church at Hanover. Mr. Delaney was a former Greeneville resident.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Delaney have returned to Providence after spending a few days with Mr. Delaney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Delaney on Eighth street.

Surprise Party Held

A surprise party was held Tuesday evening on Miss Alice Novack at her home on St. Regis avenue with twenty of her friends attending. During the evening many games were played and dancing was enjoyed with music furnished by the radio. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The dining room was prettily decorated.

TAFTVILLE

The members of Council Gagnon, No. 269, Union St. Jean Baptiste met Thursday evening for their regular monthly business session.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mathieu and family of North A street have moved to Holyoke, Mass., where Mr. Mathieu has accepted a position.

Miss Elizabeth Jackson and Miss Sadie Jackson of North B street have returned from a visit with their cousins in Southbridge, Mass.

A number of men who frequent the benches on the lower end of Providence street witnessed a lively fight between a cat and a whole flock of English starlings Thursday morning. The cat had seized a young starling which had been learning to fly, when the young birds' parents, aided by all their relatives swooped down and put the cat to rout. The young bird escaped into a closed gutter, but it was so badly hurt that it expired as soon as some of the watchers succeeded in getting it out.

The American Legion auxiliary elected Miss Aurette Fournier, the president and Mrs. Patrick J. Fogarty, the secretary, delegates to the state convention which is to be held in Bridgeport. The alternates are Mrs. William Emerson and Mrs. Annie Vetter. A committee of three with Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears as chairman, was appointed to arrange for a joint picnic with Peter Gallan post, No. 104, American Legion. The poppy committee reported the results of the sale of the Memorial day poppies. The total receipts were $95. Mrs. Clara Caron, chairman of the rummage sale reported the sum of $15 realized. The members are planning a series of out door card parties to be held during the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leo Bagley of Providence, R. I., were guests early in the week of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Marsan and family of Hunters avenue.

The Taftville Tennis association met Wednesday evening at the courts in the rear of the Taftville Congregational church, for a business session.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ritcher of 290 Norwich avenue are to leave today (Friday) for Quebec, P. Q., where they are to visit relatives for three weeks.

Motored Over Mohawk Trail

The members of the May club enjoyed their weekly outing by motoring over the Mohawk Trail Thursday, stopping for dinner at the famous Sweetheart Inn on Shelburne Mountains. On the return trip they spent a pleasant hour at Forest park in Springfield; also stopped at the mineral springs at Stafford.

METHODIST WOMEN OF DISTRICT MET HERE FOR HOME MISSIONS CONVENTION

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society, Norwich district, of the Methodist Episcopal church was held at Norwich Town all day Thursday. The conference opened with a morning session at which Mrs. T. Arthur Mosley of Stafford Springs had charge of the praise service and Mrs. Lewis Irish of Norwich Town played the organ. The devotions were in charge of Mrs. Myron E. Genter, wife of the district superintendent. Mrs. Genter took for her text Matthew 24:14. Greetings were given by Mrs. Rose Manning in the absence of Mrs. William Weaver, the president of the auxiliary, who was detained in her home by illness. Mrs. Manning said she was glad to extend the welcome in a church so rich in history and memories as this church is the parent of all Methodist churches in Norwich with the first service dating back to June 26, 1790, Jesse Lee being the preacher. Mrs. Harold Critchlow, wife of the pastor of the Gales Ferry auxiliary, responded. At the business session, Mrs. John E. Gallup, president of the district and a member of the Moosup auxiliary, presided. Mrs. Harold F. Bradshaw of New London gave a report on "Thank Offerings", Mrs. E. J. Jones of Norwich auxiliary gave a report on "Mite Boxes." The corresponding secretary, Mrs R. Irving Hurlbutt gave a report and Mrs. E. K. Taft, treasurer of the district, also reported. Mrs. John Phillips of Norwich reported for the educational department. At this time in the programme a solo, "Dear To The Heart of the Shepherd" was sung by Mrs. Charles Wheeler accompanied by Mrs. Lewis Irish. A delicious dinner was served following a prayer period led by Mrs. Gallup. The dinner was served by the ladies' aid of the church.

The afternoon period opened with devotions led by the pastor of the church, Rev. George Warren Potter who spoke on the theme "Enthusiasm." A question box was conducted by Mrs. B. T. Eaton, vice president of the district. Problems of the departmental secretaries were told by themselves.

Election of Officers

The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: President, Mrs. B. T. Eaton, Stafford Springs; vice president, Mrs. Charles Holt, Uncasville; corresponding secretary, Miss Mildred Codding, Danielson; recording secretary, Mrs. C. H. Billings, Hazardville; treasurer, Mrs. K. T. Taft, Stafford Springs. The officers were installed by Mrs. S. A. Prentis.

Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood, conference president, gave a most interesting talk on the subject, "Things We Ought To Know." Mrs. O. L. Griswold of Fair Haven, Mass., conference secretary of junior work, gave a talk on the subject, "Mother's Jewels and the Home Guard," and Mrs. Florence Byrant Manuel, conference secretary of young people's work, spoke on the activities among the Queen Esther circles.

Historical Facts

"The Way We Have Come" was an interesting paper read by Mrs. Eaton and written by Miss Florence E. Washburn containing some interesting facts.

Some of the important things were: "The first recorded coming together of the Norwich District W. H. M. S. was as an organization in the Central Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich, Feb. 1891. There were 34 members. Susan A. Lucas was the presiding officer, Mrs. Eben Tirrell corresponding secretary and Mrs. J. C. Gould of Willimantic was elected recording secretary.

The second meeting was held at Willimantic February 1892. The next year at New London Mrs. Prentis welcomed the conference.

The district conference has met at the following places: Norwich four times, Willimantic four times, New London four times, Stafford Springs three times, South Manchester three times, Rockville twice, Noank once, camp meeting grounds twice, Hazardville twice, Old Mystic, Gales Ferry and Norwich Town each once.

Mrs. Lucas the first presiding officer served 16 years. She was succeeded by Mrs. Lily Patten, serving four years. Mrs. S. A. Prentis served 13 years and Mrs. John Gallup four years. There were thus only four presiding officers during the 40 years of the organization. (At the dinner Mrs. Prentis was honored by being chosen to cut the 40 year birthday cake.) There have been 12 secretaries in that time.

The early meetings were carried out by the members arranging the programmes. Then nationally famous men and women were among the speakers, including Mrs. Griffith, a national organizer, Mrs. Mary Leonard Woodruff, national corresponding secretary and Bishop Mallalieu, who said among other things to the district gathering, "Almighty God expects more of the country than any other in the world and if our women fail the country will fail."

Others were Mrs. Hamlin of Hamlin Industrial home, Alabama, Miss Alena Wathers of Ellis Island, Rev. J. C. Docking, president of Rust house, Holly Springs, Miss., Dr. Benjamin Haywood, superintendent of Libby hospital, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Thirkield, national president and Mrs. Chas. J. Davis, superintendent of Silver Lake.

In the early meetings there were three sessions and not until 1900 was the evening session dropped.

In 1901 a memorial window was placed in Rust hall in honor of the beloved president, Mrs. Luce.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR TWO CHURCH TRUSTEES

A very impressive memorial service was held at McKinley Avenue A. M. E. Zion church Sunday evening for the late Speed Evans and Mrs. Maria Sylvia—both of whom were trustees in the church for many years, and among the oldest members.

The membership roll of the church was read by Robert H. Johnson, and when the name of Mr. Evans was called, a few remarks were made by William Fields, chairman of the board of trustees, touching on the pleasing personality of Mr Evans, and his undying loyalty for the church, and the community in which he lived, and to which he gave the greater part of his life. When the name of Mrs. Sylvia was read, Miss Claribel Wood read a very touching paper on the life of Mrs. Sylvia, telling of her willingness at all times to forego her own troubles, that the troubles of others might be helped. While the roll was being called, "Abide With Me," was softly played by Miss Emma J. Cook, the church organist. A beautiful floral tribute was given by the members of the church. The pastor, Rev. Edward W. Gantt read an appropriate passage of scripture, after which he commented on the life character of Mr. Evans and Mrs. Sylvia.

The services were closed with a memorial poem, composed by Mrs. Edward W. Gantt, and read by Mrs. Florence A. Whitted.

LIONS NAME DELEGATES TO NEWPORT CONVENTION

At the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions' club, Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel, Melvin Worth, Kopland K. Markoff and Abner Schwartz were named delegates to the Lions' district convention to be held at Newport June 10th and 11th. A number of the club members will also attend the convention and there is a possibility that the trip will be made by air.

It was voted to conduct but two meetings monthly during July and August. President Charles W. Cassidy presided at the meeting.

MISS STEINER RECOVERS AT HOSPITAL IN DENVER

Norwich friends of the family of Mr. and Mrs. John Steiner, whose handsome residence was the original Captain Coit house, 77 Church street, learn from Denver that Miss Teresa Steiner has been seriously ill. She is still in a hospital in Denver, but the crisis has passed and her devoted brothers, John and Henry Steiner, are encouraged to believe that from now on her recovery will be steady.

CARD PARTY FOR DEGREE TEAM BENEFIT

A successful card party given by Mrs. Margaret Comire and Mrs. Nora Willett was held Wednesday evening in Moose home for the benefit of the degree team. Prizes were awarded as follows: In whist, Miss Winnie Clabby, 32, Mrs. Vachon, 31, Mrs. Donovan; Mr. Webber, Mr. Gilchrist, Harry Collins. In pinochle, Mrs. Brown 7550, Mrs. Conaty 7290, Mr. Montessa 7730, Mr. Seneca 7510. The scorer in whist was Margaret Comire and in pinochle, Nellie Dorr.

Permits Gasoline Station Transfer

The zoning board of appeals has granted the petition of Harry E. Holdredge for permission to transfer ownership of a gasoline station at Occum and for a certificate of approval for one additional pump at the station. The board heard the appeal at a meeting Thursday morning at the mayor's office. There was no opposition to the petition. The gasoline station was formerly conducted by E. T. Leonard.

Swimming was an item in the program of the members of some families seeking shore places on the holiday—but it had to be deferred.

CLINIC AND ADDRESSES FOR DOCTOR'S MEETING

Two very interesting addresses were given at the monthly meeting of the Tri-City Medical society comprising Norwich, New London and Willimantic held Thursday evening at Norwich Inn with an attendance of 70 members and visitors, following the afternoon session which included a clinic at the W. W. Backus hospital.

The addresses, which were of particular interest to the doctors, were by Dr. Ann E. Davis of New York professor of obstetrics at New York Lying-In hospital, and by Dr. Claude Kelley of Hartford. The former took for the subject of his talk, Prenatal Cases and the Complications of Pregnancy, while the latter spoke on the topic, Some of the Commoner Ailments as Seen in General Practice.

Discussions of papers were by Dr. Hartwell Thompson of Hartford, son of Dr. George Thompson of Taftville, Dr. R. R. Agnew of Norwich and Dr. Daniel Sullivan of New London.

Dr. Clarence Thompson of Norwich, president of the society, presided at the meeting, which was one of the most interesting ever held by the medicos. A buffet luncheon was served.

At the afternoon session at the Backus hospital, where the clinic was in charge of Dr. Davis, and a dinner was later served, there were 40 in the gathering.

The annual meeting of the society will be held later this month when the officers will be elected

NORWICH TOWN

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church, served a delicious dinner at noon Thursday, to the 125 attending the fortieth anniversary meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society, of Norwich district. The dinner was planned under the efficient management of Mrs. William Weaver, who lies ill in bed, and greatly to the regret of the conference members was unable to attend and extend greetings as president of Norwich Town auxiliary. Mrs. Washington Miner, substituted for Mrs. Weaver at dinner and was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Fulton. Other aides were Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, Mrs. Reginald Ward, Mrs. Woodruff Sullivan, and Mrs. Yetke. The waittresses were Mrs. John Phillips, Mrs. Lewis Irish, Mrs. Richard Carter, Mrs. Ernest J. Jones, and the Misses Bessie Boardman, Beulah Rogers and Dorothea McNeely. At the request of the pastor of the entertaining church, Rev. George W. Potter, grace was said by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, D. D., pastor of New London Methodist church. The menu consisted of fruit-cup, meat-pie, potato salad, relish, rolls, pie and coffee. At the close of the dinner Rev. Mr. Potter brought forth a huge birthday cake on which were 40 dainty yellow candles. This was handed to Mrs. S. A. Prentis, president emerita of New London. After a brief acknowledgment by Mrs. Prentis, who alluded to her presidency for the past 38 years, at her request all united in singing the Doxology, before she cut the cake, which was distributed to all present. The tables were adorned with summer flowers, arranged in decorative baskets.

The June meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, the last for this season is to be held at the Johnson Home Monday afternoon. The study lesson will be Exodus 33rd chapter, under the leadership of Mrs. William E. Manning.

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning, instead of the regular morning worship, the Sunday school will conduct a Children's day program. The meeting will also include a baptismal service by the retiring pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, in consecrating the lives of the children to God. The session of the church school will be omitted that day.

Early in the present week in the Methodist Episcopal church following the service, a Queen Esther circle was organized, with the following officers: President, Doris Rose; secretary, Virginia Ward; treasurer, Florence Gembel. The circle was organized by Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood, conference president of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church. Mrs. Bitgood was the speaker at the service, her subject "Queen Esther." She told the beautiful story of the queen who was willing to risk life itself that she might save her people. Then Mrs. Bitgood told of the work of the Queen Esther society which is a branch of the Woman's Home Missionary society. The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter who read the scripture and offered prayer. The Junior vested choir sang. Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel sang a duet at the offertory. At the morning service the pastor took for his text Hebrews 11:34, "Out of weakness were made strong." The Junior vested choir under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich sang an anthem.

Following the morning service there was a meeting of the official board. Miss Florence M. Bennett, Stanton M. Brown and Lewis E. Aldrich were elected a committee for the every member canvass, to solicit pledges for the budget this conference year. It was voted that Sunday August 10th be Old Home Day and all former members and attendants of the church who have moved away will be invited back. A dinner will be provided in the vestry by the Dorcas society, following the morning service.

The beautiful floral decorations Sunday in the church were arranged by Muriel Rose, Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel.

Following the session of the church school the Sunday school board held a meeting and it was voted to hold the Children's Day concert the last Sunday night in June. Inez Edmiston was appointed chairman of arrangements with power to select her own committee.

The beautiful flowers were arranged by Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel.

NEXT TELEPHONE DIRECTORY WILL BE BIG ISSUE

It was stated at the office of the telephone company that the summer issue of the telephone directory will be the largest ever issued in this exchange, containing the listings of many new residence and business subscribers who have taken telephone service in the last few months. Many other changes in listings, such as change of address and so forth, will be found in the new directory when it is delivered about the middle of next month.

The new directory closes Saturday next, June 7, and all desired changes must be filed with the company on or before that date in order to be given a place in the new directory. Changes of address, additional listings or capital listings for business places; all such changes should be arranged for by subscribers not later than Saturday.

In Abbott Honor Society

Florence Gardner of New London is one of the nine students at Abbott academy, Andover, elected to the "A" society in recognition of their winning at least two hundred athletic points, having a satisfactory attitude toward their work, and showing, by their good conduct and co-operation, that they represent the high standards of the academy.

CHARBONNEAU HAS BACKING FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

It is expected that Governor John H. Trumbull will announce today (Friday) his appointment of at least one new member to the board of county commissioners for New London county. There are two vacancies on the board, caused by the resignation of George H. Bradford, who has been appointed high sheriff of the county, and the death of Elisha Waterman of Lebanon.

George M. Charbonneau of this city, chairman of the republican town committee, is being prominently mentioned for one of the appointments. He has the backing of the local republican town committee, of State Central Committeeman Albert J. Bailey and of a number of bankers and other business men in this section. A petition signed by a number of prominent citizens, favoring Mr. Charbonneau's appointment, has been presented to Governor Trumbull, it is said.

Another name mentioned for the appointment to the board is that of Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of this city. Mrs. Higgins has the backing of women's organizations, locally and state wide.

Former State Senator Fred Beckwith of Niantic is also being prominently mentioned for one of the appointments, and a fourth candidate is E. Frank Morgan, former mayor of New London. Mr. Beckwith is politically prominent in what is known as the "Shoestring district," which includes all the towns in New London county, with the exception of Norwich, New London, Groton, Ledyard and Preston.

Mr. Morgan, the former mayor of New London, is supported by the republican town committee of his city and also has the support of State Central Committeeman Daniel M. Cronin.

It is felt that at least one of the appointments should come to Norwich, as this town has not been represented on the board since the death of George E. Fellows. There is at present only one commissioner on the board, Charles H. Smith of Noank.

There has been some delay in the appointments, owing to the fact, as Governor Trumbull said Thursday, that the state central committeemen in this section have been unable to agree upon the candidates.

It is possible that the governor will make but one appointment at the present time, leaving the other appointment to be filled by the legislature early next year. As a matter of fact the terms of all three offices will expire in October, 1931, and the legislature will make three appointments to the board early next year.

UNCAS-ON-THAMES DOCTOR MARRIED IN BROOKLYN

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Edward Birdseye announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Dr. Archibald James Abernethy, on June 2, 1930, at Brooklyn, New York.

Dr. and Mrs. Abernethy will be at home, at Uncas-on-Thames, after July 1. He has been resident physician at the sanatorium for about two years, coming here from Quebec.

Wins Honors In Art

Miss Katherine Eggleton of New London is in the list of final awards as announced by the jury at the School of Fine Arts, Boston.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS GET MUSIC INSTRUCTION

Under the sponsorship of the Connecticut Institute of Music, a musical development of considerable magnitude and promise for the future has been going on for the past seven months with Norwich public school pupils in the formation of classes in instrumental music. The instruments have been furnished for every child who showed a desire to learn to play and the instruction has been given by William J. Malone and Walter W. Lang. Between 150 and 160 children of all grades and all ages from 8 years old up have been enrolled and for the past seven or eight weeks rehearsals have been progressing diligently for the orchestra concert which will be a climax of their season.

Ever Quiet!

Only after fifteen years of painstaking development by the scientists and engineers of the Research Laboratories of General Electric was a refrigerator designed which was thought worthy to bear the General Electric name.

This group of men sought to develop not only a highly efficient and economical electric refrigerator, but in addition, they demanded that it be superlatively quiet in operation.

And they succeeded. All the mechanism of the General Electric Refrigerator is up on top. The whole mechanism is hermetically sealed in a steel casing. The user never oils it, never tinkers with it—never needs to.

A small down payment and conveniently spaced terms will place any model in your home. See them all at our display rooms.

HOOVER WITHHOLDS NOTES LEADING TO NAVAL PARLEY

Refused to Turn Them Over to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—They Had Been Requested By Senator Johnson, Republican, Who Is Opposed to the Naval Treaty—Secretary Stimson, Who Brought President Hoover's Letter of Refusal to Senator Borah, Gave "A Confidential Memorandum Which Will Answer As Far As Possible the Questions Contained In Johnson's Letter."

WASHINGTON, June 6. — (AP) — President Hoover today refused to turn over to the senate foreign relations committee the exchange of communications with other governments leading up to the London naval parley.

The president's decision was transmitted to Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee by Secretary Stimson in a letter which added assurance that "there have been no concealed understandings in this matter, nor are there any commitments whatever except as appear in the treaty itself."

The notes exchanged in negotiations leading up to the London conference and all related documents were requested by Senator Johnson, republican, California, who is opposed to the naval treaty. Neither Senator Johnson nor Senator Borah commented tonight on the attitude of the administration and the effect of the decision was problematical.

Mr. Stimson brought his letter of refusal to Chairman Borah personally and accompanied it with a "confidential memorandum which will answer as far as possible the questions contained in Senator Johnson's letter of June 2."

The secretary's letter recalled that George Washington had declined to transmit state papers to the house and he recalled later at the state department that President Harding had refused to send to the senate some of the papers in the 1922 Washington naval conference.

"The question whether this treaty is or is not in the interest of the United States and should or should not be ratified by the senate must in the last event be determined from the language of the document itself and not from extraneous matter," Mr. Stimson bluntly told the senators.

Pending a study of the Stimson memorandum, Senator Johnson withheld comment.

Meanwhile, Senator Borah prepared to call the committee together on Monday to consider action on the treaty. He said meetings would be held daily until the committee makes a report. Advocates are confident of an overwhelming majority for the treaty in the committee.

Whether the pact will be taken up in the regular session is advocated by some of the republican young guard, or laid over for a special session, as proposed by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, and other party chieftains appeared unsettled.

Secretary Stimson described as "nonsense" any talk that "these confidential papers are being kept confidential in order to cover up some secret understanding or some mistake or indiscretion on the American delegates."

His letter to Senator Borah follows, in part:

"Respecting the other papers called for I am directed by the president to say that their production would not in his opinion be compatible with the public interest. These call for the production and possible publication of informal and confidential conversations, communications and tentative suggestions of a kind which are common to almost every negotiation and without which such negotiations can not successfully be carried on. If the confidence in which they were made to the American delegation in London is broken, it would materially impair the possibility of future successful negotiations between this government and other nations.

"The necessity of preserving such confidences was made clear by President Washington at the very beginning of the government. In reply to a resolution of the house of representatives of March 24, 1796, he said:

"'The nature of foreign negotiations requires caution and their success must often depend on secrecy, and even when brought to a conclusion a full disclosure of all the measures, demands or eventual concessions which may have been proposed or contemplated would be extremely impolitic; for this might have a pernicious influence on future negotiations, or produce immediate inconveniences, perhaps danger and mischief, in relation to other powers.'

"Both the secretary of the navy and I have been before your committee and have been examined at length. Officers of the navy have also freely given their views to your committee. Moreover, two members of your committee were members of the American delegation at London and are familiar with every phase of the negotiations from beginning to end and stand ready to make their knowledge available to interested members of your committee. x x x

"There have been no concealed understandings in this matter, nor are there any commitments whatever except as appear in the treaty itself and the interpretive exchange of notes recently suggested by your committee, all of which are now in the hands of the senate."

GRAF EPPELIN IS NOW RESTING AT HOME BASE

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 6—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin rested tonight at her home base. At the end of a history making voyage which had carried her to North and South America, over a portion of Africa and twice across the equator in 19 days.

Dodging terrific electrical storms that threatened her with disaster over southern France, the Graf detoured to Germany, turning aside from her customary course is the Rhone valley and passing over Solestre, near the Swiss frontier.

The last two days of the Graf's voyage were made memorable by first the most unseasonable weather Spain has witnessed in years and again by just such an atmospheric disturbance as all but wrecked Dr. Hugo Eckner's giant dirigible in 1929 when she was forced to abandon an Atlantic crossing at a point near the suburbs of Valence and finally landed near Toulon.

A wildly enthusiastic throng greeted the returning voyagers at the end of her seventh transatlantic crossing. Soon after the ship was tied to her mast the Graf's commander began to make plans for other activities of the Zeppelin which will keep the dirigible in the air much of the time.

NEITHER CONTESTANT TO BE GIVEN SEAT IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 6. — (AP)— A house elections committee today decided that neither Vincent L. Palmisano nor John Phillip Hill was entitled to be seated from the third congressional district of Maryland.

Representative Perkins, republican, New Jersey, acting chairman of the committee, said the group was divided on both the contestant and the contestee.

"We decided that Hill was not elected," Perkins said, "and that Palmisano should not be seated."

The vote in each case, he said, was five to three.

"The reason we decided that Palmisano was not entitled to the seat," Perkins said, "was because of the fraudulent voting, registration, and entire disregard of the election laws in the counting of ballots in Palmisano's home precinct."

The vote against seating Hill, he said, was three democrats and two republicans, and to seat Hill three republicans. The vote to seat Palmisano was three democrats and against five republicans, he added.

KILLED WHILE MOTORING TO SUMMER HOME IN CONN.

WASHINGTON, Conn., June 6.—(AP) —Word was received here of the death today at Wilmington, N. C., from automobile injuries of William S. Franklin, who was motoring to his summer home here with his wife from Winter Garden, Fla.

Mr. Franklin, for many years was a science professor at Lehigh university and until recently was on the faculty at Rollins university at Winter Garden. Mrs. Franklin, who was driving the automobile at the time of the accident Wednesday, formerly resided here.

89.1 PER CENT ALCOHOL STAIN NOT PROHIBITED

NEW HAVEN, June 6.—(AP)—Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the U. S. district court ruled in a decision handed down today that stain, even though it contains 89.1 per cent alcohol, is not liquor and its importation into the United States cannot be prohibited by the courts.

The case centered about efforts of prohibition officials to obtain a condemnation by decree of forfeiture of five drums of stain exported to this city by the Charlotten Chemisch Fabrik, of Montreal. Analyzed, the stain was found to contain 89.1 per cent alcohol and then formally seized by prohibition officials on the grounds that the large percentage of alcohol in the stain made it contraband.

"If," Judge Thomas ruled, "for the better enforcement of the national prohibition act, it seems advisable that importation of stains containing alcohol be prohibited by regulation or otherwise, the congress alone has the power so to declare and no such authority is vested in the courts."

Judge Thomas also ruled that the liquid in question did not lose its characterization as stain even though it contained the large percentage of alcohol.

ANOTHER BILL VETOED BY PRESIDENT HOOVER

WASHINGTON, June 6.—(AP)—Acting upon recommendations of Attorney General Mitchell, President Hoover today vetoed the house bill authorizing the United States to be made a party to a suit by the state of Oregon in the federal district court to determine the title to lands constituting the beds of Malheur and Harney lakes.

It was the second time in two weeks that the chief executive has exercised his veto power, his disapproval of the Spanish-American war veterans pension bill later being overridden by both the senate and house.

The Oregon veto message was accompanied by the ruling of the attorney general in which he held the supreme court was the proper place to settle the litigation involved.

NO GUARDS FOR SHIP OWNERS AGAINST CHINESE PIRATES

SHANGHAI, June 6—(AP)—Guards against pirates no longer will be furnished British ship owners and shippers, according to official notice from the British government.

With piracy at new heights, the order has caused great concern here. In South China seldom a week has passed this year without an act of piracy being committed.

The order is likely to have the effect of sharply curtailing shipments.

TEXAN KILLED WHEN TWO SEATER BIPLANE FELL

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, June 6 —(AP)—Crates Deuthitt, about 25, of Henrietta, Texas, was killed and Warren Fannin of Ashland, Ky., was seriously injured today when a two-seater biplane fell in the Hillcrest addition here.

WARSAW, Poland, June 6—(AP)—The Polish government definitely rejected the proposal of the Harriman interests to electrify six provinces in central Poland.

LILLE, France, June 6—(AP)—Dissatisfaction with the activities of American customs officials in France was one of the first things Ambassador Edge encountered on his third visit to French industrial regions now in progress.

LONDON, June 5—(AP)—The Marquis de Montcalm, lineal descendent of the great French general who fought General James Wolfe and his English troops on the Plains of Abraham at Quebec, unveiled a statue to the memory of General Wolfe.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 6 —(AP)—Five hundred soldiers worked in relays at Curragh preparing the ground for the take off of Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, who will start westward over the Atlantic as soon as the weather is favorable.

CHURCH ORGANIZATIONS TO SHARE EQUALLY $350,000

NEW HAVEN, June 6.—(AP)— Five church organizations will share equally approximately $350,000, it became known today with the filing of an order in probate court for distribution of the residuary estate of Susan L. Bradley, who died here in 1915.

They are the American Bible society, New York; trustees of the board of missions of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America; board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America; American board of commissioners for foreign missions (Congregational), and the Congregational Home Missionary society founded in New York city in 1826.

Several New Haven charitable and church organizations were bequeathed about $50,000.

M'NEIL GUEST OF HARTFORD COUNTY DEM. WOMEN

NEW BRITAIN, June 6.—(AP)—Archibald McNeil, of Bridgeport, democratic national committeeman, this evening was guest and speaker at the business meeting of the Hartford County club of democratic women, held here.

In his remarks, Mr. McNeil said that he did not look for a "political upheaval at the fall election." He dropped into prophecy by saying in part:

"I do predict that there will be substantial democratic gains throughout the country and that our party will increase its representation in congress."

FORGOT GRANDDAUGHTER IN MAKING OUT PASSPORTS

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—Three months old Nellie Labourdette, granddaughter of Former Governor Nathan L. Miller, technically was a prisoner on Ellis Island today. Actually she was at her grandfather's home.

Her parents forgot to mention her in making out their passports, and when they arrived on the Berengaria last night they discovered that their daughter was barred from coming in with them. A little red tape was cut temporarily and matters are expected to be arranged in Washington.

BODY OF YOUNG MAN FOUND ON HIGHWAY

MARSHALL, N. C., June 6—(AP)—The body of a man tentatively identified as O. K. Bryant of Greenville, Tenn., was found on the highway near Marshall early today. He apparently had been beaten to death with a bloody club which was nearby.

Officers learned the man had been seen with two Negroes in an automobile on the highway last night. Physicians said the body was that of a man about 20 years of age.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS RETURN FROM FRANCE

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—Mothers of heroes, the first little group of the 6,000 whom two republics will honor this summer in grateful recognition of the sacrifice they made, came back to the homeland today from the graves of their sons in France.

As they depart tomorrow for the cities and hamlets and countrysides to which their boys never returned, each will carry with her a picture—one exalted, moving moment—that she will never, never forget.

BILL FOR UNDERGROUND MAIL TUBES IN BOSTON

WASHINGTON, June 6—(AP)—The postmaste general, would be authorized to construct underground pneumatic tubes for the transportation of mail between the general post office at Boston, Mass., and the Boston airport at East Boston under a bill introduced today by Representative Douglass, democrat, Massachusetts.

OBITUARY

A. L. Mohler

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP) — A. L. Mohler, of New York, former president of the Union Pacific railroad, died today in St. Anthony hospital. Mr. Mohler, who was past 80 years of age, was stricken with a heart attack a week ago. Yesterday he suffered a paralytic stroke.

He was en route to northern Wisconsin on a fishing trip when taken ill in Chicago.

Marcus White

NEW BRITAIN, June 6.—(AP)—Marcus White, who until his retirement last year was prominently identified as principal with the growth and development of the New Britain State Normal school, died at his home early today, following a long illness, at the age of 68 years.

Mr. White came to New Britain from the Norwich Free academy to succeed Clarence F. Carroll as principal of the normal school.

G. D. Eaton

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)— G. P. Eaton, founder and editor of the magazine Plain Talk, died tonight in St. Mark's hospital of heart disease. He was about 35 years old.

Since he left the University of Michigan during the World war, Mr. Eaton has been active in newspaper and literary work. During the last three years, since Plain Talk was founded, he devoted himself to the magazine. Earlier he contributed to magazines, notably the American Mercury, and published a novel, "Back Furrow."

For a time, he was on the staff of the Associated Press in New York. He also was connected with the Morning Telegraph here, and with several newspapers in Detroit.

He was born in Michigan.

Trolleymen's Wages Same As Last Year

Agreement Signed By Officials of the Union and the Connecticut Company.

NEW HAVEN, June 6—(AP)—Wages paid operators of cars and buses, the shopmen and power house men by the Connecticut company, will be the same for the next year as they have been for the year, which ended June 1. The agreement between the executive committee of the trolleymen's union and the company was signed here this afternoon.

The men had asked for increases. The company had replied that conditions which the company is expecting did not warrant an increase but was willing to put into force the schedule which had expired. After several weeks of conversations the question of empowering the committee to accept the company's offer was put to a vote. Balloting began yesterday afternoon and was completed this morning. The result was not announced, but later the committee notified the company's officers that the wage scale offered would be accepted, and signing of an agreement followed.

Whether there were any modifications applicable to local conditions was not made known. The agreement covers the general wage situation.

THREAT OF DEPORTATION TO CHECK TONG WARFARE

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—The threat of deportation today was invoked by police and federal authorities to check what they believed to be the beginning of another tong war.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney has called into conference tomorrow the leaders of the On Leongs and Hip Sings, most powerful of the tong organizations in this country, between which the trouble seems to be brewing. They will be warned that the killings must stop or certain Chinese may be deported.

"We are treating it as a tong war," Mulrooney said. "These things are like fires. Unless they are checked at once they are likely to spread. We don't know what the grievance is—gambling propensities and high play—desertion of one tong for another and betrayal of secrets, blackmail, or perhaps a little racketeering, white man style."

ROCKEFELLER OFFERS LAND FOR PUBLIC PARK

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)— John D. Rockefeller, Jr., offered to the city of New York today, a 60-acre tract in Washington Heights, in northern Manhattan, for a public park, and offered to spend about $5,000,000 to make the tract, valued at $7,000,000 suitable for public purposes.

Mr. Rockefeller tendered the $12,000,000 gift in a letter to Mayor Walker, who characterized it as "a very gracious offer." Action on it was deferred until a meeting of the board of estimate on June 13.

Former Mayor Hylan refused to accept Rockefeller park gifts during his administration because of "strings" attached to the offers. In connection with today's gift, Mr. Rockefeller asked city permission to close parts of two East Side streets adjoining the Rockefeller institute for medical research.

COL. LINDBERGH MADE FLIGHT WITH WIFE

TETERBORO AIRPORT, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., June 6—(AP)—Accompanied by his wife, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today took up a small monoplane in a test flight of half an hour over the metropolitan area. A landing was made at Newark airport for refueling.

The test was made for the owners of the plane, the Engineers' Aviation corporation of Stamford The Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh drove to the airport in an automobile.

EDGE HEARS TALK OF TARIFF REPRISALS BY FRANCE

TOURCOING, France, June 6—(AP)—The menace of tariff reprisals by France and Europe against the United States was pictured to Ambassador Walter E. Edge tonight in graphic style by Jules Joire, president of the Tourcoing chamber of commerce, during the ambassador's renewed tours of industrial France.

The dinner was given jointly by the Roubaix and Tourcoing chambers.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR SAMUEL B. THORNE

GREENWICH, June 6—(AP) —Funeral services were held here today for Samuel Brinckerhoff Thorne, former Yale football star and widely known in the coal industry, who died suddenly in New York Tuesday. Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington, D. C., officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. Frederick G. Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church, here. The burial was in Woodland cemetery, New York.

Tribesmen Kidnaped Two British Officers

Wife of One of the Officers Also Was Abducted—Negotiating For Their Release.

BOMBAY, India, June 6—(AP)— Arrest of tribesmen on the northwestern frontier continues to focus the anxious attention of the Europeans here, coupled with the news that two British officers and the wife of one of them were kidnaped by border Afridis.

The British have used airplanes against the hostile men of the hills, and tonight the situation on the frontier appears to be in hand. A number of Royal Air force machines and a column of infantry engaged a force of Afridi tribesmen which had penetrated almost to the walls of Peshawar, and something resembling pitched battles were fought. Although details are lacking, it is understood the tribesmen suffered heavy casualties and the military forces a few.

The Europeans kidnaped were Major E. L. Marley, a sapper stationed at Queeta, Captain J. C. Frere of the Twelfth Secunderabad Infantry brigade, and his wife.

The incident occurred Wednesday afternoon at a point seven miles from Chaman. The three were traveling in two motorcars driven by Indians and were held up by a barricade of rocks. Scarcely had the machines stopped when the raiders fell upon the occupants and carried them across the frontier.

The first news of the event was received in Chaman from the engineer of a train which passed close to the spot shortly afterwards. Seeing the barricade and the two empty cars, he stopped for an investigation and then rushed at full speed to Chaman.

Police and troops sped to the spot but were unable to overtake the raiders before they crossed the border into Afghanistan six miles distant.

It was learned that the kidnaped persons were placed on camels and taken to a Nomad village near Kunchal, about 20 miles southwest of Chaman in Afghan territory, where they spent Wednesday and Thursday nights.

A Jirga (tribal gathering) of local chiefs was sent to find the raiders and one of them, Hakem Spin Baldak, was requested to handle the negotiations. Yesterday he sent a small group to Kunchal, but when their negotiations were futile, he went in person, accompanied by a body of Afghan troops in six motor trucks. It was believed the release would be effected shortly.

It was reported that the prisoners have been treated considerately. No motive for the kidnaping has yet been established.

A. T. PANTAGES RELEASED FROM JAIL UNDER $100,000 BOND

LOS ANGELES, June 6—(AP)—Alexander T. Pantages, multimillionaire theatre owner was released from the county jail late today under $100,000 bond after he had been in custody since October pending decision on his appeal from a one to 50 year penitentiary sentence for criminal assault.

Pantages won in the state supreme court today the fight he had waged since December for release on bond in order that he might obtain expert medical care for a heart ailment, recurrent attacks of which had caused his confinement in the jail hospital for five months.

The court ruled the man's life was endangered by his confinement.

In the corridors of the Hall of Justice Pantages was met by his wife, his daughter and one son, Lloyd Pantages. The family departed immediately for the Pantages residence, where the multimillionaire will remain under care of his physicians.

A NEW MINISTRY HAS BEEN FORMED IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, June 6—(AP)—Carl Gustaf Ekman, head of the people's party, formed a new ministry today with himself as premier and minister of defense. Baron Ramel takes the other outstanding post, that of foreign minister.

The new premier succeeds Arvid Lindman, who resigned with his cabinet, after being defeated on a proposed increase in tariff duties. He was premier from June, 1926, to September, 1928. An interesting feature of his life is that he once was a blacksmith.

WOMEN'S CLUBS REMAIN IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITION

The prohibition resolution is expected to meet no opposition when it is brought up for action tomorrow.

"You Are Wanted on the Phone"

You are prompt to respond to the ring of your phone. The very idea that someone has a personal message for you intrigues your interest.

Has it ever occurred to you that back of every advertisement in The Bulletin there is some one with a personal message for you? More often than not these advertisements were written with you in mind. It is impossible for most merchants and manufacturers to give you a phone call about their goods, their wares, or their services. So they pay use for the privilege of calling these things to your attention in our advertising columns.

Give an advertisement the same attention you give to a phone call. Many of them are just as important to you—and just as interesting. They will help you to economize and keep posted on news of vital interest to you and your pocketbook.

Don't lay The Bulletin aside today—any day—without reading the advertisements. They are personal calls for you.

SENATE SUSTAINS POISON IN DENATURING ALCOHOL

Defeated By An Overwhelming Vote An Effort to Prevent By Legislation the Use of Poisons—Vote Was Taken After Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, Had Blocked Consideration of a Bill to Tighten Prohibition Enforcement In the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, June 6—(AP)—The senate again crushed by an overwhelming vote today an effort to prevent by legislation the use of poisons in denaturing industrial alcohol.

The latest of repeated attempts by Senator Tydings, democrat, Maryland, was defeated 45 to 16, after he had blocked consideration of the Howell bill to tighten prohibition enforcement in the District of Columbia.

Tydings attempted to attach the amendment to a bill to regulate the labelling of canned fruits and vegetables.

After its defeat, the Marylander said he would re-offer the proposal when "some measure for the conservation of wood or hogs or public lands or forest or something else that usually gets unanimous approval is before the senate."

In objecting to the Howell bill, Tydings said that it would make it a crime to take a drink anywhere in Washington.

He described an Army-Navy football game in Baltimore several years ago after which, he said, 1,000 glass flasks were found in the stadium in which the president and other high officials had occupied seats.

"If the army, the navy and the government have so little regard for drinking in public," he asserted, "I don't believe that the mere passage of a law will stop it here in Washington."

The bill was returned to the senate calendar.

SHOW DOWN ON TARIFF BILL EXPECTED BY NEXT FRIDAY

WASHINGTON, June 6. —(AP)— A final show down on the tariff bill in the senate is anticipated by leaders of all factions by next Friday at the latest.

Under an agreement proposed today by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, and consented to unanimously by the senate, that branch will take a single vote on the two conference reports comprising the Hawley-Smoot measure.

While at least one republican, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has not yet made up his mind whether to support the bill, majority chieftains are claiming victory by one or two votes after conceding several doubtful votes to the opposition. Senator Reed said he would not make a decision until he had made a further study of the conference changes. He was abroad attending the naval conference when most of the final revision took place.

Should the measure pass the senate next Friday, republican leaders look for final house action the following Monday or Tuesday.

The conferees today corrected all but one of the rate sections against which democratic points of order were made and sustained yesterday by Vice President Curtis. They deferred until Monday a final rewriting of the match sections to meet opposition challenges.

NATIONALIST CHINESE ARE FIGHTING DESPERATELY

SHANGHAI, June 6.— (AP)— The nationalist government's armies battled desperately today to hold back the rebel tide rolling from both north and south toward central China.

After fighting for a month to halt the northern alliance rebels driving through Honan and Shantung provinces toward Nanking, the capital, the government was called upon to meet the menace from the south. Kwangsi province rebels and bandit hordes numbering 80,000 from several provinces, advanced today to attack the nationalists at their new base south of Yochow, province of Hunan.

Driven yesterday from Changsha by the rebels, 10,000 nationalists retreated northward to form defense lines with the large Tungting lake on their right and the broad Yangtse river to their rear. The nationalist government, realizing the gravity of this rebel thrust at the tri-cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, commercial and strategic centers of China, ordered all available troops mustered.

BRIDGE IN BOSTON WAS DAMAGED $300,000 BY FIRE

BOSTON, June 6.—(AP)—Fire believed to have been started by spontaneous combustion destroyed the main draw and part of the approach to the L Street bridge, one of three spans from the city proper to South Boston, severed light, telephone and street car lines and crippled rush hour traffic late today. One fireman was severely burned and another rescued from drowning. It was estimated that temporary repairs would cost over $300,000 and a new bridge $1,000,000.

COMMITTED SUICIDE IN HARTFORD COUNTY JAIL

HARTFORD, Conn., June 6. —(AP)— Louis Niedzwiecki, 22, of New Britain, sentenced to state prison for from 1 to 3 years in criminal superior court here yesterday for carrying concealed weapons, preferred death to incarceration and committed suicide by swallowing poison in a cell in the Hartford county jail today.

FIRE REVEALED HUGE ALCOHOL DISTILLERY

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—A fire in a six story warehouse in midtown Manhattan, of which the first floor only was supposed to be occupied, has revealed what prohibition agents described as the biggest alcohol distillery uncovered in the east.

The fire occurred in the early hours of yesterday.

As firemen searched the ruins they found three bodies, police started an investigation. Federal agents joined them.

They discovered that copper pipes ran through all the floors, and found ruins of what they took to be big alcohol vats. In an adjoining garage were nine trucks, loaded with ingredients used in the making of alcohol.

They said the trucks gave evidence of having been operated in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

The building for several years was occupied by a paint and varnish company, but it moved out about a year ago and an "Oil Engine corporation" moved in, but was to occupy only the first floor. Agents said there was little evidence to show any engines had been built there.

United States Attorney Tuttle today started an investigation into the ownership of the building and the oil engine company.

STUDENT INSANE WHEN HE PERPETRATED TRAGEDY

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., June 6—(AP)— A coroner's jury today found that Undergraduate Douglas Newton Potts, Kings college, was insane when he shot and killed himself and Dr. A. F. F. Wollaston, distinguished cleniist and explorer, and Detective Sergeant Willis were murdered in a tragedy that for the last week has rocked the very foundations of the historic institution.

The verdict, as announced this evening, was that Potts during a fit of temporary insanity, committed suicide. It recited that during his temporary insanity Dr. Wollaston and Willis were slain.

The coroner deliberated on all three deaths at a single hearing and took testimony of a number of Potts' fellow students.

The testimony brought out that Potts had lived a strange life recently, one of his former friends testifying that Potts had proposed they "embark upon a life of crime." He said he had considered Potts merely joking. "There was no crime in our minds at all," the youthful witness said. "His words 'a career of crime' meant nothing at all."

OFFER OF ABOUT $400,000,000 TREASURY CERTIFICATES

WASHINGTON, June 6—(AP)—The treasury today offered for subscription about $400,000,000 of treasury certificates to mature in one year carrying two and seven-eighths per cent interest. The issue will be dated June 16, 1930.

The easy money rates throughout the country were reflected in the offering, which is the first in a long time to carry less than 3 per cent interest. The amount which may be more or less than the $400,000,000 announced is expected to take care of the treasury's needs until September.

As the fiscal year closes the treasury will have $550,000,000 of treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing on June 16 and about $95,000,00 in interest payments on the public debt payable on the same day.

CARAWAY NOT INTERESTED IN CALLING BISHOP CANNON

DEXTER, Mo., June 6—(AP)—Senator T. H. Caraway of Arkansas, chairman of the senate lobby committee, plans to return immediately to Washington to confer with committee members regarding the refusal of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., to answer questions asked by the members.

"I do not think it was ever the committee's intention to attempt to force Bishop Cannon to discuss his campaign activities against Alfred E. Smith for the presidency," Senator Caraway said. "As far as I am concerned I am not interested in calling the bishop for questioning."

Senator Caraway returned to his native county here today to address a southeast Missouri democratic rally.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson today opened his inquest into the death of Joseph Blanchard, 21, reserving his decision until he had received a report on the specimen taken during an autopsy and sent to New Haven laboratories by Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason. Much importance is attached to this report on the specimen to determine the cause of death and its possible relations to the beating-up Blanchard is alleged to have received at the hands of three companions about three months previously.

Coroner Bill today questioned Arthur Roberts, Napoleon Arton and Phillipp St. Hilaire, alleged to have assaulted Blanchard, also Mrs. Marie Parent Blanchard, mother of the deceased, Miss Yvonne Blanchard, his sister, Medical Examiner Mason and Joseph Peppler. It was announced today that no charges are pending against Roberts, Arton and St. Hilaire at the present time.

CHAMPLIN-STOKES CASE CONTINUED TO MONDAY

Judge Leonidas Poulot, Jr., at the opening of Washington county superior court at 11:00 a. m. Friday after a conference with Attorneys John J. Dunn and Clarence E. Roche, representing the plaintiff and defendant, respectively, in the $6,000 suit, stated that the case would go over to Monday next. The suit was brought by Jeruthan R. Champlin of South Kingstown against J. G. Phelps Stokes of New York for services rendered and material and supplies in the reclamation project in the draining of the Indian Cedar swamp, so-called, lying mostly in the town of Charlestown, R. I. Much of the evidence in the case has been in the form of a vast number of letters exchanged and which have been read into the court records.

When court convened Friday morning the defendant, J. G. Phelps Stokes, continued on the witness stand from the previous day under direct examination. Judge Poulot assured the jurymen that he would have every effort made to see that they, having already served three days over the two weeks required, would be through with the case so far as the court was concerned. He accordingly made the Friday noon recess a short one, adjourning at 12:45 and re-convening at 1:45 p. m.

Sale Of Beach Property

June 4, Julian L. Pignolet and wife, Florida, of Woonsocket, R. I., sold to Julian Suprika of Hopkinton land with buildings and improvements at Misquamicut, bounded easterly by Winnapaug road, northerly by other lands of grantor, southwesterly by Railway Co. land and southerly by land of James P. Reale.

FUNERAL

Henry Brevoort Kane

Funeral services for Henry Brevoort Kane were held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at St. Peter's-By-the-Sea, the Episcopal chapel at Narragansett. Beautiful floral tributes banked the chancel of the church, where many summer guests, townspeople and church members were in attendance. At the front of the auditorium the vestrymen occupied reserved pews and seated just back of them were members of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly and Masonic brethren and other fraternal associates. Mr. Kane had been an active worker in the church's interests and was its junior warden and a tribute to his activities was paid by the rector, Rev. W. H. P. Allen, who declared that Mr. Kane was the last member of the old board of trustees of the church when he first came to the pastorate. The full Episcopal church burial service was read by the rector and his assistant and the music was by the vested church choir. The rector directed his listeners, "Look about you as you pass out and see the evidences of his love and affection for his church" and concluded "I believe that in the life which is to come he will be found as faithful and loyal as in that which has gone."

Commander Francis M. Johnson and Captain General Fred W. Harvey of Narragansett commandery, Westerly, were among the honorary bearers. Following the church services the body was placed aboard a special train on which the funeral party proceeded to New York, the birthplace of Mr. Kane, although he had been identified with the social and political life of Narragansett for many years. Mr. Kane, after a lengthy illness, was brought to that summer resort from New York in an ambulance only a few weeks ago. His condition became steadily worse and he died Tuesday evening at his home on Central street.

He was known in Rhode Island for his service in the general assembly, later for his overseas service during the World war, also for his interest in the social life of Narragansett when that summer resort was at its height. He also served terms on the Narragansett town council in addition to holding several other offices in that town.

MRS. GINESE, NORWICH, DIES AT HOME OF SON

Mrs. Domenica Ginese, 64, wife of James Ginese of Norwich, died at the home of her son, Natales Fusaro, 18 John street, Westerly, Friday morning. While in failing health she had been a guest at the home of her son for a few days. Mrs. Ginese was born in Acri, Italy, and first married Carl Fusaro, who died 23 years ago in St. George, Italy. After his death she came to Norwich and 18 years ago married James Genise, who survives.

The usual summer additions to the force of Westerly post office have been made by the naming of eleven substitute carriers and clerks. Their appointment has been announced by Postmaster Thomas F. Lenihan. With these new men, the total force during July and August will be 48. Postmaster Lenihan expects carrier service at the Watch Hill and Misquamicut branch offices will start the latter part of this month. This summer there will be three carriers at Watch Hill and two at Misquamicut. Extra clerks will also be assigned to these offices within a few weeks. The eleven substitutes who have been appointed for summer are: Charles J. McCarthy, J. Raymond Burke, Charles J. Butler, Richard Dower, Raymond Spargo, Arthur J. Edmond, William J. Murray, Samuel Farago, Samuel J. Bean, James Levanti and W. Edward Lord.

At the 58th annual commencement exercises of Westerly high school, Henry Garfield Clark of Shannock, a graduate of Westerly high school, class of 1902, will deliver the commencement day address at the exercises to be held in the Town hall, June 25. The graduation at the high school, when 72 pupils will receive diplomas, will be held in the afternoon and in the morning of the same day 75 pupils from Elm street grammar school will be graduated.

Graduation exercises at the Bradford school will take place on the afternoon of June 24.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George H. Noyes

Mrs. Abbie Burdick Noyes, 79, wife of George H. Noyes, died Friday at her home in Haversham. She was a native of Charlestown, the daughter of Herbert A. and Abbie H. Burdick. Since her marriage in 1874 she has lived in this vicinity except for about five years spent on Fishers Island. Besides her husband Mrs. Noyes leaves a daughter, Mrs. William Wheeler, who has made her home with her mother since the failing of her mother's health. Seven grandchildren also survive. A son, Harry Noyes of Haversham, died about two years ago.

Firemen's Memorial Sunday

Firemen's Memorial day will be observed in Westerly Sunday next in keeping with firemen throughout the country. Graves will be decorated and services will be held at River Bend cemetery. Members of the three fire companies, the Cyclones, R. I. Ones and Hook and Ladder, will meet at the central fire station on Union street Sunday afternoon and at 2 o'clock will march to River Bend cemetery. The parade will be headed by Sheiby C. Nicholas, marshal, and the Highland Pipe band. Members of the Westerly fire police will participate in the parade.

Downie-Bloomfield

Miss Eleanor Bloomfield of Newport and Charles E. Downie, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Downie of Westerly were married Wednesday evening at the rectory of the Episcopal church in Newport by the rector, Rev. Mr. Light. Miss Sarah Bloomfield, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and her brother, William Bloomfield, was best man. After a wedding trip to Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Downie will make their home at the Kenyon house, Quonochontaug, of which the groom is proprietor. The bride is a registered nurse and has been located at Hoxie.

MYSTIC

In the D. A. R. magazine just received by local members, the total membership is 173,157 and the membership for Connecticut 6,886. Among the items of interest are two cartoons which were published in Washington, D. C., papers during the National congress. One is entitled, "Always on Guard," and shows a woman standing, with the letters D. A. R. on the crown she is wearing. The other picture shows "Persistent Patriotic Picketers," three women carrying banners, first No Entangling Alliances, second National Defense, and three No Sovietism. There is a poem, "Our America," by Rev. George E. Magill, a picture of the prize-winning float in the Tournament of Roses held in Los Angeles, Cal., last winter; also the notice of the death of a real Daughter, Mrs. Helen M. Barrett, of Allegan, Mich., May 12, aged 99. She was admitted to the D. A. R., June 3, 1897. An interesting story is the one in regard to Fort Green chapter, Brooklyn, N. Y., which has a collection of historic memorial flags, founded in 1926 by Alice A. Driggs. There are reproductions of flags that played an important part in the early history of America. There are Connecticut and Rhode Island flags in the collection. These flags have been exhibited on many occasions. They are 4 1-2 feet by 5 1-2 feet in size, are mounted and are very beautiful in color, many having embroidered coats of arms. The collection is being added to all the time.

The nominating committee of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., met Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Lucy B. Kellogg. The committee is composed of Miss M. Josephine Dickinson, chairman; Miss Frances Pendleton, Stonington, and Miss Lucy B. Kellogg, of Mystic.

Mrs. E. William Holmes, of Old Mystic, spent the day with Mrs. W. G. McLean, of White Rock.

Emily Stoddard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour A. Stoddard, celebrated her tenth birthday Thursday afternoon. The usual games were played and refreshments served. The decorations were pink and white. Attending were: June and Gertrude Fenner, Helen Donnelly, Priscilla Johnson, Lucy Taylor, Aletta Wilson, Phoebe Lamphere, Mary Shepler, Alma Wilbur, Seymour Stoddard, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hershey and daughter, Betty, of Arlington Heights, Mass., have been visiting relatives in the village.

Mrs. H. D. Gay is to sing "The Shepherd is Calling the Children" at the Sunday morning service at North Stonington Congregational church.

Cyril Goyette, of Holy Cross college, Worcester, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Goyette, for the summer vacation.

The June meeting of Mystic Visiting Nurse association will be held Monday evening.

Wednesday evening, June 11, at the local Methodist church, there is to be the first in a series of four special studies concerning the Holy Spirit. The subject of the first one will be "What Does the Holy Spirit Mean to You?"

Stonington Union at Mossup

The Stonington Union association of the Baptist churches will meet Wednesday next at the Baptist church in Mossup. The delegates from the Union Baptist church are: Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Allyn, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Hall, Mrs. David M. Bennett, Miss Harriet Fish and Mrs. Seymour A. Stoddard. Rev. L. J. Shepler, pastor, and Mrs. Julia B. Coates, clerk, are entitled to attend, also.

Harold Mitchell, of Hope Valley, visited friends in the village Wednesday evening.

Clarence Bliven, of Westerly, who has been employed in New London, has taken the position with the Prudential Insurance company recently given up by Judson Turney, who left it to take up his duties as day patrolman on the Stonington side of the town.

INDUSTRIAL COMPANY FILLS VACANCIES

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Mystic Industrial company was held in the B. F. Hoxie Engine rooms, Thursday evening, for the purpose of electing a new president and directors, to take the place of Clinton L. Allyn, president, and director, and Henry B. Noyes, director, deceased. Dr. George S. B. Leonard was elected president, Sidney S. Bieswick was elected a director and Felix L. Hulser was elected to succeed H. B. Noyes.

Mystic grange, No. 171, P. of H., met in Grange hall Thursday evening. Henry Barnes acted as master, until John J. Jones was elected to fill the place of James E. Main, resigned. The charter was draped for the late Sarah Frances Caperton. During the lecturer's hour, the following program was given by Miss Hazel Main, lecturer: Poem, by Kipling—Stanton King; sketch, Aunt Abigail's Bomb, with Mrs. Bessie Medbery as Aunt Abigail, Mrs. Maria Pierce as Sister Samantha and Miss Marian Whitford as Niece Alice; piano duet—Misses Beryl Marchand and Marian Whitford; address by Rev. William C. Fagan, pastor of the Congregational church.

Wednesday evening, the prayer meeting of Old Mystic Methodist church was postponed to enable any who wished to attend the Church Army services at St. Mark's Episcopal church, Mystic. DANIELSON

ALEXANDER LAKE COLONY MAY GET ELECTRIC SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 6—The ever growing cottage colony on the shores of Alexander's lake may have the benefit of electric service during the coming summer. Representatives of the Connecticut Light and Power company have been giving their attention to the matter. A pole line would have to be built over about a mile of territory to bring service to the cottagers on the north shore. Electric service already is provided at the dance pavilion at Wildwood park, near the south shore of the lake.

It is understood that some of the cottage owners are anxious to arrange for electric service, that they may be rid of the lamps they now use out there and that they might use during the summer season various electrical appliances to which they are accustomed in their permanent homes.

A. G. BILL HAS SERVED AS CORONER FOR 45 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 6—Attorney Arthur G. Bill, coroner for Windham county and just reappointed for another term of three years in that office, has filled the place for the past 45 years and undoubtedly is the dean of all such officials in the state of Connecticut. Upon the completion of the term he is just beginning will have 48 years of service as coroner to his credit, and he indicated this afternoon that he is looking forward to rounding out a full half century of service in the place.

In his capacity as coroner Attorney Bill has investigated many hundreds of cases of sudden and violent deaths since he first took office. He saw the dawn of the automobile age and in the more than a score of years since that time has looked upon the tragic effects of many motoring accidents. Only today Mr. Bill was busy with his duties as coroner, a mission taking him to Willimantic to hold an inquest. Mr. Bill said this afternoon that he has not appointed his medical examiners as yet, but will do so at once. No changes from the present list of appointees is anticipated.

Attorney Harry E. Back, member of the court of burgesses and warden for several years, gave assurance this morning that when the agreement is finally drawn for the bond issue that the borough has authorized that a provision will be included under which all outstanding bonds may be retired at once, if the borough so decides, without awaiting the gradual retiring of the bonds from year to year through a period of 25 years. Such a provision has been advocated the past two days by various citizens, and the borough officials are agreeable to it.

Another killing by dogs took place early this morning at the rabbit coops of Emerson Reynolds on the state highway leading to Wauregan and near Fall Brook. Sixteen rabbits lost their lives through the attack of two dogs, these animals tearing through wire netting to get at their victims. The loss was reported to First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast and a claim entered for compensation for the loss by the town. It is regarded as almost a certainty that the dogs that figured in this morning's killings are the same as those that have killed upwards of 40 chickens and 32 young ducks at the Ray Wood place on the Green Hollow road during the past ten days.

Danielson friends who call on members of the special troops of the 43d division stationed here and under command of Major E. L. Darbie when the boys are at Camp Devens for their annual tour of field service, Aug. 2-16, will witness sights worth seeing. There will be 6,000 National Guard troops from various New England states in camp at that time, and a big review is planned for the final Sunday of the encampment. Each year numbers of Danielson people call at camp while the local soldiers are in training. For years past this has been at Niantic, where the local Service battery is assigned for duty this year and to which members will go to visit with the officers and men of the organization of which Capt. Gordon J. Gale is the commanding officer.

Michael Dascoli picked a few peas from his garden this morning, the first of a fine crop that will be ready for picking not later than next Wednesday. The peas were planted March 30, and have come along splendidly. Mr. Dascoli also has the prospect of picking beans from his garden toward the end of this month.

When members of the Men's club of the Methodist Episcopal church gather next Wednesday evening it will be the last meeting until September.

Though many young people released from their studies for the summer usually find work in nearby territory during the long vacation season no great number of them will be able to find those scarce things called jobs this year.

Miss Helen Haveles of Elm street will be graduated from Pembroke college at Brown university June 16. Miss Haveles, a graduate of Killingly high school, is a candidate for final honors in Greek, French and English literature.

St. James' and P. and A. team No. 3 will open the Danielson Twilight league baseball season at Paco field, off Cottage street next Tuesday evening, and thereafter the six teams in the league will go on with the schedule that has been arranged for the season.

Census figures show that Killingly has only 136 farms, as against considerably larger numbers in various other towns of the county. This is indicative that Killingly is an industrial town. Much of Killingly's area that was once farm land is now given over to manufacturing plants and the communities that have grown up about them.

There was a deal of thanksgiving today for the cooling breezes that brought relief to this section after the extreme heat of the past three days.

Next Tuesday afternoon the Well Child conference is to be held at the Connecticut Light and Power company building.

Last evening members of the Danielson Rotary club entertained the members of the Boys' Swimming class at the Lawton Inn in Plainfield. The club has sponsored weekly meetings of the club at Plainfield through the winter and spring seasons.

Members of the Civic federation and of the Good Samaritan association at meetings held in the community room at the Brooklyn Savings bank this afternoon heard reports covering the past year's activities of the organizations.

Tuesday of next week the Six-church conference is to be held at the Congregational church in Brooklyn. Rev. G. B. Hawkes of Abington and Rev. Russell F. Linton are to be speakers. There are to be morning and afternoon sessions.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer was in Hartford today on a business trip.

Mrs. John Moran of Palmer street will have the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church at her home for a meeting next Wednesday afternoon.

Joseph Burton and Arthur DeForest, past commanders, will represent Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, as delegates from Voiture 724, at the state department convention.

Investigation of the robbery of N. P. Gingras store at Dayville the past week end has failed to date to bring definite results. Among other things stolen was a large and expensive radio set.

Dates early in July have been selected for this year's series of Chautauqua entertainments in Danielson.

JEWETT CITY

LAST OF 40,000 RIVETS IN PLACE ON VIADUCT

The last steel bolt at the railroad overhead in the Quinebaug viaduct was capped Thursday and the riveters and iron workers have left town for other jobs. Over 1,000 tons of steel has been taken off the flat cars, drawn to the different sections of the contract, without a mishap of any kind. Around 40,000 rivets have been used. White hot, these bolts were thrown varying distances from 10 to 30 feet and caught in a tin pail by a man who often stood on an 8-inch stringer 30 feet above the stream. No one as yet has figured their pitching and catching averages, but if they made an error, nobody has chalked it up and the sheet is clean. The specifications call for all this steel to be cased with cement.

The bottom levels were being laid for the north shoulders and gutters of the borough's new road Friday. This last section will be poured early next week. The changes in grade have made it necessary to reset several hundred feet of curb. Following the completion of the highway, the cement walks that have been raised or dropped will be restored. Several abutters on the new highway will also have new cement walks put in to replace the gravel, at their personal expense.

PUTNAM

CORONER WAITING FOR TESTIMONY OF BEDIGAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 6—Haig Bayanderian, 22, of Providence, R. I., driver of the motorcycle upon which Antranick Karakanian of Providence was killed, is still in custody of the local police and is being held at the police station where he has been since his arrest last Friday afternoon on a technical charge of manslaughter. It appears that Bayanderian will spend another week end at the police headquarters unless Haig Bedigan, also of Providence, the only eye witness to the fatality communicates with Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson and informs him that he will return to Connecticut to testify at an inquest which is to be made into the death of Karakanian.

Bedigan was a passenger in the sidecar of the ill-fated motorcycle which went out of control on cemetery curve on Grove street, Memorial day afternoon to plunge through several feet of highway fence. He escaped with a few minor bruises, and immediately upon his discharge from the Day Kimball hospital returned to his home in Providence saying that he would not return to Windham county again.

Coroner Bill said this afternoon that he will be unable to proceed with the inquest until such time as Bedigan consents to testify and until that time the driver of the motorcycle will have to remain in custody of the local police. Bedigan is unable to converse fluently in the English language, but through an interpreter, he indicated that the state will be forced to go through more or less so-called "red tape" before he will voluntarily return to the community where his friend met a tragic death. The interpreter stated Saturday, when the driver was arraigned in city court, that Bedigan had been frightened by reports of his associates that he would very likely be subjected to criminal charges in the event he remained in Connecticut. Informed that he would be safe from any prosecution by the state of Connecticut, if he would return at once to Providence, it was said that he departed without delay for Providence.

The false impression of the situation conceived by Bedigan is proving most inconvenient to Bayanderian, who is a prisoner at the police station, although through the courtesy of Captain Dubreuil who realizes the strain the young man is laboring under, he has been favored with innumerable liberties. Bayanderian expected Sunday that his liberties would be restored to him under bonds until the coroner has completed his inquest, but the failure of relatives residing in Stamford, Conn., to furnish bond of $3,000 set for his release necessitated that he remain a prisoner until the case is properly disposed of.

FUNERAL

Mrs. J. K. Jones

The funeral of Mrs. Jane Kennedy Jones was held this afternoon at two o'clock at her late home on Sunnyside avenue. The service was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Rev. Henry Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist church officiated and was assisted by Rev. James E. English, pastor of the Congregational church. The bearers were John A. Macdonald, state highway commissioner of Hartford, Otis Morrarty, Arthur Loomis and John Maher all of Putnam. Burial was in the family plot in Grove street cemetery. A committal service conducted by the officiating clergymen was held at the grave.

Msis Beatrice Sochor, P. H. S., class of 1931, has been delegated by the retiring editorial board to succeed Miss Dorothy Whitehouse as editor in chief of the "Blue and White Banner," official high school organ. Miss Sochor has been one of the outstanding members of the junior class during the past year, and her high academic standing merits the appointment conferred upon her yesterday. She has been an active contributor to the Banner since entering high school and during her junior year was junior assistant literary editor.

Other students appointed to offices on the editorial board are: Beatrice Greene, literary editor; Ruth Amidon, junior assistant literary editor; sophomore literary editor, Carolyn Morse; Jerome Tourtellotte, sports editor; Leonard Guertin, assistant sports editor; Kenneth Grover, personal editor; Natalie Dean assistant sports editor; exchange editor, Newart Varbodian; William Moss, business manager; James Tatem and Pauline Rawley circulation managers.

Another interesting item coming from the high school is the election of Weston Wallen, son of Patrolman and Mrs. Harry Wallen of Mechanics street, as president of the class of 1931 for its senior year which it will enter upon next September. Wallen is the retiring president of the junior class. He has been active in school athletics and class and school musical pursuits. Other officers of the class elected were: Alga Pahaikanen, vice president; Albert Caisse, treasurer.

Miss Genevieve Sherlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherlock of Pomfret street will head the junior class next year. Miss Sherlock was elected to the presidency at a meeting of the sophomore class which was held immediately following the annual session of the class of 1931 yesterday morning.

Clerk of Court Curtis Dean, issued a notice to the bar today to the effect that a short calendar session of superior court has been scheduled to be heard at Willimantic on June 23, instead of on June 3 as first announced. Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Danbury will preside at the session. Mr. Dean has advised all attorneys interested in the session that short calendar notices should be filed at the clerks office not later than June 19.

There will be a re-opening of the May civil term of court at Willimantic on short calendar day, for the purpose of disposing of the following cases which were not reached before the adjournment of court in this city last week by Judge Arthur F. Ellis: Mary F. Potter vs. Charles H. Potter; Albert B. Webb admr. vs Charles A. Parker; Grace V. Wood et al vs. Rae D. Wood; Charles Chesters vs. Louis J. Haines; Romulus Paquin vs Maude A. Starr and Robert J Starr; Bertha Duchaineau Shea vs Martin F. Shea; The Willimantic Lumber and Coal company vs. James A. Kane.

If a roof is placed over Putnam new water standpipe on Oak hill which at present towers above any other structure within a vicinity of 15 miles, it has been suggested to the board of water commissioners by some air-minded person, that the name Putnam together with a direction arrow showing true north, be painted on the sky-exposed surface. Putnam already has one air guide which is daily proving its worthiness in safely guiding aviators of the Boston to New York air routes to their destinations. However the giant tank which is visible from a point as far south as Attawaugan, if used for an air trail blazer would serve ideally a double purpose.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

FIXING THE CITY TAX RATE

The Taxpayers' association members are not the only ones who are interested in good government or in keeping down the taxes, but it is a good thing to have such an organization that will take a lead in such matters and from a non-political standpoint finds its efforts for the best interests of the city.

At the adjourned annual city meeting Monday night the citizens of Norwich will be called upon to make provision for the running of the city for the next year. There are the necessary departmental expenses for which provision must be made and there are certain special projections which have been sought by petition. While all might be desirable if the city had ready funds and it did not mean such a boost in the tax rate, it is quite apparent that we must be governed by conditions.

This is a time for keeping down taxes instead of skyrocketing them. It is a time when wise economy is demanded, when necessary work should be done, but when there should be no thought of extravagance. If certain matters can be delayed without harm or if others can be done advantageously at less expense, good business prompts the adoption of such a course.

By the recent statement by City Treasurer Coit, the city must face added expenses this year because of interest on bonds, because payment is due on completed street work and because there can be anticipated no such payment from the gas and electrical department as was received last year. That will mean some increase in taxation if it isn't possible to effect curtailments elsewhere. The cash balance from last year is going to help materially but it will not be enough to balance the larger expenses, and this without any attention being given to the list of extras.

The Taxpayers' association is seeking to keep the tax rate at as low a figure as possible. It will be surprising if that isn't in accord with general opinion at this time. With the same good business management as in the past two years, we can expect good results. What is to be done, however, rests with the citizens. Taxes can be kept as low as possible and most necessary conditions or they can be pushed up so high as to be extremely burdensome. The thing for the citizens to do next Monday night is to grace the city meeting with their attendance, learn first hand what is required and use their best judgment in meeting it. It is not a time to leave such matters in a few to decide, especially when the few may have little interest from the standpoint of the double taxpayer.

CHRISTOPHER THURBER

Probably Norwich never realized during his life time the character of service that one of its sons was rendering in the near east, during and following the distressing conditions which have prevailed there among the refugees, but it is being brought to attention since his death by the honors and tributes which have been paid him by those who know from first hand knowledge what an influence and help Christopher Thurber was in directing relief work there.

Christopher Thurber has not only done honor to himself and the relief organization, but to his native city Norwich, as it learns of his efforts and accomplishments, may be surprised at the extent of his activities, but it has ever been proud to know that he was laboring so successfully and sacrificingly in such a good cause.

While his labors were first in Asia Minor at the time when the Turks were forcing deportations, he had a direct part in saving that tenth of the 90,000 refugees, but not without encountering the harshness of Turkish rule and imprisonment on two occasions. Later, when disease swept over that region, he was stricken with typhus so that with all he had a close personal knowledge of what conditions were in Turkey, and while he experienced flogging and imprisonment there time brought a recognition of his work, for he was made mayor of Scutari.

During the past three years his labors as director of American relief work in Greece brought him in touch with thousands of refugee children and it was the successful work he did among them that made a lasting impression upon Greece. That he was thoroughly bound up in his work and the cause, was reflected in his wish to be buried on Greek soil, and no greater expression of appreciation on the part of Greece could have been expected than the honor that was paid him in according him a military funeral and in issuing the official proclamation which termed him "a precious collaborator and a great friend of Greece." It was a demonstration that his work in Greece, a work to which he was thoroughly devoted, had not been in vain. His record in the near east was a remarkable one, and Norwich may well be proud of the fact that it was the birthplace of such a worker for humanity.

LOBBY COMMITTEE DEFIED

During the period in which the senate lobby committee has been carrying on its investigation there have been occasions when it was felt and expressed that it was going far beyond the object intended. It has pursued a policy all its own and proceeded against objections. It has been as unjust in the questioning of certain of the witnesses before it as it has gone far afield in the case of others. On the other hand, it has refrained from seeking information from other individuals which gave every promise of providing it with desirable facts.

While objection has been raised to methods and questions, the committee has gone its own way until the time came when Bishop James Cannon, Jr., announced that the committee had no right to inquire into his personal political activities two years ago, and withdrew from the committeeroom. The committee objected but Bishop Cannon persisted in leaving, since which Chairman Caraway of the committee has declared that the bishop is right.

While all may not agree with Bishop Cannon, certainly all do not agree with the committee, and when Chairman Caraway upholds the stand taken by the bishop in retiring it indicates that the only trouble with the others who were put through the mill is that they did not do the same thing. If it is defiance of the committee and such defiance is supported by the chairman, who has been quite as prominent as any other in pursuing the course so widely criticized, it would appear that the committee knew it was going beyond bounds and needed someone to call it to account.

Whether the committee will insist it has the authority and resort to a subpoena to get the bishop before it again, whether it will go back to the senate to have its authority upheld, or whether it will let the situation pass remains to be seen. Having challenged the committee in its course, Bishop Cannon places the responsibility upon the committee to make the next move. Even though it is to be expected that all will be treated alike before such a committee, the fact that the committee has exceeded its authority in other instances doesn't necessarily mean that it is entitled to continue with its grilling programme as long as it likes.

WESTERLY'S BRIDGE AND THE VOLUNTOWN ROAD

Westerly and Pawcatuck own and maintain the bridge which connects these two communities. It is 45 years old and said to be in bad condition. It is said that it hasn't been painted for ten years, which doesn't improve the situation.

The people of these communities are desirous that there should be a new bridge and they are endeavoring to have the states of Rhode Island and Connecticut unite in providing it; also, possibly, to provide an alternate route through Westerly and Pawcatuck for the better accommodation of traffic. Interest is being aroused over the situation and there ought to be no difficulty in getting a hearing from the respective authorities in such a laudable endeavor. Whether it will be considered a task for the two states or for the two towns awaits decision. In the dual community efforts are being centered upon a joint structure by the two states because it is upon the main highway of southern New England which leads through a particularly attractive region.

Whatever the outcome of the effort, there can be no question but what a bridge, which is depended upon to carry the traffic of that road, should be safe and with improvements or new construction at that point attention ought to be given to the narrow and congested approach on the west end.

The bridge is much used, a recent count showing 1,824 machines using it in an hour of the afternoon, though not during the busiest period. It is on a much-used tourist route and many are unquestionably using it because there is no alternate route provided, and yet no less an authority than the president of the Pawcatuck board of trade, F. L. Furness, has pointed out that "at least 75 per cent of the tourists on the road today are not out to see the country but are out to see how far they can go."

This lends support to the contention that we have previously made, that there is need for a route that reduces the distance for the tourists; take away part of the congestion at the Westerly bridge and distribute it over other sections. By extending the road already built from Norwich to Preston City so that it would go through Voluntown and thence to the Rhode Island line and the Nooseneck road, tourists diverting from the shore route at New London would be placed in Providence quicker with less mileage. They would have two ways of crossing New London county into Rhode Island instead of one at the extreme southern edge.

Both as to the Westerly-Pawcatuck bridge and the alternate route across New London county into Rhode Island, there is an opportunity for cooperation on the part of the authorities of both states.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTHS

We are getting to the point where thoughts are being given to the safe and sane observance of the Fourth. There has been no indication that the people were losing interest in this movement. On the other hand, there are instances which indicate that more and more efforts are being made in its behalf.

There are communities which are recognizing that for the proper protection of life and limb it is necessary to establish regulations concerning the sale of fireworks and limiting the period in which it can be done and the character of the explosives. Others are aware of the fact that such restrictions are desirable and necessary but take the position that they have not time enough this year in which to act before the nation's anniversary. Their view seems to be that while it is too late now, it will be enacted in time for the Fourth of 1931.

With the saving in life through safe and sane celebrations, the prevention of many serious accidents and the added protection that is given to property, years of demonstration may be having a tardy effect but they are, nevertheless, producing the inevitable result.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Those who have lost their eyesight are not the only ones who are blind.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

At this season nature looms up as a great teacher. Next to the Creator himself it is not extravagant to say it is our greatest teacher. We of course are ready to admit that at all seasons of the year, if our minds are on the alert to learn, nature has something to give us. Even when ice and snow deprive us of our usual activities there is something to be learned from the external world. If you want a good illustration of physical power you have only to look at an iron pipe burst open by the water freezing. If you want to see a most exquisite example of fine crystals put some ice spangles under a microscope. No lacework ever executed by man can compare with it. If one's faculties are dropped to learn, he need not go very far to find something produced by nature that will fill him with surprise.

There is something about the summer season that makes us more responsive to external nature than when the ice king reigns. The peeping of the frogs arouses emotions that neither coasting nor skating can give. If one is musically inclined the singing of birds touches emotions that even sleigh bells cannot awaken. If one has naturally, or has cultivated the sense of the beautiful, what a sense of satisfaction a beautiful bed of pansies can awaken. The writer the other day realized this in a neighboring town when he saw row after row of these flowers of every conceivable pattern and color. If one finds himself responsive to this superfine work of nature, the reaction of his whole being to it cannot fail to dignify and elevate his whole nature. One is to be pitied whose nature does not once and fully respond to the sense of the beautiful.

When we come into contact with these superlative forms of beauty, do we realize how little is man's part in producing such beauty? No matter how able a botanist he may be he is nothing more than nature's servant. He cooperates with nature in fertilizing the soil, keeping down the weeds, destroying injurious insects and protecting from frost and blight. But the main work is far beyond his limited powers. The one important thing above all others is growth and this is nature's sole prerogative. Man may help, but nature must do the real business, and it is perfectly amazing how much may be accomplished when man cooperates with nature. The statement made in the fourth chapter of the Gospel of Mark is true at all times and places: "For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself: first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear."

It seems to me that here is a suggestion of a golden thread that runs through every human life. The mother leads her little boy for the first time to the kindergarten. Probably his hand trembles because of the uncertainty. The teacher may be kind and his fellow pupils companionable. Now the main work in that kindergarten that boy must do himself. Others may guide but it is he who must learn: and thus all the way to the end of the university, the real work must be done by the individual. Professors guide the students, they do not carry them. No one ever yet learned to drive an automobile merely by reading a book of instructions. He must take the wheel himself and get familiar with the working machinery. What we are is a growth of what nature put into us. And when that is worked as nature intended we then represent "the full corn in the ear."

It is quite evident that the school children are certainly headed in the right direction along one line at least and that is in the matter of patriotism. It also shows that school supervisors are doing their duty in trying to instill in these young minds a love for their country. On Thursday of last week the writer had the privilege of facing 450 pupils in one of the school auditoriums of this city and the deep interest shown in the causes that led to the Civil war and the devotion shown by the young men engaged to preserve the integrity of their country made him feel that the same patriotic fire that was shown in 1776, again in 1861 and later in the Spanish-American war of 1898 and the World war of 1917 is by no means wanting in the present generation of our boys and girls.

In one of our leading religious journals a wonderfully illuminating article appeared recently entitled: "D. L. Moody, the Educator." The article was written by the well known author, Gamaliel Bradford, who certainly was qualified to write clearly and dispassionately on the subject. It was written in connection with the 50th anniversary of the Northfield schools founded by Mr. Moody. The article shows remarkable insight into those amazing characteristics that made Mr Moody a master of men and circumstances. He seemed to have an unerring faculty of reading men aright, and that helped him in putting the right man into the right place. While he was not a learned man himself he had the peculiar ability of finding just the right place for the other man, and hence the success of all his undertakings.

Probably it is too harsh a criticism to say that our present system of prison management is a total failure, but it would be equally far from the truth to affirm, on the other hand, that it was an unqualified success. The recent outbreaks in some of our overcrowded penal institutions indicate that there is something radically wrong somewhere. Is the present attitude of society toward the criminal according to the precepts of Christianity? Is the idea in view that of vengeance of reformation? We dislike to think that it is the latter, but there are many things that lead our minds in that direction. If we are justified in taking this attitude of mind we shall be forced to link up the Auburn and Columbus outbreaks with the prison system of pagan Rome. Even criminals ought to be treated like human beings. In the long run the only successful method will be firmness mingled with mercy.

It was exactly 32 years ago this week when the entire civilized world was amazed at the bold attempt of Lieut. Hobson to bottle up the harbor of Santiago, Cuba, by sinking the collier Merrimac in the channel. The Spanish-American war was not a long one possibly because we had such men of action at Santiago as Richard Hobson, and at San Juan a Theodore Roosevelt. This war came as near to perfect justification as any war possibly could. It was inspired from beginning to end not by avarice but mercy. We said virtually to Spain, "you shall not strangle little Cuba or exploit her simply because you are the stronger power." And as we all know our interference was met with unqualified success. Our dealings with the Philippines islands have been marked by the same humane action. And that has been true of all our wars.

Dead Man Just A Log

NEW YORK—(AP)— In steel construction language, "dead-man" means a log buried in the ground for anchorage.

NORWICH HAS SPECIAL INTEREST IN CANADA'S MEMORIAL TO GEN. JAMES WOLFE

Just 171 years ago this week, on June 1, 1759, the English General James Wolfe sailed from Louisbourg, which had been recently taken from the French by a British force largely composed of New England colonists. The object of his expedition was the capture of Quebec, a purpose accomplished by the victory on the Plains of Abraham, September 13, 1759. In recognition of this anniversary the dominion which Wolfe wrested from the French has presented Great Britain with a heroic statue of the conqueror that will be unveiled this month on the English Thames river, a short distance from Greenwich hospital.

The event will have a vicarious interest for us of Norwich as well. Our own ancestors played no mean part in winning Canada for Great Britain, although subsequently they were compelled to sever this connection with the crown. Captain John Parker, who 16 years later, commanded the minute-men at "the rude bridge that arched the flood" at Concord "and fired the shot heard round the world," scaled the heights of Abraham at Wolfe's side. At Bunker Hill, General Prescott issued to his raw levies the same order given by Wolfe to his grenadiers at Quebec:

"Withhold your fire until the enemy is so close that not a ball will be wasted."

Putnam's Historic Order.

This command was a counterpart to that formulated on the same occasion by Gen. Israel Putnam, Windham county's great military hero: "Boys, do you remember my order at Ticonderoga?" he asked Lieut. John Keyes, Sergt. Abijah Fuller, Corpl. Joel Webb and other Windham county veterans who had served with him under the British colors in the French wars, and were then serving with him against the British colors in Massachusetts.

"You told us not to fire till we could see the whites of the enemy's eyes," one of them answered.

"Well, I give the same order now," rejoined "old Put," and most literally was his order obeyed.

Amherst's capture of Louisburg in 1758 and Wolfe's seizure of Quebec a year later were effected with a large measure of colonial assistance, especially from New England. The colonies provided more than 20,000 of the 50,000 men raised for the campaign of 1759; and Massachusetts alone appropriated more than $1,000,000 for it. At that time the colonies and Great Britain were fighting shoulder to shoulder against a common enemy, whom New England especially had no reason to love.

Many Norwich Recruits.

The records of Norwich abound with references to local aid given Great Britain in the great conflict with the French which culminated with Wolfe's reduction of Quebec. In many a Norwich almanac or private diary of the time are such references found as the following: "Ten stout men drawn for Canada." "Six of our neighbors pressed to go against the Indians." "More soldiers to be raised."

In 1758 four regiments were recruited in Connecticut for frontier service; and one of these, that under Col. Nathan Whiting, was drawn chiefly from New London county. In 1758 Col. Samuel Colt commanded a regiment, raised in Norwich and its neighborhood, which wintered at Fort Edward. Col. Elezear Fitch, Col. William Whiting, Capt. Robert Denison and Capt. Samuel Mott served in these campaigns against the French. Dr. Jonathan Marsh was with the northern army as a surgeon in 1756 and 1757, and Dr. Philip Turner in 1758. Elijah Huntington, (son of Isaac, whom Miss Caulkins calls "one of the estimable recorders of Norwich) served in the frontier army through three campaigns, 1758-60, and was in the service when Canada surrendered to Gen. Amherst.

The preamble to the will of Joseph Johnson of Preston, made in June, 1757, and proved in May, 1758, has this passage: "Being called by Providence to go forth against the common enemy and to jeopard my life upon the high places of the field," etc. Between 1758 and 1763, in the registry of deaths, in accounts and settlements of estates, there are other like allusions to those who "went to the wars" or died in battle or of camp fever.

Norwich Man a Leader.

American interest in Wolfe's capture of Quebec is enlivened by its own expedition against that citadel in 1775, which closely paralleled Wolfe's feat at several points. One of the commanders of the revolutionary expedition was Benedict Arnold, whose boyhood had been spent in Norwich. The object of the 1775 campaign was to seize Canada and prevent it from becoming a base for an attempt to cut the colonies in two by an invasion along the line later followed by General Burgoyne to his defeat at Saratoga. General Richard Montgomery, with 2,000 men, advanced north through New York, as General Amherst had done in 1759, and captured Montreal in November.

The following day Colonel Benedict Arnold, whom Washington had sent up through the Maine woods with another 2,000 men, arrived at the St. Lawrence opposite Quebec, after a brilliant march of 33 days. The terrific hardships encountered on this forced march through the primeval forest had reduced his effectives to 700 men.

Arnold immediately crossed the river, scaled the heights at the same point Wolfe had climbed and challenged the enemy to come out and fight. The enemy declined. There was then nothing for Arnold to do but to wait for General Montgomery to come up from Montreal.

When the latter arrived, simultaneous assaults from two sides were ordered. The first volley killed General Montgomery and left his undisciplined levies leaderless, whereupon they fled.

Norwich Leader Is Wounded.

At almost the same moment, Arnold, attacking from the other side of the city, was so badly wounded that he had to be carried from the field. The command devolved on Captain Daniel Morgan, who fought his way far into the city.

If Montgomery had lived, Quebec would have passed into the hands of the continental congress on January 1, 1776. As it was, after his death and the flight of his army, Carleton was able to turn his entire strength against Morgan and overwhelm the latter's tiny force.

Quebec fell in 1759 because the invalided commanders were on opposite sides. Quebec was saved on the last day of 1775 because the invalided commanders were both on the same side.

A Memorial to Norwich Valor Too.

All of which is historically interesting, without arousing at this late date any personal animosities. General Wolfe, a gallant and devoted officer, was dead sixteen years when the ill-fated expedition led by two other brilliant soldiers, General Montgomery and Colonel Benedict Arnold, was undertaken.

Wolfe was fond of reflecting that "the paths of glory lead but to the grave." There is much satisfaction in the fact that the untimely grave which opened for him has led to such glory as seldom comes even to those who woo it on the battlefield. A victim of a serious complication of internal diseases, as he lay before Quebec and sought the key to the problem of its capture, Wolfe pleaded with the doctor to "patch him up" that he might discharge the trust Pitt had reposed in him.

The manner in which he ventually discharged it was epochal in world history: for the capture of Quebec meant that all North America above the Rio Grande should be forevermore under Anglo-Saxon control. It is eminently fitting that Canada should erect this memorial to his valor; and it is equally fitting also to regard it in a sense as a memorial to the valor of our Norwich ancestors also.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Loyalty

Loyalty is as we all know one of the noblest traits, without this gem of characted all else is of little value. With it you poesess the richest jewel. How much we will overlook in a person of possessing true loyalty. Without loyalty our friendship is worthless, as a citizen lacking this our country is to be pitied. No one without loyalty can be a true citizen, and we all realize that lacking this it is impossible to be a true Christian loyalty is the true foundation stone of all that is best.

We all know that loyalty is to character what the blood is to the body. A truly loyal person is loyal in the little things. The loyal person is the one the Lord can depend on at all times. A loyal person is true to all his duties, his friends, family, nation and his God. What a blessing such a life is to the world. A blessing instead of ever grieving the heart of the Master who has ever been loyal to us at all times. Money will not buy loyalty, only a noble nature is capable of real loyalty. The wicked are naturally faithless and disloyal. Only bad men have their price. True loyalty is not like the weather vane, but like Gibralter, always the same.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 6—Along in August state conventions will meet out in Idaho to nominate a senatorial candidate for the seat so long and conspicuously occupied by the Hon. William E. Borah.

Up to the day "Ol' Joe" Grundy got so completely amputated from the senatorial picture in Pennsylvania, nobody had showed his head in Idaho to challenge Bill Borah's continuance as the senior senator from Idaho.

No Idaho democrat, even, had showed any inclination to enter the contest.

Rumors were afloat in Idaho democratic circles, the wise ones said, that Borah might get approval of both parties for his fourth consecutive six-year hitch as a senator.

Remarkable Comparison

Here is a rather remarkable comparison of political results for the two men who figured as rival field marshals of the tariff fight on the senate floor.

The original "coalition" worked up between democrats and insurgent republicans and of which Borah was chief spokesman in the eyes of most observers, had things all its own way until Grundy got going as a senator.

Then it toppled over and in the course of Grundy's primary campaign his Pennsylvania friends did not fail to boast that it was due to his skill.

They even put paid advertisements in Pennsylvania papers making that assertion, and these, of course, soon got into the Congressional Record via Senator George Norris.

But he who gloats last, gloats better far than he who gloats the first, as the old song says in effect. Mr. Grundy's gloating days were brief.

Mr. Borah, if the wise ones are to be believed, has his still ahead of him. If a senator ever got a seat with approval of constituents of both parties at home, the Bystander cannot recall it, and Borah may do that.

What if he did? The burly, rugged-faced Idahoan who has power to charm even senators into listening to what he has to say—not, of course, into agreeing with him, necessarily—has always been credited with presidential ambitions.

Most political writers construed his support of Hoover and leadership in the Hoover election campaign as a final renunciation of any such dreams he might have had.

Borah was 63 then. Assuming eight Hoover years, clearly he would have been too old to hope for selection later.

Borah In Spotlight

But a whole Mississippi flood of political waters has been flowing under the brides since then.

Anti-administration republicans in the senate have, with seeming deliberation, maneuvered to throw Borah into the spotlight. Plans of campaign may have originated elsewhere, but the voice heard in crises usually has been Borah's.

In the circumstances, he could be excused if dwindling presidential hopes had sprung to new life. And suppose he comes back in 1930 virtually senator by acclamation? He'll be just a vigorous 67 in 1932.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Rabbit Is Startled

It nothing costs to be polite.
And furthermore you know its right.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit sat on the edge of the water watching Starnose the Mole swimming towards him. Up above sat Redwing the Blackbird. As Starnose drew near, Redwing flew down to a tussock of grass and began his familiar clucking sound. Instantly Starnose turned his head. "Hello, Redwing!" said he in a squeaky voice.

"Hello, Starnose!" replied Redwing. "I want you to meet a friend of mine."

"Who?" squeaked Starnose. "Whom do you want me to meet, and where is he?"

Just then Peter moved a little and instantly Starnose turned in his direction. "It is just Peter Rabbit," said Redwing.

"I thought it was a Rabbit," squeaked Starnose. "That's what it sounded like. How comes it I have never met Peter Rabbit over here before?"

"That's what I want to know," said Redwing. "Peter comes over here often enough, but he says that until today he never has seen you."

"Well, I never have seen him," squeaked Starnose, and then gave a funny little chuckle. "Of course, he hadn't seen Peter, because, as I have already told you, he cannot see people or things. All he can do is to tell light from darkness. Now he swam rapidly in to where Peter sat and climbed up beside him. Evidently his nose told him all he wanted to know. "How do you do, Peter Rabbit?" said he.

"Very well indeed, thank you," replied Peter in his most polite manner. "If I felt any better, I should feel too good. Is it true that you are cousin to Miner the Mole, who lives up on the Green Meadows?"

"I suppose I am," replied Starnose. "Do you see him often?"

"No," replied Peter. "In fact, I have seen him only two or three times in all my life. He certainly does like to keep out of sight. Do you stay under ground as much as he does?"

"Oh, I stay under ground a good deal of the time," replied Starnose. "Still, I like to come out once in a while. That's how I happened to be taking a swim just now. I certainly do like the water. Do you like the water, Peter Rabbit?"

Peter shook his head. Then he re-him shake his head. "No," said he membered that Starnose couldn't see very frankly, "I don't like the water.

"Oh, I stay under ground a good deal of the time," replied Starnose. By the way, was it you who scared me so the other day?"

"Don't ask me," replied Starnose. "I don't often scare anybody. How were you scared?"

"I was taking a little nap up there on the bank and suddenly the ground was pushed right up underneath me," replied Peter.

Starnose chuckled. It was funny, squeaky little chuckle. "Was that you?" he squeaked. "Then I suppose it was you who scared me half to death right afterwards."

It was Peter's turn to chuckle. "I thumped the ground hard enough," said he, "but I couldn't be sure that I scared anybody."

"Well, you did, you scared me," replied Starnose. "I didn't do any more digging over there for a long time."

"Then it was you and not Miner who made all those little ridges," said Peter.

"Certainly," replied Starnose." Cousin Miner doesn't like such wet soil. He likes it where it is dryer. There are not earthworms enough over here to suit him. My, my, my how that fellow does like earthworms! I like them well enough myself, but I can get along very well without them. He seems to think he must have them, so he stays where he is like to find them. I want to be near water. Yes, sir, I want to be near water."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Pitcher's Side

Mr. Editor: In the issue of The Bulletin of May 31, 1930, I find a piece headed, Seeks Selectmen's Decision on Cemetery Location, in which my name appears several times, and as I have had several telephone calls since said piece appeared, I have promised to publish my side of the question of what I find in the public records, and where they have had the burying ground staked out on the ground, so with your permission for the use of a space in your paper I will proceed.

First, I find the ground on which they have had the burying ground staked out did not belong to Thomas Post in 1661 when he gave the memorandum to the town of Norwich, and said land never belonged to the Post family and so he could not give a memorandum of land on somebody else's property, and have it legal.

I find by the records that the first person to be buried in the Post and Gager burying ground was Mary Andrews, first wife of Thomas Post, and the records state that she was buried in the corner of her husband's home lot, and I find the boundary of the home lot described in a deed of June 20, 1714 or 1715.

And I find the boundary of said home lot and remaining as described in said deed until I found a part of the Edgerton land annexed to the Post land by one Daniel L. Huntington by deed of Samuel Case to Daniel L. Huntington, dated April 11, 1844, so it can be seen that all the land that belonged to Lyman W. Lee never belonged to the Post family.

So, this morning, I went to the ground to see where they were claiming the burying ground to be, and I found two stakes on the southeasterly line of the Richard Edgerton grant and others northwest of them, so I concluded they were claiming the old Post and Gager burying ground to be nearer the center of the Thomas Post land than it was near any corner of his home lot as appears on record, and it will be seen by my report to the selectmen about a year ago, that the burying ground they have staked out may have been somewhere near where it was. I referred to it in my report as a lost burying ground and not the Post and Gager burying ground of 1661, but they are trying to get it where the burying ground was in 1844, which they cannot do by following the records.

So, in conclusion, I wish to call the public attention to the fact that my report that the Post and Gager burying ground was where I located it on a plan by unanimous vote of board of selectmen at that time, and on the advice of the town counsel.

I would like to have someone show me a map or otherwise, that the burying ground they have staked out was ever called the Post and Gager burying ground, but in every case it has been called an old burying ground.

Now the parties have had the burying ground staked out where they want it to be located, they are putting great reliance on the word adjacent, which appears in a deed from Lyman W. Lee to the Mason Monument association, which is as follows: A tract of land adjacent to an old burying ground; and as I was not certain of the meaning of the word adjacent, I looked it up for the meaning of the word in four or five dictionaries and I found the word adjacent to mean near to, or close by. I am willing to go before any tribunal with my abstract of the search of the records and prove or disprove of my location of the Post and Gager burying ground. I see in said item that Mrs. Rogers considers the Pitcher survey was all wrong, and I suppose it was wrong because it did not locate the burying ground where she wished it to be.

GEORGE E. PITCHER.

"Country Roads"

Mr. Editor: In a recent article written by C. H. "Dad" Shaw, entitled "Country Life Preferred," he mentioned the many advantages of country life. To many I can agree wholly, to one other only in part, and that is to the condition of the highways, outside of the state roads.

Canterbury roads for the past 25 years have been a by-word, particularly those in the Gay Head district.

We felt it our duty to pay proper respect to our dead on Decoration day, that sleep in the cemetery known as the Williams or Winchester cemetery.

After leaving the state road, near Canterbury Plains, we encountered more or less rough, rocky and muddy sections, fairly passable and reasonably safe, but trouble began when within a mile of the cemetery. Boulders in the road scraped the fender part of the car; deep ruts filled with mud up to the hubs of the wheels stalled the car, requiring several efforts to free it from the quagmire that for a time threatened to engulf us. While in the mire, a resident of the neighborhood met us. After some questioning, we were told that nothing had been done toward making the road safe and passable for many years, except to cut a few bushes that overlapped the road that for years had scratched the sides of the passing vehicles.
